Livingston to replace Gaskin on Council

Bruce Livingston has been appointed to fill the third ward City Council seat which became vacant Monday evening upon the resignation of Pat Gaskin. Gaskin and her husband John recently purchased a home in Charlevoix Township and will be moving there from their home on Belvedere Avenue.

Livingston's appointment was not unanimous. His nomination was approved on a 3-2 vote with council members Chas. Hoffman, Jackie Cross and Ted Felter voting in favor and council members Don Meggison and Butch Russell voting opposed.

Russell said he has nothing against Livingston, but that he had received phone calls from people who felt that prior to the council's filling a council vacancy, a notice should be published so that any other eligible person interested in filling the vacancy could express that interest. Meggison questioned whether the council had to make an appointment Monday evening.

Hoffman said it was her understanding that the council had 30 days to fill the vacancy. She supported Livingston's nomination citing his service on the city planning commission.

Audience member Polle VerWys said she wanted to see other candidates discussed rather than having the council simply approve Livingston's nomination. She suggested former council member Shirley Roloff as a possibility. A motion to appoint Livingston was on the floor at the time and when a roll-call vote was taken he was appointed.

VerWys alleged that Livingston had been handpicked by city manager Mike Wiesner. Felter immediately denied that Wiesner had played a roll in the council decision.

Following Livingston's appointment, Roloff said she would like to thank the people who had called her and supported her return to the council. She also said that she is confident the Livingston will serve well. Prior to the conclusion of the meeting, Livingston, a resident of East Hurlbut Street, was sworn in to office by City Clerk Joanne Patrick. His first meeting in office will be Jan. 18.

The winner of the 1993 New Year's Baby Contest at Charlevoix area hospital was Brianna Balogh, daughter of Dave and Brenda Balogh of Ellsworth. Her older brothers are Adam, 3, and David Jr., 5. Brianna was born at 5:51 a.m., Jan. 2. Brianna will receive prizes from: Sears of Charlevoix, First State Bank, Barb's Hallmark, Ben Franklin, Rocking Horse Toy Co. and Charlevoix Commons Apothecary.

Prosecutor's pay raise rescinded

By Laurie Lounsbury

Charlevoix County's incoming prosecuting attorney Richard May will take office with a four percent salary increase instead of the originally budgeted 14 percent salary increase. Charlevoix County Commissioners voted to start the prosecutor's salary at $54,756, which is four percent more than outgoing prosecutor Kraag Lieberman earned. The prosecutor's budget was not amended to reflect the change in salary. May addressed the board of commissioners during their discussion of the prosecutor's salary, saying, "I don't think the public wants a foolish attorney. It would have been foolish for me to run for an office not even knowing what the salary would be." May said that the basic issue is what constitutes a reasonable salary for the county's chief law enforcement officer.

May was willing to accept the lower salary with the understanding that his performance would be reviewed in six months and his salary raised by $2,500 dollars by July 1st, and raised again in another six months. After that May wanted his salary set at an average of the Repair work will restrict bridge traffic to one lane for about the next two months. After that, it will be at two lanes until spring. Repair work will involve replacing the entire bridge deck as well as changing the stop gates. Police chief Dennis Halverson is reminding motorists to heed the traffic lights at the north and south ends of the bridge as for the next two months, more than ever, they will not be merely decorative.

Many contributed to make holidays happier for others

The Thanksgiving and Christmas Holidays are generally a time of excitement and anticipation of good times for most. The Department of Social Services can not provide families on assistance with anything extra during the holidays. It's difficult for families on assistance to provide that extra special Thanksgiving meal and anticipation of presents for Christmas.

Fortunately the community was most generous this year. Vasco Zucchiatti, volunteer Services Supervisor at the Charlevoix County Dept. of Social Services saw an increase in the number of donations this year. Zucchiatti said, "The number of groups and individuals calling our office to help families this Thanksgiving and Christmas was very active this year. People must have felt in a giving mood. Maybe our economy is turning around. Whatever the reason, it sure made a big difference for many of your families and individuals on assistance."

Even though large groups try to meet the needs of many, it's the individuals, families, small groups and businesses who add the extra touch at Christmas. Zucchiatti said, "groups and individuals gathered toys for our office to distribute to our clients and others wanted to help individual families. Some people wanted to make a personal contact with our clients while others wished to remain anonymous. The cash donations allowed us to help with specific needs for families that our department couldn't provide."

The effort everyone put into the Thanksgiving and Christmas spirit certainly made the holidays a happy time for many of those in need.

The Charlevoix County Department of Social Services would like to thank all of those who went out of their way to help others enjoy the holiday season.

Charlevoix County Social Services workers package gifts for people at Christmas. This year numerous individuals and businesses stepped forward to help make the holidays happier for other people.

 salaries paid for prosecutors in Emmet, Osego, and Cheboygan Counties. May said the Antrim County prosecutor's salary shouldn't be factored in because Antrim handles many fewer cases than Charlevoix. The Antrim prosecutor earns $49,900, making him the lowest paid prosecutor in the area.

"There is a kicker here," May continued at the board of commissioner's meeting. May requested that the board consider hiring a summer legal intern for the prosecutor's office, at a cost of $3,600.

County treasurer Joan Balch asked the question, "Is that to lighten the caseload so he doesn't have as much work to do?" May responded, "It's in order to better serve the public."

Commissioners agreed to review May's performance in July and consider a pay raise, although they wouldn't commit to it in writing.

After the meeting, May said that the salary agreement was reasonable. He also said that in light of the lower salary, "I'm going to push hard for legal assistance this summer."

Jan. 6 public meeting to address class scheduling at high school

Teachers to explain one alternative

Charlevoix public school students and their parents are invited to attend a meeting to discuss possible modifications to the high school schedule to allow students greater flexibility in selecting classes.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 6 in the high school study hall.

Under the current class scheduling program, students often find themselves more limited than they would like to be in determining which classes they can work into their class schedule. High school teachers have met and formulated a proposal to address this concern. At the Jan. 6 meeting a panel of high school teachers will present the proposal and respond to questions.

Dave Norton will be the moderator for the meeting which will focus entirely on school scheduling. Other concerns may be addressed at future meetings.

The year in review

The Charlevoix Historical Society completed a small booklet entitled Historic Charlevoix. The 48-page booklet packs a lot of information about the history of Charlevoix into a small amount of space. It sells for $2 and is available at the Chamber of Commerce and the Historical Society's Harsh House.

Approximately 250 people attended a meeting in the high school future to make suggestions regarding the direction the Charlevoix School System should take in the future. The meeting was part of School Improvement planning program mandated by the State.

Oh Boix

A collection of praises, awards and accomplishments involving Charlevoix people.

Betsy Haggard of Charlevoix was named to the Dean's List at Grand Valley State University for the fall term of 1992. Haggard had a perfect 4 point grade point average for the term. She is majoring in special education for the hearing and emotionally impaired and will graduate this spring. Haggard is the daughter of John and Phyllis Haggard of Charlevoix. She graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1988.

Marine Lance Cpl. Scott A. Papineau, son of Christopher P. Papineau of Charlevoix, recently received a Letter of Appreciation.

Papineau was cited for professional performance of duties while assigned with Headquarters Battery, 10th Marine, 2nd Marine Division, Camp Lejeune, NC.

The diligence, enthusiasm, motivation and professionalism which he displayed contributed significantly to the accomplishments of his unit's mission.

The 1990 graduate of Central Lake High School, Central Lake, joined the Marine Corps in September 1991.

Navy Petty Officer 2nd Class Ronald D. Stoneham, son of Ronald D. and Marla K. Stoneham of Charlevoix, recently received a Letter of Commendation.

Stoneham was cited for superior performance of duty while assigned aboard the submarine USS San Juan, homeported in Groton, CT.

He consistently performed his demanding duties in an exemplary and highly professional manner.

The 1985 graduate of Charlevoix High School joined the Navy in January 1987.

Charlevoix native served on stock market commission

Charlevoix native Neil Cross was among the members of the Brady Commission who reunited recently at Harvard University. The Brady Commission was a group established to review the stock markets and recommend changes following the nearly disastrous stock market plunge in October of 1987. The commission bore the name of Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady, who served as its chairman.

Cross, the son of John Cross Jr. and June Cross of Charlevoix, is an attorney specializing in securities. He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1968 and received his undergraduate work at Michigan State University and his law degree from Northwestern University in Chicago.

While at Northwestern he was hired as a research assistant by David Ruder. While Cross was still a law school student, he co-authored a research paper with Ruder.

After finishing law school, Cross kept in contact and continued to be associated with Ruder who eventually became Chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). In fact Ruder was SEC chairman in October, 1987 when the stock market plunge occurred.

When the Brady Commission was formed to recommend improvements to the securities market, Ruder was appointed and also brought Cross on board. Cross has worked in the commodities and securities business since his law school graduation in 1973. He has worked in both the Chicago and New York markets. Currently he is involved in the management of the Cash Equivalent Clearing Corporation, a high-tech company which collects information from 1,100 finanacial institutions. Such information is vital to people who are in need of money to make an investment work out.

Cross said his service on the Brady Commission was very interesting. He said the commission basically recommended some changes in the clearance and settlement systems which allowed for an easier flow of money in some portions of the markets. He said those recommendations have worked out quite well. The commission also recommended some circuit breaking and shock absorbing devices to make the markets less volatile.

Cross said the reunion of the Brady Commission at Harvard gave the commission members an opportunity to have a frank discussion about what has occurred in the markets since 1987.

...looking back at the winter of 1992

Thousands of people enjoyed fireworks, thunder tubing, snowmobiling and monster truck competitions at the 1992 Mount McSagha Sno Challenge.

Charlevoix County voiced opposition to a State redistricting plan that put Charlevoix County in a State House of Representatives District with three counties on the eastern side of the state. (For the past several years, Charlevoix has been in a district with Antrim, Otsego, Crawford, Rosecommon and Ogemaw Counties.) People opposed to the plan argued that the eastern counties (Cheboygan, Presque Isle and Alpena Counties) have interests which are different from those of Charlevoix County. Despite Charlevoix County's protests, the Michigan Supreme Court let the realignment go through.

Former District Court Judge Arthur Reibel filed a multimillion dollar lawsuit against the City of Charlevoix due to a 1991 arrest in which Reibel was charged with operating under the influence of liquor, fleeing and eluding and resisting and obstructing a police officer. Investigations by the State Police and Federal Bureau of Investigation found no evidence of improper behavior by the City police officer and a Federal District Court Judge eventually dismissed the suit. Reibel was eventually convicted of a lesser charge.

Jason Pajtas placed third in the 152-pound weight class at the State Finals wrestling meet. Pajtas' only loss in the meet was to the eventual state champion, a wrestler from Ida. In that match, Pajtas fell behind early, trailing 4-1, and later rallied, but fell short in a 6-5 decision. Pajtas finished the season with a 40-4-1 season record and a 1-12-40-1 career record. Katherine Campbell was named to the All-State second team.

The Charlevoix High School volleyball team completed their regular season with a 12-2 record and went on to post an overall record of 25-8.

Garbage bags from Waste Management Incorporated changed colors, from orange to green, and changed prices, from $1.50 per bag to $1.75 per bag.

By a 4-2 vote, the City Council approved a $9.1 million budget for the 1992-93 fiscal year. Council members Butch Russell and Jackie Cross voted against the budget presented while council members Cheri Hoffman, Pat Gaskin, Ted Feller and Bill Haggard voted in favor. The budget contained a three percent increase in electrical and sewer rates to begin putting aside money for the eventual construction of a new public works building.

Charlevoix's varsity basketball team won a district basketball title, taking a thrilling 55-53 win from East Jordan in the District Finals. The Rayders lost to Clare in Regional play.

Jason Pajtas placed third in the 152-pound weight class at the State Finals wrestling meet. Pajtas' only loss in the meet was to the eventual state champion, a wrestler from Ida. In that match, Pajtas fell behind early, trailing 4-1, and later rallied, but fell short in a 6-5 decision. Pajtas finished the season with a 40-4-1 season record and a 1-12-40-1 career record. Katherine Campbell was named to the All-State second team.

The City Council agreed to have the City sponsor an application for a state grant to help fund a community swimming pool. However, the council stipulated that before the City would actually accept grant money, pool proponents would have to raise more than $3 million to cover the remainder of pool construction and operational costs.

Charlevoix's Chamber of Commerce developed and released what it called an "Action Agenda" defining Chamber objectives and goals. Among the goals were: retaining the City Downtown Development Authority (DDA); recruiting and helping elect City Council candidates who support the continuation of downtown improvement programs; bonding for (i.e. having the City borrow money to finance) some major downtown improvement projects; proceeding with the installation of decorative lighting in the downtown area.

Congressman Bob Davis was named in a bad check scandal. Davis wrote a letter to the Courier and other newspapers in his congressional district offering his apologies and explaining his position in the matter.

As spring approached, the City prepared for a busy construction season. Projects planned included:

Arvilla C. 'Billie' (Yahr) Sutton

Arvilla C. "Billie" (Yahr) Sutton, 78, of Charlevoix, died Dec. 31, 1992, in Charlevoix.

Funeral was held Saturday at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton of the Community Church of God officiated. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

She was born March 16, 1914, in Hayes Township, the daughter of Frederick and Sophia (Mier) Yahr. She attended Murray School and was a lifelong resident of the area.

She was employed as an assembly line worker for Essex Wire in Boyne City for eight years, retiring in 1978. She distributed the Petoskey News-Review until 1985.

She married Rockliff M. Sutton on Sept. 11, 1937, in Charlevoix and he survives.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by four sons, Richard M. and his wife Jean, and Arthur F. and his wife Patricia, both of Charlevoix; Donald W. and his wife Acelia of Petoskey, and Andrew D. and his wife Bessie of Boyne City; two daughters, Mrs. Howard (Wanda M.) Barrow of Central Lake and Mrs. Jerry (Donna L.) Himebauch of Charlevoix;

18 grandchildren; 11 great-grandchildren; one great-great-grandchild; one sister, Margaret Stewart of Charlevoix; and one brother, Charles Yahr of Ionia. She was preceded in death by two grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Memorial contributions may be directed to the family. Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix.

Gerald L. Featherly

Gerald L. Featherly III, 35, of Petoskey, died Jan. 1, 1993, at his Petoskey residence.

He was born March 14, 1957, in Petoskey, the son of Gerald and Leona (Scott) Featherly Jr. He grew up and attended school in Petoskey, graduating from Petoskey High School in 1975. He had worked in Harbor Springs for several years.

Survivors include his parents, Gerald and Leona Featherly Jr. of Petoskey; two brothers, Scott Featherly of Petoskey and Ken Featherly and his wife, Gail, of Boyne Falls; one sister, Linda Grubaugh and her husband, Mark, of Petoskey; his maternal grandmother, Helen Scott of Charlevoix; his paternal grandmother, Anita Featherly of Grand Rapids; and several aunts, uncles and cousins.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Alliance for the Mentally Ill, c/o Rosemary DeCamp, secretary, Box 464, Harbor Springs, Mich. 49740.

There will be no visitation or funeral. Arrangements were handled by the Stone Funeral Home, Petoskey.

work on a parking lot between Antrim and Mason Streets (a project which stalled due to soil contamination which has put the land transaction on hold); construction of a new parking lot at Ferry Beach; beginning a $3.7 million renovation project at the airport; paving work on Dixon, Mason, Grant, West Hurbit and West Upright; extending sewer service to developments in Charlevoix Township.

A State proposal to add a second Circuit Court judge to the Charlevoix-Emmet County Circuit fell through at the last minute when the State could not come up with the money and put the proposal on hold until 1995.

Probate Court officers reported that the court had been able to reduce costs despite an increased caseload. Among the reasons for the reduced cost was the increased utilization of in-home treatment programs.

The annual PTA Spring Carnival April 10 at the Elementary School drew a large crowd despite a nasty spring snowstorm which made roads slippery.

Doug Carver was hired as the new city fire chief.

St. James Township purchased property at the Island softball field which allowed third base and home plate to join the rest of the infield in public ownership.

Charlevoix County commissioners considered hiring a county coordinator. The idea was eventually shelved.

CB Financial Corporation which purchased Charlevoix County State Bank in 1991 announced plans to purchase First State Bank. The transaction is expected to be finalized later this month. Combining the banks will create a bank with $110 million in assets. A suit to stop the merger was filed by a group called Charlevoix Investment Company, but the suit was later dismissed following a trial in which several Michigan leaders in the banking industry testified.

The Charlevoix High School Symphonic Band received a top rating at the State Band and Orchestra Festival in Detroit.

As has become tradition, elementary school students performed to a packed house at the high school gym for the spring musical. The 1992 musical was done to the theme, "That's How The West Was Sung."

County commissioners decided to cut the budget for the County Drain Commissioner, for all intents and purposes eliminating the office. In 1990, the drain commissioner was called upon to review just three plats.

May

Charlevoix's High School Performing Arts team won the Class C-D State Title for the fourth time. A multiple reading entitled "The Last Cadence" won the overall championship for all classes of schools.

Through the cooperative efforts of a local program known as "Heart Start" and Charlevoix High School, virtually all high school students were on their way to becoming certified to perform CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation).

Charlevoix industrial arts students brought home 64 ribbons from projects entered in the Regional Industrial Arts Fair.

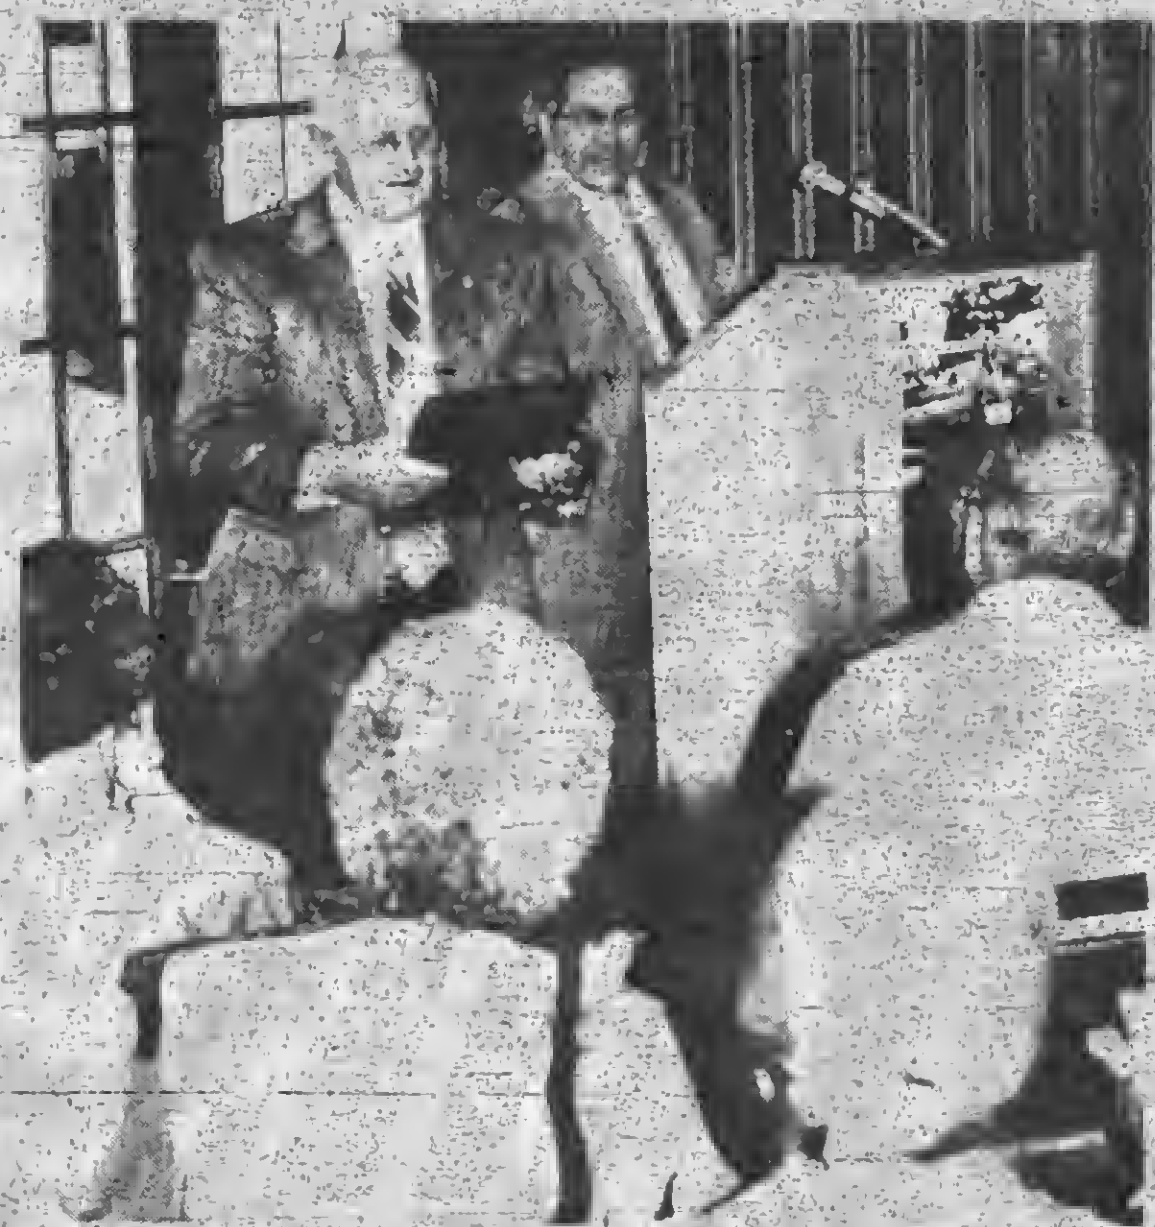

Jennifer Castro was crowned Miss Charlevoix for 1992. The 1992 pageant was moved up to May, rather than taking place in conjunction with the Venetian Festival.

Ralph McRae, who was a driving force for the construction of the Boulder Park Terrace medical care facility was honored at the facility in September when the facility's library was named after McRae.

speaker at a seminar sponsored by the Charlevoix City Police and Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce Retail Association. Although traveling thieves are not a frequent problem, they have hit Charlevoix businesses on a regular enough basis over the years to be a burden.

Pete Spieles, who retired as high school cross country coach following the 1992-93 school year, was honored at the annual high school sports banquet. Spieles, who took over the cross country program in 1976, led the team to seven Class C state titles. Walt Drenth, one of Spieles' first high school runners and now the cross country coach at William & Mary College, was the guest speaker at the banquet.

First State Bank hosted a grand opening at their new building on the southwest corner of Clinton and State Streets. A few weeks later people well-known in both state and national banking circles served as witnesses in a three-day court hearing stemming from a suit to stop the acquisition of First State Bank by CB Financial, a Jackson based company which purchased Charlevoix County State Bank in 1991. Judge Tom Foley dismissed the suit, but that decision has been appealed.

Seventeen area track teams gathered in Charlevoix for the regional track meet. Charlevoix's boys team dominated the meet, finishing with more than twice as many points as the second place team. The Rayder boys' team qualified 10 people for the state finals while the girls' team qualified seven.

Four people filed for two school board seats while three people filed for a first ward city council seat. In the school election, incumbent Larry Levengood sought re-election while Steve Czerkes, Mary Lee Campbell and Dennis Kusina sought election to the board. Meanwhile at City Hall, incumbent first ward council member Bill Haggard was challenged by Don Meggison and Ralph McRae.

County commissioners decided to put two tax increase proposals before voters - both to fund a 9-1-1 emergency phone system. The first proposal sought a 1 mill increase for two years to fund construction and start-up costs. The second sought a phone surcharge to pay to operate the system.

Club 77, a teen center for local youth, opened on Lincoln Street.

June

The Charlevoix High School varsity softball team finished their season.

season with a 20-5-1 record.

Charlevoix's boys' track team placed fifth at the Class C State Finals. The team was led by a first place finish by the 3200 meter relay team made up of Zach Pajtas, Jason Frabis, Matt Smith and Mike Sevinski.

Larry Levengood was re-elected and Steve Czerkes elected to the Charlevoix School Board.

Operation Petunia planted petunias from one end of town to the other for the eleventh year. Approximately 1,000 people put in a total of 50,000 petunias and then enjoyed a picnic in the park.

Charlevoix veterans objected to any thoughts of constructing a new Chamber of Commerce and harbor master building in Veteran's Memorial Park at the northeast corner of Bridge Street and Belvedere Avenue.

Nearly 800 fishermen participated in the 1992 Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament. The number of fish caught in the tournament was not as high as in some previous years, but the quality of fish was good. Local fishermen took home the $1,000 first prize in two of the four divisions. Al Schindorf won the Brown Trout division with an 11 lb. 15 oz fish caught in Lake Charlevoix. Larry Drost won the salmon division with an 8 lb. 15 oz. King Salmon.

A new electrical substation was completed at the corner of M-66 and Stover Road. Screening the substation with greenery cost nearly $100,000.

July

The Charlevoix School System adopted an improvement plan which will lead to changes in the future. The plan will affect curriculum, buildings, and communications.

Members of the Charlevoix Historical Society gathered at the old train depot building for a ceremony commemorating the arrival of the first passenger train in Charlevoix. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pew have donated the building to the Historical Society which is working on transforming the building into a museum.

Charlevoix Area Hospital formally broke ground for a $3.5 million building addition. The cornerstone of the project will be a new surgical unit. A new obstetric unit will also be a key part of the project. A fundraising drive generated approximately $1.6 million toward the project which is now well along and expected to be completed this coming summer.

Results from submerged vehicle tests done in Charlevoix in the fall of 1991 were made public and received national attention.

More than 30,000 people enjoyed the 1992 Venetian Festival. Festival Chairman John Taylor said the festival was a tremendous success. He and other event chairmen have already been meeting to make plans for the 1993 festival.

August

Primary election results proved interesting on several fronts. In the City, Don Meggison received more votes than either incumbent first ward council member Bill Haggard or former mayor Ralph McRae setting up a Meggison and Haggard showdown in the November general election for the first ward council seat. In Charlevoix County races, challenger Richard May unseated incumbent prosecutor Kraag Lieberman in the Republican primary and voters turned a cold shoulder to a phone surcharge to fund a 9-1-1 emergency phone service.

The northside declared itself the winner in a controversial tug-of-war match across the channel. The southside grew suspicious during the match when a utility pole behind the northside team showed a curious tendency to sway every time the southside team tugged on the rope.

September

Former mayor Ralph McRae was honored at the Boulder Park Medical Care Facility. McRae promoted the facility from the conception stage through construction and continues to work with the facility to this day. The facility's library room has been named after McRae.

Charlevoix residents responded to Hurricane Andrew with an outpouring of compassion. Local Left: Matt Smith completed a brilliant high school cross country career in 1992 with second place finishes in both the regional and state finals races.

Right: Elsa Conlan finished off her high school cross country career leading the Charlevoix girls to a one-point conference title in Elk Rapids.

Brandon Webb and his teammates on the Charlevoix High School baseball team had a difficult season in 1992.

Ski team opens season

The Charlevoix boys' ski team had some problems in the slalom competition, but the girls' team had a solid performance as the Rayders opened their season Monday at the Boyne Highlands Invitational.

The girls' team placed third among six teams. Petoskey won the meet with 46.5 points. Traverse City placed second with 70.5 points and Charlevoix took third with 77 points.

The boys' team was third after the giant slalom, but fell (literally) to last overall when four Rayder skiers failed to keep their skis under themselves in the slalom.

Coach Eric Lundteigen was pleased with the performance of the girls' team.

"That's a good way to start the year," he said. "We had a fairly steady showing on the girls' side."

He said freshman Carolyn Campbell had a good day, finishing second in the slalom and fourth in the giant slalom.

On the boys' side, Lundteigen was obviously not pleased with the four falls in the slalom. "We're not going to beat anybody if we make that many mistakes," he said.

The one real bright spot for the boys' team was the skiing of J.H. Heck. Lundteigen said that Heck, a junior, had his best day in three years. Heck placed first in the giant slalom and third in the slalom.

Coach Eric Lundteigen was pleased with the performance of the girls' team.

Alzheimer's Support Group to meet in Petoskey, Jan. 7

The Alzheimer's Support Group of Petoskey will have a meeting Thursday, Jan. 7 at 3 p.m. at the Petoskey Friendship Center, 453 East Lake Street, Petoskey. John Ternes will speak on general estate and financial planning for families where one or more members are afflicted with Alzheimers, or similar diseases. He will also talk about some of the recent changes in Medicaid eligibility for long term nursing home care. He will discuss why it often happens that elderly spouses of a person who is sick are reduced to a state of near poverty, and some approaches to avoiding that outcome. Health Care Powers of Attorney and Property Powers of Attorney will also be explained.

Ternes is a Petoskey attorney whose practice is focused on the field of Elder Law. He is a member of the American, Michigan and Emmet/Charlevoix Bar Associations; the Probate and Trust Sections of the Michigan and American Bars; and the National Academy of Elder Law Attorneys. He has spoken before Alzheimer's Support Groups, Citizens for Better Care, and the Megatrends in Aging Conference. He has been the local Mentor for the Institute of Continuing Legal Education programs in Traverse City on Medicare and Medicaid.

The Petoskey Area Alzheimer's Association Support Group meets the first Thursday of each month at the Petoskey Friendship Center, 453 E. Lake St., Petoskey, MI. All interested people are invited to attend. For further information please call Alciene Wright at 347-3211.

Drivers, watch your eyes

When it comes to athletics, sportswriters say the "legs are the first to go," but when it comes to safe driving, eyes are the problem. Like it or not, as we get older, eyesight deteriorates, says AAA Michigan. But there are things the mature driver can do.

"The eye's ability to focus begins to decline in the mid-to late 20s, with changes occurring more rapidly after age 55," says AAA Michigan's Community Safety Services Manager Jerry Basch. "By age 60, these changes are almost certain to affect driving performance."

The problem and what to do about it to remain a safe driver is spelled out in a new brochure "Straight Talk For Older Drivers ... Good Vision, Vital to Good Driving" available free at AAA Michigan branches statewide.

Among suggestions offered in addition to an annual eye exam to monitor such functions as peripheral vision of the need for glasses:

Exercise caution when slowing down, when entering or exiting the roadway and when turning or backing.

Move your eyes frequently, scanning the roadway from shoulder to shoulder to avoid "highway hypnosis" and "tunnel vision."

On long trips, avoid driving more than one hour past the time you usually go to bed.

When you must drive at night or in bad weather, choose routes that are familiar, well-lit and lightly traveled. When possible, avoid rush-hour traffic and congested intersections.

residents loaded a semi-truck with disaster relief items. Charlevoix County Emergency Services Director Earl Muma and Doug Way of Way Transportation drove the truck down to Louisiana and were taken to the Governor's Mansion where they were presented with a plaque expressing the gratitude of the people of Louisiana.

Contamination was discovered at the Kusina property between Mason and Antrim Streets. The city's Downtown Development Authority (DDA) has agreed to buy the property once all contamination is cleaned up. The DDA wants to build a public parking lot on the site. Currently, the project is on hold. The exact nature of the contamination has not been revealed, but will be if the purchase by the DDA goes through.

The City Council hired Roger Westabrook as a city electrical consultant at a salary of $60,000 per year. The contract calls for Westabrook to be paid through Nov. 17 of 1995 regardless of whether he remains able to work during that time period. Westabrook has been providing electrical consultation to the city since 1985 on a volunteer basis.

October

Charlevoix County industries displayed their products at the 1992 Charlevoix Industrial Fair sponsored by Charlevoix County State Bank. Among the dignitaries who visited the fair were U.S. Senator Carl Levin, Michigan Lt. Governor Connie Binsfeld and State Representative Bev Bodem.

A federal judge's ruling banning gill netting in the Grand Traverse Bay area was hailed by sportfishermen as a ruling which has the potential to revitalize sport fishing in northwestern lower Michigan.

A group of Russian dancers visited northern Michigan and performed in Charlevoix and several other northern Michigan communities. Ralph McRae was instrumental in organizing the visit and several other people from Charlevoix, East Jordan and Petoskey served as hosts for the young dancers.

Former District Court Judge Arthur Reibel incurred the displeasure of a visiting judge James R. McCormick during a hearing and ended up serving several days in jail for contempt of court. During Reibel's stay in jail, he was described by Sheriff George Lasater as "a model prisoner."

Charlevoix's boys' and girls' cross country teams swept the conference cross country meet in Elk Rapids. On the boys' side the win was the Rayders' thirteenth straight conference title. For the girls' winning the conference title was a new experience. The girls' team beat second place Elk Rapids by a single point. The boys' team went on to place second in the regional meet and fifth at the Class C State Finals meet. Matt Smith was the second person across the line in both

November

After what seemed an eternal build-up, the general election finally arrived. At the city level, challenger Don Meggison ousted incumbent Bill Haggard from a first ward council seat by a vote of 339-306. At the county level a revised 9:1-1 request passed. The revised request will fund start-up costs leaving the means of operational funding to be addressed at a later date. At the state level Republican Bev Bodem narrowly defeated G.T. Long to become Charlevoix's state representative while Democrat Bart Stupak defeated Phil Ruppe to become the area's Congressman. Charlevoix City and County voters also joined the majority of the nation in favoring Democratic presidential candidate Bill Clinton over Republican incumbent George Bush and independent challenger Ross Perot.

People who wanted soccer to become a high school sanctioned sport took their case before the Charlevoix School Board. In December, the board voted to add soccer to the school's extracurricular activities.

Charlevoix High School's varsity football team qualified for the post season playoffs for the first time since the playoff system began in the late 1970s. Charlevoix completed the regular season with a 7-2 record. The loss in the playoff opener to Montague, a team which ended up playing in the state finals.

Charlevoix mourned the death of brothers Louis and Dick Edwards. The brothers' deaths occurred within days of each other. The two brothers were fixtures of the community for years at the Edwards IGA store on the north side. Louie Edwards was also a longtime Charlevoix Scoutmaster and active in the Charlevoix Historical Society, which he was president of at the time of his death.

The City agreed to a settlement of $30,000 to avoid a civil rights lawsuit alleging improper police conduct in the arrest of a black youth for riding a bike on a downtown sidewalk. The City's portion of the settlement was $5,000, with the remainder paid by the city's insurance carrier.

Long-time school board member Doris Pearl resigned from the board to become clerk of Norwood Township. Seven people expressed interest in the vacant board seat. The board chose Mary Lee Campbell as Pearl's replacement.

December

A grant application for state funding to help pay for construction of community swimming pool was turned down. The 1992 application was sponsored by the City of Charlevoix. A 1991 application sponsored by the school had also been turned down.

County commissioners initially granted incoming prosecutor Richard May a 14 percent salary hike, but following complaints from other county department heads and other people reconsidered and dropped the salary increase to four percent.

After debating the matter for several months, county commissioners finally acted on a proposal to eliminate county tax-funded health care benefits for former commissioners. Commissioners eliminated benefits for the dependents of former commissioners, but left in place the benefits for the commissioners. They also left in place tax-funded health care benefits for current commissioners.

The City Council considered the purchase of a new fire truck. A committee appointed to design the truck could not reach a unanimous decision on some truck options. After first deciding to send the matter back to the committee, the council brought the matter up at a special meeting Dec. 28 and approved truck purchase by a 4-3 vote with Mayor Dave Novotny casting the deciding vote.

Contamination work in progress at City street department site

State funding problem leaves City in a tricky situation

By L. Scott Swanson

A combination of groundwater contamination at the street department and financial problems in Lansing have left the City of Charlevoix in a peculiar situation. As things currently stand, the city is likely to be financially better off, letting gas which spilled into the ground stay there for a while in the hopes that the state will allocate additional funding to help clean up the problem.

The City discovered groundwater contamination several months ago when gas tanks were pulled at the street department. Gas had leaked into the ground from a pipe connecting the tank to the dispensing pump. The street department garage is located near the corner of Ferry Avenue and Stover Road. The lakeward boundary of the property is approximately 600 feet away from the shore of Lake Charlevoix.

From the time the tanks were pulled the city qualified and registered for the MUSTFA fund, a State fund which helps pay for the clean up of groundwater contamination. In order to register for the fund, the city had to file paperwork and agree to pay the first $10,000 of clean-up costs, kind of like an insurance deductible. The city filed the paperwork and has already exceeded $10,000 in payments.

According to original terms of the MUSTFA fund, the City would be reimbursed for clean-up costs above $10,000. However, now that may no longer be the case due to state funding problems. The MUSTFA fund is running low on cash. Consequently, Charlevoix and other entities covered by the fund have been told to send in all requests for reimbursement by Feb. 8. The MUSTFA fund will cover as many of those requests as possible with what money it has. After that, it is hard to say what will happen. The state legislature may appropriate more money to MUSTFA and then again it might not.

Against that backdrop, the City Council approved a $30,300 expenditure at their Dec. 28 meeting to have McNamee Industrial Services do additional environmental work at the site. The city stipulated that the work be done soon enough for the bill to be forwarded to the state for reimbursement by the Feb. 8 deadline. At a special meeting, Jan. 8 meeting, the City Council agreed to increase that cost to $39,800 to cover the costs of an additional monitoring well. The additional well will give the city a better idea of just how far the contamination has spread, if indeed it has spread much at all.

Throughout the process, the city has been working with attorney Michael Italiano, an attorney specializing in environmental problems. In a Jan. 6 letter to City Manager Mike Wiesner, Italiano said, "It is our projection that this well will help define the downgradient extent of contamination, although there is considerable uncertainty that this will be the case without a more comprehensive corrective action investigation which will most likely be subsequently required by MDNR (Michigan Department of Natural Resources). If the well serves this purpose then we increase our chances that MDNR will not require the City to do more work after the February 8, 1993 MUSTFA funding cutoff and Environmental work has been taking place at the City street department site where gas leaked from a pipe into the ground. The City is attempting to define the scope of the problem and work with the State to clean up the site. The site overlooks Ferry Beach and Lake Charlevoix.

State Supreme Court upholds decision in boating accident

Suit against Road Commission dismissed

By L. Scott Swanson

A Michigan Supreme Court decision has said the Charlevoix County Road Commission will not have to pay any money toward compensating the victims of a 1986 boating accident in which a boat hit a bridge at Holy Island. In a Dec. 30 decision the court denied leave to appeal to the Supreme Court an Appellate Court decision which said that New Hampshire Insurance Company had waited too long to file a suit to have the Charlevoix County Road Commission, Wellcraft Marine Company and Genmar Industries contribute money for a settlement the company agreed to pay for the death of James Klein and injuries to Joan Klein.

James Klein was killed and Joan Klein severely injured Aug. 23, 1986 when a boat operated by Harry Holden hit the Holy Island bridge which extends across a portion of Lake Charlevoix, connecting the island to the mainland.

New Hampshire Insurance Company was Holden's insurance company. When the Klein's sued Holden, the insurance company reached a settlement. That settlement order was entered in court on March 23, 1988. On May 5, 1988 the parties actually signed the settlement agreement. On May 1, 1989, New Hampshire Insurance filed suit against Charlevoix County, the Charlevoix County Road Commission and the boat companies seeking contributions for the settlement. The county was quickly dismissed from the suit. The other defendants filed for summary dismissal, claiming the suit for contribution had not been filed within a year of the setdement as required by law.

The dispute boiled down to a question of what date should be considered the date of settlement. March 23, 1988 when the settlement was entered into court or May 5, 1988 when the parties actually signed the settlement.

Jo Ellen O'Connor, the defense attorney for the Road Commission, maintained that the clock should start at the time the settlement was entered into court. That position was upheld by a Circuit Court and an Appellate Court. By denying leave to appeal, the Supreme Court has also upheld that position.

In a phone interview with the Courier last Friday, O'Connor explained that the Supreme Court decision has ramifications statewide because it indicates just how that state in question should be interpreted in future cases. O'Connor said the decision says that finaliz-

...contamination work being done at street department site

before the MUSTFA funding problem is resolved.

Ideally, from a city perspective, the test well will show that contamination is limited and not spreading rapidly. That would mean that the DNR would not necessarily be pushing the city to act immediately on clean up. If the city is allowed to wait, there is a possibility that the state will place more money in the MUSTFA fund and the city could be reimbursed for clean up costs.

Wiesner has been working closely with engineers at the street department site. In a phone conversation with the Courier Monday afternoon, Wiesner said, "The engineer's comment this morning is that it doesn't look like an emergency situation." In other words, the gas spilled in the ground doesn't appear to be spreading rapidly.

Currently there are three monitoring wells at the site and Wiesner noted that more might have to be installed. The cost of clean up, as well as who is going to end up paying that cost, presently isn't known.

Several windows in the concession stands at Ferry Beach and the City softball field were shot out by someone with a BB gun early last week. Police have offered a $250 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or people responsible.

...Supreme Court rules in favor of road commission ing paperwork can't be used to "buy a couple of months" time in bringing contribution suits.

From the road commission's prospective, the decision means that a court case which would likely have taken months will now be avoided.

"Our position all along was that the Road Commission had no liability if the case had ever gotten to an argument on the merits. It just never got that far," O'Connor said.

Snowmobile problems increasing in town

City police have been dealing with a variety of snowmobiling related problems this winter. Police chief Dennis Halverson said the police department has received complaints of snowmobilers riding on city sidewalks, riding at high speeds on city streets and running over seedlings and through flower gardens. Within the past few weeks the police department has received 10 to 15 complaints.

In 1986 the Charlevoix City Council established routes allowing snowmobilers to ride their machines to the edge of town where they could tie in to established trails. In the city limits, snowmobile routes are: Sherman Street to Charlevoix Street, out to U.S. 31; Alice Street to Garfield Street to May Street to Eaton Street to Ferry Avenue out to M-66; Division Street out to U.S. 31 north. Snowmobilers riding in town should either be on one of these routes or on their way to or from their homes and these routes. Snowmobilers are not allowed to ride their machines across the bridge. When riding in town, snowmobilers should not be riding on the sidewalks, but on the street running with the flow of traffic.

Halverson said police are "obviously asking for voluntary compliance," but if that doesn't work then the police can issue tickets and even impound snowmobiles.

Arts center plans sale

Remember the garage sale shopper who brought home a forgotten Van Gogh worth $5 million?

Well, the Crooked Tree Arts Council doesn't either, but suggests Saturday, Jan. 16 may be your chance to be lucky.

The Arts Council has cleaned out their cupboards and storerooms at the McCune Arts Center resulting in a collection of forgotten and abandoned works of art bargains.

In addition to these "treasures" there are used household items donated by members and friends of the Arts Council.

All items will be on display in the community room. Sale hours are 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

$250 reward offered for information

Vandals shot out several windows at the Ferry Beach concession stand and the softball field concession stand with a BB gun sometime on or about Jan. 5. The total cost of the damage is estimated to be between $750 and $1,000. The City of Charlevoix is offering a $250 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the individual or individuals responsible for the damage.

Police chief Dennis Halverson and street superintendent John Martin discovered the damage Jan. 6. Seven of eight windows at the Ferry Beach concession stand had been shot out. There was nothing inside the building to steal and it did not appear that the building had been entered. Glass and BBs were on the floor inside.

Police are investigating. Anyone with information which may be pertinent to the matter is asked to call Halverson at 547-3255.

OPINIONS

by EDITH GILBERT

Jerry Knudson loves music! He'd rather listen to Country Music or the Big Band sound of Glen Miller, Tommy Dorsey and Harry James than watch television. That's why an early column of mine appealed to him. In it I mention the familiar Charlevoix song that is sung to the tune of the Irish ballad, "Little Bit of Heaven." In fact, he sent a copy this year to his sister in Florida and cousin-in Minnesota and asked them to sing it to ring in the New Year.

'Tis a little bit of heaven
Mixed with land and lake and sky
It nestles in the valleys
With Lake Michigan close by
And when the angels found it,
Oh, it looked so sweet and fair.
They said, "Suppose we leave it for it looks so peaceful there!"
So, they sprinkled it with bunches
Just to make the pine trees grow
O'er all the land you'll find them
No matter where you go.
Then, they dotted it with blue lakes
While the angels sang for joy,
And when they had it finished
Sure, they called it
'Charlevoix.'

Jerry arrived with his family in Charlevoix in 1968, thanks to his wife Lillian who was born here. He was hired by the Charlevoix Street Department as groundskeeper and put in charge of all the city parks in summer.

"To me it wasn't just a job," he says. "I took a real interest in the park because it's the focal point of downtown. I have made many friends with the boaters and the visitors year after year. Every spring people would ask me the same question, 'When are you going to put the fish in the fishpond?'"

I asked Jerry what he thought of the new fish pond. "It gives people more room to sit and enjoy the concerts. I think the new bandstand is beautiful, and I like the terraced effect of the lawn." The late Bill Ratigan was one person who came down to the city park every day, took a drink from the fountain and visited with me. When we first started mowing the lawns it took two people five days to mow all the lawns downtown with walking mowing machines. We worked seven days a week, starting at six in the morning all summer. The Venetian Festival and Art Fairs were hard on the lawn. The park looked like a big ashtray after one of those affairs. It took us 2 1/2 hours just to pick up three truck loads of garbage on Sunday morning. With the exception of Hoffman Park and the park on West Dixon, we still have no underground sprinkling system in the parks downtown. Hauling hoses and shifting sprinklers takes a lot of time.

But all has not been smooth sailing in Jerry's private life. He suffered two separate Charlevoix drowning tragedies in his family. He lost a son, Linsey, in '71, in a drowning accident while fishing off a raft in Lake Charlevoix and another son, Louis, in '85 while swimming off the pierhead in Lake Michigan.

These two drownings are particularly ironic considering the risks Jerry took when he served in World War II as a gunners mate in the Asiatic/Pacific theater. He was in charge of a gun crew on a merchant ships that did convoy duty. On one trip, the C2 cargo ship Stephengard carried TNT, nitroglycerin, 100 octane aviation gasoline, 500 and 1000 lb. bombs!

Jerry retired from the Charlevoix Street Department in '89, but he still treasures the letters of commendation from the Downtown Merchants, the Chamber of Commerce and the Trout Tournament Committee. And he still thinks of Charlevoix as a little bit of heaven.

Editorial

Matter is not resolved

County commissioners took the smallest step forward possible when they eliminated tax funded health care benefits for the spouses of former commissioners, but left in place tax funded health care benefits for former commissioners as well as present and future commissioners. Taxpayers of Charlevoix County should not consider this a suitable resolution of the matter.

Neither former nor current county commissioners should be receiving county taxpayer funded health care benefits. County commissioners like to refer to themselves as part-time county employees. In reality, the role of county commissioner is one of public service as a part-time elected official. Part-time elected officials should not be entitled to better health care benefits than virtually all part-time, and many full-time, private sector employees. Theoretically, elected officials serve the public rather than having the public serve the elected officials through an unwarranted perk which costs county taxpayers at least $15,000 per year and probably in excess of $20,000.

County commissioners grappled for nearly a year with the question of what to do about health care benefits for former (they called them "retired") county commissioners and their spouses. In the end, present commissioners simply couldn't work themselves up to doing what is necessary and proper - terminating county taxpayer funded health care benefits for part-time elected or appointed county officials. That being the case, let us propose an alternative means of addressing this issue. Put the matter before county voters. Put one simple question on the ballot at the next county election - "Shall part-time elected and appointed county officials receive health care benefits at taxpayer expense?"

If county commissioners are sincerely interested in reflecting the feelings of voters, they should have no qualms about putting this question on the ballot. If they are unwilling to put the matter on the ballot, then perhaps when it's time to file election nominating petitions for county commissioners, county voters should look for some candidates who are more in touch with the feelings of the taxpayers.

BIRDS ARE NATURAL BAROMETERS. IF THERES TO BE ANY DRAMATIC CHANGE IN THE WEATHER, THEY WILL FLOCK TO THE FEEDERS PREPARING THEMSELVES BY EATING AS MUCH AS POSSIBLE. THE MORE THEY WILL SUSTAIN THEM SHOULD THE WEATHER GET SO BAD THEY CANT GET TO FOOD. THERE SEEMS TO BE AN EXTREMELY LARGE AMOUNT OF HOUSE FINCHES AROUND THIS YEAR. THESE PRETTY LITTLE BIRDS DECORATE WINTERS TREES WITH THEIR BRIGHT RED-ORANGE PLUMAGE. ALTHOUGH ITS UNUSUAL FOR BIRDS TO SING IN THE WINTER, THESE LITTLE ONES HAVE BEEN VERY VOCAL. SITTING ATOP TREES, THEY PROVIDE THEIR LOVELY SWEET SONG, BRIGHTENING OUR COLD AND OFTEN DREARY DAYS.

Letters to the editor

Community needs an auditorium

Editor,

To the people in "Beautiful Charlevoix."

My husband and I have been going to band concerts in the Charlevoix High School Gym for the last six years. We are both over 70 years old and those hard bleachers are really uncomfortable. Our grandson Jake Porath is worth it. Charlevoix High School Band is really special. The wonderful bright kids work long hours and they deserve an Auditorium. Most of us waste so much money. Why not build something solid that would last many years? Nothing is more worthwhile than beautiful music.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Don Hadwin

Local woman to go on dialysis while awaiting kidney transplant

By Ralph McRae

On a recent day, a lady was overheard remarking to a friend that she had an upcoming decision to make on a medical situation. It was so out of the ordinary that it seemed necessary to write about it. A visit to the woman's beautiful home resulted in a question and answer session lasting almost two hours.

Not yet a senior citizen, this woman is a widow and mother of several grown children. Out of respect for her privacy she can simply be referred to as Mrs. A.

Mrs. A. spent 25 years as a nurse. Now she has a medical care need of her own. She is in the advanced stages of a renal disease, in other words her kidney system is only 20 percent functional. Within a few days she must decide what type of dialysis she will use. There are two types of dialysis - one requiring six hours, three times a week at a hospital; and the other done every six hours in her home, but only taking 15 minutes to complete. The man-made dialysis devices remove the waste material from the blood. Either method would properly prepare Mrs. A. for transplant surgery which is ultimately what she will require.

Unlike some people with kidney disease, Mrs. A. was forewarned that there might be a problem. At her birth, she carried the genes that would make her a kidney failure prospect. Her own mother died at age 50 from the same disease. Mrs. A. and her brother have the same condition. Two other siblings do not.

Each of a person's two kidneys are about the size of a fist. A kidney is a brownish organ made up of millions of tiny filters. These filters work every minute of your life to rid your blood of waste and to regulate your body's chemical and fluid balance. Kidneys filter a cup of blood every minute.

Mrs. A's kidneys have now degenerated by 80 percent. On Jan. 20 she will spend a full day at the University of Michigan's Transplant Center. It is the largest such center in the world with a history of thousands of organ transplants. One of the better things about our state is the hospital complex at Ann Arbor. More than 700,000 patients use it annually.

For a full day Mrs. A. will undergo many tests and examinations. It will take two weeks to evaluate the results. Of all the transplant situations, kidney replacement is among the most demanding. Blood types of donor and recipient must be the same, tissue composition the same plus acceptable arterial systems. Receiving cadaver organs is very infrequent. Exact match-ups are difficult to predict. It could take up to three years. On the other hand, living donors could be a viable match-up. These donors can live normal lives with one kidney. The kidney remaining expands in size to comfortably do the work of two kidneys. The cost of both operations, for donor and recipient is paid for by the recipient's insurance company.

(Writer's note: We will stay in contact with Mrs. A. to learn of her evaluation recommendations. At some time in the future we will talk to her about her dialysis experience.)

Benefits cut to spouses of former commissioners

But continue for present and former commissioners

By Laurie Lounsbury

Past and present county commissioners will continue to have health benefits paid for by the county, while present full time county employees will experience a cut in benefits to their spouses upon retirement. A resolution regarding health benefits for county employees and county commissioners was passed at the Jan. 6 commissioner meeting. The resolution included maintaining benefits for retired commissioners, but dropping benefits for their spouses. Present retirees from full time positions will continue to receive benefits they are already receiving for themselves and their spouses. Present full time county employees will receive benefits for themselves upon retirement. Benefits for their spouses will be based on their years of employment at with the county. Any employees hired after the resolution was passed will not be eligible for any retirement health benefits.

Emmet County does not pay health benefits for their county commissioners, but Antrim and Charlevoix counties do. The cost of paying benefits for current Charlevoix commissioners is $12,386 a year. The cost of benefits to the five retired commissioners and one retired drain commissioner will be reduced from approximately $12,000 to about $6,000 per year by not paying the retired spouses' benefits.

The county is still left with about $1,500,000 in unfunded liability. At some point in the future the county will be required by law to pre-fund its liability.

In other business, County Clerk Jane Brannon reported that the county ended the fiscal year in the black for the third year in a row. Nine departments went over their budgets for a total of $53,385 over budget. The county took in $159,030 more than they had budgeted, and ended up $313,000 on the plus side.

High school to offer optional seventh hour of classes beginning in fall

By Laurie Lounsbury

Next year's Charlevoix High School students will be able to squeeze in that extra French class they've been waiting to take. They can also add band or performing arts to their existing six hour schedule since an optional seventh hour will be available for students.

Parents, teachers, and administrators have sensed the need for a seventh hour in addition to the existing six hour day for quite some time. The existing six hour schedule made it difficult, if not impossible, for college bound students to take the necessary curriculum classes and still have time for any elective classes. Some classes offered at only one time during the day conflicted with other required classes offered at the same time.

To increase flexibility in the high school schedule, teachers and administrators agreed to proceed with an optional seventh hour class in the fall of 1993. Students wanting to take seven classes may sign up for their seven desired classes during pre-enrollment in February. Students choosing to stick with a six hour class day may do so. The number of students signing up for a seventh class will determine what classes will be taught during the seventh hour, and how many seventh hour classes will be available. "We're creating a seven hour day, not a seven hour requirement," explained teacher Connie Ford to a group of interested parents and faculty at a Jan. 5 meeting at the high school.

Athletic director Richard Swenor and high school principal Dave Smith gave their assurances that students participating in extracurricular sports activities won't be penalized for taking a seventh hour class. Team practices will begin at 3:30 p.m. instead of 2:30 p.m. if any team players are taking a seventh hour class.

Parents were invited to give their input at the meeting held to discuss the optional seventh hour. Some parents expressed concern about over-stressing students by loading them up with too many classes. Ford explained that taking seven classes is an option for students who can handle the extra work load. One parent who felt that the seventh hour should be required for all students and not just an option for a few students said, "I think we should worry more about challenging our students than about over-stressing them."

Another parent asked whether the curriculum will be expanded to offer accelerated classes and more technical or trade classes. Ford responded that this is the first step towards an expanded curriculum. "The idea is to give us a larger, more flexible schedule. The next step is to offer more classes," she said.

Concern about crowded classes was expressed by one parent who hoped that adding a seventh hour would help reduce class size. Smith said adding a required class during the seventh hour could alleviate some of the crowded classes.

While the pros, cons, and pitfalls were considered by parents and teachers, Ford continued to stress that the optional seventh hour would be reviewed at the end of the year, and corrections will be made at that time. She said that everyone involved is committed to the idea of a seventh hour, and that the program won't be scrapped if there are flaws, but rather it will be adjusted to correct the flaws after the first year.

Jeanne Jensen

Jeanne C. Jensen, 55, of Charlevoix, died Jan. 8, 1993, at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

Her funeral was Tuesday, Jan. 12, at the Assembly of God in Charlevoix. Pastor Cliff Molnar of the Fairlane Assembly of God Church in Dearborn Heights and pastor Lowell Anderson of the Assembly of God Church in Charlevoix officiated. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

She was born Dec. 12, 1937, in Pottsville, Pa., the daughter of Ralph G. and Irene (Daggin) Bealer. She moved to Huntington, Ind. as a young girl and graduated from Huntington High School in 1955. She attended Huntington College.

On Sept. 5, 1959, in Huntington, Ind., she married James R. Jensen. In 1962, the couple moved to Coleman, Mich. They have lived in Charlevoix for the past 27 years.

Mrs. Jensen attended the Assembly of God Church in Charlevoix. She taught piano and played the organ for many churches since she was a young woman. Most recently, she played the organ for the Community Church of God and the Assembly of God, both in Charlevoix. She was also active in the children's program at the Community Church of God.

Survivors include her husband, James R. Jensen of Charlevoix; two sons, Marty of Charlevoix, and Dan Jensen and his wife, Cindy, of Jensen; one daughter, Mrs. Michael (Sherry) Dankert of Charlevoix; one granddaughter, Megan Dankert; two brothers, Richard Bealer of Louisville, Ky. and Larry Bealer of Charleston, S.C.; her parents, Dr. Ralph and Irene Bealer of Indianapolis, Ind.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to Hospice of Little Traverse Bay. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

St. Mary's hosts open house to welcome new priest

An open house to welcome Fr. Thomas Neis, the new pastor of St. Mary's Church, will take place from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., Sunday, Jan. 17 in the Parish Center. The event is open to all St. Mary's parishioners as well as the rest of the community. It is being sponsored by the Knights of Columbus club and the Rosary Altar Society of St. Mary's.

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

You probably never heard of the Rev. Mordecai Ham before. If you haven't, that's OK. It wasn't so much who he was as it was what he did that I want you to be aware of anyway. Brother Ham was the minister that led Billy Graham to the Lord. You know how many lives Billy Graham has blessed and touched over the years. Just imagine what those lives might have been like if Brother Ham had not reached Billy. I would hope that everyone of us can look back and remember one or more special people who influenced us in an unforgettable way. Charlevoix lost just such a person this weekend.

You see, I am a firm believer that everyone of us has a "song" within our souls. For some of us, that "song" is far from musical but it is there nonetheless. When the right person helps us release it, we look at everything in life differently. As that certain someone encourages us, we discover new talents and abilities that we just didn't realize were there. Our mentor's confidence in us helps us deepen and grow in those new found gifts until, ideally, we start helping others find the "song" within their lives.

At her studio on Palmer Street, countless young people made the weekly trek to be introduced to their song. She lovingly revealed the mysteries of the keyboard and taught them the language of the treble clef. Their early efforts at recitals were often simple basic pieces. But as their love for music grew she encouraged them to find works that reflected their own tastes. She truly helped them feel the notes not just with their fingers or their heads but also in their hearts. I am aware of some of her students that, because of her teaching, have gone on to study music at the college level. I am aware of others who, even if they don't continue, will freely tell you of their gratitude and love for this special lady who unlocked the melody in their souls.

Even though she is not a part of my parish, I could not help but stop in and visit her at Northern Michigan Hospital. In one of our last visits, I told her of a little boy I know who believes that God will have a purple Cadillac in Heaven for him. I said if that turns out to be true, I would not be surprised if the Lord had a Steinway concert grand piano waiting for her. Then I asked her if she would think about something for me. You see, when this lady played, the music came to life and when she played "Onward Christian Soldiers," you could feel those soldiers marching along. If indeed the Lord had her piano there, when the day came for me to go to Heaven, I would sure love to hear her play "Onward Christian Soldiers" when I arrived. She smiled. She liked that thought a lot.

Thanks Jim and thanks to your whole family for sharing her with us. Jeanne Jensen has indeed "fought the good fight." Jeanne has at last "finished the race." The whole Jensen family have "kept the faith." Their hope and the hope of everyone who has seen their song let loose by Jeanne's love is the crown of righteousness is not only hers but all of ours who will one day hear her music in heaven again.

Dorothy Margaret Ikens

Her funeral was Sunday, Dec. 21 at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. Rev. Larry Grooters of the Community Reformed Church officiated with interment at DeTour Cemetery in DeTour.

Mrs. Ikens was born on Jan. 26, 1910 in East Jordan, the daughter of Earl and Jessie (McKay)

Hager. She grew up in East Jordan, attending East Jordan schools and graduating in 1926. She later attended Eastern Michigan University and taught school in Boyne Falls, Maple City and DeTour.

She married Glen Roy Ikens on Dec. 12, 1931 in Charlevoix and was her husband's secretary and bookkeeper while he was the Standard Oil Co. agent in Charlevoix.

He preceded her in death in 1982. Survivors include three daughters: Marilyn Boss and her husband Dale of Charlevoix; Kay Empey of Charlevoix; and Sally Paquin and husband Tom of Cross Village; a son, Glenn Ikens and his wife Betty of Brighton; 15 grandchildren; and 16 great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorial contributions to Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Clarabelle Eckman

Clarabelle Eckman, 84, of Charlevoix, died Jan. 6, 1993, at Penfold Adult Foster Care Home in Charlevoix.

Her funeral was Friday, Jan. 8, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Cecil Drost officiated and burial will be in Brookside Cemetery.

She was born April 27, 1908, in Charlevoix, the daughter of John and Sarah (Cunningham) Curtis. She was raised in Charlevoix.

She married Carl Eckman in 1946 and they lived in Boyne City for a short time before moving to East Tawas. He preceded her in death in 1978.

Mrs. Eckman worked for Michigan Bell Telephone Co. as chief operator in Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Tawas. She returned to Charlevoix two years ago where she has been a resident of the adult foster care home.

Mrs. Eckman was a member of the Michigan Bell Telephone Pioneers and the East Tawas Order of the Eastern Star where she served as past worthy matron. She was also a member of the East Tawas Episcopal Church and served as secretary of the East Tawas Chamber of Commerce.

Survivors include one brother, John Curtis of Charlevoix; two sisters-in-law, Ruby Curtis and Jennie Rose, both of Charlevoix; and several nieces and nephews.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Area Hospital. There will be no visitation at the funeral home.

David G. Clark

David G. Clark, 80, of Ellsworth, died Jan. 6, 1993, at Meadow Brook Medical Care Facility in Bellaire.

His funeral was Friday, Jan. 8, at the Central Lake Chapel of Mortensen Funeral Homes. The Rev. Jerry Huffman will officiate with interment in Ellsworth Cemetery.

He was born Dec. 21, 1912, in Pleasantview Township in Emmet County, the son of William and Viola (Tyler) Clark. He had resided in Ellsworth since 1970 and in Antrim County most of his life.

Mr. Clark worked for Lavanway Trucking in East Jordan for many years. He also worked in area sawmills.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Ruth K. Clark, in February

Survivors include three sons, Leroy S. of Central Lake, Andrew of Grand Rapids, and William of California; and several grandchildren.

Friends may call until 9 p.m. today, Jan. 7, at the Central Lake Chapel of Mortensen Funeral Homes.

Charlevoix County State Bank receives two awards

Blue Ribbon and Five Star ratings achieved

Charlevoix County State Bank recently received word from Bauer Financial Reports Inc. that the bank has once again received a five-star rating, which is the highest possible rating.

Bauer Financial Reports Inc. is a Florida-based firm which rates banks throughout the United States. The recently released ratings are based on financial data submitted to federal regulators for the quarter ending June 30, 1992. Of 11,645 commercial banks reporting, 4,044, or 34 percent, received a five-star rating.

The five star rating indicates that Charlevoix County State Bank's adjusted tangible capital exceeds nine percent of tangible assets, its risk-based management capital ratio exceeds 9.65 percent, delinquencies and repossessed assets are manageable, the institution is soundly invested and that it earned a profit for the quarter ending June 30, 1992.

Charlevoix County State Bank has offices in Charlevoix, Ellsworth, Eastport and East Jordan and is a member of CB Financial Corporation located in Jackson, MI.

The bank also recently was notified by Veribank, Inc. that it has achieved their Blue Ribbon rating for the quarter ending June 30, 1992.

The Veribank Blue Ribbon Bank award is based on such criteria as capital strength, asset quality, positive net income and other factors. These criteria are used to identify those institution who appear to be operating profitably, possess substantial assets, and meet or exceed other criteria based on data made available by the Federal Reserve Board in its two most recent releases of call reports.

Paving company projects receive high marks in contest

H&D, a northern Michigan contracting firm, recently received three awards from Michigan Paving Association. The awards were for asphalt paving excellence. The contest is sponsored by the Michigan Asphalt Paving Association and the Michigan Department of Transportation.

Projects H&D received awards for were: Schuss Mountain Road in Antrim County; Cheboygan City-County Airport, and the paving at the Boswell Stadium Facility and running track in East Jordan. Fifty-seven paving projects from throughout the state were nominated and reviewed this year.

A total of 15 were chosen for recognition. The Awards Committee, a panel of pavement experts, rates each nominee based on ride smoothness, joint construction, edge quality, paving around covers and utilities, overall appearance, mat texture and degree of difficulty.

BUSINESS

(Left) The Board of Directors of the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance elected 1993 officers at their Jan. 7 meeting. The board also reviewed 1992 accomplishments and discussed future goals of the organization.

Rayders rally from 13 down to beat St. Francis 68-60

By L. Scott Swanson

As wins go, Charlevoix's 68-60 win over Traverse City St. Francis Friday evening had to be considered extremely rewarding. Despite falling behind by 13 points in the second quarter and having a tough time offensively early in the game, the Rayders continued to play tough defense and simply kept working until things finally began to go their way.

Traverse City St. Francis opened up a small lead early in the first quarter by working the ball inside to their big people who were scoring well from the baseline. Charlevoix sputtered offensively. Center Brad DeGrow had two quick baskets, but then had trouble getting the ball from the Rayder guards. At the end of the first quarter, Charlevoix trailed 12-9.

Early in the second quarter things grew even worse for Charlevoix. St. Francis continued to use their front line players effectively while Charlevoix did not. With the exception of Jason Psihopaidas, who had six points early in the quarter, none of the Rayders were scoring. Midway through the quarter the Rayders found themselves down 28-15. But then the Rayders' ball movement improved. David Skeel gave the Rayders a lift off the bench in a curious way. He threw two errant passes inside. Although, his passes didn't work out, at least he was making an effort to get the ball inside for higher percentage shots. Guard Don Jess picked up on the philosophy with a different method of getting the ball inside. Rather than passing the ball on a normal entry pass, Jess beat his man off the dribble and when the defense collapsed on him, he dropped the ball off to a taller player. The tactic worked on more than one occasion and played an important role in a late second quarter run which brought Charlevoix back to within five, 28-23 at halftime.

In the third quarter Charlevoix

continued to control the game. The Rayders played impressive defense and excellent transition offense. Although St. Francis scored the first three points of the half, Charlevoix got the next eight and tied the game at 31-31 with 4:47 left in the third quarter. After establishing a five point lead, Rayder coach Jim Kanne got all of his starters a rest late in the quarter. He brought Brandon Webb, David Puhals, Matt Norton and Skeel off the bench and filled the unit out with either Keith Carey or Jess. The second team played well. They looked coarse offensively, missing some shots, but they offset that by simply outlasting St. Francis and playing a tough physical game. The operational philosophy seemed to be - a basket is a basket whether you get it on the first shot or on the third.

Charlevoix entered the fourth quarter with a 40-35 lead and went back to the starting line-up and Brad DeGrow led Charlevoix with 17 points in a 68-60 win over Traverse City St. Francis and also contributed at the defensive end of the court.

Don Jess (3), Vince Voisin (55), Brad DeGrow (51) and Keith Carey (31) look to close off the paint Friday evening. St. Francis scored well under the basket in the first half, but Charlevoix made some adjustments and did a better job defensively as the game progressed.

Volleyball team gets off to a slow start in 1993 season

Charlevoix's varsity and junior varsity volleyball teams got their season off on the wrong foot Jan. 6 coming home from Cheboygan with a loss.

The varsity team improved as the night progressed, but not by quite enough to pick up any wins. The Rayders lost the first game 15-1, the second game 15-7 and the third game 15-13.

Top setters and servers for the Rayders were Christy Siwarga and Liz Grunch; top defensive players were Jill Dreyer, Angelina Doan and Grunch; to offensive players were Doan and Grunch.

Like the varsity team, the junior varsity Rayders improved after the first game, but not quite enough to get a win. The j.v. Rayders dropped game one 15-4 and then lost a nail-biter in game two 19-17.

Top setters for the Rayders were Jacklyn Hogan and Christie Kaczynski; to servers were Kris Blanchard and Liz Kelly; leading the defense were Hogan and Tabatha Potter; top offensive players were Hogan and Melissa Darrah.

Charlevoix's varsity volleyball team went 1-7 at the Petoskey Invitational Tournament although Angelina Doan was named to the second team all-tournament squad.

In the opening match against Inland Lakes the Rayders lost 15-7, 15-4. In the second match against Sault Ste. Marie Charlevoix lost 15-8, 15-7. The Rayders split with Gaylord 8-15, 16-14 and then lost to Cedarville 15-7, 15-2.

Doan played well throughout the day while Liz Grunch, Melissa Cox and Christy Siwarga also contributed.

Angelina Doan

Monday, Jan. 11 the Rayders reversed their current form and started the evening well, but faded down the stretch losing a match in Elk Rapids three games to two.

Charlevoix opened the evening winning the first two games 15-12 and 15-13. Elk Rapids then came back and took the next three, 15-5, 15-10 and 15-1.

For the Rayders, top setters were Melissa Cox and Christy Siwarga. Top servers were Cox, Siwarga and Liz Grunch. Best defensive players were Siwarga, Grunch and Angelina Doan. Leading the offense were Laura Loder, Doan and Grunch.

Elk Rapids also won the junior varsity match 15-6, 15-10. Top setters for the Rayders were Tabatha Potter and Jenny Swenor. Top servers were Liz Coen, Kristin Averkes and Liz Kelly. Leading the defense were Christie Kaczynski, Melissa Darrah and Swenor while the best offensive players were Potter and Coen.

Charlevoix will host East Jordan Wednesday, Jan. 13.

Jason Psihopaidas (33) protects the ball on his way up for a shot. Psihopaidas has six straight points early in the second quarter.

Parish takes first as wrestlers place eighth

Keith Parish took first place in the 189 pound weight class at the Wyoming Invitational wrestling tournament Saturday. As a team the Rayders placed eighth among nine teams.

Parish opened the day with a one minute pin over a Forest Hills Northern opponent, then took a technical decision from a Caledonia opponent and in the finals beat a Wyoming Rogers opponent 8-2.

Three Charlevoix wrestlers took fourth place medals: Jason Hughes at 103 pounds; Steve Wilson at 112 pounds; and David Morales at 125 pounds. All of them went 2-2 on the day.

Health Department warns of cases of strep throat

Parents should be aware that cases of strep throat have been reported to the District Health Department.

An individual with strep throat may have any of the following basic symptoms: fever, sore throat, enlarged and inflamed tonsils, and tender and swollen lymph nodes in the neck area. There may be few symptoms: High fever, headache, nausea, vomiting, and collapse may accompany severe infections. Sometimes you can have a rash which is often mistaken for another childhood illness such as roseola or measles. Strep throat with a rash (scarlet fever) has been reported in the area. The rash starts on the trunk of the body and spreads outwards.

Untreated people may develop middle ear infections, mastoiditis, throat and neck abscesses, pneumonia, and skin infections. Other serious problems are heart (rheumatic fever) and kidney (glomerulonephritis) disease. Although not a problem locally, rheumatic fever outbreaks have been reported nationally.

Parents should be aware of the fact that strep throat is a treatable illness. Penicillin or erythromycin will prevent most complications to include rheumatic heart disease. Therefore, the health department urges parents to contact their family doctors if they think their children may have strep throat. Individuals given an antibiotic must complete the full course of therapy, even if they feel better in a few days. Children should not return to school, day care or nursery setting until at least 24 hours after beginning antimicrobial therapy, and until they are afebrile. The illness is spread by respiratory droplets or direct contact with respiratory secretions. Close contact with other children during this time should be avoided.

Grandvue Auxiliary notes

The regular monthly meetings of Grandvue Auxiliary have been cancelled for January and February.

Activity director, Sheryl Sothard, is still looking forward to greater participation in Pet Day, which is designated on the first Saturday of each month. Families and friends of patients are invited to come visit and bring along your favorite pet (furry or otherwise). She asks that you call ahead (536-2286) and have proof of the pet's rabies shot on file.

A Doll Show is planned for Friday, Feb. 19, from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Organizers are in need of dolls to display, from the past and present.

HIGH SCHOOL COMPLETION PROGRAM

The schedule below lists the classes which are being offered each night beginning the week of January 25-28 and continuing for 17 weeks. These classes are FREE to those who do not have their high school diploma. Any others are welcome in these classes for a fee of $35. Upon successful completion of each class you will be given 1/2 credit toward the credits needed for your diploma. If you have already completed a number of credits, call us so we can find out how many classes you should take to complete your work. Age does not matter; an older person may be given credits for life experiences, military service, or G.E.D. tests that have been taken. You may be surprised at how close you are to that diploma... so call and find out. The phone number to call to enroll or enquire about your situation is 547-3222.

Char-Em employees participate in program to improve fitness

On September 18, 1992 50 individuals from the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School district, 17 from Charlevoix Public, 2 from Boyne City Public and 2 from East Jordan Public Schools made a contract with themselves to spend the next 12 weeks improving overall fitness through exercise and changing their eating habits.

The Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District wellness group participated in the "Dump Your Plump" program - a team-oriented approach to fitness. Each member agreed to exercise 30 minutes per day/5 days per week and set a weight loss goal between 0 and 20 pounds. The winning team was determined by earning points for each day exercised, weight lost, with bonus points earned by individuals meeting their weight loss goal and individuals and teams exercising 90 percent of the time.

The wellness group's total loss was 458 pounds. The winning team was "The Big DYPers" with 5012 points and a team weight loss of 85 pounds. As the winning team, The Big DYPers chose which local food pantries the other 7 teams would donate food to. They chose the Matthew 25 Food Pantry of the Charlevoix Assembly of God and the Community Food Pantry of Charlevoix. More than 860 pounds of food were donated by wellness group members. Other teams involved were the Lean Machines, Stretch Marks, Triple T's, Les Femmes, Girl Controllers, To-Be's and Do-Drops.

Watershed Council certified for stewardship program

The Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council has been certified as a service representative in the Michigan Department of Natural Resources' (MDNR) Forest Stewardship Incentives Program. The program is a part of a Federal Forest Stewardship Plan authorized by the 1990 Farm Bill. The goal of the program is to help private property owners better manage the valuable natural resources on their land. Under the program, the Federal government will share the cost of developing a management plan. Once a management plan has been approved, cost/share funding is also available for specific implementation practices such as reforestation, timber stand improvement, erosion control, wetland/shoreline protection and restoration, and fish and wildlife habitat improvement. The program is funded through 1994.

To be eligible for the program, a person must own a minimum of 12 acres, of which at least five acres must be, or will be, forested. The Federal cost/share for a stewardship plan is 75 percent of the cost, not to exceed $150, plus $2 per acre covered by the plan. The landowner must sign a pledge of intent to abide by the written plan, and the plan must be maintained for at least 10 years after completion.

Eligible landowners can apply for the program at the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office in each county. The application must be approved by the MDNR and state ASCS supervisors. After approval, the landowner may select a certified service representative (lists are available in the ASCS office) to develop a management plan. If you think you may be eligible for this program, please inquire at your local ASCS office.

Property taxes to go up 15 percent on average

Some lake lots to increase more than 30 percent

By L. Scott Swanson

Paying property taxes this time around might hurt, but next time around it's almost certain to be worse. Property tax assessments are expected to increase by an average of 15 to 16 percent in Charlevoix County. That's an average which falls within a broad range. For some people the increase will be less, but some owners of lake front property will see increases of more than 30 percent.

The increase is not reflected on property tax bills due in February. It will show up in the summer tax bills payable in September.

The primary reason for the double digit increase is that it is for two years rather than one. In 1992 the State Legislature froze property assessments at 1991 levels. When property owners receive their property tax bills this summer they will see an assessment reflecting a two-year increase.

Although the increase is for two years, that isn't the entire reason for the increase. Inflation during the past two years has been closer to four and three percent. If the cause of the increase was simply two years of inflation, property owners would be looking at assessment increases of around seven percent.

Property assessments are based on market value. Market values are determined by studies of property sales. Those studies indicate that property in this area is selling for a higher price than present assessments reflect.

"Northwest Michigan is just growing. It's desirable," explained Charlevoix County Equalization Director Joan Blanchard.

Blanchard said the assessment figures she is currently working on are preliminary. She expects to present a report to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners Feb. 10. Although it appears that for all property in the county there will be an average increase of 15 to 16 percent and for residential property there will be an average increase of 18 percent, Blanchard stressed that those figures are average figures and there is a broad range. There is a possibility that the State Legislature will take some type of action within the next few months to mitigate the effect of the increase in assessed values. School business manager Rich Kelly recently attended a seminar for school finance officers and said the talk he heard is that the state legislature may reduce the assessment level for school operational taxes from 50 percent of market value to 45 percent.

Two figures come into play when calculating property taxes: millage and state equalized (assessed) values, also known as SEV. To calculate your property taxes, multiply millage times SEV. A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of SEV. SEV is 50 percent (or perhaps soon 45 percent) of market value.

The following sample calculation shows the effect of a change from 50 to 45 percent SEV for a $60,000 home using the Charlevoix school's current operating millage of 17.05 mills.

At 50 percent the calculation would be: .01705 x $30,000 ($30,000 being 50 percent of a market value of $60,000) equals $511.50.

At 45 percent the calculation would be: .01705 x $27,000 ($27,000 being 45 percent of a market value of $60,000) equals $460.35.

(That's not to say $460 or $511 would be the entire school tax bill for someone with a $60,000 home. In addition to the 17.05 voted mills for operations, school millage also includes approximately 9 allocated mills, .59 mills for technological equipment and half a mill for the public library.)

City electric rates rising

A long-anticipated increase in city electric rates will take effect April 1. And that's no foolin'.

Effective April 1 rates for residential users in the City of Charlevoix will increase from a nickel to 6.77 cents per kilowatt hour. City electric rates for residential users outside of the city limits will increase from 6 cents per kilowatt hour to 8.1 cents per kilowatt hour. Even with the rate increase, Charlevoix City electric service charges will remain lower than other area electric services, which charge anywhere from 8.11 cents to 14.7 cents per kilowatt hour.

Rates will also increase by a similar amount for commercial users of city electrical service. Net annual revenue is expected to go from $2,941,190 to $3,383,534 due to the rate increase. The net dollar increase after some other factors are added in is expected to be $423,647 per year, about a 14.4 percent increase. The additional revenue will be used to pay off a $3.3 million bond issue used to fund electric system improvements and pay for ongoing improvements.

The new rate system also modifies the minimum service charge.

In the past, city electric customers paid a service charge of $2 per month whether they used any electricity or not. Under the new system, the minimum charge will be $3.75 per month, but if use exceeds 55 kilowatt hours per month (which most households do when they're occupied) that $3.75 will simply be considered payment for 55 kilowatt hours.

The effect of the rate increase on the electric bills of households will vary, but for most households it will mean a couple bucks more each month. Given the change in service charge, users of only 100 kilowatt hours per month would actually see a decrease in costs from $7.49 to $6.77 per month. However, most households use more electricity than that. A household using 400 kilowatt hours per month (a

Mount McSaubasno-challenge is a go for Feb. 13

There will be a 1993 Mount McSaubasno-Challenge according to city recreation director Ike Boss. Earlier, there had been talk of cancelling the event unless volunteers could be found. Volunteers have come forward and the event will take place Feb. 13 with fireworks at 7 p.m.

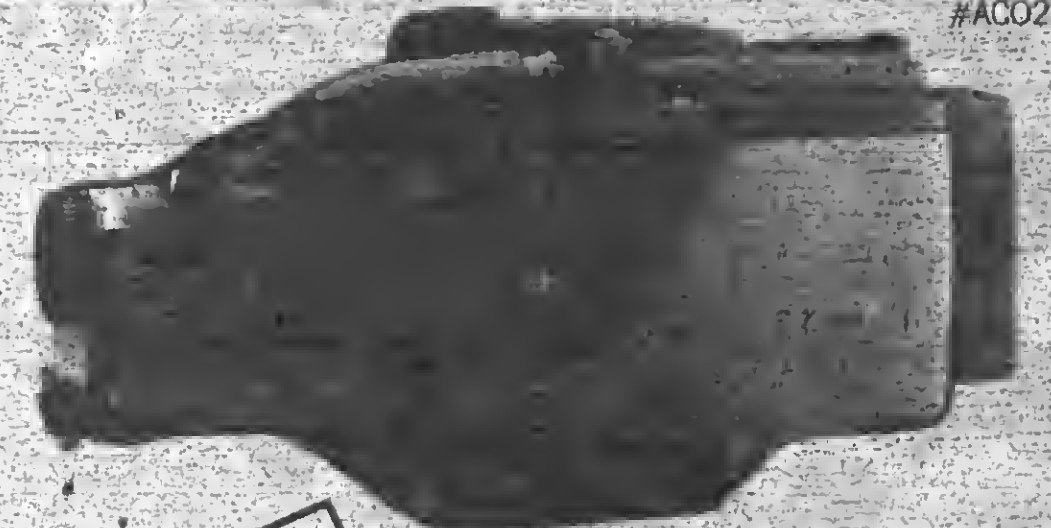

Boss said that at this time, it hasn't been decided whether the event will be a one or two-day affair or what activities will be included. He said staff members and volunteers will be meeting this week to work out the details of this year's Sno-challenge.

What you want to hear and need to hear aren't always the same

At Monday evening's school board meeting, middle school counselor Connie Drury offered the board a report which wasn't necessarily comforting. (See related story on page 5). Ironically, the fact that the report caused discomfort is probably the most desirable thing which could have occurred.

Each year Charlevoix students in selected grades join students from all across Michigan in taking the state assessment test, a.k.a. the MEAP test. The purpose of the test is to determine how students are progressing in various educational categories such as math, reading and science. This testing program has been going on for years and each year after results are compiled, some school staff member, usually a counselor, presents the results to the school board.

Monday evening, the results Drury presented to the school board were not particularly pleasant. According to state standards, fewer than half of Charlevoix students who took the test performed satisfactorily in math and reading. Slightly more than 60 percent of the Charlevoix students performed satisfactorily in science.

That message, in and of itself, is not something which is going to give most parents of Charlevoix school district students a warm and fuzzy feeling. But if you're someone who's watched these MEAP reports being given to various school boards for several years, you might have a little different perspective.

For years, the report on MEAP test results brought to mind Garrison Keeler. It seemed like every time you heard it, you felt like you were being told that "all the children were above average." Never mind that at the same time on a national level you were hearing that American students are falling farther and farther behind students from other countries.

In past years, the theme of the MEAP report for schools throughout northern Michigan seemed to be, "Test reports indicate that there are some problem areas, but generally speaking we're doing all right, especially when you compare our kids to other kids throughout the state." That attitude wasn't particularly conducive to educational improvement.

Now, what you're seeing is a shift, a shift which is long overdue. Now, the theme of the MEAP report has shifted to, "Test results show we have some problem areas. And we're going to have to fix them." That may not be comforting. But for the well-being of Charlevoix students and the American society which they will soon be making or breaking as properly educated or poorly educated adults, it's the best message that can be offered.

Currently the Charlevoix

school board, faculty and several participating members of the community are working on overhauling the school curriculum to make sure what needs to be taught will be taught. (You will be reading more about that in upcoming editions of the Courier.) Those efforts should be encouraged, supported and demanded.

Although Monday evening's report on state assessment test results may not have seemed pleasant at first glance, when you analyze the change in attitude toward education that it represents at both the local and state levels, it becomes much easier to appreciate.

Letters to the editor

Kindness appreciated

Editor,

Although we lost our home to fire Dec. 18, we would like to thank the firemen of the three fire departments (Torch Lake, Banks Township and Central Lake) for their time and professional actions. The love of people from the entire community has bonded hearts and spirits during the holiday season and it is difficult to find words to express our most heartfelt gratitude and sincere appreciation for all the support and love shown to us during and following our tragic event. May God bless each and every one of you.

Karl and Marilyn Curry

John J. OBrien of Charlevoix was named to the Dean's List at Grand Valley State University for the fall semester. To be named to the Dean's List a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 on a 4 point scale. OBrien had a perfect 4 point. OBrien is the son of Donald and Mary OBrien of Charlevoix. He is majoring in business and facilities management and will graduate in May of this year.

Laura Jean Hendrickson, formerly of Charlevoix and currently of Iron Mountain, recently graduated from Northern Michigan University. She received her Associate of Science degree in criminal justice with a pre-law emphasis. She is now continuing her law classes and working toward a paralegal degree while residing in Marquette.

Hendrickson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Hendrickson of Iron Mountain and the grand daughter of the late Mrs. Bert Lehman of Charlevoix.

Police remind drivers to brush before taking the wheel

We can't help noticing how many Northern Michigan residents apparently don't have a SNOWBRUSH in their vehicle. It is an all too common sight to see cars traveling down the road while covered with several inches of snow, the only clear area being a one square foot portion of the windshield in front of the driver. Not only is this illegal, but it is extremely dangerous. There is no possible way that these drivers can see what is happening around them. It is like driving a 2000 pound missile down the street. Just about every store, and gas station in the area sells snowbrushes at a moderate price. We urge you to please purchase a brush for your safety and the safety of others. Those of you who have accepted the fact that winter is inevitable and have already acquired your snowbrush, please feel free to use it. When you do use your brush, make sure you wipe the whole car clean. It only takes an extra minute. By cleaning the whole car you make yourself much more visible (and less of a target for the missile drivers). And the snow from the roof isn't apt to fall down over your windows as you travel down the road. Make sure also that you keep your lights cleaned off. Check your tail lights often, as they can quickly become covered again while traveling on snow covered streets.

Please take the time to clean that car before you start. It may save a life, or at the very least the embarrassment of having to clean your car off under the watchful eye of one of our officers after you have been pulled over. Remember what your parents always asked you when you were a child... "DID YOU REMEMBER TO BRUSH?"

(This information was provided to the Courier by the Charlevoix City Police in the interest of keeping Charlevoix a pleasant and safe place to live and work.)

Water levels remain higher than average

The Great Lakes basin received above average precipitation during December. With the exception of October, above average precipitation has prevailed since July. The year-to-date precipitation for the basin is slightly above average. The 30-day outlook published by the National Weather Service projects moderate to heavy precipitation in the Great Lakes region for the month of January.

Majority of local students perform poorly in math and reading on Michigan assessment test

However, science scores are better

By Laurie Lounsbury

Less than half of Charlevoix students are performing satisfactorily in math and reading, according to the Michigan State Assessment Test. In 1992, Charlevoix's fourth, fifth, seventh, eighth, tenth and eleventh graders were given the Michigan Education Assessment Program (MEAP) test. Scores fell into three category ratings of skills, including satisfactory, moderate, and low or unsatisfactory skills. Students scoring 75 percent or better on each test fell into the satisfactory category.

Almost 40 percent of all students scored in the satisfactory category on the reading test. Thirty-eight and a half percent of all students scored satisfactorily in math. In science, 61.6 percent of the students received a satisfactory score. The science curriculum was revised four years ago, which may attribute to the higher number of students scoring satisfactorily in science.

These figures were presented to the Charlevoix Board of Education by Condit Drury at the last school board meeting. Drury interpreted the test scores for the school board members, citing possible reasons for the low test score results. Drury explained that recent changes in curriculum alignment and core curriculum should improve test scores, but it will take several years before these changes will be reflected in the scores.

Curriculum alignment deals with what subjects should be taught at each grade level. For example, geometry is generally taught in the tenth grade, so geometry questions on the test given to incoming tenth graders will be new material to them. Only 23.5 percent of the tenth graders scored in the satisfactory category in math.

From the audience Sheila Bogart asked Drury if the schools had a system for evaluating the test scores and adjusting the curriculum to fit the test. Drury said that generally the teachers volunteered to look at the test scores on their own and admitted that the method has been haphazard. "There hasn't been enough effort to pinpoint where there are problems in the curriculum," Drury said. He added, "There has to be more of an effort." Drury said the following day that he intends to utilize the teacher's in-service day Friday for analyzing the test scores.

For the graduating classes of 1993 through 1996, a state endorsed diploma will be given to students that score in the moderate and satisfactory categories of the state test. Other students may graduate and earn a diploma, but it will not be state endorsed. For classes graduating after 1996, students will not receive a diploma without the state endorsement.

High school principal Dave Smith discussed two different aspects of the new state assessment test. One aspect that presents a problem is that the graduate proficiency testing is done at the tenth grade level. Smith said he believes the state wants to test at the tenth grade level in order to test students before they turn 16 and drop out. Students are not required to stay in school beyond the age of 16 in Michigan. Smith contends that students are not ready to tackle some curriculum objectives presented on the test before the tenth grade. Trying to prepare students for testing in the tenth grade may be unrealistic.

A positive aspect of testing in the tenth grade is that it allows time for remedial action. Smith said that students may take the test every six months until they score well enough to receive state endorsement.

Board member Scott Beatty discussed some of the core curriculum changes and curriculum alignment changes that are currently taking place and said, "This is also an opportunity to raise our expectations for our children. It's time to challenge them, do even more for our children."

Drury said in an interview the morning following Monday evening's board meeting that the curriculum guide is now in place in the school system and items by grade level are now identified. "The most important thing is to get the kids off the bottom (level)," Drury added, referring to students that score on the low or unsatisfactory level.

In other business, the school board voted to approve a new optional seventh hour at the high school. They also voted to approve two new classes offered at the high school level, speech and construction technology.

Boulder Park care facility is now filled up

On Monday, the employees of Boulder Park Terrace, were honored with a luncheon to celebrate the facility's occupancy being at capacity.

The 61-bed skilled nursing and assisted living center admitted its first resident June 1, 1992 and has since admitted more than 100 residents.

Deborah Saur, President and Director of Boulder Park Terrace said capacity occupancy would have been reached sooner, but given the rehabilitation and nursing services at the facility more than 40 residents have recovered sufficiently to return to their own homes. Providing rehabilitation services and meeting the needs of people requiring skilled nursing care on a temporary basis is a key aspect of the facility's mission.

Boulder Park Terrace employs 65 people. Saur said it has taken a professional and dedicated team to help the facility be successful in its initial months of operation.

All 61 beds are now occupied

New doctor specializes in ears, nose and throat

Beginning Monday, Jan. 25, Harry Borovik, M.D., will begin seeing patients at the office of Drs. Joy, Stewart and Newcomb. Dr. Borovik is an ENT (ear, nose and throat) specialist and also does facial plastic and reconstructive surgery.

Dr. Harry Borovik

Borovik is on the courtesy staff at Charlevoix Area Hospital and will be performing surgical procedures there. He has been on the active staff at Munson Medical Center since 1987. He is a 1982 graduate of the Chicago Medical School in North Chicago. He served his internship in general surgery at Michael Reese Medical Center, Chicago and his residency in Otolaryngology Head and Neck surgery at St. Louis University from 1983-87. He is a member of the American Academy of Otolaryngology, the American Academy of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery, and the American Medical Association. He is board certified by the American Board of Otolaryngology.

Appointments for the Charlevoix location may be scheduled through his Traverse City office at 947-4800.

Incoming and outgoing officers of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild are shown at the Guild's annual meeting. Hospital Guild installs new officers for two-year terms

New officers were installed at the annual meeting of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild Monday, Jan. 11. Elected to serve two year terms were: Rebecca Haney, president; Lois Ciesielski, vice president; Arlene Staley, treasurer; and Anah Potter, re-elected treasurer.

Richard Krueger, Charlevoix Area Hospital president, thanked the outgoing officers for their service to the hospital. "You not only contribute needed funds to the hospital," he said, "but you provide important services to our patients. I know officers of the Guild put in many hours in order to manage this organization, and we thank you very much." A gift and flowers were presented in appreciation to Margaret Landman who has served as president for the past two years.

It was reported at the meeting that the Guild had provided more than 5,500 hours of service to the hospital last year. Members also raised $5,000 toward the fulfillment of the Guild's $25,000 pledge to the hospital's building campaign.

Presently there are 112 active members of the Guild who volunteer for such services as information desk, Showcase Gift Shop, and patient floor service. Another 75 members pay their annual $3 dues, but remain inactive.

Charlevoix Boy Scouts Michael Czerkes (left) and Jason Murray recently received the Boy Scouts' National Certificate of Merit for assisting a swimmer who was having problems in Walloon Lake last summer. Czerkes and Murray are members of Troop 11 which is sponsored by the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club.

Local Scouts receive Certificate of Merit for helping swimmer

Two Charlevoix Troop 11 Boy Scouts received lifesaving awards at the Scenic Trails Council, Boy Scouts of America, recognition dinner which recently took place in Traverse City. Michael Czerkes and Jason Murray were recognized for assisting a swimmer to shore in Walloon Lake this past summer. Czerkes and Murray were attending Camp Daggett when a fellow camper who was swimming farther out in the lake became distressed and yelled for assistance. Czerkes and Murray went to the swimmer and assisted him back to shore where adult counselors rendered the necessary aid. The scouts were awarded the Boy Scouts' National Certificate of Merit for their actions.

County Democrats elect state delegates

A record number of Charlevoix County Democrats turned out Monday night, Jan. 11, in the meeting room of the Village Inn Pizza (VIP) restaurant in Charlevoix to enjoy dinner together and to celebrate the 1992 Democratic victory and to begin 1993 in a spirit of friendship and growth and change.

Democrats met again Saturday, Jan. 16, in the downstairs meeting room of the VIP restaurant in Charlevoix to elect new officers for 1993 and to select State Convention delegates.

New officers elected to serve in 1993 are Howard Horton, Charlevoix, Chairman; Rose Elzinga, Charlevoix, Vice-Chair; Kathy David, Boyne City, Secretary; and Ruth Hartwick, Boyne City, treasurer and membership chairperson. Delegates named to the State Convention to be held at Cobo Hall in Detroit, Feb. 6 and 7 were Kathy David and Ruth Hartwick of Boyne City, and Howard and Rosemary Horton and Hal Chase of Charlevoix.

The next regularly scheduled meeting of the Charlevoix County Democrats will be Saturday, March 20, at 1 p.m. in Charlevoix at the VIP restaurant. Anyone interested in joining the Democratic Party or in attending the meeting is welcome.

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

I was only ten years old when John F. Kennedy was inaugurated as President of the United States. I can vividly remember my parents watching the ceremonies and marveling at how young he was. The whole nation seemed enamored of the dashing senator from Massachusetts and his wife. Now, it is an equally charming governor from Arkansas with a dazzling lawyer wife by his side who is about to embrace the nation's highest office.

Forgetting political parties for the moment, the thing that most fascinates me about the incoming administration is that both the President and Vice President are close to my age. Would you understand if I said that it is almost mind boggling to realize that my generation is old enough to run the country? It is also kind of exciting.

It renews my faith in the power of making dreams come true. I do not know if Bill Clinton started out life wanting to be President. I do know, from all that I have been able to learn about him, that he has always had high aspirations.

I have always felt very strongly that we needed to encourage people to follow their dreams. There is so much potential in every person's life and there is nothing more frustrating than for that potential to be wasted. What are you doing with the dreams in your life? How are you helping others see their dreams come true? As far as your own dreams are concerned, it is never too late if you have the faith and are willing to make the effort. As far as the dreams of others are concerned, start by looking at your own children or grandchildren. How can you strengthen their faith or build up their confidence? Don't just tell them that you believe in them. Show them.

These thoughts really aren't original. God has always looked for ways to help us achieve our dreams. He has always tried to pour out His love upon us in a fashion that would show us how much faith He has in us. Why do you think He gave us Jesus in the first place? The world has been notorious for short-circuiting our hopes and dreams. Jesus experienced that first hand. He also overcame everything that was thrown at Him. With the Lord's help you can do it too.

If the forty-second President of the United States can come from Hope, Arkansas, who says the fifteenth President might now be in school right now here in Charlevoix, Michigan. The scientist who comes up with the cure for cancer could be just starting her studies at North Central Michigan College. A future Pulitzer Prize winner may be writing on the Courier staff. Have faith in your dreams. They are worth the effort it takes to make them come true.

BUSINESS

The weight is over, new gym opens

By Laurie Lounsbury

Don't let the brawny name fool you. Carney Russell's new business, Biceps, is bringing in more fitness minded women than it is attracting bicep-minded men. Russell opened his weight training and fitness center Jan. 14 and so far his clientele is about 70 percent women and 30 percent men.

He said that women prefer to work out on cardio-vascular machines and concentrate on fitness and toning rather than working with the free weights.

Biceps is located in the Market Mall, temporarily housed in the front of the building. The business will move to a larger space in the back of the building within the next few months. Biceps currently offers a cardiovascular fitness room equipped with treadmills, stair steppers, recumbent bikes and an Air Dyne. The main room is equipped with free weight systems for toning or building muscles. Karen Myers, a certified personal trainer, is available by appointment to design a training program to address any individual's specific needs. "You have to give people a variety of options, especially a cardio-vascular unit," Russell said. Downstairs from the main work-out room is a changing room, bathroom, and abdominal training equipment.

Russell has been interested in weightlifting as a way of keeping in shape for many years. He started considering the downtown area of Charlevoix as a possible location for a fitness center a couple of years ago. Changes in the Market Mall gave Russell the location he had been looking for.

Russell gets help at Biceps from his wife, Jeanette, and his brother-in-law Dennis O'Neil. While Russell and O'Neil are not certified trainers, they can still instruct people on the proper use of equipment and give them plenty of pointers. Customer Judy Carrington, who joined Biceps last week, said, "Carney's been great. He's always helping me."

Another new customer Sandy Beaudoin is excited about Biceps. Beaudoin has some exercise equipment in her home, but would prefer to go elsewhere for her work-out. "At home there are too many distractions," she said. "This will be great for Charlevoix," she added. Beaudoin sucks mainly to the cardiovascular equipment, working both arms and legs on the cross walker, which is like a Nordic Trak for walkers rather than skiers.

Russell's biggest concern right now is to get moved into the newer, bigger location at the back of the Market Mall. He's optimistic about the business. "We're off to a good start," he said.

This building at the end of Clinton Street formerly housed the LaBlance Insurance Agency, but soon will be the home of an Argonne Supper Club take-out branch.

Argonne to open downtown branch with take-out food

The city planning commission has given their approval for Argonne Supper Club owner Steve Ager to open a deli in the downtown area. Ager plans to open a deli business in the former LaBlance Insurance building at the end of Clinton Street. The deli will feature take-out items from the Argonne menu, including shrimp, chicken, ribs, and fish. The deli should be open by mid-May.

The development plan for the project received the approval of the City Council and the council's Monday evening meeting.

There will be no on-site eating facilities at the building. It will simply be a location to pick up take-out food which has been prepared at the Argonne Supper Club which is located on Boyne City Road, north of Charlevoix.

Volleyball team sweeps match against East Jordan

By L. Scott Swanson

Charlevoix's varsity and junior varsity volleyball teams picked up their first match wins for the season as both teams swept East Jordan Wednesday, Jan. 13.

In the varsity match the Rayders jumped out to a 9-1 lead in the first game and carried that momentum to three straight wins. Laura Loder served during a five point run which established the Rayder lead. During the run, Christy Siwarga and Angelina Doan played effectively in the back row while Jill Dreyer set for Liz Grunch in the front row.

After establishing the eight point lead, the Rayders closed the game with a 15-6 win. Doan played well in both the back and front row. Despite her height of 5' not many, she hit for several points. Anne Schairbaum also contributed off the bench in game one showing some good court awareness and hand-eye coordination in salvaging missed bumps and sets.

Game two was the closest of the three. Charlevoix jumped out to an 11-5 lead, but couldn't stand prosperity and began serving into the net. East Jordan took advantage of the Rayder serving problems and rallied to tie the game at 14-14 before Doan and Siwarga were able to get two serves in for a 16-14 win. Siwarga served as a stabilizing influence throughout the game, recovering errant bumps or sets and keeping volleys alive. Shannon Rowell, among the Rayder's tallest front line players, came off the bench and provided some aggressive play at the net.

In the third game Charlevoix once again got out to an early lead and made a friend-of-momentum. Sophomore Gretchen Scott defended well at the net as the Rayders built a 4-0 lead and then followed that with three nice serves as the Rayders went up 7-3. Later in the game Loder played well at the net. In one volley, Loder reduced the game to fundamental volleyball. hit the ball over the net as hard as you can and keep hitting it until it doesn't come back. Grunch also played an aggressive hitting game. Although she blasted two past the end line and nearly into the bleachers, she had several good hits from both the front and back rows.

On the high top setters and servers for the Rayders were Dreyer and Siwarga. Leading the defense were Grunch, Doan and Dreyer. Top offensive players were Grunch, Doan and Loder.

The junior varsity team also swept their match in three games, 15-5, 15-4 and 15-11. Top setters for the team were Jacklyn Hogan and Christie Kacynski. Top servers were Tabatha Potter and April Pischner. Leading the defense were Sarah Ritt and Jennifer Swenor.

Leading the offense were Ritt and Hogan.

Charlevoix's next match will be Thursday, Jan. 21 at Kalkaska.

Youth hockey team wins two

The Sports Peddler Pee Wees of the Char-Em Youth Hockey association won two games Sunday at the Gaylord rink.

In the first game Sports Peddlers beat Gaylord 7-1, leading 1-0 and 4-0 at the period breaks. John Heise had a hat trick for Charlevoix while Colin Carr had two goals and an assist. Hunter Christoff and Blair Welham scored Charlevoix's other two goals. Dave Cadarette had two assists and Cheyne Cory one. Steve Fetting was the winning goalie.

In game two Sports Peddler shut out Mount Pleasant 9-0. Cadarette had a hat trick and two assists. Christoff scored two goals. Tim Boyer had a goal and two assists. Cory had a goal and an assist. Matt Bondy and Mike Banach each scored a goal while Cory Denio and Welham each had an assist. Steve Fetting got the shut out in goal.

Sports Peddler is coached by Tim Bondy and Mike Marr. The two wins raised the team's season record to 4-3.

Just a tap would do

Charlevoix varsity volleyball player Jill Dreyer reaches as far as she can in an effort to tap this ball over the net. Dreyer and her teammates swept East Jordan in three games last week.

Rayder hoopers take 87-73 win at Mancelona

Wins sets up league showdown with Kalkaska Friday

Charlevoix's varsity basketball team continued to roll at Mancelona this past Friday evening and set up an important league match up at home this coming Friday evening against Kalkaska.

At Mancelona, the Rayders got all over the Ironmen in the first three quarters and coasted home to an 87-73 win in the fourth. Five Rayders scored in double figures.

The Rayders took a 19-11 lead by the end of the first quarter and extended that to 46-30 at halftime. By the end of the third quarter Charlevoix had stretched their lead to 27 points leading 72-45.

The Rayders took complete control of the game in the second quarter using full-court defense to create turnovers and easy baskets.

Jason Psihopaidas and David Dobulis shared scoring honors, each with 15 points. Don Jess, Matt Norton and Vince Voisin each added 11 points. Brad DeGrow led the Rayders in rebounding with 10.

The win raised Charlevoix's league record to 3-1 and season record to 6-1. Charlevoix trails only Boyne City and Kalkaska in league play; both are 4-0. Friday evening the Rayders will host Kalkaska. Like Charlevoix, Kalkaska is 6-1 on the season.

Charlevoix's junior varsity team also won at Mancelona. Charlie Pop scored 14 points as the Rayder j.v. team won by a score of 57-42.

Tuesday, Jan. 12 the Rayders opened their week with a win against Elk Rapids.

After lighting up the scoreboard for 22 points in the first quarter and taking a 14 point lead Charlevoix coasted home to a 64-47 win over visiting Elk Rapids Jan. 12. The Rayders led by 13 points, 37-24, at halftime. They allowed Elk Rapids to get within seven points early in the third quarter, but then shut down the Elk Rapids rally and went on to the win. In the fourth quarter

David Dobulis

Charlevoix led by as much as 22 points.

Individually, Brad DeGrow scored 24 points and had 15 rebounds. Jason Psihopaidas had nine points and five rebounds. Don Jess had eight assists, five steals and five rebounds.

Liz Grunch bumps the volleyball up for a teammate to hit. Grunch not only bumped, but also hit well from both the front and back row last Wednesday evening against East Jordan.

Trina Holm, winds up and smacks the ball on this serve. Holm, a junior, has continued to improve her serving during the course of her high school volleyball career.

Anne Schairbaum goes airborne to hit the ball with authority. Schairbaum, one of the Rayders' taller players this season, played well at the net against East Jordan.

Workshop offers help for home buyers

If you thought that owning a home was beyond your dreams, think again! If your family income is less than $46,345.00 per year, you may qualify for a home mortgage under the Michigan Initiative Program.

Charlevoix and Emmet County Cooperative Extension Service is offering a free workshop on Saturday, Jan. 23, from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey, that will help you qualify for a Michigan Initiative mortgage and provide basic information you need to effectively shop for and finance a home.

The goal of the workshop is to provide potential homeowners with information on all aspects of home ownership and to help them decide if home ownership at this time is feasible.

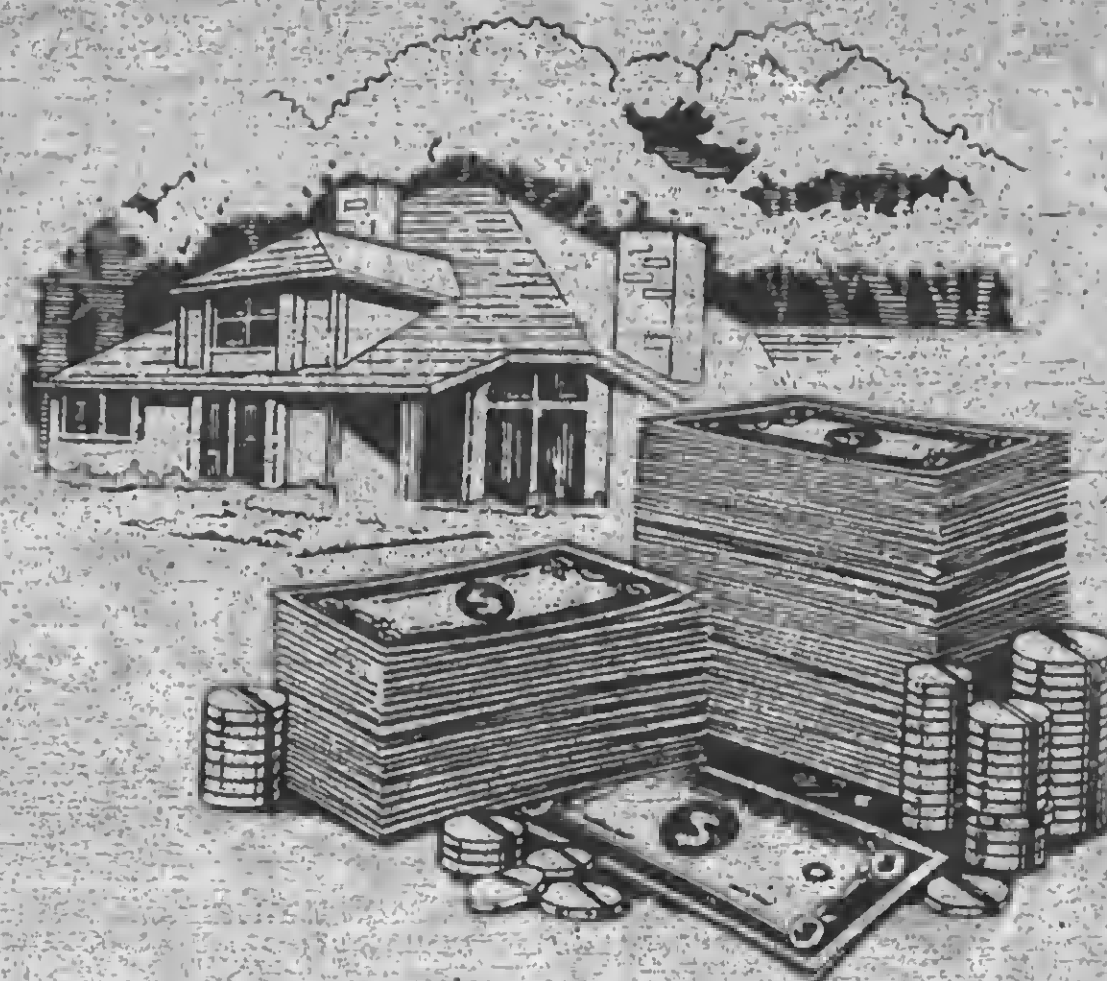

TOPICS TO BE COVERED INCLUDE: House hunting — how to evaluate a house inside and out and the neighborhood; qualifying for a home loan — understanding the criteria lenders use when deciding whether to make a loan; financing a home — understanding the financial aspects of purchasing a home, including monthly costs and mortgage options; and the closing — understanding the closing costs involved in purchasing a home.

The Michigan Initiative helps prospective home buyers by providing education about purchasing a home, cutting the normal down payment requirement to 5 percent and offering more flexible qualifying criteria than conventional mortgages.

The workshop series is open to all potential homeowners, whether they are interested in the Michigan Initiative or not.

For more information call the Emmet County CES office at 348-1770 or Charlevoix County residents can call their Extension Office at 582-6232.

Doing business without promoting is like working in the dark—nobody knows how to find you when they need you.

Odd Fellows take lead in cribbage

The Odd Fellows and Masons played a close match in the second week of this year's cribbage tournament Thursday, Jan. 14. There were six and a half tables in play and for the night, the Odd Fellows came out 31 points ahead and now lead this year's tournament by 369 points.

Joe Stutzman led the Odd Fellows with 933 points while Clare Staley led the Masons with 925 points.

The tournament will resume at 7:30 p.m., Jan. 21 at the Masonic Temple.

County Republicans to meet Jan. 21

Charlevoix County Republicans will convene at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 21 at the County Building to elect delegates and alternates to the State Republican Convention. The State Convention will take place Feb. 12 and 13 at Cobo Hall in Detroit.

County Republicans will have a business meeting following the county convention.

City receives grant for new sidewalks

A $114,048 federal grant in conjunction with $53,000 in local funds will pay for construction of additional sidewalks on U.S. 31. On the south side of town the new section of sidewalk will extend along the west side of the highway from Robinson Street to the airport access road. On the north side of town the sidewalk will be on the north side of the highway from Meech Street to Mercer Street. Construction is expected to take place this summer.

Pancake dinner will help youth club

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club and the American Legion are joining forces to host an all-you-can-eat pancake supper, beginning at 5 p.m., Friday, Jan. 22 at the American Legion Hall. Proceeds from the dinner will be used to help buy a sound system for the Club 77 youth center.

Kiwanis maple syrup and kielbasa will be served with the pancakes. Ticket prices are $5 for adults and $3 for children. Tickets are available from Kiwanis and Legion members and at Club 77.

Drivers adapting to bridge construction

By Laurie Lounsbury

There's just no getting around it-literally. As much as Charlevoix residents may try to come up with ingenious new ways of dealing with the bridge traffic, sooner or later they have to go over, not around, the bridge. Bridge construction work that began Jan. 4 has become a way of life for Charlevoix residents. After the first few days of chaos, travelers seem to have found their own ways to cope with bridge traffic.

Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) traffic control director Bruce Conradson astutely assessed some of the contributing factors to the snarled bridge traffic. "Human nature being what it is, people will look for an advantage. Green means go, and yellow means go faster," said Conradson.

Conradson and the traffic control department may have been here and gone, but they say we're not forgotten. Conradson, who works out of MDOT's Cadillac office, welcomes any suggestions that may alleviate the bridge traffic. He keeps in close touch with city manager Mike Wiesner and police Chief Dennis Halverson.

Conradson reported that after the first two days of major traffic delays caused by the one lane of bridge traffic, adjustments were made on the lights. The time of the light cycle was increased to 90 seconds from 80 seconds and within that cycle they increased the time for clearance. Conradson noted that the Clinton Street light has been phased in with the bridge light, but if people run the lights it throws off all the timing. MDOT's traffic control office is considering changing the Clinton Street light to a flashing light rather than a stop and go light, but no decision has been made yet.

In the meantime, Charlevoix driving behavior varies from being wise to wily. School bus garage director Gordy Russell reports that drivers are most often very considerate to the fleet of buses as they make their merge from Michigan Avenue southbound onto the highway. Many drivers will let all five buses out at a time, obviously showing compassion for the bus driver caught in the traffic with a busload of 50 elementary school kids. School buses have been running only five to ten minutes late because of the bridge traffic.

The wilyer southbound drivers are rerouting themselves from the highway onto west Dixon Avenue, where they cut through the parking lot of the Weathervane Terrace, emerge into the Weathervane Restaurant parking lot, take a left and jump out into the front of the traffic line at the bridge stop light. This may save them a few minutes worth of waiting, but when other drivers figure out the scheme, they might not permit them to nudge their way to the front of the line. The same situation is occurring on the south side of the bridge, with School negotiations about to begin

Negotiations toward a new labor contract for Charlevoix teachers are expected to begin soon. The current three-year contract expires at the end of August and a clause in that contract states that upon request of either the school board or the teachers' union contract negotiations will begin by March 1.

Last week school superintendent Roberta Jackson said the

A disaster of small town proportions

By L. Scott Swanson

Once again the Courier news department found itself right on top of, in fact pretty much literally on top of, a breaking story.

Shortly after 4 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 21 Courier office manager Sally Splitz looked out the front window of the Courier office at 112 Mason Street and spotted smoke spouting out of a snowbank.

As she described the scene, "it looked like a little volcano." Splitz reported her discovery to the Courier news room thinking perhaps that it might be newsworthy, what with volcanic activity on Mason Street being exceedingly rare during the past several years.

Sensing the prospect of a really hot news story, Courier Editor L. Scott Swanson addressed himself to the matter immediately and stepped out of the front door to investigate. Sure enough there was smoke coming out of the snowbank. From earlier observations, Swanson knew that there was some type of utility cover in that section of the sidewalk. He decided to fetch a shovel from the Courier office and move the snow away from the utility cover to get a better look at the situation.

Upon clearing the snow away, Swanson found that the utility cover had the word "Electric" inscribed on it. As Swanson pondered what his next move should be, Howard Horton, recently elected Charlevoix County Democratic Party Chairman, happened to stroll up the sidewalk.

"Hello Howard," Swanson said.

"Hello," responded Horton. "Hey, thanks for getting that story about our meeting in the paper."

"Oh, you're quite welcome," Swanson replied. "We've got smoke coming out of this manhole cover. It says electric on the cover. I think I'd better go inside and call the City Electric Department."

Horton looked at the smoke and agreed that notifying someone was a good idea and went on about his business.

Swanson went into the Courier office and called the City utility department, but since it was after 4 p.m. found he couldn't raise anyone. With that avenue of rescue not panning out, Swanson decided the best alternative would be to contact the fire department, which is conveniently located right across the street from the Courier office and the still smoldering utility cover.

Fire chief Doug Carver, fireman and ambulance attendant Bob Roloff and fireman Lyle Gennett were in the fire office when Swanson arrived. Police officer and volunteer fireman Paul Ivan happened to show up at about the same time. Swanson explained that a smoking utility cover had been discovered and conveyed the general impression of the Courier staff and passers-by that this matter might merit some attention. Carver concurred with that opinion and he, Roloff and Ivan joined Swanson in going back across the street to determine if what we were facing was indeed a case of illegitimate combustion.

OPINIONS

EDITH

by EDITH GILBERT

A woman learns a lot when writing a personal column.

I find, for example, that when someone strongly disagrees with something I've written, they shoot off a snappy letter to the editor. When a person enjoys reading what I've written, however, they will often drop me a friendly line, call me on the phone, or mention it as we meet each other scooting down the grocery aisle. Either way, any reaction, good or bad, is always welcome.

Last year I received a dozen notes from all over the country. People usually write to say how much they enjoy reading news about life in Charlevoix, and to keep up the good work.

Most recently, in response to my article on the proper etiquette of when and when not to wear baseball caps indoors, Anne Dickinson of the Chicago Club expresses herself as follows:

"I was vastly entertained by your set of rules for baseball caps in a recent Courier article," and she encloses a family Christmas card photo with her grandson, Booth, wearing his baseball cap backwards, which we all know is the 'in' way to wear it for 'teen agers'.

From California, my niece reports that she read the article to her eight-year-old son, Jacob, and his three friends. It must have made an impression, because that evening, Jacob did not wear his baseball cap to the indoor movie theater.

Joyce Boydston clipped the column and sent a copy to both her father and son, apropos of a dinner table discussion they had on the subject over the holidays.

But several women caught me by surprise when they asked if it is proper today for women to keep their baseball caps on in the house or in a restaurant. We all know that it has always been correct in the past for women to wear hats indoors, as did Hillary Clinton at the inauguration, so we must assume that it's OK for women to keep their baseball hats on their heads. (Unless, of course, you're a raging feminist, who feels if a man should remove his hat indoors as a mark of respect, then a woman should also be required to do so.)

I noticed in the women's section of Mettlers' downtown store, there are several designer baseball caps on display. (Glancing at the price tag, I was surprised to see them in the over $50 range — but of course all price tags surprise me nowadays, so you can take that bit of information for what it's worth.) The salesperson, Kathy Boyer, feels that the cap is a part of the total woman's costume, and therefore it is perfectly all right to keep the cap on.

But I must remind you that there's a fine line between custom, fashion, manners and etiquette. During the reign of Louis IX, it was the custom for some guests to be invited to stand around and watch the King dine with his hat on.

Now I don't expect to see Bill Clinton eating with his baseball cap on in the White House, change or no change. We'll just have to wait and see if Chelsea will be seen wearing a baseball cap in public with the visor to the front, side, or back. Perhaps this whole issue is academic, because wearing a baseball cap from morning 'til night might just be a passing fashion fad. But if it's not, I repeat, men's caps off in the house.

Amazed by County perks

EDITH GILBERT

Editor:
Re: County Commissioner Insurance

It is a matter of amazement to me that you have not been inundated by letters expressing outrage at the costly perk (a la the House fiscal agency via John Morberg) the County Commissioners have rewarded themselves with at the expense of their constituency.

It would appear to me, a relative newcomer to the community, that you would render your readership an enlightened view point if you would reveal the following:

1. Basic hours spent per month at regular scheduled meetings.
2. Additional hours spent per month on committee meetings (these probably would not be needed if we had a manager.)
3. Hourly wage or stipend per meeting.
4. Term of office.
5. Cost of insurance per commissioner, spouse.
6. Mandatory number of hours per month to be served before payment? Per year?
7. Per diem and/or mileage paid.
8. Basis for retirement insurance.
9. When does retirement start.
10. Poll of individual votes cast by commissioners on this subject.

The function of county government is not unfamiliar to me.

WRITE:

a letter to the editor

Charlevoix Courier

since I served 40 years as an elected county officer — without insurance before or after retirement. During this period of time I attended many, many township, township board, village council, city commission and county commission board meetings. It was also my pleasure to serve on a state board (one year as chairman) under the State Department of Licensing and Regulation for which I was paid $50 a meeting in Lansing — a city that involved four hours of round trip driving from my home town. We were not insured for any of the foregoing and on the state board were asked to forfeit our pay in an austerity movement proposed by the department but not adhered to by its full time employees.

The sole reason for this letter is to advise your readers of this rip off. I would ask them to compare their insurance that they are receiving for current or past services based on a 40 hour week extended over a period of many years, against the insurance voted to the commissioners by themselves for days, or at the most, probably weeks of service.

Jan Glass painting selected for tour

Jan Glass of Charlevoix is a finalist in the 1993 Art & Flowers Poster competition at the Detroit Institute of Arts (DIA). Her entry, "Late Bloomer," will accompany nineteen other Michigan artists in a traveling exhibition of original works of art selected in the statewide competition.

The itinerary for the public exhibition is: New Center One, Detroit, Feb. 8-18; Jacobson's, Gross Pointe, Feb. 22-March 2; Jacobson's, Livonia, March 15-20 and the DIA, Detroit, March 24-April 25. The $1,000 winners, "Peonies," by Rita Mach-Skoetzen of Rochester Hills, was unveiled at the opening of the exhibition Jan. 21 at AAA Michigan headquarters in Dearborn. AAA Michigan has donated the $1,000 winning entry award since 1985. The contest is held every other year.

A previous finalist in the Art and Flowers poster competition, Glass teaches classes in drawing and watercolor and lectures on art and nature for the Crooked Tree Arts Council in Petoskey and Charlevoix. Her work also has been featured in one-woman exhibits at the Crooked Tree gallery regularly since 1987. One piece was the purchase prize winner in a state-wide competition sponsored by Michigan National Corp. in 1989.

Letters to the editor

Community was kind during Christmas season

Editor,
An open letter to the very special people of the Charlevoix area.

On behalf of the 446 people whose Christmas celebration was made a bit happier this year by the Community Christmas Project, we want to thank all the generous people who provided the labor and the "where-with-all" to accomplish the mission. These recipients come from a total of 184 households in our area.

154 homes received the components of Christmas dinner as well as extra staples and supplies. Families with children aged 18 and under and/or senior citizens 75 or older also received gifts, as did a number of senior citizens who needed only a little extra TLC during this season. Included were 19 nursing home residents. The total number of gift recipients was 270; 187 of these were children and teens. Youngsters also received mittens or gloves, caps or socks.

The project was carried out by 146 identifiable workers. It is certain there were many more who worked in some way "back stage."

Literally thousands of food items were brought in. Because of the timing some of the food is now an extended gift to the Community Food Pantry. The contribution is very much appreciated because the pantry is only partially funded by the DSS.

To help purchase food items needed that weren't contributed directly, several organizations gave sizable amounts of money, and there were many cash contributions made by individuals.

We are especially grateful for the work of many children and teens and the imaginative projects carried out by school children.

There were so many people who gave time, labor, material items and money that it is impossible to list all of them. To everyone we say, "Thank You from the bottom of our hearts. We are so proud of our caring community, and we wish all of you a blessed new year."

Sincerely,
The Community Christmas Project Planning Committee

Schroth - Gilbert

Sheryl Ann Schroth

Patricia and John Schroth of Pittsford, New York, announce the engagement of their daughter, Sheryl Ann, to Curtis Gilbert, son of Victoria and Jay Gilbert of Webster, New York. The groom-elect is the grandson of the late Julius Gilbert of Charlevoix.

The bride-to-be graduated from Allendale Columbia in 1982, earned a bachelor's degree from Fairfield University in Fairfield, Connecticut in 1986 and a master's degree in Art History from the University of New Mexico in 1990. She is the senior editor and manager of the publication department for an environmental firm in San Francisco, California.

Her fiancé, a 1983 graduate of the Hebron Academy in Hebron, Maine, received a bachelor's degree in Business Administration from the University of New Hampshire, Plymouth campus in 1990. He is employed as a BMW auto specialist in San Francisco.

The wedding will be June 5 at the St. Louis Church in Pittsford.

Cribbage results

Thursday, Jan. 21 there were just four tables in play at the Masonic Temple. The home field advantage meant nothing as the Odd Fellows outscored the Masons by 134 points on the evening and now lead this year's tournament by 503 points.

Leading the Odd Fellows this past Thursday was Charles E. Bergmann with 951 points. Rod Trimble led the Masons with 931 points.

A compilation of awards, good deeds and praises involving Charlevoix people.

Grand Valley State University (GVSU) student, John O'Brien, Charlevoix, has been awarded a $1,000 scholarship from Dupont Corporation and the International Facilities Management Association (IFMA).

O'Brien, the son of Donald and Mary O'Brien, was one of six recipients selected from facilities management (FM) students in the U.S. and Canada in the annual international competition.

The GVSU senior is the Vice President of the Student Facilities Management Association (SFMA), is a FM intern at Old Kent Bank, and is the recipient of a $500 scholarship from the Grand Rapids Chapter of American Institute of Plant Engineers. O'Brien was a participant at the recent plenary conference of the Midwest Region of the Council of Educational Facilities Planners, and maintains a 3.8 grade point average.

O'Brien received the award at the IFMA conference October 7 in New Orleans. The GVSU Seidman School of Business Deans office donated funds for the trip. O'Brien's travel expenses were paid for by the Dupont Corporation and the IFMA.

Chimney fires a frequent problem

City firemen responded to a chimney fire at 109 East Garfield Monday morning. Fire Chief Doug Carver said the department responds to between 10 and 17 chimney fires each year. Most are extinguished quickly, but all have the potential to either damage the chimney or catch the house on fire. Carver said the best preventive medicine is keeping the chimney clean and letting it burn hot often enough to clear the creosote and soot.

obituaries

J. Gordon Dennis

J. Gordon Dennis, 85, of Ellsworth, died Jan. 22, 1993, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral will be 11 a.m. Tuesday, Jan. 26, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix with the Rev. William Lyons of the Ellsworth Wesleyan Church officiating. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

He was born July 8, 1907, in Ellsworth, the son of Richard and Annette (Hadlik) Dennis. He was raised in the Detroit area and graduated in 1926 from Northwestern High School in Detroit.

He moved to Charlevoix in the early 1930s where he was employed by the Kroger store. He then worked for the Charlevoix Post Office for more than 30 years, retiring in 1969.

On Oct. 25, 1955, he married Daphnia Lucella Baumgardner-Brodin in Charlevoix and they moved to Ellsworth in 1958. They attended the Ellsworth Wesleyan Church.

Mr. Dennis enjoyed the outdoors. He is survived by his wife, Daphnia, three sons, Charles Dennis of Sturgeon Bay, Wis., James Dennis of Oshkosh, Wis., and Robert Dennis of East Jordan; two stepsons, William Brodin and Gary Brodin, both of Charlevoix; one stepdaughter, Nancy Higbee of Ellsworth; and two brothers, Richard Dennis of East Jordan, and Dewitt Dennis of Mount Clemens; 18 grandchildren; and 29 great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by a stepson, Larry Brodin.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Ellsworth Wesleyan Church. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix where the family will receive friends from 2-4 and 7-9 p.m. today, Jan. 25.

Eliane H. Retherford

Eliane H. Retherford, 70, of Scottsdale, Arizona, and the Belvedere Club of Charlevoix died Jan. 21 in Scottsdale. Services were held in Scottsdale on Jan. 25.

Mrs. Retherford first came to the Belvedere Club in 1941. She and William Stewart Retherford were married in 1943 and following World War II were regular summer residents of Charlevoix.

Mrs. Retherford was a patron of the arts, talented in both watercolor and in needlepoint. She was an avid supporter of the Charlevoix Art Fair. In addition to her love of the arts, she was also an avid golfer and was a member of the Belvedere Golf Club Board of Directors from 1971-1976 and 1982-83.

In addition to her husband, W. Stewart Retherford, she is survived by three daughters: Lee Higgins Retherford; Mrs. Walter (Lynn) Bleakney; and Mrs. Ken (Jessie) Johnson; and six grandchildren.

Her family suggests contributions in lieu of flowers to the Emma Willard School, 285 Pawling Ave., Troy, NY 12180.

Bible study class begins Feb. 7

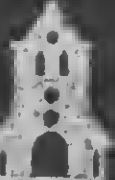

Bethany Lutheran Church will be starting a new Bible Study class at 10:45 a.m. Sunday, Feb. 7. Among the subjects covered will be what the Bible says about: Creation; the fall of mankind; sin; the salvation of man; the problems of suffering; God's rescue attempt; the Holy Spirit; prayer; Baptism and the Lord's supper; and Christian life. For more information about the class, contact Pastor Merle Wellhausen at 547-9446 or 547-1062.

Other programs the church is continuing in 1993 include:

A Young Mother's Ministry at 9:30 a.m. Thursday mornings; Nursery care is provided.

A "Faith Stretchers" aerobic class at 7 p.m. Thursday evenings. The class at the church is free and open to the public.

Bethany Lutheran Church is located at 1407 Bridge Street.

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

The current coating of ice everywhere brought back memories from when my daughter was just a little girl. We were living in West Virginia at the time and she had only had a brief introduction to what winter would really be like.

It had snowed overnight. We lived close enough to the church that we could walk to worship. My daughter thought the winter wonderland out our front window was positively magical. She couldn't wait to get going. When we were ready, I told her to go ahead down the front steps. Her enthusiasm quickly turned to fear when she found ice on our sidewalk would not let her move without slipping. "Daddy, help me!"

I moved up along side of her and grasped her tiny hand. As long as Daddy held on to her firmly, she walked on the ice just fine. If I would pretend to lighten my grip even for a moment, she would freeze until she was sure that I wasn't about to let go. In her father's hands, she knew she would be just fine. On her own, she was very unsure. Have you figured out where I'm headed?

This all came back to mind because of last Sunday. The Red Wings would have played a game on our church parking lot. It was so slick that our mek took turns escorting the women across the ice to the sanctuary doors. Feeling someone hold on to my arm for reassurance rekindled the memory.

There are moments in our lives where all of us have felt suddenly unsure of our footing. There are moments where that insecurity is so unexpected that all you can do is stop and cry out for help. One of the many precious promises of God that I really get encouragement from is "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee." If you have had moments of uncertainty in your life lately, maybe you need to remember some of the ways your Father in heaven has promised to stay by your side.

I can never say enough about the worth of the Bible. There is always something comforting for you to find in the pages of God's Word. There is always something comforting in hearing a loving Father's voice. I can never say enough about the importance of prayer. The old saying is "from your mouth to God's ears." It really doesn't take much to get His attention. He's always listening for the child who trusts Him. I can never say enough about the wonder of God's Holy Spirit. There is no greater reassurance for any of life's uncertainties than resting His holy presence in your heart.

Ice is not the only thing that can undermine your footing. The next time you feel yourself slipping, reach out for the Father's hand. His grip, His strength, His love, His peace will not let you fall.

...traffic congestion from bridge work

drivers nudging their way out into the line of traffic from Park Avenue.

A common complaint of bridge crossers are the drivers that slow to five miles an hour when traversing the bridge. The five o'clock rush hour is not a good time to leisurely gawk at the bridge construction while cruising slowly by. Nor is it a good time for the timid or wary to slowly creep over the narrow expanse.

In the meantime, the construction crew of Abhe and Svoboda are doing their best to hasten the bridge work. They are working from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., seven days a week. The number of crew members is usually around 15 to 20 men. They are currently building an enclosure over the bridge so they can begin to blast the old paint off the structural steel. The enclosure will contain the blast material. After that, they will pour a new concrete deck on the west side of the bridge.

Construction will be concluded for the season by May 21, allowing Charlevoixans approximately six days of blissful bridge crossing before they adjust to the half hourly bridge openings.

Activities offered for children by library during winter months

The Children's Activity Hour sponsored by the Charlevoix Public Library is taking place from 11 a.m. to noon Saturdays at the library through Feb. 27. All local students in the kindergarten through fifth grades are invited to attend the activity hour. There is no charge.

Scheduled activities are as follows:

- Jan. 30 - A magic show and tricks taught by Ken Bartley
 - Feb. 6 - Exercise with Candy Smith of Vital Options
 - Feb. 13 - Old time dancing with the Tag-alongs
 - Feb. 20 - An environmental skit and lesson by Marti Samson of See North
 - Feb. 27 - Cake decorating tricks taught by Kathy Reid
- For additional information, call Linda Tache, program coordinator, or contact the library at 547-2651.

Girl Scouts prepare for cookie sale

Thousands of Girl Scouts in Northwestern Michigan will begin their Annual Cookie Sale Friday, Feb. 5. The girls will take orders for each of seven varieties of cookies through Feb. 14 and return to deliver them in mid-March. Girl Scouts depend on cookies to fund Program Activities for both Troops and Crooked Tree's 11-county Council.

Rayders win sixth straight

Big game Friday with Boyne City

Basketball Kalkaska 1-27.

How hot were the Charlevoix and Kalkaska basketball teams in the opening minutes of Friday night's Lake Michigan Division showdown? At the end of the first quarter, the rims had to be dipped in ice water.

All right, so maybe that's exaggerating a bit, but still the two teams put on quite an impressive offensive show Friday evening and closed the first quarter tied 23-23 before Charlevoix went on to take a 76-65 win.

The Rayders' sixth straight win gives them a league mark of 5-1 and a season mark of 8-1. Charlevoix and Kalkaska remain one step behind Boyne City which is undefeated at 6-0 in league play and 9-0 overall. Charlevoix plays at Boyne City this Friday evening in a game which has to be considered one of the biggest regular season games this area has seen in the past several years. On Dec. 18 Boyne City beat Charlevoix by six points at Charlevoix.

In the first quarter of the Kalkaska games, each team had an answer every time the other team scored. Brad DeGrow, the Rayders' senior center, with the sweet shooting touch, was just too much player for the Kalkaska defenders to deal with individually in the paint. When Kalkaska sagged their defense so that every Kalkaska player and their brothers were collapsing on DeGrow, Rayder guard Don Jess drained three point shots.

Kalkaska matched the Rayder scoring with Steve Scott, one of the toughest players the Rayders have faced this year. Charlevoix tried to check Scott with Jess and Keith Carey, both players who play very solid fundamental defensive basketball. Scott and the Rayder defenders went hard at each other all night long and nobody blinked.

Early in the game, Charlevoix went with a one guard offense which gave them a decided height advantage. Later in the game, Rayder coach Jim Kanine brought in Brandon Webb as a second guard. The move still left the Rayders with a height advantage, but it gave them a little more quickness and ball handling ability. Kanine has a deep bench this season and he's been getting contributions from several different players. In addition to Webb's contribution, perhaps the most vivid example of the Rayders' depth and diversity has been at one of the forward positions where Vincent Voisin and David Dobulis have shared time.

At halftime Charlevoix led 38-37 and the game stayed nip and tuck until the last three minutes of the third quarter when Webb and Voisin ignited a Rayder rally which gave Charlevoix a little breathing room and a 54-47 lead entering the final quarter. In the fourth quarter, it was Dobulis' turn. After Kalkaska had drawn to within three points at 56-53 early in the quarter, Dobulis blocked one shot, forced a player to alter a second shot and then hit two big baskets from the corner down the stretch. For the game the Voisin/Dobulis combination gave the Rayders 18 points, three blocked shots, several rebounds and a lot of intangible things such as picks to free up other offensive players and some solid defense.

Although Kalkaska got within three points early in the fourth quarter, Charlevoix's players did a nice job of maintaining their poise. Kalkaska hurried some shots, but Charlevoix did a nice job of getting the ball in the hands of their scorers in places where it was convenient to score. On one play Webb was dribbling the ball near the free throw line when the player guarding him slipped. Webb quickly took advantage of the slip, driving toward the basket. When the defender guarding DeGrow rotated over, Webb deftly passed to DeGrow for an easy basket.

On the night, DeGrow finished with 20 points while Jess added 17 and Voisin, with a shot that fans of professional basketball will recognize as a combination of the Bill Cartwright wind-up and the Vinnie Johnson "dunk," 13 points. Webb had eight points. Jess also had eight rebounds, nine assists and three steals. DeGrow had a double-double as he had a dozen rebounds to go with his 20 points.

Charlevoix also won the junior varsity game 66-47.

Vince Voisin of Charlevoix goes up for two of his 13 points in the Rayders win over Kalkaska Friday night.

Ski team does well against state's best

Charlevoix's girl's ski team placed third and the boys' team fourth at the Traverse City Invitational Ski Race Monday at Sugar Loaf Resort. The race featured some of the finest high school ski teams in Michigan.

In the girls' race, Charlevoix finished third with 113 points behind Petoskey, 41 points, and Traverse City A team, 59 points.

Carolyn Campbell, a freshman, had the Rayders' best finish of the day placing third in the slalom (S) and fifth in the giant slalom (GS).

Other Rayder skiers and their places were: Amy Spang, 6S, 18GS; Kim Keller, 16S, 28GS; Sheila Siegart, 18S, 19GS; Jodi Allison, 21S; Jessica Kline, 32S; DQGS; Heidi Mifler, 31S.

The Rayder boys' team placed fourth with 134 points behind Traverse City's A team, 41 points, Harbor Springs with 79.5 points and Traverse City's B team with 96 points.

Scott Boyer had the best day overall for the Rayders, finishing seventh in the slalom and 17 in giant slalom. J.H. Hoek placed fifth in the giant slalom, but fell in the slalom.

Other Rayder skiers and their places were: Charles Meier, 15S, 34GS; Jake Porath, 18S, 29GS; Rob Bunting, 20S, 31GS; Ryan Smith, 22S, 23GS.

The Rayders' next meet will be Wednesday, Jan. 27 at Boyne Mountain with Boyne City, Elk Rapids and Mancelona.

Loose ball! Players scramble to come up with the ball in action Friday night in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix tops Harbor on volleyball court

CHARLEVOIX - Charlevoix fought back from a two-game deficit to defeat Harbor Springs in a Lake Michigan Division volleyball match Monday.

Harbor Springs took games one and two, 15-11, and 15-9, but the Rayders won the next three, 15-8, 15-1, and 15-8.

"I think the problem was we hadn't played in a while," said Charlevoix coach Brenda Bryan of the mid-match turn around. "We were just unorganized. By the third game they just decided they wanted to come back and win. They knew they could do it."

and had to work as a team."

For Charlevoix, top setters were Christy Stwarga and Melissa Cox, top servers were Laura Loder, Angelina Doan, and Liz Grunch while top defensive players and top offensive players were Grunch, Doan and Loder.

For Harbor, offensively Crystal Conway had seven kills, Melissa Adelaine, six, and Trisha Naganashe, five. Adelaine was the top server, with 14-of-18 and Naganashe was 16-of-17.

"Naganashe and Conway were our servers and both did a good job," Harbor coach Mary Miller said.

Miller said.

Harbor Springs won the junior varsity match, 15-6, 5-15, 15-13. For Charlevoix, top setters were Tabitha Potter and Angela Schmidt, top servers were Liz Coen and Kris Blanchard, best defensive players were Potter and Aprilie Pischner and best offensive players were Christie Kaczynski and Blanchard.

Wednesday, Jan. 27, Charlevoix hosts Boyne City while Harbor Springs goes to Elk Rapids.

Skippergosh and Hughes win medals

Charlevoix's wrestling team fared well in the 103 pound and heavyweight classes, but didn't go as well at other weights and finished tenth among 12 schools at the Reed City Invitational Saturday.

Heavyweight Matt Skippergosh took second place, losing to the top seed in the finals on a pin at 1:53 of the match. Skippergosh, who was seeded third entering the tournament, pinned two opponents before being pinned in the second round, enroute to the finals.

In the 103 pound weight class, Jason Hughes placed fourth going 2-2 on the day. Hughes wrestled well. In his second match, he wrestled the tournament's top seed, a

McRae recall the times of the first State Police post

By Ralph McRae

A couple of weeks ago we were reminded that in 1993 our Michigan State Police are celebrating their seventy-fifth year of service. They have come a long way since 1917 when they formally organized and 1918 when they officially began work.

It was in 1918 that the Michigan State Police set up an outpost in Pellston. That outpost happened to be at the rear of my childhood home where there was an ample barn, large enough to accommodate several horses. It was also close to a well-used intersection.

Of course in those days, the police were mounted police, much like the famous mounted police of Canada. For many months, each morning four State Police would head out of our barn for a lonely patrol, each officer riding off in a different direction.

In three of the directions the dirt and gravel roads took, the uniformed riders up and over long and high hills. There were miles and miles of virgin forests in those days. The officers would return late in the afternoon, tired and dusty. During their many hours in the saddle, they would seldom see a car. Rather they would see plenty of rabbits and deer.

Did they have communication? Radio was still a few years away and certainly there were no cellular phones.

Somewhere along the way rider and horse would stop. Carrying a lunch box and a bag of oats, they took time to eat.

In those days Pellston was a busy town of 2,000 people. Five lumber mills employed a total of 400 men. One of the mills had two locomotives and its own train station. Miles of track went out to the lumber camps and the trains also would drop settlers within walking distance of their isolated homes.

Other than the railroads, most everything was horsedrawn. There were no trucks. People walked everywhere, many a few miles every day. Most homes were still using kerosene lamps and only a few had indoor toilets.

Pellston at that time had five surrounding neighborhoods: each with a dozen or more homes, some of the homes with dirt floors. All of the homes were heated by woodburning stoves. There were very few washing machines and no refrigerators. Cakes of ice covered with sawdust were available for ice boxes in the warmer months. Some of the sidewalks were cement, but most of them were made of wood. Many of the streets and local roads were covered with wood chips from the saw mills.

Our first car was an Overland. It was just used on weekends in the non-winter months. A small tank on the running board supplied the headlights with acetylene gas. The lenses of the headlights were hinged to be opened and a match used to light the acetylene. Nobody ventured out on an auto trip without taking a small kit to repair inner tubes. Punctures were accepted as part of owning an automobile. Evidently that was before spare tires were available. I recall my father bragging one time that the tires he had just bought were guaranteed to go five thousand miles. They seemed to be oversized bicycle tires. The road just a few miles south of Pellston was just a one-way stretch of sand for a mile or two. Often, we had to get out and push.

In those days only men worked outside of the home, except for unmarried school teachers. Men and horses took an hour off for dinner in the middle of their ten-hour day, six days a week job.

Small stores delivered daily by horse drays food ordered by their customers. Almost everyone had charge accounts and when bills were paid on paydays a small sack of candy was given as a bonus.

It was in times such as this that the Michigan State Police had a small post in Pellston. The law enforcement officers in those days wore wide brim hats and knee-length pants.

It is sometimes said that "The more things change, the more they stay the same." In this case, that isn't true.

Sno-Challenge plans are beginning to take shape

The Mount McSaubia Sno-Challenge will be a one-day event Feb. 13 with modifications to some of the events. City Recreation Director Ike Boss and other recreation department employees met with a group of volunteers last week to come up with plans for this year's Sno-Challenge. They are planning to meet again this week to work out remaining details.

In addition to changing from a two-day to a one-day event, several other things will be different at this year's Sno-Challenge.

The day will begin with the World Championship Thunderbubing competition. Teams of three people will race down the front of the Mount McSaubia ski hill. This year's tubing competition will be limited to 48 teams. On the first round of the competition three teams will compete with the last place team being eliminated and the top two teams advancing. In subsequent rounds two teams will race head to head with the winning team advancing and the losing team being eliminated. When the field is pared down to four teams, those teams will go head to head in a four-team race for the prize money.

Children's ski race which in past years have taken place on Saturday morning's in conjunction with the Sno-Challenge will be separate from the Sno-Challenge this year.

and will take place during the evening of Thursday, Feb. 11.

On Feb. 13, in the afternoon following thunderbubing, there will be snowmobile and all-terrain-vehicle (ATV) competitions at the base of the mountain. These competitions will be run on a flat course designed to test an operator's skill in handling a machine rather than a machine's speed or hill-climbing ability.

At 7 p.m. there will be a fireworks display. The fireworks will be launched from the peak of Mount McSaubia.

Following the fireworks at 7:30 p.m. there will be a truck hillclimb competition up the face of Mount McSaubia.

Admission charges for the day will be $3 for adults, $2 for children or $10 for a family pass. No alcohol will be allowed at the events.

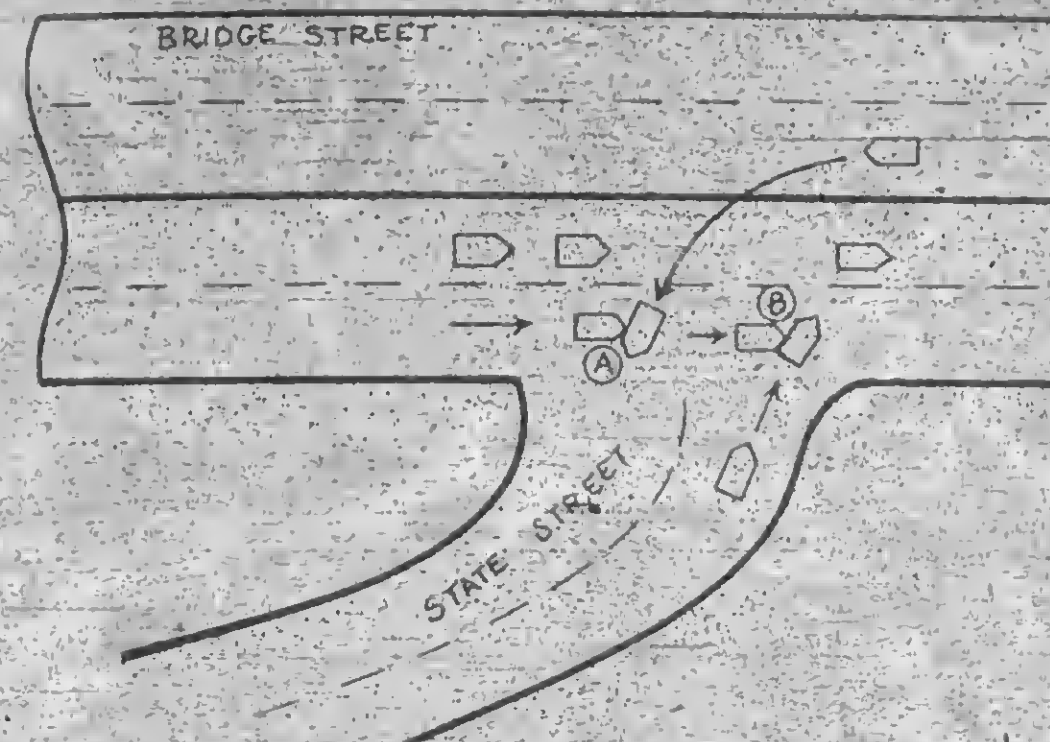

Although last week's ice storm made it difficult to get around, the trees were pretty sheathed in ice.

No left turn sign goes up at the corner of Bridge and State Streets

A "No Left Turn" sign went up at the corner of Bridge and State Streets Monday morning. However, as of Monday afternoon many drivers still hadn't noticed it. Between 1:45 and 2 p.m. Monday the Courier photographer watched six people make the left turn. A short while earlier a City Police officer had stopped seven people and warned them.

City Police Chief Dennis Halverson said the sign was put up as a result of discussions between City and Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) officials.

"Traffic management is like physics," Halverson explained. "For every action, there's an equal and opposite reaction." The traffic light helped US 31 and M-66, but it screwed up State and Bridge.

Halverson said there have been several accidents at the intersection. The two most common types of accidents are shown in the diagram above.

On the record

A daughter, Kathryn Ann Sell, born to Christine and Tracy Sell of Charlevoix on January 18.

A daughter, Ashley Marie Vandeyacht, born to Beverly and Brian Vandeyacht of Charlevoix on January 21.

A son, Logan Thomas Farmer, born to Brenda and Tom Farmer of East Jordan on January 22. Paternal grandparents are Gary and Margaret Farmer of East Jordan. Maternal grandparents are Sandra Sulak of East Jordan and Jerome Sulak Jr. of Boyne City. Great-grandparents are Agnus and Jerome Sulak of Boyne City and Marguerite Farmer of East Jordan.

A daughter, Kelsie Loretta Keller, born to Nancy and Frank Keller of East Jordan on January 24. Grandparents are Bonnie and Herb Carlson, and Cathy and Frank Keller, both of Petoskey. Iva and Keith Clevenger of Harbor Springs.

Youths charged with fencing stolen goods

City police investigation began with report of handgun sale at high school

By L. Scott Swanson

Charlevoix City Police have arrested a 17-year-old and petitioned two juveniles into Probate Court following an investigation which began with a report of one student selling another a handgun at Charlevoix High School.

City Police chief Dennis Halverson said that on Jan. 14 police received information that a handgun sale had taken place in the hallway at Charlevoix High School. Halverson not only immediately assigned on-duty personnel to the case, but called in off-duty officers and began working with school officials to find the gun.

"Given the introduction of a handgun, we weren't taking any chances with that," Halverson said. "We reacted aggressively with the prime objective being to find where that gun was at."

Within approximately 12 hours, police knew where the gun was at and had confiscated it along with a full clip of shells.

Halverson said that information obtained during the investigation indicates that the gun was stolen in a breaking and entering of a home north of Charlevoix and that on Jan. 14 a 16-year-old brought the gun to school on a school bus and sold it to a 17-year-old for $75.

Halverson said 17-year-old Jason Staph was arrested Thursday.

"Given the introduction of a handgun, we weren't taking any chances with that. We reacted aggressively with the prime objective being to find where that gun was at."

City Police Chief Dennis Halverson explaining the response of police and school personnel to a report of a handgun being sold at the high school.

Jan. 28 and charged with carrying a concealed weapon, conspiracy to commit retail fraud and receiving and concealing stolen property valued at more than $100. A 16-year-old male, whose name has not been released, has been charged in Probate Court with carrying a concealed weapon and breaking and entering. A 14-year-old female, whose name has not been released, has been charged in Probate Court with conspiracy to commit retail fraud.

The conspiracy to commit retail fraud charges stem from a separate matter which police say came to light during the same investigation.

"As a result of the handgun investigation, we became aware of a fencing operation," Halverson explained. The operation was primarily based at the high school and involved the sale of Compact Discs (CDs), cassette tapes, hats and jewelry which had been stolen from area stores and was being resold to high school students.

Halverson said police feel it's possible that the sale of the stolen goods could involve 40 to 50 high school students who actually received stolen goods and that more may have been approached. Last week the police offered an amnesty program in which students could return without penalty any stolen goods which they had purchased. That program resulted in the return of three CDs, 10 hats and a handful of jewelry, Halverson estimated that to be a small fraction of what had been reported stolen. Halverson said the investigation indicates that about 33 CDs, 25 tapes, 23 hats, 20 necklaces and two portable tape players were stolen and sold. He said the merchandise has a value in excess of $1,000. Halverson said that $15 CDs were being sold for $4.

As for the purchase of the stolen property, Halverson said, "It is a crime to knowingly purchase property which is stolen or believed to be stolen."

Halverson said police officers worked closely with High School Principal Dave Smith and Assistant Principal Dick Swenor. "They shared our concern about the handgun," he noted.

Missing the bus

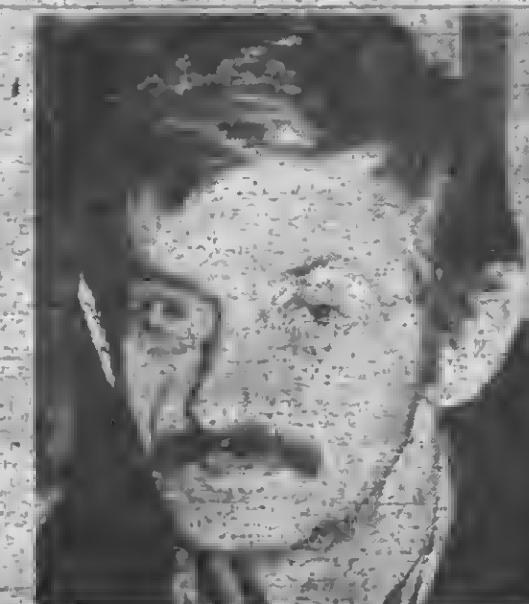

County transit bus will no longer take man to work

By Laurie Lounsbury

Jim Allport has enjoyed the county transit system's "On Demand Service" for the last three years. Allport has commuted from Charlevoix to his job in Boyne City by riding back and forth on one of the county's green buses. But as of last Monday, the county's on-demand service will no longer be meeting Allport's demands.

The county told Allport that the cost of transporting him as a sole commuter was too prohibitive to continue the service.

For Allport, it's been a matter of safety in numbers. Commuter service was provided between Charlevoix and Boyne City when United Technologies was open and eight people rode the bus. Even last year, when Allport was joined by only one other commuter, transit service seemed to be a sure thing.

In a letter to Allport, County Transit Manager Art Sawarski explained that the county's annual cost of transporting Allport was $7,121. This cost represented "merely the cost for the driver plus a token amount for the overhead," Sawarski's letter stated. The letter went on to say that if real overhead was included, the cost would be

State bill would help City with contamination clean-up

By L. Scott Swanson

A state bill which assures the continuation of state funding to help clean up underground fuel spills will be good news for the City of Charlevoix should the bill make it the rest of the way through the state legislature. The bill, titled SB 45, has passed the Michigan Senate and been forwarded to the House of Representatives.

The City of Charlevoix is working toward the clean up of a leak at the City Street Department garage near the corner of Stover and Ferry Roads, just above Ferry Beach on the Lake Charlevoix shoreline. Last spring, when the City became aware that a problem might exist, city officials enrolled Charlevoix in the State's MUSTFA (Michigan Underground Storage Tank Financial Assurance Fund) program. Under terms of MUSTFA, the City had to fill out paperwork, pay a nominal registration fee and agree to pay the first $10,000 of clean-up costs. MUSTFA would then pay any clean-up costs beyond the $10,000.

With that understanding, the City began getting things in order for a clean-up effort at the street garage site. But then within the past few months MUSTFA funds began to run out. Eventually, the State issued a Feb. 8 deadline, telling entities such as the City of Charlevoix to send in all MUSTFA bills by that deadline and MUSTFA would pay what it could with what funds were left in the program.

This new twist left Charlevoix City Council members and City administrators facing a tricky decision. As council member Ted Felner described it at one meeting, the fear was that the City could hurry to beat the Feb. 8 funding deadline and have test wells drilled and a clean-up plan developed; then the State could run out of MUSTFA funds to pay for clean-up; yet the Department of Natural Resources or Environmental Protection Agency could demand that the City proceed with the clean-up plan at City expense. On the other hand, if the City waited the potential existed for the contamination to spread and that would make the problem at least more costly to clean up and possibly more environmentally damaging.

Against that back drop, the city council approved expenditures not to exceed approximately $40,000 for testing at the site and the development of a clean-up plan. Testing at the site indicates that the contamination, which is fuel that leaked into the ground from a pipe between a tank and a pump, hasn't spread much and is moving very slowly. City manager Mike Wiesner said Monday that the original site testing work has been completed and that the City will send a bill (which ended up being less than $30,000) to Lansing prior to the Feb. 8 MUSTFA fund deadline.

Meanwhile, at the state level the State Senate passed a bill Jan. 28 which will extend funding for MUSTFA through 2003. Should the bill pass the House of Representatives and be signed by Governor John Engler, it would assure Charlevoix of state funding assistance in cleaning up the contamination.

"Our hope is that the MUSTFA fund would be replenished," city manager Mike Wiesner said Monday. "Obviously that's the funding we're waiting for to do the clean-up."

The senate bill calls for continuing a seven-eighths of a cent per gallon surcharge on refined petroleum products and extending $12,670. Sawarski also said in his letter that the cost of transporting Allport was more than 1 percent of the total transit budget, "a very high amount which cannot be justified to other taxpayers."

Allport sees it a little differently. "It's a public service I'm being denied," he says. Allport started riding the bus three years ago when major credit card debt he had incurred forced him to sell his car and file for bankruptcy. Allport's wife owns a car that she uses to commute to her job at the Charlevoix Area Hospital, a few blocks from the Allport's home. She is an operating room nurse and at times is on call and must be able to quickly report to the hospital.

Allport solicited the help of attorney Scott Beatty who has written to the Transit Commission on Allport's behalf. According to Allport, Beatty cautioned him that it would cost $1,500 to start proceedings against the county with a lawsuit and Allport could buy a used car for that amount.

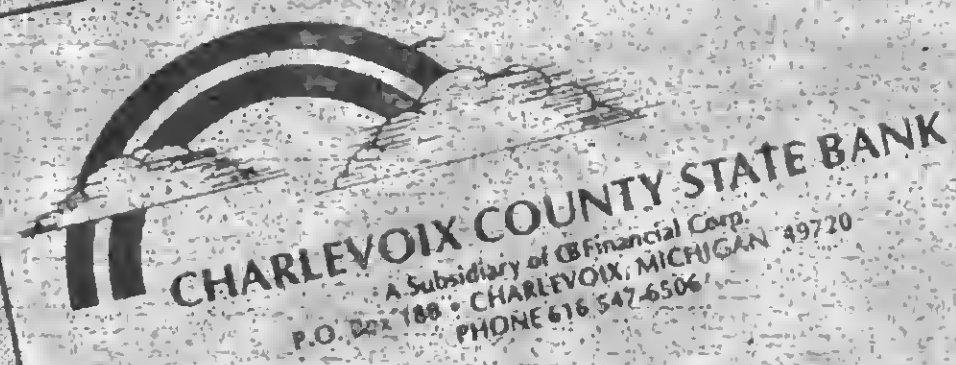

Police investigate safe robbery

City police are investigating a safe-cracking robbery which occurred sometime between 11 p.m. Jan. 27 and 9 a.m. Jan. 28 at Nanny's Restaurant.

City Police Chief Dennis Halverson said that when employees reported to work at the restaurant the morning of Thursday, Jan. 28, they discovered that someone had pried open a door and broken in during the night. Police were notified and further investigation indicated that after breaking in, thieves went to the office and broke into a larger safe. The exact amount of money taken has yet to be determined, but Halverson said that it is in excess of $100.

The case remains under investigation.

Dear Valued Customers and Friends:

Effective today, I am retiring from the Charlevoix County State Bank. CB Financial Corporation of Jackson, Michigan has hired me as a consultant for the next year and I plan on calling on many of you.

I feel it is time to step aside, after almost 46 years, to enjoy my children and grandchildren and to have time to complete many unfinished projects.

At my request, we will not have an open house as it will be very difficult to say goodbye to all of you.

You have been an important part of my life and I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for your many kindnesses and considerations throughout these many years.

Letters to the editor

WATCH continues to monitor cement plant activities

Editor,

Over the past few months I have received several letters and phone calls regarding what Watch, Inc. has been doing about the Medusa Cement Plant. Most of the writers and callers felt that Watch, Inc. was not doing a very good job of monitoring Medusa's operations.

I feel that I should have done a better job of informing area residents of our activities. I hope the following information will serve to better inform the community regarding what Watch has been doing.

I've been involved with Watch from its inception 10 years ago. Actually, Watch was founded because of Medusa's operation and its impact on our community. I've lived near the plant for the past 22 years and served on the Charlevoix Township Zoning board during which time we adopted a mining ordinance. It's this background which has kept me "watching" Medusa along with the rest of the directors of Watch, Inc.

The following is information on Medusa's operation for the past few years, most of this information I covered in my report at our annual meeting in July of 1992.

Fuel Oil Spill - In the fall of 1991 several employees of Medusa contacted Watch stating they felt there was a fuel oil spill problem. The Michigan Department of Natural Resources (D.N.R.) was contacted and discovered that a high pressure underground pipe that distributes fuel oil to the plant had ruptured. Because Medusa did not keep good records of fuel oil use, just how long the leak went undetected is not known. An estimate of 20,000 - 30,000 gallons has been made which makes this one of the largest fuel oil spills on record in the State of Michigan. A meeting was called at my home between Watch, Medusa employees, and the D.N.R. to formulate a plan of action. Watch alerted the press and T.V. to bring pressure on Medusa for action on this spill.

Under the guidance of the D.N.R., Medusa immediately called in specialists to take control of the spill. The D.N.R. has the authority to monitor the clean-up and has directed Medusa to present a containment and clean-up plan to them. Medusa has presented a plan in which they propose burning the contaminated water in the kiln (some of this has been allowed already) and also burning the contaminated soil in their kiln as part of the process of making cement. Fuel oil and gravel are a normal part of the cement making process. The amount of soil to be removed and burned is about 5 acres in size. The D.N.R. has denied the clean-up plan so far for many reasons; one of which is the temperature of the kiln is not high enough at the point where the contaminated soil would enter the process.

It has been estimated that it would take 10 years and cost Medusa $1,000,000 to clean up the spilled fuel oil. At this time no fuel oil has reached Lake Michigan. Representatives from the D.N.R., Medusa, Watch and the community continue to monitor the shoreline around Medusa.

Tire Burning - For the past several years Medusa has applied to the D.N.R. for a permit to burn tires in their kiln as part of the cement making process. Disposing of old tires is a big problem in the United States and tire companies would pay Medusa to take the old tires. The tires would be trucked into Medusa and would be burned in the kiln as a fuel source with the steel from the tires actually going into the cement.

The D.N.R. will not act on the tire burning permits at the present time because of the oil spill problem. When the D.N.R. gives Medusa the O.K. for the clean-up plan, I'm sure Medusa will move toward obtaining a permit to burn tires.

The D.N.R. has assured me that Watch will be allowed to enter into the permitting process. The first permit will probably be for a period of 60-90 days on a trial basis to see what problems develop. Medusa has a cement plant in Georgia which has been burning tires for the past several years. I feel it's very important for Watch and the Charlevoix community to get involved with the D.N.R. during the permit process as well as on a continuing basis if the D.N.R. does issue a permit.

Omissions Improvements - Medusa started its annual winter shutdown on December 15, 1992 and will resume normal operations around the third week of February, 1993. During this shutdown, they are working on repair and upgrading of the plant. Much of the plant improvement being done during this shutdown is because of a Consent Order Agreement which is being worked out between the D.N.R. and Medusa.

NOXIOUS WEED OR BENEFICIAL PLANT... EVER WONDER JUST WHY SOME PLANTS EXIST AND ARE SO PROLIFIC? EVERY PLANT HAS BEEN CREATED FOR A PURPOSE. MANY PLANTS THAT ARE PROBLEMATIC FOR HUMANS, ARE OF GREAT BENEFIT TO WILDLIFE. A SINGLE PLANT CAN HAVE AS MANY AS 10 TO 30 SPECIES OF INSECTS, BIRDS, MAMMALS OR OTHER PLANTS DEPEND ON IT. THE PROLIFIC RAGWEED CAN PRODUCE AS MANY AS 100,000 SEEDS. PIGWEED, RAGWEED, SEDGES, GRASSES AND EVEN POISON IVY PROVIDE A VERY RICH FOOD SOURCE FOR OUR SONG BIRDS. I'M NOT RECOMMENDING THAT EVERYONE PLANT THESE "WEEDS" - BUT LET'S HOPE THAT SOME NATURAL MEADOWS WILL BE ALLOWED TO CONTINUE TO GROW, SO WE WILL BE ABLE TO CONTINUE TO ENJOY A SONG BIRDS WAKE-UP CALL. INCIDENTALLY, RAGWEED AND POISON IVY ARE LISTED AS MEDICINAL PLANTS. WHO KNOWS WHAT SECRETS STILL REMAIN TO BE DISCOVERED.

Two years ago Medusa failed its main stack opacity tests, falling below the 20 percent average opacity required by the State of Michigan. For the past two years the D.N.R. and Medusa have been negotiating this consent order. The D.N.R. is trying to get Medusa to improve on the dust particulate (opacity) on the main stacks with this consent order rather than litigating a large fine. A consent order draft is expected within three months. The draft will be sent to watch for our input.

The Consent Order will probably last for 3-5 years at which time Medusa will probably be required to be within the 95 percent opacity for a month average of the 3-5 years.

According to plant manager, John Dixon, some of the major changes to the plant to improve dust omissions are as follows:

1. Main Stack Precipitator and Gas Conditioning Tower.

A. Modification of the precipitator inlet is currently underway to equalize air flows in all areas of the precipitator chamber.

B. Computer controls are being installed to adjust the plate cleaning in the precipitator based on operating conditions. Included will be a data acquisition and trending system to tune the precipitator to the kiln/mill operating parameters.

C. New internals will be installed in 2 of the 5 precipitator fields (Another one was completed in 1992).

D. Computer based controls to provide optional gas temperature to the precipitators.

E. Air assisted water vaporization nozzles to allow more accurate temperature control over a wider temperature range.

2. Clinker Cooler/Gravel Bed

Filter System. A new clinker cooler air distribution system is being installed which will make the cooling operation more efficient and result in a one third reduction in gas discharge from the clinker cooler stack. Significant mechanical repairs will be made to the gravel bed filter.

3. Various Plant Dust Collectors. New fabric dust collector bags will be installed in various dust collectors which will maintain their efficiency. Three finish mill collectors alone will use 3,300 new bags.

The total cost for these plant improvements is approximately $1,540,000.

Medusa just hired Thomas Bacon as their new environmental engineer. He holds a degree in engineering and I'm impressed with his credentials and past work experience record. New plant manager, John Dixon, has been very receptive to Watch's phone calls, plant meetings and tours of the plant. He has acted in a positive way to Watch's suggestions for plant improvement.

The knowledge and expertise of the air quality division of the D.N.R. have improved over the years and their ability to deal with air pollution problems at Medusa has also improved. Unfortunately the D.N.R. has had to cut back on the frequency of their visits to the plant due to funding cutbacks by the state. Because of the D.N.R. funding problems, it is more important than ever that Watch remain actively involved with the Medusa management personnel and the operation of the plant.

I hope this letter has helped to inform area residents of Watch's ever vigilant monitoring of Medusa's operations. Both the management of the plant and the D.N.R. are well aware of our commitment to continue to "watch" over the air quality of our community.

Sincerely,

Jerry Puhl, President, Watch, Inc.

Ross 50th

Golden Anniversary

Barbara and Lyle Ross of Boyne City will be celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary Feb. 9. The Rosses were married in 1943 in Oklahoma where Mr. Ross was stationed during World War II. Two days after the wedding, Lyle Ross was sent overseas. Lyle Ross is a native of Charlevoix, and his wife is a native of Boyne City.

The Rosses will have a small, private celebration of their 50th anniversary at home.

Masons cut into Odd Fellows cribbage lead

Although the Odd Fellows still lead the annual Masons-Odd Fellows cribbage tournament by 361 points, that's 142 points fewer than what they led by prior to last Thursday night.

Kenneth Ketchman led a Masons' cribbage rally Thursday with 956 points. Bill Bergmann did what he could for the Odd Fellows, scoring 947 points.

The winter tournament will resume at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 4 at the Masonic Temple.

...Arts Council schedules classes

In dance, instructor Dianna Heinzelman offers a complete series of classes for children, meeting on Mondays and Wednesdays. Mrs. Heinzelman has 25 years of dance teaching experience and has been with the Arts Center since 1981.

Her classes include Movement and Dance, for students ages 3-6; Ballet, Pointe Ballet, and Jazz Dance, for students ages 6 through adult. Instructor Jody Adgate offers beginning and intermediate classes in Teen Jazz on Thursday evenings, in three classes. Both Mrs. Heinzelman and Mrs. Adgate offer a company rehearsal. Auditions are required for selected classes.

Dance instruction also features Beginning and Intermediate sections of Hatha Yoga, taught by Mary Reilly on Tuesday evenings, 5:30 p.m. - 8:30 p.m. Reilly is a Certified Instructor of Iyengar Yoga.

Private Music Lessons are offered in Piano throughout each week by instructor Charlotte Ross-Lee. Students may register for one half-hour or one hour per week. Piano class is also offered for adults with Mrs. Ross-Lee Tuesdays, 7-8:30 p.m.

Instructor Julie Pierpont teaches piano, voice, and guitar. Lessons in French Horn, Trumpet and Piano are taught by Janis Ley Monday through Thursday afternoons; in Voice by Fran Tollas on Tuesday and Friday, and in Cello with Nancy Henry on Mondays. Instructor Benita Benn offers flute lessons on Mondays.

Instructor Janis Ley resumes classes in Kindermusik, with a Beginnings class on Fridays, 10-10:45 a.m., and Kindermusik II on Tuesdays, 3:30 - 4:45 p.m. For more information about this class and its required materials, please call Ley at 347-7725.

Students may enroll in violin lessons with Maggie Poxson. Mrs. Poxson also offers three sections of violin class for children on Monday, 10:30 - 11:30 a.m., 3:30 - 4:30 p.m., and 4:30 - 5:30 p.m.

Instructor Beth Burke offers Elementary Drama for students in grades 3-6 on Thursday afternoons 5:30 - 6:30 p.m., and a class in Pre-Teen Modeling for grades 3-6 on Thursdays 4:30-5:30 p.m.

The Burns Clinic Medical Center, P.C., provides funding for scholarships for community school of the arts students through grade 12. Students may apply for up to 75 percent of the tuition costs. To apply for a scholarship, students must visit the Arts Center and complete an application by 5 p.m. Friday, Jan. 29.

Members of the Crooked Tree Arts Council receive a 10 percent discount on the cost of all classes and lessons. Discounts apply to a family membership only for students less than 18 years of age. For a printed class schedule and information about registration for all classes, please call or visit the Virginia McCune Arts Center at 347-4337, in Petoskey. BEACONS

by REV. PHILIP G. SCHARBAUM

OF BLESSINGS

Five years ago this February my mother died after a long illness. There are many things I remember about her, but the one that returns to my mind most frequently is her reminder that "Tomorrow will come." That line challenged, comforted, and encouraged me at various times and in various ways - and still does.

It challenges me when I get lazy and forget my obligations in life which include what I owe to God for the days He has given me. I must do my part today so that neither God nor I will be disappointed in tomorrow.

Clearly that was part of what motivated the first disciples as they heard Jesus' call to come and follow him. They recognized there was more to life than going fishing. Not that fishing is bad; it has its place. What they realized was that they could make a real difference in the world as they gave themselves over to the life and work of Jesus Christ. When the inventor Charles Kettering was asked what motivated him he replied, "I am interested in the future because that is where I am going to spend the rest of my life." So it is that "tomorrow will come," and we would be wise to prepare ourselves for it.

But secondly, we must remember that tomorrow is not something that we alone make or own. Tomorrow belongs to God; and in the end we must allow God to make of it what He will. That is what the disciple James intended for us to hear when he wrote in his New Testament letter that we ought not to say, "Tomorrow we shall go to such and such a place and do such and such a thing," but instead say, "If the Lord wills, we shall live and do this or that." One of the central beliefs of Christianity is that God is in charge of history, not us. After we have done all we can, we must then leave the rest to God.

Billy Graham summed it up in this way: "I don't know what tomorrow holds, but I know who holds tomorrow." So it is, as my mother often said, that "tomorrow will come," and we can take comfort and be encouraged in all our tomorrows knowing that God will be there with us.

Opera coming to town

As part of the 1993 Opera-in-Residency outreach program, Michigan Opera Theatre of Detroit, under the auspices of the Crooked Tree Arts Council and a grant from Petoskey Plastics, Inc., will visit seven school systems in the Charlevoix-Emmet county area the week of Feb. 8-13. Playing to almost 4,000 students from Central Lake, Elksworth, Boyne City, Charlevoix, Petoskey St. Francis, Petoskey Public Schools to Alanson Littlefield, the elementary grades will watch an original opera commissioned by MOT entitled "Cheering Up the Princess" which is a musical adventure following a minstrel who can't remember how to sing, a magician who forgets his magic tricks, a witch who is a terrible cook and can't make a brew, and a sad princess who is lonely and bored. The librarian shows everyone that the solution to their problems is learning to use the library. The librarian concludes that "Books are great friends!"

For Middle and High School students, there will be workshops on aspects of theatre performance and musical review entitled "Bravo Bernstein" which explores the stage music of America's favorite composer, Leonard Bernstein, and his contributions to classic Broadway productions with songs from "Wonderful Town", "On The Town", "Candide", and "West Side Story", as well as a sampling from his opera "Trouble in Tahiti".

The MOT Opera-in-Residency week ends on Saturday, Feb. 13 with a gala performance of Gioacchino Rossini's comic opera "Cinderella" (La Cenerentola). The opera will be fully staged, costumed, and sung in English, featuring a prominent Michigan Opera theatre cast who have taken Rossini's original setting in Italy, plomped it down in the 1950's, and giving the traditional fairy tale version some decided twists and turns. Sixteen vocalists from the area under direction of Gig Stewart take part in this intricate tale about a prince's quest to find his princess.

Tickets for the performance of "Cinderella" on Saturday, Feb. 13 in the Petoskey Middle School Auditorium may be ordered from the Petoskey Chamber of Commerce, 347-4150 or from the Crooked Tree Arts Council, 416 E. Mitchell, 347-4337. Admission is $10.

School system takes a hard look at curriculum

By L. Scott Swanson

It's a flagrant pink notebook. You can't miss it. Every teacher in the Charlevoix school system has one. If you're a student in the Charlevoix School System, or the parent of such a student and you spot one of these pink notebooks make an effort to get a look at it. If you've ever wondered just exactly what Charlevoix students are supposed to be learning at any particular grade level, the pink notebook

"Curriculum and instruction is the heart of the program."

Charlevoix School Superintendent Roberta Jackson explaining the importance of the school's current curriculum revision efforts.

will tell you.

The pink notebook is Charlevoix's curriculum handbook. Currently the Charlevoix school system is taking a long hard look at what students are being taught. Areas of study are being tackled one by one. Last year the school curriculum committee and faculty focused on math and science. This year's efforts are being directed at social studies. Next year the school system's language arts program will be scrutinized.

School superintendent Roberta Jackson is the person responsible for the bright pink notebooks. She said she ordered the notebooks in bright pink because she wants them to be the type of things that catch people's attention and get looked at rather than the type of document which inconspicuously gathers dust on a shelf.

Jackson said that even before she was hired as Charlevoix superintendent, the school board made it evident that curriculum development is something they see as vital to the Charlevoix school system. She said that during her interview in the summer of 1992, "I heard loud and clear that curriculum was a priority." And she notes that is as it should be because, "curriculum and instruction is the heart of the program."

A commitment to a sound curriculum is not only being spurred locally, but also by the state. According to new state laws, by 1997 high school students will have to perform at an acceptable level on the Michigan Education Assessment Program (MEAP) test or their high school diploma will not be state-endorsed.

"We know right now that we would have kids who wouldn't graduate with that requirement," Jackson notes.

Against that back drop, Charlevoix and most other schools throughout the state have been working on their curriculum. The first step in the process was for the school system to adopt a core curriculum. Adopting a core curriculum simply means the school devised a list of basic things which every student should be taught by certain grade levels. For example in the Charlevoix social studies core curriculum, one of many things a student is supposed to learn at the elementary school level is the ability to "demonstrate knowledge of the basic functions of state and local government." By high school a student should be able to "demonstrate knowledge of the modern development of a free market economic system in the United States and the interdependence of nations in an emerging global economy."

"It's kind of simple to explain, but difficult to do."

High School Principal Dave Smith commenting on the difficulty of curriculum alignment inspired changes

With the 1997 state deadline for degree endorsement approaching, Charlevoix's first areas of attack have been and will be the three main areas covered on the MEAP test: Math, Science, and Language Arts (a category which includes reading).

Curriculum alignment, as explained by Jackson, means that you align your curriculum so that instruction builds upon (rather than duplicates) what's previously been taught and learned. Two major considerations in curriculum alignment are that 1.) All students learn everything the core curriculum says they should be taught somewhere along the line and 2.) They're taught information the MEAP test will test them on prior to taking the

"The plan is that this will be a living document."

Charlevoix School Superintendent Roberta Jackson explaining plans to continuously revise and improve Charlevoix's curriculum handbook.

test rather than afterward. Again, given the State's 1997 graduation criteria, aligning with the MEAP test is now considered of major importance.

High school principal Dave Smith says of the curriculum alignment effort, "It's kind of simple to explain, but difficult to do."

For example, currently Charlevoix High School students take U.S. History in their junior year. But given that the MEAP test is taken in their sophomore year, and there are plenty of history questions on the test, obviously Charlevoix High School students are going to have to start taking history earlier in their academic career. A simple solution, have students take U.S. History as freshmen. The problem: Then what do you do about this year's sophomores. You can't have them miss History in the shift. Consequently some changes will be phased in and more than one grade level will be studying the same subject at the same time.

Even if students don't pass the MEAP test the first time around, they can retake the test. In fact, they can take it twice their sophomore year, twice their junior year and twice their senior year if they have to. Smith noted that working out a remediation program for students who have to retake the MEAP test is going to be a challenge. He noted that one thing which will help is the move the high school is making to a seven-class-period day next year.

At the elementary school, principal Vane Smith said that even before the push for curriculum alignment the school staff was working on improving their math and science instruction techniques. With financial help through grants from private foundations and expertise through a program with Michigan State University the school was already implementing a program which prompted students to learn math and science on a more conceptual basis using hands-on exercises.

Smith said he expects MEAP math and science test scores in coming years to show that the school's efforts in improving instruction and aligning curriculum are paying dividends.

"Hopefully, we'll make some improvement next year and then a big improvement the following year," Smith said. However, Smith also noted that historically, the state changes the testing objectives periodically and when that happens all schools drop for a year or so until they figure out the new objectives. He also noted that over the years the MEAP test has gotten more difficult in that it has gone from testing for minimum acceptable knowledge to looking for a desirable level of knowledge. In other words it's gone from looking for the least a student should know to what an average student should know.

Smith said that like the high school, the elementary school has made a lot of progress in aligning the math and science curriculum.

"Hopefully, we'll make some improvement next year and then a big improvement the following year."

Elementary School Principal Vane Smith commenting on when he anticipates seeing dividends in the form of higher student scores on state assessment tests due to school curriculum improvements.

He said that aligning the reading and language art curriculum is going to be a large and time-intensive project.

Jackson said the curriculum alignment process is something which never really will end.

"The plan is that this will be a living document," she said. The objectives listed in the books are only on the left-hand side of the page. The right-hand side is blank so that teachers can mark up the book and make revisions.

The school has placed copies of the wild pink notebooks in the school library and in the public library. Another goal of the program is to eventually have condensed, synopsis versions of the curriculum books which parents will be able to use to find out what their children are supposed to be learning and to make sure that is indeed what they are learning.

Drama team qualifies for regional competition

This year's production: "Of Thee I Sing"

Charlevoix Performing Arts students took third place as District Drama Competition in Wyoming Saturday with their presentation of the musical comedy "Of Thee I Sing," thus qualifying for Regionals with a number two rating.

"It was an excellent District," commented Coach Connie Ford, who noted that all six competing schools received high enough ratings to continue on.

"Of Thee I Sing," written in the 1930s by George and Ira Gershwin, is a broad political comedy involving candidates for president and vice president named Wintergreen and Throttlebottom, a jilted beauty contest winner, a bumbling Supreme Court, assorted political hacks, and an irate French ambassador.

Saying she was "Unusually proud of the Charlevoix students and the main speaking parts," Ford noted that in the last four days before Districts she had totally restructured the show requiring many of the students to quickly expand their parts.

"I'm also very pleased with the novice members of our team. They have learned their stage mechanics so well they made a beautiful adjustment from rehearsals in the cafeteria to acting on a real stage."

"The overall performance of all our students is the reason why we received strong positive comments from the judges about our dedication to ensemble acting and received a special Excellent Award for Coordination, Set, Costume, and Staging."

"We will spend the next two weeks polishing the show," Ford explained.

Regionals will take place Feb. 13, at a site yet to be announced. The public performance of "Of Thee I Sing," will be in Charlevoix Saturday Feb. 27, and Sunday, Feb. 28.

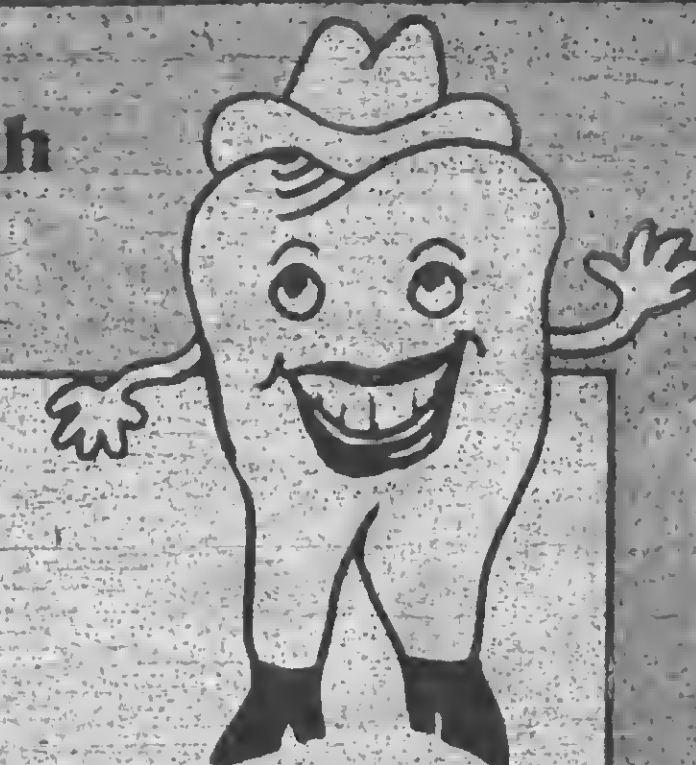

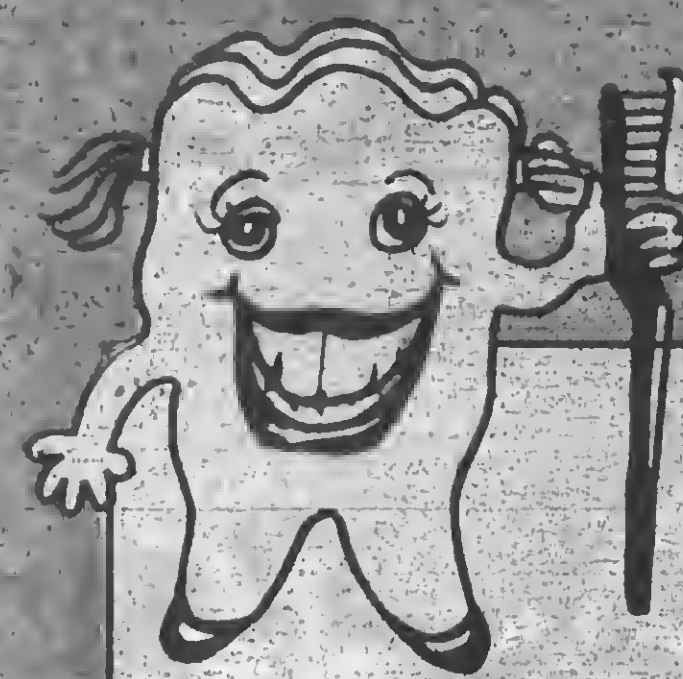

Top: Angela Buday is playing one of the leading female roles in the Charlevoix High School Performing Arts team's production of the comedy, "Of Thee I Sing."

Middle: This year's high school production has a larger cast than usual including the chorus members shown above.

Area Dentists Observe National Children's Dental Health Month February 1-28

Local dentists observing National Children's Dental Health Month will be involved in many educational and preventative dental activities during February. Included among these activities is the "Dentist With A Heart" program, sponsored by Vacationland Dental Society, an affiliate of the American Dental Association. This program provides free dental care for children who are not covered by dental insurance. The schedule reflected below highlights local activities as well as dentists participating in the "Dentist With A Heart" Program.

February 24th: Dr. Jeffrey Porter, Dr. Strawbridge & Dr. Merrill will provide dental screening for Charlevoix Elementary School children.

Dr. Jeffrey Porter will provide dental screening for elementary school children on Beaver Island.

Dr. Robert Polleys will provide dental screening for the 5th graders and the afternoon kindergarten.

Feb. 19th - Dr. James Smith will provide dental screening for elementary school children at Ebenezer Christian and Ellsworth Community Schools.

Dentist With a Heart Programs

Dr. Jeffrey Porter will provide free dental service at the Beaver Island Clinic.

February 22, Dr. Glenn Paramo will provide 1/2 day free exam & cleaning for children and young adults.

March 10, 8 a.m. - 11 a.m.: Dr. John Merrill will provide 1/2 day of free dental service to children and young adults with no dental coverage on a first come-first served basis.

February 26, 8:00 a.m. - Noon: Dr. Strawbridge will provide 1/2 day free dentistry including cleanings, exams, extractions, X-rays, fillings on a first come-first served basis (excludes lab work).

To Ensure Your Child's Dental Health, You Should

- ☒ Brush your toddler's teeth.
- ☒ Supervise your child's brushing until he or she is 8 years old.
- ☒ Make sure your child uses a fluoride toothpaste.
- ☒ Make sure your child visits the dentist every six months.
- ☒ Make sure your child uses a fluoride rinse if recommended by your dentist.
- ☒ Check your child's teeth for white, yellow, or brown spots, which are a sign of decay.
- ☒ Teach your child to brush after snacking.
- ☒ Encourage your child to avoid sweets and sticky foods.
- ☒ Make sure your child flosses as soon as the teeth fit closely together.

County board of commissioners take time before acting on budget for transit system

By Laurie Lounsbury

The Charlevoix County Transit System will be seeking approval of their $548,219 budget at the Feb. 10 county commissioner meeting. The county transit system receives $143,160 from local property taxes, $46,000 in federal money, and $179,851 from the state. Bus fares generate another $70,000 in revenue.

The budget was presented to commissioners at their last regular meeting by Transit Manager Art Sawarski and assistant manager Oral Sutliff. Commissioner Phil Johnson pushed for immediate approval of the budget, but commissioner Jim Behling insisted that commissioners stick to their policy of allowing two weeks' time for commissioners to review material

"It's (paid for by) my gas tax money. It's not free."

County commissioner Don Smith discussing money the county receives from the State for the transit system.

Commissioner chairman Don Smith opened the meeting up for discussion while commissioners reviewed the transit budget. Smith questioned the practicality of the county's $140,000 trolley car, which is used only for private parties on a reservation basis. The trolley was loaned to the county by the state. The trolley's $3,000 revenue last year was offset by $3,000 in operating costs.

Sawarski defended the trolley, saying it was free from the State, to which Smith replied, "It's (paid for by) my gas tax money. It's not free." Smith went on to say that during a time when people are concerned with wasteful government spending, the $140,000 for the trolley could have been better spent.

Sutliff pointed out that if the county hadn't accepted the trolley from the State, the county wouldn't have received the cash equivalent. It was the trolley or nothing.

Smith insisted that he would have preferred to send a message to the state by refusing the trolley. "I'd rather see the state readjust its priorities and spend that money on roads," he said.

Recently-elected commissioner Richard Gillespie of Beaver Island said half jokingly that a trolley would be very much appreciated on Beaver Island. As discussion turned to the acquisition of two new buses to replace two older buses in the county's fleet, Gillespie spoke up again to ask for one of the older buses for Beaver Island. He said that a bus on Beaver Island would be a real asset. "I think it might surprise us all how well it (a bus) would go," he said. Gillespie pointed out that visitors arriving on the island by ferry boat or by plane often have to wait hours before getting a ride to town. Commissioners agreed that a bus or trolley for Beaver Island should be looked into.

A lively wine tasting benefit took place in the Exhibition Gallery at the Virginia McCune Community Arts Center Jan. 28.

Wes Westhoven of the Row Inn, an acknowledged wine expert, delighted the group with his presentation of both American and foreign wines.

Maggi Poxson, violin instructor, entertained the guests as she strolled between the tables playing requests.

Surrounded by lithographs of contemporary artists, Picasso, Chagall, Miro, Calder and Brogue, the gallery tables were decorated with a French cafe theme of red and white checkered table clothes.

In spite of a blowing snowfall, the benefit was well attended and proclaimed to be a success that bears repeating.

Rayders lose to Boyne City in league showdown 70-50

Loss drops Charlevoix's season record to 9-2

By L. Scott Swanson

The Charlevoix Rayder basketball team found themselves shot down in a showdown between themselves and Boyne City Friday evening. The Rayder offense was somewhat stagnant and the Rayder defense failed to rattle the Ramblers who took sole possession of the league lead with a 70-50 win. The game was played before a standing room only crowd in the Boyne City High School gym.

Boyne City jumped out to a 7-2 lead before the Rayders righted themselves and tied the game 10-10 with 1:40 left in the first quarter. Rayder forward Jason Psihopaidas found himself at the center of turnovers at both ends of the court. Offensively, he had a couple of his passes picked off, but he promptly redeemed himself at the defensive end stealing the ball twice and converting the steals to points.

After concluding the first quarter down 16-14, Charlevoix scored four unanswered points to take an 18-16 lead with 6:49 left in the half. But the lead was short-lived. At the 6:41 mark Boyne City made a basket and in the process drew the third foul on Rayder center Brad DeGrow. With DeGrow on the bench, the Ramblers scored nine unanswered points and took a 10-point lead. Charlevoix closed the gap to three, 32-29, by half-time with two unanswered baskets by Vince Voisin and a three-point basket at the buzzer by Don Jess.

Boyne City started the third quarter well, bumping their lead back up to nine, 40-31, and forcing Rayder coach Jim Kanine to take a time-out with 5:27 left to play in the quarter. Charlevoix outscored the Ramblers 8-4 in the next two minutes following the time-out to trim the Boyne City lead to 42-39. But that was pretty much Charlevoix's last hurrah in the game. Coming out of their own time-out, Boyne City outscored Charlevoix 11-1 in the final 3:21 of the quarter and entered the final quarter up 53-40.

Charlevoix scored the first four points of the fourth quarter, but it ended up meaning very little, given that Boyne City scored the next nine in just more than two minutes. Kanine took another time-out at the 5:03 mark, but with Boyne City up by 18 and the Rayders' starting center and point guard both in foul trouble, the party was over.

Individually for Charlevoix, Voisin was the only player to score in double figures. He had 12. Boyne City center Steve Seelye hurt Charlevoix with several big baskets throughout the game and finished the night with 20 points.

The loss was only Charlevoix's second of the year, both to Boyne City. They are likely to get one more shot at Boyne City at the District Tournament in East Jordan. Charlevoix's record is now 9-2 overall and 6-2 in league play.

Charlevoix won the junior varsity game 69-55. Chuck Pop led the Rayders with 16 points while Mike Bush had 11 and Bryan Jarema, 10.

Charlevoix's next game will be Friday, Feb. 5 at Traverse City St. Francis.

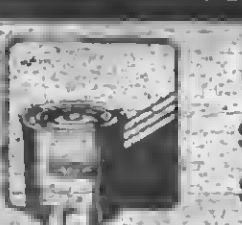

Charlevoix forward Josh Watros goes up for a shot in the middle of a crowd in the fourth quarter of Friday's game.

Volleyball team on winning streak, Boyne City and Central Lake beaten by Rayders

Charlevoix completed a double win week with a 3-1 victory over Boyne City Wednesday, Jan. 27. Earlier in the week the Rayders beat Harbor Springs 3-2.

The Rayders started well against Boyne City winning the first two games 15-12 and 15-10. Charlevoix sputtered in the third game, losing 15-7, and then righted themselves in game four to close the match with a 15-11 win.

Top setters for the Rayders were Jill Dreyer, Melissa Cox and Christy Siwarga. Leading the team in serving were Siwarga, Liz Grunch and Angelina Doan. Best defenders were Grunch and Doan while Doan and Laura Loder led the offense.

Charlevoix also won the junior varsity match: 15-2, 12-15, and 17-15. Top setters for the Rayders were Jenny Swenor and Christy Kaczynski. Top servers were Angelina Doan, Scharbaum and Grunch, and best on offense were Cox, Grunch and Doan.

The Rayder junior varsity team won their match in three games: 15-4, 13-15, 15-10. Setting honors went to Tabatha Potter and Jenny Swenor. Top servers were Angelina Schmidt and Swenor. Leading the defense were Sarah Ritt and Swenor while Chrissie Kaczynski and Swenor led the offense.

Top setters for Charlevoix were Skiers, beginning to peak

Charlevoix's boys' and girls' ski teams dominated competition at Boyne Mountain Jan. 27 as both teams finished first by large margins.

On the boys' side Charlevoix totaled 28 points which was 19 better than second place Boyne City at 47. Elk Rapids placed third with 120 points and Mancelona fourth with 129 points.

Individually, Charlevoix's J.H. Heck won both the slalom (S) and giant slalom (GS) events finishing more than two seconds ahead of the second place finisher, another Rayder, Scott Boyer. Rounding out the Rayder boys' contingent were: Charles Meier 4S, 12GS; Ryan Smith 6S, 9GS; Robbie Bunting 7S, 10GS; Jake Porath DQS, 3GS.

In the B-team race Charlevoix's Mike Bennett won the GS while Luthur Kurtz placed third in the slalom. Other Rayders skiing in the race were Jesse Lord, Kurt DeGow and Jeff Boss.

On the girls' side Charlevoix placed first with 26 points while Boyne City took second with 56 points and Elk Rapids came in third with 108 points. Mancelona did not have enough skiers to field a full team.

Amy Spang swept first in both the slalom and giant slalom. Other Rayder skiers and their finishes were: Kim Keller 3S, 2GS; Sheila Siegwant 4S, 4GS; Jodi Allison 6S, 8GS; Jessica Kline 9S, 5GS; Heidi Miller 10S, 7GS.

Charlevoix also swept the B-team race. Carolyn Campbell placed first in both the slalom and giant slalom. Sara Schenck, Melissa Mosher and Traci Allison followed in second third and fourth. Lilly Parr placed sixth in both events.

Charlevoix skiers also fared well at the Manistee Invitational at Crystal Mountain Monday, Feb. 1. The Rayder girls placed first while the boys took third. Carolyn Campbell and J.H. Heck placed first in both the slalom and giant slalom.

There were 10 teams at the meet and none of the other nine teams were anywhere close to the Charlevoix girls. The Rayders finished with 37 points while second place Manistee had 110 and third place Traverse City St. Francis had 125.

In addition to Campbell's two first place finishes, other Rayder skiers and their places of finish were: Kim Keller 3S, 3GS; Amy Spang DQS, 5GS; Heidi Miller 6GS; Sheila Siegwant 31S, 7GS; Jessica Kline 10S, DQS; Jodi Allison 8S.

On the boys' side Manistee's A team won the meet with 50 points. They were followed by Boyne City with 78 points and Charlevoix with 82.

In addition to Heck's first place finishes other Rayders skiing and their places were: Scott Boyer 6S, 4GS; Jake Porath DQS, 10GS; Ryan Smith 15S, 13GS; Robbie Bunting DQS, 18GS; and Charles Meier 32S, 24GS.

Rayder coach Eric Lundteigen said the two double first set the stage, but he was pleased with the way the entire team skied.

"We're certainly moving in the right direction," he noted.

Having a winter festival at Mt. McSaubia isn't a new idea. The winter festival has been around since the 1920s. Only the name and the events have changed. Pictured here in 1934 is Fred Hardy going for a distance record in the ski jumping event. Yesterday's distance jumping has been replaced with today's snowboard races. This year's Sno Challenge festival will be Feb. 11 and 13.

High school counselors would like to spend more time counseling

By Laurie Lounsbury

High school counselors Charlie Bentley and Toni Felter would like to have more time to do their jobs. Bentley and Felter work as guidance counselors at the high school, but they also teach two classes on a daily basis.

Bentley and Felter came before the board of education at the school board's Monday evening meeting to request a change in their schedules. Bentley explained that due to increasing job duties as a result of Public Act 25, the two counselors have little time to tend to the students' personal counseling needs. "We're nearly overwhelmed," Bentley said.

Public Act 25 work that has fallen into the laps of the counselors includes:

- *Administering the Michigan Education Assessment Program test in the fall and again in the spring.

- *Verifying results of MEAP tests for the students' state endorsed high school diplomas.

- *Prescribing remedial action necessary for students that don't pass the MEAP test.

- *Developing portfolios for high school students.

- *Developing career education programs.

Board member Scott Beatty questioned the use of the counselors' time, and how much of it was spent on tasks that were clerical by nature and could be performed by someone else. Felter said she spends about three hours a day on personal counseling, and Bentley said he spends about an hour and a half a day on personal counseling. Both agreed that compiling test results for the state endorsed diploma was clerical work and could be done by someone else.

Board member MaryLee Campbell asked how much time is spent handling all aspects of the MEAP testing, if a professional could be hired to exclusively handle it.

"It would be less than a half time position," Bentley said.

Beatty asked Bentley for his thoughts on solutions to the problem. "My thought is blatantly clear," Bentley said. "Take one or both of us out of the classroom."

Board member Larry Levingood expressed a few ideas for possible solutions to the problem. He suggested dropping some or all of the counselors' teaching, adding a part time counselor, or dropping some of the duties currently handled by the counselors. Bentley was not amenable to the latter two suggestions. "I have ownership in this program. I built it," he said of the counselor program.

Bentley and Felter used to work as full time counselors, but cutbacks four years ago required that they teach a couple of classes as well. "For the last four years we've been splitting our duties," Bentley said.

Because the board meeting was a work session, no action was taken regarding the counselors' request.

Brown retires after 46 years in banking

By L. Scott Swanson

On August 26, 1947 LoAnne Brown began a new job filling checks in the book-keeping department at Charlevoix County State Bank. At that time the bank's book-keeping department had only one posting machine and the checks weren't numbered; they were just filed according to people's names.

At the time, Brown's thoughts about her new job were, "I'll just work here for a while and then I'll go some place else... but it never worked out that way."

Brown ended up staying with Charlevoix County State Bank nearly 46 years. Her last day was Jan. 29, 1993 when she retired. (However, even though she has officially retired, CB Financial Corporation, the bank's new owner, has hired her as a consultant for the next year.)

During her 46 years in banking, Brown held a variety of positions with the bank, including Chief Executive Officer on an interim basis from July of 1991 through March of 1992, and ultimately concluded her career as Senior Vice President and Cashier. She is wife-ly known as one of the most prominent women in banking in the state of Michigan, and perhaps in the nation. She is a past president of the National Association of Bank Women and in 1989 was named by Northwestern Financial Review (a banking magazine) as one of 11 distinguished women in banking. Her efforts in working with banking schools associations are too numerous to list, but the highlights include: graduation from the Northern Michigan School of Banking (NMSB) in Marquette; graduation from the Graduate School of Banking and the Post-Graduate School of Banking in Madison, Wisconsin; a 5-term member of the NMSB Board of Trustees and in 1992 she was elected to the Board of Directors of NMSB.

Not bad, for someone who prior to coming to the bank was working as a waitress at the Beach Hotel and who took a job with the bank simply intending to raise some money so she could go off to college and study journalism.

300: DeYoung bowls a perfect game

First 300 game in 33 years at local bowling alley

By L. Scott Swanson

The first several strikes are easy. It's those last few - when everybody else in the bowling alley stops what they're doing and watches you - that are loaded with pressure.

Charlevoix bowler, Randy DeYoung, withstood the pressure last Thursday night and bowled a perfect 300 game. It was the first 300 game in the 33 year history of Charlevoix's Paul Bunyan Lanes.

Asked if he was nervous in the final frames, DeYoung replied, "Oh yeah, pretty shaky. In the tenth frame everybody else stopped bowling. You just try to block everything out and throw the ball."

DeYoung was bowling for the Gillespie Oil & Transit team in the Thursday night Sportsmen's League. His partners are Jay Mosoryak and Dan Gillespie. In fact Gillespie matched DeYoung strike for strike - right up through the first frame.

DeYoung has been bowling for more than 30 years. Off of the top of his head, he couldn't remember the exact number of years, but to offer some idea of how old he was when he started bowling, he said, "I remember hanging on to the ball with two hands and rolling it between my legs."

Although Thursday evenings perfect game was the first rolled in league play at Paul Bunyan Lanes, it was not the first for DeYoung. In the 1970s he rolled a 300 in a Professional Bowlers Association regional tournament in Muncie, Indiana. Back in the '70s DeYoung was more than a recreational bowler. He was bowling at least 50 to 60 games each week. He estimates that during the course of his life he has bowled several thousand I've spent here," she says. "The bank's been very good to me. I've met a lot of fantastic people."

Brown's contributions to banking as a business are at least matched, and perhaps more than matched, by her contributions to the community. She is a past secretary and president of the Charlevoix Community Chest, a three-term member of the Board of Directors of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce (an organization which named her Charlevoix's Citizen of the Year in 1991), and a past secretary of Christ Episcopal Church.

Although Brown was not born in Charlevoix, clearly this is the place she knows as home. She was born in Illinois. Her father was in the Coast Guard and consequently the family moved frequently during Brown's childhood. In one seven-year period, Brown changed schools 13 times. The family moved to Charlevoix in 1941 - and stayed.

In recent years, Brown has taken a special interest in two community projects - the Charlevoix County Industrial Fair and the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry. Mention either of those two topics while talking with Brown and the intensity level of the conversation immediately picks up. Brown is the coordinator and driving force behind the Charlevoix County Industrial Fair, an event which has taken place with bank sponsorship every other year since 1984. The event offers Charlevoix area industries an opportunity to showcase their products.

In discussing the industrial fair, Brown emphasizes the need for the area to have industries which provide people with year-around employment. She contends that a community can be a beautiful resort community and also have a strong industrial job base.

"I really think that industry has been downplayed for a number of years and that people didn't realize what was being done here," Brown says. The Charlevoix Industrial Fair has been Brown's way of showing people what Charlevoix area industry is capable of doing. Not only does she coordinate the fair, she does what she can to get influential people to attend it. For example, among the people who attended the 1992 industrial fair were Michigan Lt. Governor Connie Binsfeld and U.S. Senator Carl Levin. Their presence was no fluke. Brown wrote letters, made phone calls, twisted arms and bent ears to make sure those people would be there.

In recent years during the Christmas season Brown has spearheaded an effort which has led to substantial contributions of food and money to the Community Food Pantry by the bank and its employees and customers.

Asked why she did that, Brown said that although her family always had food on the table, "when I was growing up, I saw enough people who didn't have enough to eat. And if these Food Pantry people can help, then you bet, I'll work for it as hard as I can."

When Brown talks about her feelings for the bank staff and her children and grandchildren, she often finds herself fighting back tears. Speaking of the time she served as the bank's CEO, she said, "I could never have gone through that nine-month period without this wonderful group of people who work here." She adds, "These are very, very special people to me."

Pictures of Brown's children and grandchildren are prominently displayed in her office. When asked, she proudly explains what any of her three daughters are now doing or describes one of the grandchildren's latest adventures. Although she feels retirement may be difficult in some ways, the one great mitigating factor is having more time with her children and grandchildren. Her advice to younger people who are beginning their careers is, "...if you have small children, don't neglect them. They'll keep you warm a lot longer than anything else." Brown considers her career to have been very rewarding, but if there were one thing she might change it would be to "spend more time with my children when they were growing up. Somehow I'd do it."

In regard to the purchase of Charlevoix County State Bank and First State Bank by CB Financial Corporation and the pending merger of the banks, Brown says she thinks that is going to be all right. She anticipates people having some trouble getting used to it at first, but says that the new people with CB Financial bring excellent expertise and will be able to bring in added services to Charlevoix banking customers. Brown feels that federal regulatory agencies are pushing for the merger of smaller banks into larger banks. She says she's glad that CB Financial purchased Charlevoix County State Bank because the holding company has only a limited number of banks and not so many that any one bank will be lost in the shuffle. She said that CB Financial has been very gracious to her in that they have made her a consultant so she can ease out of a banking career which has meant a great deal to her.

Of her decision to retire, she initially wondered if she had done the right thing, but now is growing comfortable with it. "I think I have served this community to the best of my ability. I feel comfortable with it (retirement) because I'm going to be able to spend more time with my family, work in my yard and walk."

EDITH

by EDITH GILBERT

The recent bombshell announcement by Sears that all catalog stores are being eliminated has come as quite a shock to Joe Trojanek, owner of Charlevoix's independently owned Sears catalog store, and to his loyal customers.

So far we are doing business as usual and I am overwhelmed by the concern from customers. It's been incredible. I am really touched by this.

The town of Charlevoix and the Sears Company have had a unique relationship over the years. It all began with Albert Loeb, Chicago lawyer, who served as executive vice president of Sears Roebuck from 1917-1920. He and his wife Anna purchased 1300 acres on Lake Charlevoix and created a model farm during World War I that had 90 people on its payroll. Built out of native stone, the French Provincial buildings to this day dominate M-66, south of Charlevoix. Descendants of the Loeb family still live in the main house and surrounding cottages.

The influence of the Loeb's in our area undoubtedly helped to boost not only Sears stock, but also local sales of Sears catalog homes prior to 1940.

Joan Nelson lives in a Sears house on 1210 State Street. We can easily trace the Loeb connection here because Joan's mother, Trina, worked as a private cook on the Loeb estate for many years. The redwood house, built in 1929 by Fred Coon, was purchased by Trina and Oscar Nelson for $4000, including the front porch and rose arbor. Former sheriff, Floyd Ikens, built the stone fireplace for them.

Helen and Don Meggison purchased their "Sears Modern Home" on 503 Petoskey Ave. in 1953 for $7,500. They showed my their copy of "Houses by Mail" — a guide to houses from Sears, Roebuck and Company, written by Katherine Cole Stevenson and H. Ward Jand — and published by the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

vation in Washington D.C.

Turning the pages of this book is like cruising around Charlevoix!

Sears offered 450 ready-to-assemble designs ranging from Colonial, English, Spanish, Norman and other architectural styles — from modest two-room cottages to Victorian style mansions. People could even bring in their own plans and have Sears build the house and furnish the necessary materials. These "modern homes" came with such desirable conveniences as indoor plumbing and electricity.

Five appealing reasons to order a Sears house were:

1) Their style was not innovative, but appealed to the popular tastes of the day.

2) Sears produced quality homes, for the customer must be satisfied for a lifetime.

3) Houses could be constructed with speed and ease. Sears provided pre-cut lumber at a time when power tools were almost unknown, as well as a complete set of specifications and instructions.

4) Sears offered its customers an attractive financing plan.

5) Sears offices were able to offer customers personalized services by modifying floor plans and materials of basic models at the time the orders were placed.

Sears offered three categories of houses; the Honor Built were the finest quality, the Standard Built houses were recommended for warmer climates and the Simplex Sectional cottages for summer use.

All shipping was done by rail, consequently the largest concentration of Sears houses are in the Northeast and Midwest. Shipping dates were staggered to allow materials to arrive about the time they were needed. Sears engaged local building contractors and supervised all construction from start to finish. In some cases, however, customers hired their own contractors.

There are numerous other homes in town that have been mentioned as Sears houses — some on State St., some on Dixon Ave., and some on Michigan Ave. Would that our historical society would begin to document a complete file on all the Sears houses that are scattered throughout Charlevoix! Many have been difficult to recognize in the "Houses by Mail" book, because they have been added on to and remodeled. Still, a soul with the heart of a detective, who has perseverance and determination, might have a lot of fun researching the house they are now living in. Who knows? With luck, it could be a Sears house!

Girl Scout troop has been active

Girl Scout Troop 270 of Charlevoix has been very active in recent months. The girls are currently working toward their Honor Troop badge.

Recent activities include: Two field trips to Traverse City, on to TV-7 & 4 and another to participate in a program titled "Jump into Juniors Day."

The troop is sponsored by Penfold Adult Foster Care. During the holidays the troop decorated the home and also went Christmas caroling there. Troop members are doing things with elderly people which is part of earning a Golden Friends badge.

Charlevoix Girl Scout troops got together Jan. 16 for a Winter Fun-day. Fun-day activities included: snow sculpting, a winter hike and sliding. Troop 251 hosted a trivia game. Doug David, from the U.S. Coast Guard presented a program about frost bite, hypothermia and survival techniques for people who fall through the ice.

During Girl Scout week in March, local scouts will be assembling a display which will explain some of the activities Girl Scouts participate in.

Other badges members of Troop 270 are currently working on include: Girl Scouting in the USA, Careers, and Junior Aid. Girls in Troop 270 are: Lisa Kerner, Winter Kyvik and Anora Ruehle.

Merryman - Meggison

Daniel Meggison & Rebecca Merryman

Rebecca Sue Merryman of Bowdoinham, Maine, and Daniel Buell Meggison of Charlevoix announce their engagement to one another. The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Merryman of Brunswick, Maine, and the groom-elect is the son of Mrs. Kathleen M. Meggison and Mr. Jerry B. Meggison, both of Charlevoix.

The wedding will take place May 15 in Brunswick, Maine.

The bride-to-be graduated from Brunswick High School in 1990. She is a certified nurse's aid and is employed at Martin's Point Health Care Center in Topsham, Maine. Her fiancé graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1987. He serves as a Seabee in the United States Navy, and is stationed at Brunswick Naval Air Station.

Senior Citizens to host Feb. 14 dinner

The Charlevoix Senior Citizens Center will host a Valentine's Day chicken dinner from noon to 2 p.m., Sunday, Feb. 14. The cost of the dinner is $3.50 for adults, $1.50 for children ages five to 12 and no charge for children less than five years old.

Community Foundation receives $150,000 grant

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation has announced the award of a $150,000 challenge grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek. The grant will be used to stimulate local charitable gifts and begin a permanent endowment that can be used to fund programs for young people in Charlevoix county.

To meet the requirements of the challenge grant, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation must match each Kellogg dollar, two-to-one, with locally raised funds. According to Scott Beatty, president of the local foundation, efforts are already underway to reach the $300,000 goal this spring. If successful, the community foundation will have an opportunity to receive additional matching grants from Kellogg — up to $1 million over the next five years.

"This grant can pay social dividends for many years to come," Beatty explains. "If our community responds, we will have a significant pool of income from which to fund programs for youth well into the future." Beatty stresses that the Kellogg grant, along with other donations to the Community Foundation, form a permanent trust, and that only interest income will be used to fund projects.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation has already met one important criteria for Kellogg funding: In May, 1992, the foundation appointed a youth advisory group to oversee decisions and activities related to young people. The group is made up of three representatives from each of the high schools in Charlevoix County: Beaver Island, Boyne City-Boyer Falls, Charlevoix, East Jordan, and Portier Creek Alternative School. Cliff Russell, a senior at East Jordan High School who chairs the youth committee, says the group is excited about being involved with the foundation. "It's an opportunity for kids from throughout the county to work together. We're already Andrew Essenburg Jr.

Andrew Essenburg Jr., 63, of Charlevoix, died Feb. 4, 1993, at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

His funeral was Monday, Feb. 8, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. James K. Gardiner of St. Francis Church in Traverse City officiated. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

He was born March 29, 1929, in Boyne City, the son of Andrew Essenburg Sr. and Minnie (Wynma). He attended school in Ellsworth and Charlevoix, graduating from Charlevoix High School in 1947.

Mr. Essenburg served during the Korean conflict in Korea with the U.S. Army First Cavalry Division from 1948-52.

He married Barbara Engstrom in 1967 in Petoskey and she survives.

Mr. Essenburg owned and operated Andy's Party Store in Charlevoix for 37 years, selling it in 1989.

He was a member of the American Legion Leslie T. Shapton Post 226 and the Charlevoix VFW Post 1153, both in Charlevoix. He served as mayor of Charlevoix from 1971-72.

Survivors include his wife, Barbara, of Charlevoix; two sons, Daniel Engstrom of Charlevoix and Edward Engstrom of St. Clair Shores; two daughters, Mrs. Tim (Maurine "Murphy") Watts of Harbor Springs, and Mrs. Bob (Laurie) Gaudio of Fort Lauderdale; four grandchildren, Michale and Genia Gaudio, David Engstrom and Ryan Watts; and three sisters, Ruth Barkey of Manteca, Calif.; Mrs. Lyle (Marie) Ance of Charlevoix, and Mrs. Ike (Jean) Rood of Ellsworth. He was preceded in death by a son, David Engstrom, and two brothers, Don and Bruce.

The family suggests memorial contribution be made to the Charlevoix Alano Club or to the Charlevoix County Hospice. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Audrey J. Page

Audrey Joan Page, 58, of Grand Rapids, died Jan. 31, 1993, at Butterworth Hospital in Grand Rapids.

She was born March 27, 1934, in Chicago, Ill., the daughter of Manley Alman and Helen (Soff) Page. She graduated from Grand Valley State University with a bachelor's degree in film and video.

She had worked at the Grand Rapids Library for 11 years and was a lover of books and films.

Survivors include four sons, Heath Patrie of Grand Rapids; Clay Patrie of East Lansing; Mark Patrie of Boyne Falls; and Brian Patrie of Grand Rapids; one grandson, Nicholas Patrie of Boyne Falls; one sister, Patricia Bauer of Deerfield, Ill.; and one niece and three nephews, Nancy Bauer, John Bauer, Matthew Bauer, and David Bauer.

BEACONS

by Rev. Lowell Anderson

War rages in South America. Acts of terrorism continue in the Middle East. Gang wars and bloodshed are almost a daily occurrence in some of the metro areas of our United States. Worldwide, the rich and powerful oppress the poor and weak. Many are made to ask, "Does God see?" "Does God know?" "Does God care?" "Why doesn't God do something about all the injustice in the world?"

The answer is - HE IS! The Bible tells us that God's kindness, tolerance, and patience leads toward repentance. God is a God of justice and judgment and sooner or later the judgment of God will come against all unrighteousness and injustice. But at the same time that God is just, He is also kind, patient, and tolerant. God does not neglect justice. He delays it in order to give mankind an opportunity for repentance and forgiveness that leads to salvation not damnation.

As humans, our problem is perspective. We simply do not see as God sees. We do not know as God knows. The Apostle Paul gives us the perspective we need: Romans 2: 1-4 You therefore, have no excuse, you who pass judgment on someone else, for at whatever point you judge the other, you are condemning yourself, because you who pass judgment do the same things. Now we know that God's judgment against those who do such things is based on truth. So when you, a mere man, pass judgment on them and yet do the same things, do you think you will escape God's judgment? Or do you show contempt for the riches of his kindness, tolerance and patience, not realizing that God's kindness leads you toward repentance? (NIV)

The apostle Peter addresses the issue too, and makes reference to the writings of the Apostle Paul: 1 Peter 3: 8-15 But do not forget this one thing, dear friends: With the Lord a day is like a thousand years, and a thousand years are like a day. The Lord is not slow in keeping his promise, as some understand slowness; He is patient with you, not wanting anyone to perish, but everyone to come to repentance. But the day of the Lord will come like a thief. The heavens will disappear with a roar; the elements will be destroyed by fire, and the earth and everything in it will be laid bare. Since everything will be destroyed in this way, what kind of people ought you to be? You ought to live holy and godly lives as you look forward to the day of God and speed its coming. That day will bring about the destruction of the heavens by fire, and the elements will melt in the heat. But in keeping with His promise we are looking forward to a new heaven and a new earth, the home of righteousness. So then, dear friends, since you are looking forward to this, make every effort to be found spotless, blameless and at peace with Him. Bear in mind that our Lord's patience means salvation, just as our dear brother Paul also wrote you with the wisdom that God gave him.

The kindness, patience, and tolerance of God that does not bring swift judgment on the injustice we see all around the world is extended to you and me as well. His purpose is to lead us to repentance. Come to Him; Repent. Receive His forgiveness.

(Rev. Lowell Anderson is pastor of the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church. Beacons of Blessings is provided to the Courier by Anderson and other members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.)

LexaLite celebrates thirtieth anniversary

(Editor's note: The following history of LexaLite was written by Josh Barnes. Barnes is one of the company's founders and currently serves as LexaLite's Chief Executive Officer.)

Back in the late '50s, Detroit Edison asked for help in solving a very expensive problem with breakage of their street lighting "glassware". Lundsten Associates represented St. Clair Plastics, and both companies had been experimenting with a new polymer, polycarbonate, that had awesome resistance to impact. The molding compound was soon to become production in the United States as GE's Lexan and in Europe as Bayer's Makrolon. Makrolon molding trials with a borrowed salad bowl mold convinced us that the material could be the answer to Detroit Edison's problem. Later, we molded the first polycarbonate lighting globe using GE's Lexan material — the trade name LexaLite was a natural.

Detroit Edison put the LexaLite Model 100 globes in service in '61 and '62. All was quiet for two years as their performance was evaluated. Then Bill Zander, our Detroit Edison lighting engineer, published a paper "answered: a $100,000 question!". Our success was assured as the lighting industry descended upon us. Within weeks we had contracts or orders with six lighting equipment manufacturers: Mike Siska, of Joslyn Manufacing and Supply, placed the very first order. GE, Pemco, Westinghouse, Sylvania and Line Material Industries quickly followed.

The five owners of St. Clair Plastics together with Stan Lundsten and I, as seven equal shareholders, incorporated LexaLite on February 6, 1963. Chairman Art Marshall and VP Bill Cryderman brought business skills. Treasurer Bill Smith (since deceased) contributed fiscal ingenuity and accountability while Stan and I added a good bit of plastics knowledge. Les Paulam, our Senior Statesman and then Secretary of the Corporation tried to teach us how to be true gentlemen and insisted on naught by the highest ethics. He is now a Director Emeritus; so newer Directors Ann Kendall and Pat DeYoung share his former responsibilities.

LexaLite Corporation let its customers educate its new General Manager (me); a registered Mechanical Engineer who knew nothing about lighting. They all contributed to my crash learning program — but they all also wanted a polycarbonate refractor, not just a diffusing glob. The idea of the enclosed Model 260 refractor was born.

In two years our sales volume was pausing our molding schedules to conflict with the big three automotive companies and we needed to mold our own products. I visited many plant sites but was really sold on one on Lake Michigan that Charlevoix made most attractive. I told the Board it was ideal because the clean air coming over the Lake would help us mold crystal clear products; the labor market was excellent and the work ethic was beyond belief. They believed me! (My actual thinking... Instead of a four hour non-deductible drive, I'll be just five minutes away from the greatest boating in the USA, only a half hour from the top Michigan ski areas, amid the Morels in May, and living in a resort community with its fine dining and cosmopolitan entertainment, in a true water/winter wonderland.)

So, in 1965, with a further stock issue and help from the community we became seven equal owners of a very attractive 9,600 square foot plant on the shore of the big Lake. Tom Acton, a real sharp plastics molding expert from the upriver area of St. Clair came on board and handled all the important stuff, machine selection and installation, secondary equipment, interviewing, hiring and, finally, start up in August, 1965. Jim Janis, who worked with me forming Lexaliners and prototypes out of my garage down state, moved with us, and a new world was underway.

Many fine local people started with us and some, such as John Lamoreaux, Jerry Clark, Don Wagner, Betty Russell, Mike Lord and Jim Spang, are still with us more than twenty years later. Several others, such as Verna Grosse, Shirley Reinhardt, Mary Mosley, Karl Mueller, Jack Coppens, Sue DeYoung, Lowins Hulsey, Bernice Ives, Rowena Sanford, and Paul Doctor were with us throughout the rest of their working years. Many, such as VP (Lighting Services) Ron Sitzema, Audrey Horstman, VP Tom Kline, Judy Miller, Callie Dougherty, Celeste Perron and Pat Resch, who started as production employees (or as a toolmaker), are now key members of LexaLite but in very different roles. Many other good people are left unmentioned — Sorry!

Back in '63, our first year, we somehow managed to lose $10,674. The following year was the first of our many years in the black, a string unbroken to this day. (We projected a loss for '66, our first full production year here in Charlevoix, but thanks to Tom Acton and our new people, we ended a bit in the black!)

In 1968 sales, for the first time, exceeded $1-million. We needed more machines and more space as we were molding more than a truckload of open bottom acrylic "dusk-to-dawn" refractors each week. We were also molding and painting the vast majority of photocell covers for the same, and other fixtures. Each one of the shareholders invested another $15,000, this time in convertible debentures, and we had our first major plant expansion. We then continued to acquire new equipment and added a photometric laboratory.

In 1972, we again added machines and enlarged the building. We gave birth to Charlevoix Tool and Engineering Company, our own complete tooling facility and, in 1973, we passed the $2.5 million mark in sales.

In these early seventies, our growth included the acquisition of a small globe forming company, Aaronic. None of their products are with us today, but is brought us Earl Smith, who 24 years later, is a major asset at the LexaLite Lighting Research Center. We bought an enormous Ekhard Ziegler Injection-Blow Molding Machine and began twelve years of production of large polycarbonate ornamental globes. Our product growth also led to the formation of LexaLite Mexicana, SA and LexaLite Europe, SA — both international joint ventures. This, in turn, resulted in the change of our name to LexaLite.

When Valentine's Day is also your anniversary

By Laurie Lounsbury

There's only one day to get married on, and that's Valentine's Day. Mike Wheat told his fiancée Judy Matthews. With that settled, Mike Wheat and Judy Matthews proceeded to become husband and wife on Feb. 14, 1976.

Seventeen years later, Mike Wheat says it was really good luck that Valentine's Day fell on a Saturday back in 1976. "I can always remember it," he said, referring to their anniversary. Wheat admits that although getting married on Valentine's Day was his idea, it was a lucky coincidence that the day fell on a Saturday. He said they were looking for a date in that general time frame and discovered that Valentine's Day fell on a Saturday. "I'd say it was real good luck," Mike said.

Judy Wheat believes there are advantages to a Valentine's Day wedding anniversary. "I guess it keeps the romance in marriage," Judy said; and then added, "There's always something going on."

The Wheat's have two children, an eight year old daughter Nikki, and a six year old son, Cody. Mike Wheat is a Sergeant with the Charlevoix County Sheriff's department and Judy is a homemaker. This year the Wheat's will celebrate their 17th wedding anniversary. Romance and wedding bells don't always blend with practicality. In the years when Valentine's Day falls on a weekday it would be impractical, although romantic, to marry on the day dedicated to love. In the case of Gail Janis's marriage to Bobby Baldrige, it was practicality that dictated a Valentine's day wedding date, with romance blending in nicely.

International Corporation. We had added a line of traffic signal lenses (still active) which led to or venture into molded traffic signals and their assembly at what is now the R&D building. It was successful and many of the products of LexaLite Signal Products Corporation continue, but as part of our main plant operations.

In the late seventies, several major corporations courted us. One was sufficiently attractive that some shareholders were interested. We, instead, formed LexaLite Industries, Inc. as a holding company and offered to buy back shares. Many were repurchased, although all seven shareholders retained at least some ownership. During 1976 sales passed the $4 million mark. The LexaLite Employee Stock Ownership Plan was implemented with a $64,640 company contribution. As they vested, all employees became shareholders.

None of us really liked the Industries name and in 1978, we consolidated all except the joint ventures and again became LexaLite International Corporation. In 1980 we changed to a Fiscal Year ending on the Sunday falling on or first preceding July 4. Sales were over $3 million in that short, six month fiscal year.

Growth continued through fiscal 1981 (over $9 million in sales) but, one month later, on Sunday, August 2, 1981 (Fiscal '82), our 80,000+ square foot plant burned to the ground. That is too long a story to tell here, despite our great pride in our recovery. No pre-tax profits that year but the tax consequences of the involuntary conversion were high earnings that continued our string.

When the rebuilding was done, we had 100,000 square feet of the finest of facilities and equipment but millions in debt. It was to be another four years before we passed $10,000 in sales. During that period we were successful in introducing production low stress molding with the Fiero hard coated quarter windows and prototype of other automotive glazing. The anticipated volume was so high that we built the Dickson plant, moved some equipment there and added new machines at both plants. In anticipation of even higher volume, we entered into a joint venture with Magna International and built the LexaMar plant in Boyne City. LexaMar then decided to buy new machines rather than the ones we had just purchased. Our debt again increased but our new machines were without the automotive business that moved to LexaMar. LexaMar is an outstanding hi-tech company; we are proud of our role in its creation.

LexaLite then instituted a cash based fiscal management system designed to improve its balance sheet ratios. The first moves were the license of our low stress technology and the sale our ownership in the joint venture to Magna. Next was to bring in Ron Chapman as VP of Finance. Product sales passed the $10 million barrier in 1985, $17 million in 1988 and were $19 million in 1990; our debt to equity ratio went from over 5:1 down to 1:6:1 in the same period. Our total revenues in 1990 just exceeded $20 million. Ron was elected President and I became CEO. We added the Lighting Research Center and now had a total of 150,000 square feet in our three facilities. New employee training, quality and plant-wide monthly bonus programs were implemented. Our patented 800 series Reflexors were introduced and began to receive industry acceptance.

In 1991 we began an effort to concentrate on sales of our key products as opposed to conventional custom molding. Despite that effort and the addition of the 800 Series; the recession of 1991 and early 1992, together with some questionable competitive activities, caused a 15 percent drop in product sales. The good news was that we retained higher margin products and earnings increased. During those same years we were courted by another large and serious suitor, we both became enthusiastic during the process of due diligence but ended with neither being comfortable with the final numbers. Subsequently, Ron Chapman decided he needed a sabbatical. Tom Phillips became our new President and we were fortunate to be able to appoint Tim Rhoades as Chief Financial Officer. Tim had been the key on-site individual for the other company. A little later, Ron was able to take his sabbatical.

We then made a heavy commitment to our customers in terms of achieving ISO 9002 quality certification, significant cost reductions and the ultimate in customer services, including state of the art computer capability, both internally and in interfacing with our customers and suppliers. Tom Barnes and, subsequently, Ron Sitzema were elected as Vice Presidents of Sales & Marketing and Lighting Services, respectively. Tony Lee was added as Director of Materials Management.

Today, on its thirtieth birthday, LexaLite is mature in both the plastics and lighting industries but is in a definite growth mode from its present $20 million dollar level. Our balance sheet is simply excellent and we have the people and other resources needed to handle the commitment to our customers. The employees, through direct purchases, the Employee Stock Ownership Plan and other incentive programs, continue to increase ownership, including both the ESOT and individual holdings, employees now own 52 percent.

SPORTS

Basketball team has a weekend well worth promptly forgetting

It was not a good weekend for the Charlevoix varsity basketball team. Friday night the Rayders offense disappeared in the last five minutes of the game resulting in a 60-59 loss at Traverse City St. Francis. Saturday night the Rayders were outscored in every quarter as they lost to Petoskey 62-51. Charlevoix had beaten both teams earlier in the season.

Charlevoix led in the St. Francis game by as much as 20 points and was leading 59-47 with less than five minutes left in the game. In the Rayder offense disappeared and failed to score the rest of the way.

The loss dropped Charlevoix's league record to 6-3, two games behind league co-leaders Boyne City and Kalkaska who are each 8-1.

Individually for the Rayders, Brad DeGrow had 18 points and 13 rebounds. Vince Voisin had nine rebounds while Brad DeGrow had four steals.

St. Francis also won the junior varsity game, 69-48. Gary Leitner had 15 points and Bryan Jarema 11 points for the Rayders.

In the Petoskey game, things just never went well for the Rayders. DeGrow got into foul trouble early. However, David Dobulis came off the bench and scored eight points in the first quarter. Despite Dobulis' efforts, Charlevoix still trailed 19-16 entering the second quarter.

In the second quarter the visiting Northmen extended their lead almost into double figures, but a late Rayder rally cut the deficit to four points, 34-30 at the half.

In the third and fourth quarters the Northmen continued extending their lead slowly, but surely. By the end of the third quarter Charlevoix trailed 50-40.

Charlevoix played Petoskey almost even in the fourth quarter, but given the deficit, that simply wasn't good enough.

Individually for Charlevoix, Jess had 13 points, five assists and two steals. Dobulis had 12 points, and DeGrow had eight rebounds.

Charlevoix also lost the junior varsity game 77-66. Chuck Pop had 17 points and Jerry Duhart 12 points for the Rayders.

This Friday evening Charlevoix will be hosting Mancelona for the Rayders' winter homecoming.

Volleyball team beats St. Francis: places second at Elk Rapids

Grunch and Doan named to Elk Rapids all-tournament team

Charlevoix's varsity volleyball team beat Traverse City St. Francis at home Thursday night and then traveled to Elk Rapids Saturday where they placed second in a four-team tournament.

Thursday evening the Rayders improved their league record to 4-2 with a 3-1 win over St. Francis.

The Rayders opened the first game of the match with seven points behind the serving of Laura Loder and set the tone for the evening. Charlevoix won the first two games 15-5, 15-13, lost the third 15-3 and then closed the match with 15-6 win.

Top setters for the Rayders were Melissa Cox and Christy Siwarga. Leading servers were Loder and Cox. Top defenders were Liz Grunch and Angelina Doan while Grunch, Doan and Loder keyed the offense.

The junior varsity also picked up a win against St. Francis taking the first game 15-5 and shutting out St. Francis 15-0 in game two. Top setters for the Rayders were Tabatha Potter and Jennifer Swenor. Leading servers were Potter and Kristen Czerkes. Best offensively and defensively were Liz Kelly and Melissa Darrah.

In Elk Rapids Saturday, the Rayders beat Gaylord St. Marys in the preliminary round, then beat Leland 15-13, 6-15 and 15-8 to reach the finals of the Elk Rapids Invitational where they lost to the host team 15-13, 15-9.

Liz Grunch and Angelina Doan were named to the six-member all-tournament team.

For Charlevoix, Grunch and Loder were the team's top servers for the day. Christy Siwarga and Melissa Cox were the best setters. Leading the offense were Loder, Doan and Anne Schairbaum. Leading the defense were Grunch, Doan and Loder.

Charlevoix's next game will be at Mancelona, Feb. 11.

Melissa Cox, a junior, has become one of the Rayder volleyball team's most effective setters this season.

games - two of them obviously stand out from the rest.

Now, he bowls once a week and has a 197 average.

"I'm having more fun now," he remarked.

Paul Bunyan Lanes owner John Fiedorek was every bit as excited as DeYoung. He was among those who witnessed DeYoung's perfect game.

"It was real exciting, a real thrill to watch," Fiedorek said.

After DeYoung completed his game Thursday, all of the other bowlers as well as the patrons of the adjacent Flight Deck Bar joined him in celebrating.

As Fiedorek described it, "We busted out and kind of went nuts after he threw his last strike."

Friday evening, DeYoung's wife and friends surprised him with another celebration at the Flight Deck.

Monday morning Fiedorek got out the step ladder and climbed up on the pop machine to make the necessary changes to the bowling alley score board. Up until DeYoung's 300, the highest game bowled in league play at Paul Bunyan Lanes was a 290 by John Swanson. As of Monday morning, nobody was quite sure just what year it was that Swanson had bowled that game.

Paul Bunyan Lanes was founded by Fiedorek's father, Stan, in 1960. Prior to that local bowlers bowled in East Jordan and at one time there had been some a few lanes where the Pine River is today.

After breaking a three-decade-plus local drought for 300 games, DeYoung didn't venture any guesses as to when he would roll his next one. In fact, he still was somewhat speculative as to how he ended up with his most recent one.

"I'm not really sure, a lot of luck," he summed.

But whatever brought about the 300 game, DeYoung was happy with it. And he and a lot of other local bowlers got a lot of excitement out of it and had a fine time celebrating it. In fact, given all the fun that came out of that game, it's kind of a pity perfect games don't happen more often.

Charlevoix jumped out to a 7-0 lead in the first game of a match against Traverse City St. Francis behind the serving of senior Laura Loder. The Rayders went on to take the match 3-1 and improve their record to 4-2 in league play. Later in the week the Rayders traveled to Elk Rapids where they placed second in the Elk Rapids Invitational Volleyball Tournament.

Audiologist Dr. Michael Koskus examines Barnard Grange member Darlene Dhasleer. Koskus and the Charlevoix Senior Citizens Center are cosponsoring a free hearing clinic at the Senior Citizens Center from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., Monday, Feb. 15. Appointments can be made by calling 547-5361.

Mike and Judy Wheat were married on Valentine's Day in 1976. Here, they are shown with their son and daughter Cody and Nikki.

...married on Valentine's Day

"It was my family and friends who decided on Valentine's Day," Gail said. "It was the only convenient weekend for them."

And so with family and friends gathered around them, Gail and Bobby Baldrige were married on Feb. 14, 1981, at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix. Gail recalls that it was a perfect winter day.

Since that bright winter wedding day, the Baldridges have enjoyed eleven Valentine wedding anniversaries, though none of them have taken place in Charlevoix. Bobby Baldrige's career with the United States Coast Guard has taken them to Galveston, Texas; South Padre Island, Sault Ste. Marie, and San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Bobby retired from the Coast Guard at the end of 1992 and now works at the Radio Shack in Boyne City. The Baldridges have an eight year old daughter, Allison, who is delighted to be back in northern Michigan. "Charlevoix has always been home to us," Gail said.

looking at the kinds of programs we'd like to see developed. We'll be helping to raise funds for youth projects and helping make decisions about how those funds are used, too."

Calling the grant an investment in the next generation's leaders, foundation director Bob Tambellini says young people need to participate in shaping their community and finding solutions to community concerns. "This grant is a vehicle — a chance for us to make a strong commitment to our kids, and for them to learn how to become good community stewards in return," Tambellini says. "We feel very fortunate to have been given this chance — it's a rare opportunity and a significant amount of money."

Projects that can be funded through the Community Foundation's youth endowment are almost limitless, as long as they benefit young people in some way. Tambellini cites education, the environment, and the arts as just three examples of the broad areas eligible for grants. Local foundation leaders hope to begin making grants this summer.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is one of more than 400 community foundations around the country that receive charitable donations and redistribute them to meet local need. It was started in 1992 at the urging of civic leaders, and received initial operating funds from the Frey Foundation of Grand Rapids, and the Malpass Foundation in East Jordan. A board of trustees made up of local representatives from throughout the county guides the organization's activities.

More information about the Charlevoix County Community Foundation may be obtained by writing the foundation, c/o P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, Michigan, 49727; or by calling the foundation office, 616/536-2440.

Congregational women fashion quilt in the interest of peace

This past Sunday the First Congregational Church dedicated a "Window of Peace" quilt which was recently completed by the ladies of the church. The quilt (shown in the accompanying photo) will hang on the east wall of the Fellowship Hall.

Several years ago, Rev. Ray Giffin suggested making some type of banner or banners to decorate the wall. More recently, Rev. Phil Schairbaum suggested a quilt. The women of the church began studying quilt patterns, but for a long time didn't find anything which seemed appropriate.

Eventually, they found the "Window of Peace" pattern in the Keepsake Quilting Catalogue. The pattern was designed by Marry Dillon of Tucson, AZ. The pattern came in the form of a 98-page book. Making the quilt involved appliqueing 196 yards of black bias strips of three different widths to achieve the look of leading found in stained glass work.

There are 59 different fabrics found in the color palette for the "Window of Peace" quilt. The large number of colors is necessary to obtain subtle shadings in the flowers and give the illusion of depth. Twenty-five ladies worked on the quilt and others donated money. Color coordinator was Nancy Fowler while Mary Helen Riggle was the overall project coordinator.

Work on the quilt began June 8 and concluded Dec. 8. Each block was individually planned and assembled. After the hand applied black bias was applied, each block was hand quilted.

The purpose of the "Window of Peace" is to serve as a reminder to all who see it to promote peace in the world, in our country and among neighbors, relatives, friends and families.

City Council begins reviewing $7.85 million proposed budget

Sewer and water rate increases proposed

By L. Scott Swanson

Monday evening the Charlevoix City Council began discussing a $7.85 million proposed 1993-94 fiscal budget. The budget, which was prepared by city manager Mike Wiesner and city treasurer Rick Brandt, is down from the current year's $9.28 million budget primarily because of the expense the city incurred in building a new electrical substation in the current year.

The budget calls for a millage assessment of 13.47 mills as opposed to the 14.06 mills being levied this year. The .59 reduction in millage will be more than offset by increased property values. (A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of property value.) City millage is broken down into three categories: general operational millage; debt retirement; and infrastructure (which is a big word for sidewalks, streets etc.). The proposed general operational millage of 8.5 mills is the same as the current year. The proposed debt retirement millage of 1.31 mills is down from 1.56 mills primarily because increased property values mean fewer mills are required to meet the city's loan payments. The proposed infrastructure millage is down from 4 to 3.66 because of Headlee Amendment requirements. (The Headlee Amendment says that if tax revenues go up more than the level of inflation due to increasing property values, then millage rates must be reduced to compensate.)

In addition to the general fund budget, the city also has separate utility funds for streets, sewer, water and electrical services. The proposed budget calls for a 17 percent increase in sewer rates and a 29 percent increase in water rates. An electrical rate increase was approved last month.

The proposed budget lists city construction plans for 1993 and the next several years beyond that.

Monday evening, Wiesner and city planner Gerry Harsch described plans to improve Michigan Beach, Depot Beach and the City Softball Fields. City administrators are hoping to apply for and receive state grants to help fund the beach projects. The city also has a long range plan to improve the Municipal Golf Course. Golf course profits are funding those improvements.

This year, for the first time in several years, the budget does not call for a great deal of street work. This year work will focus on sidewalk work on Bridge Street - a project which will be helped by a state grant - and water system work on the north side. The total estimated cost of 1993 infrastructure projects is $169,900.

While the City Council did not discuss 1993 Downtown Development Authority (DDA) projects Monday evening, those projects will be discussed in a later budget meeting. The proposed budget calls for 1993 DDA expenditures totaling $611,585. The big ticket items on that project list are: street and park lights, $225,000; Kusina land contract, $102,355; construction of parking lot on Kusina property, $80,000; East Park sprinkler system, $50,000; and reworking the parking lot off Mason Street, $50,000.

Discussion of the proposed budget will continue at a council work session Feb. 22.

Homecoming king & queen crowned

Bill Dreyer and Julie Gengle were crowned 1993 Winter Homecoming king and queen during halftime ceremonies at Friday evening's basketball game. Dreyer is the son of Bill and Dianne Dreyer. Gengle is the daughter of Bill and Sue Gengle. Charlevoix's basketball team broke a four-game losing streak with a 54-41 win over Mancelona. This Friday evening the Rayders will host East Jordan.

Mount McSaubia Sno Challenge draws 2,000

Approximately 2,000 people attended the 1993 Mount McSaubia Sno Challenge Saturday. Events included thunder tubing, snowmobile races, truck hill climbs and fireworks. Ski races and snow board races took place Thursday evening, separate from Saturday's events.

This year's Sno Challenge was pared down from two weekend days to a Saturday only event. Volunteers coordinated and staffed the various competitions.

Eighth grade students provide a voice of experience

Sixth graders learn from volunteer tutors

By Laurie Lounsbury
It's hard for sixth graders to admit they don't know everything. It's harder still to accept help from their parents when they don't know everything. But getting help from an eighth grader, well, that's something else. Perhaps that's why Charlevoix eighth graders have had success with a new program called Peer Tutoring. The peer tutoring program allows sixth graders to get help with their schoolwork from eighth grade students.

The idea of a peer tutoring program came from the sixth grade teachers. The teachers identified students who were having difficulty keeping up with the work or getting their homework completed on time, then recommended peer tutoring for those students. The students' parents were contacted for permission to put their child in the peer tutoring program.

At the eighth grade level, teacher Ann Shindorf coordinates student volunteers for the program. Eighth graders work with sixth graders for about 45 minutes each day after school. Students from each sixth grade class are assigned a different day of the week for their tutoring.

Eighth grade students were treated to an ice cream sundae party in the school cafeteria last week in appreciation for their tutoring efforts. Sixth grade teacher Hal Evans joined the party, commending the eighth graders and saying, "I've seen a big improvement in a lot of these kids. Some of them have really turned around."

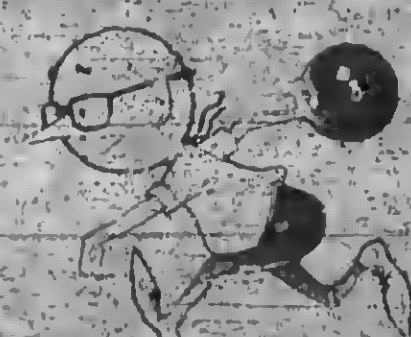

Rachael Newcomb is one of the eighth graders who volunteers her time to help sixth graders. "It doesn't take long, and it seemed like a good thing to do," she said. Eighth grader Brian Martinus decided to sign up for the tutoring program because it filled a gap in his schedule. Martinus has basketball practice later in the afternoon, so he can tutor after school while waiting to play ball.

Tutor Zac Bakker said he feels eighth grade tutors can do a good job of helping younger kids. "You can explain it in terms they know," he said. Bob Summerfeld agreed, adding, "Parents are too strict when they help kids." The tutors agreed that it was probably easier for an eighth grader to explain school work to sixth graders than it would be for their parents. The material is still fresh in the eighth graders' minds, while some parents might be a little rusty on today's subject matter.

The peer tutoring program will continue throughout the spring semester.

County Transit System needs to be evaluated

An interesting situation is developing with the Charlevoix County Transit Authority. County commissioners, particularly chairman Don Smith, are raising some issues which probably should have been raised long ago.

For those of you who aren't completely aware of what the county transit system is and does, (and that may take in the majority of the people in the county) it's the system which operates all of those green and white buses which tour around empty a good deal of the time. Currently, much of the funding for the 15-bus system comes from the state or federal, rather than the local government. As Smith correctly pointed out at a recent meeting, regardless of which level of government funding comes from, all tax dollars originate with taxpayers. Smith also correctly observed that a 15-bus system is too large for Charlevoix County.

Not that there is anything wrong with having a system of public transportation, but like any other unit of government (or unit of private enterprise), a public transit system should have a defined objective and should be staffed and equipped to meet that objective in the most efficient and cost effective manner possible.

Currently Charlevoix County's public transit system primarily serves as a taxi and meal service for senior citizens. Not that there is anything wrong with that being done, but it is a need which is limited in scope in a small county and probably doesn't require 15 buses. In regard to delivering meals to senior citizens in an economical manner, the transit system could take a lesson from private enterprise. When you order a pizza and have it delivered, it doesn't come to your house in a big green bus. The number of people riding the buses also does not merit such large vehicles. If it did, the buses wouldn't be cruising around empty most of the time.

Given the needs of Charlevoix County, it appears that a scaled back transit system which relies on a few vans and perhaps a few buses rather than 15 buses would probably suffice. County commissioners should be encouraged to continue evaluating Charlevoix County's transit needs and methods of meeting those needs.

Fund to help pay for sound system

Editor,

Friends of "BREEZY"

Since "Breezy" did not want a funeral, I know many people didn't get to pay their respects. Because he always wanted to be remembered for his music and his love for Charlevoix, a memorial fund has been established to purchase the sound system for the band shell in the park. If you care to donate to Breezy's memory, please contact Helen Emmons or Lou Hollow at First State Bank where an account has been set up. We need $4,500 to buy the system requested. Also, we hope to have a dedication ceremony with a memorial plaque at the Venetian Festival next July, as was suggested by Jacquie Mettari of the Chamber of Commerce.

For those who might be interested, I did find tapes we recorded of typical nights at the Grey Gables which I hope to make copies of soon. Thank to all who sent cards and thoughts to me.

Sincerely,
Shirley Breeze

Thunder tubing is not for the faint of heart, but as evidenced once again by the number of participants, reckless abandon is plenty common in this small northern Michigan community.

Prospects good for woman in need of kidney transplant

By Ralph McRae

Six weeks ago a story appeared in the Courier about Mrs. A, a local woman who is in the advanced stages of renal disease, her kidney functions having deteriorated almost to the vanishing point. At that time we promised to keep you updated on Mrs. A's progress. This is that update.

Mrs. A must now immediately begin one of two dialysis treatment programs. Dialysis will tide her over prior to a kidney transplant. A transplant is 10 times more effective than dialysis procedures.

The Courier article of Jan. 13 noted that Mrs. A would soon be going to the Michigan Transplant Center to be evaluated as a possible prospect for a kidney transplant. On Jan. 19, friends of Mrs. A drove her and her medical records to Ann Arbor. There, she was housed in facilities set aside for transplant patients. The next day, she would be kept very busy for eight hours.

Mrs. A spent much of Jan. 20 meeting with members of the kidney transplant team assigned to her case. The transplant team included: a staff nurse to guide her through many appointments; the transplant physician who will care for her; the transplant surgeon who will put in the new kidney; the transplant coordinator who will oversee the procedure; a social worker; a dietician; a pharmacist; a religious counselor; and a psychiatrist/psychologist.

Before the day was over, Mrs. A had gone through 13 different tests, examinations and observations. The very latest technical equipment and medical apparatuses were used. The purpose of all of these examinations was to see if Mrs. A is a suitable candidate for a donor kidney.

Mrs. A's blood type is A - the most popular - and so needed by more patients. People with either A or O blood types can be donors to A type recipients. Besides being available to donors from Michigan, Mrs. A's name can be added to nationally compiled donation lists.

Since 1964, the University of Michigan Medical Center has performed 1,300 kidney transplants; most of them during the past 10 years. A kidney transplant is the only transplant operation fully funded by the U.S. Government Medicare program. Receiving a transplant from a cadaver gives a recipient an 80 percent chance of a successful transfer. Should the organ come from a living donor, the chance of success climbs to almost 95 percent.

It used to be that both givers and receivers of kidneys for transplants had to match exactly on several traits. That is no longer required. Experience and advances in anti-rejection medications now make it possible to use less perfect cross matching.

On Feb. 1, Mrs. A was officially informed that she would be placed on that all important list of prospective kidney transplant recipients. It could take three months or as much as three years before a transplant occurs.

Mrs. A's future seems much brighter now. Her 31-year-old niece has volunteered to donate a kidney. Her evaluation examination has been set for March 25. If all goes well, Mrs. A will soon after receive this marvelous gift of life. Meanwhile, Mrs. A has started a program of dialysis treatment within her own home.

Odyssey team takes first at regional contest

Several local OM teams perform well

A Charlevoix Middle School Odyssey of the Mind (OM) team made up of Jessica Corey, Kris Staton, Alyssa Westenbroek, Nicole Harbison, Carrie Beemon and Jenni Wojan has qualified for the OM State Finals April 17 at Central Michigan University. The team, which is coached by Cathy Staton, placed first in the Middle School Dinosaurs division at this past Saturday's OM Regional competition in Petoskey.

Charlevoix sent eight teams to the competition. The eight Charlevoix teams competed among 3,000 students. Charlevoix OM coordinator Virginia Scharbaum said the Charlevoix teams were competing in divisions of between 15 and 29 teams. Six of the eight Charlevoix teams placed in the top six in their division.

"We feel real good about this season," Scharbaum noted.

In addition to the first place finish, other Charlevoix teams placing in the top six were:

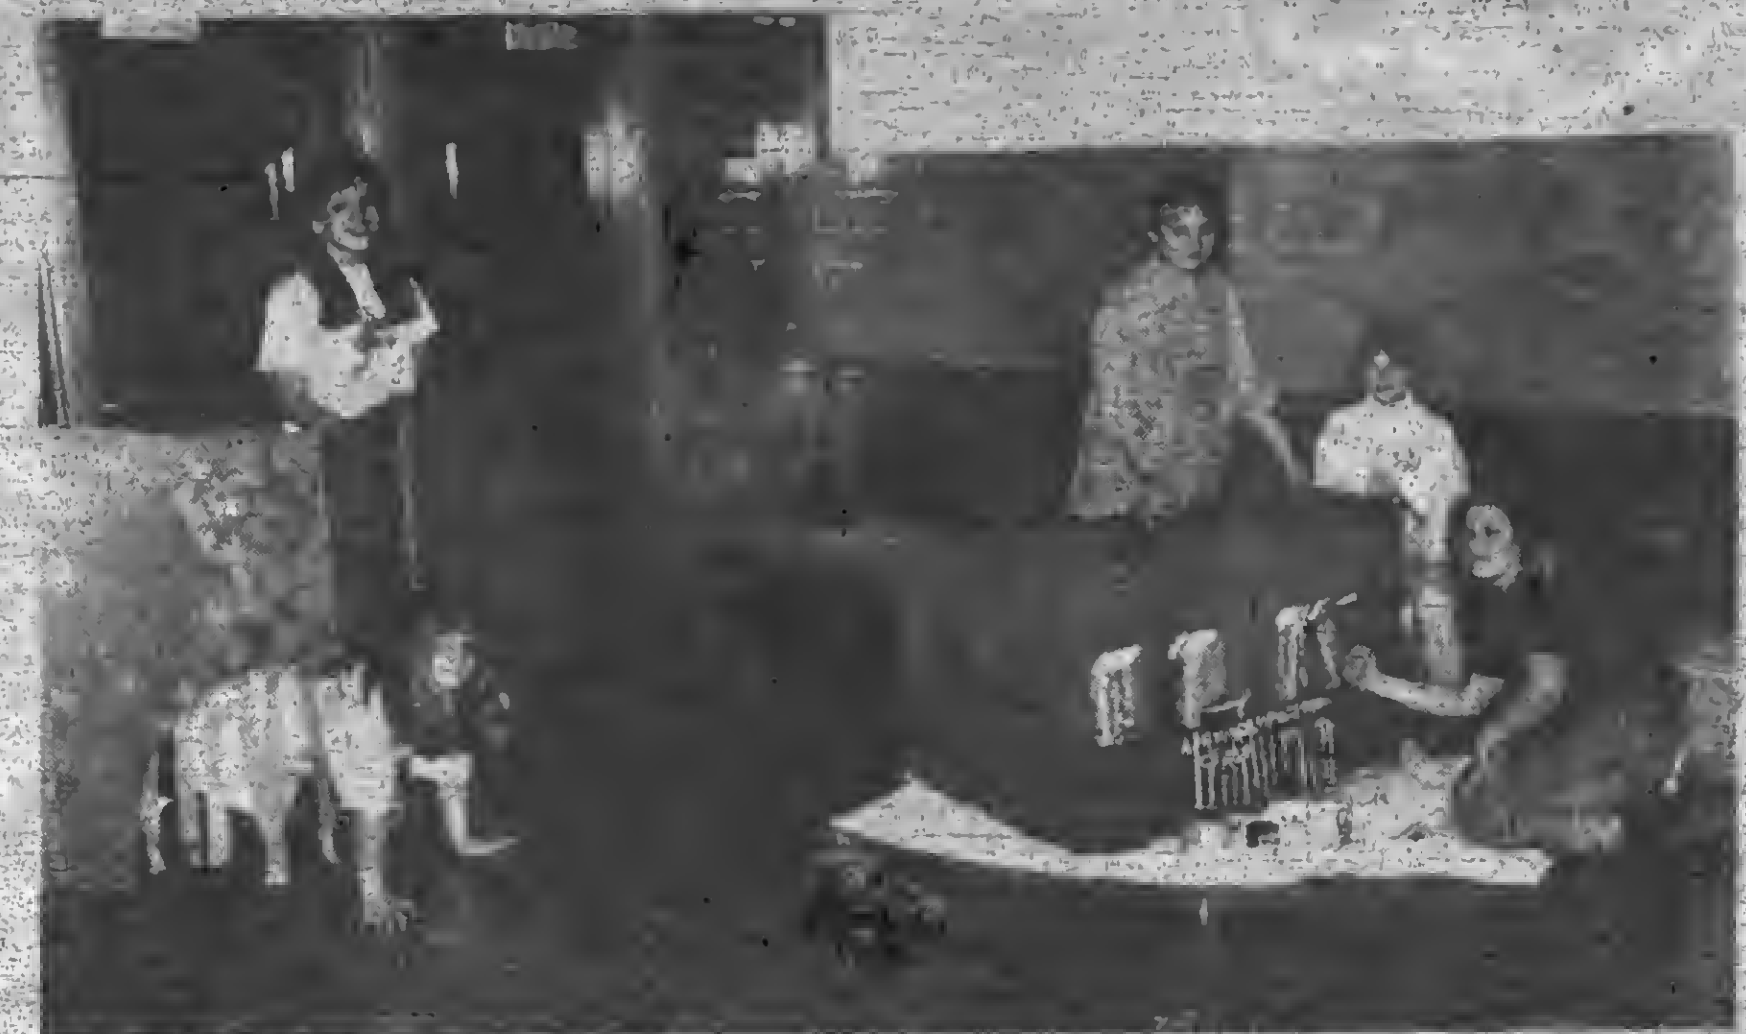

Team 1, Which End Is Up Sixth: Zack Dennis, Adam Kline, Dawson Matter, Philip Morris, Jamie Roloff, Troy Smith and Heather Trowbridge.

Team 2, Which End Is Up Fifth: Jonathon Campbell, Taylor Fisher, Tiffany Fisher, Lisa Kemer, Adam Shepherd, Amanda Simpson and Tony Williams.

Team 4, Classics, Old Man and the Sea - Fourth: Tyler Lieberman, Julie Miller, Dena Sheldon, Laura Scharbaum and Patrick Mailloux.

Team 7, Pit Stop - Fourth: Josh Habel, Michelle Riley, Kelly Torniga, Matt Krysinski, Jeannette Van Aist and Caleb Levegood.

Team 8, Folk Tales - Fifth: Marcia Donaldson, Mandi McGgison, Lindy Morrow, Sarah Shepard, Susan Ramsy, Jenna Ward and Sarah Ward.

His funeral was Wednesday, Feb. 10, at the Community Church of God in Charlevoix. The Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton officiated and interment will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

He was born Sept. 13, 1928, in Charlevoix, the son of Fred R. and Hilma (Eley) Hardy. He was raised in Charlevoix and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1947. He attended Alma College and Lake Superior State College.

Mr. Hardy served in the U.S. Air Force in Germany during the Korean conflict from 1950 to 1954.

He married Audrey J. Byers in Charlevoix on April 14, 1951. In 1956, they made their home in Saugus, Calif. where he was employed by Certified Grocers of California as plant superintendent at San Fernando. He retired in 1987 after 31 years.

Mr. Hardy was a member of the American Legion Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226 in Charlevoix.

He is survived by his wife, Audrey of Charlevoix; two sons, Michael R. of Vale, Colo., and Thomas K. of Valencia, Calif.; two daughters, Mrs. James (Pamela J.) Spell of Eagle, Colo., and Sheryl L. Hardy of Pomona, Calif.; two grandsons, Kristopher M. Hardy and Clinton James Spell; his mother, Mrs. Hilma Hull of Charlevoix; one sister, Mrs. Norman (Joyce) Ketchman of Stevensville; and two brothers, Donald of Colorado Springs, Colo. and David of Valley Springs, Calif.

Lutherans begin Lenten services

Beginning Feb. 24, Ash Wednesday will be observed at Bethany with a Sandwich supper at 6 p.m. and worship service at 7 p.m., with Holy Communion. Worship services will continue each succeeding Wednesday with soup being served at 6 p.m. and worship service at 7 p.m. Those who wish to participate in the meals are asked to sign up or get in touch with Pastor Wellhausen.

Lent is the period of 40 weekdays beginning with Ash Wednesday and continuing through the Passion Season and Easter. It commemorates the time Jesus spent in fasting in the wilderness, and serves as a time of penitence for Christians around the world.

James Novotny

James Novotny, 85, of Charlevoix, died Feb. 6, 1993, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

His funeral was Tuesday, Feb. 9, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton officiated and burial will be at Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

He was born June 10, 1907, in Curus Bay, Md., the son of Frank and Mary (Petrik) Novotny. He moved to Charlevoix in 1912.

On March 21, 1947, he married Elizabeth J. Ackert. She preceded him in death on Aug. 1, 1988.

Mr. Novotny was a partner in Novotny Plumbing and Heating in Charlevoix from the early 1930s until retiring in 1974.

He was active in the Charlevoix County Democratic Party and the VFW Post No. 1153 in Charlevoix. He loved to fish.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Evan (Barbara) Bassett of East Jordan, and Janice A. Novotny of Charlevoix; three grandchildren, Ethan C., Erin N. and Elliott James, all of East Jordan; one brother, Frank of Charlevoix; and four sisters, Mrs. Rose Mann, Lily Novotny and Mrs. Chic (Edna) Gallagher, all of Charlevoix, and Mrs. Helen Flowers of Jacumba, Calif. In addition to his wife, he was preceded in death by a sister, Mary Hardy.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Historical Society. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home.

Odd Fellows extend lead in cribbage

The Odd Fellows have extended their lead to 1,457 points over the Masons in the annual cribbage tournament. With six and a-half tables in play Thursday, Feb. 11 the Odd Fellows outscoored the Masons by 310 points.

Dean Penell led the Odd Fellows with 952 points. Rod Trimble led the Masons with 928 points.

The next evening of play will begin at 7:30 p.m., Feb. 18 at the Masonic Temple.

Missing pilot declared dead

A pilot who was in a plane that is thought to have gone down in Lake Michigan Sept. 12 has been declared legally dead. H. Paul Miller, 74, of Cadillac was flying in a plane over Lake Michigan Sept. 12 and radioed that he was having difficulty. Despite search efforts by authorities and friends and family, no sign of the plane or Miller has been found. Miller, a pilot with many years of experience, is the father of Patty Moore of Charlevoix.

Tuesday, Feb. 9, after reviewing all evidence in the matter, a Manistee Circuit Court judge declared Miller legally dead.

For the tenth time in 16 years employees at Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point plant have won the utility's President's Award. Plant employees earned the safety award for their 1992 performance, recognizing them as the safest working employees at all Consumers Power electric generating facilities.

Employees at the plant have now worked more than 15 years and 4 million hours without suffering any sort of injury serious enough to cause an employee to miss a day of work.

Plant employees were joined at a breakfast meeting January 30 at the Weatherlane restaurant. Attending the meeting to offer congratulations were Consumers Power company chief operating officer Michael G. Morris and Vice-President of Nuclear Operations David P. Hoffman.

Morris said it was likely that the utility would win a national safety award for its 1992 performance but that "we are not in this for awards. Safety is a personal matter. Do it for yourself and your family, it is your responsibility."

Though 1992 was an extremely challenging year, our attention never wavered from our most important job - operating Big Rock Point safely and everyone going home every night without injury," said Plant Manager William L. Beckman.

Bodem named chairman of tourism and recreation committee

Rep. Beverly A. Bodem, R-Alpena, will serve as co-chair of the House Committee on Tourism and Recreation for the 1993-94 legislative session. Co-Speaker Paul Hillegonds announced recently.

Hillegonds cited Bodem's experience as chair of the House Republican Task Force on Tourism. "Bey has been a leader on this issue and her task force report has been a blueprint for major reforms," Hillegonds said. "In the coming months, she will help initiate significant improvements in this vital industry."

In June 1992 Bodem's task force released 28 recommendations after an 18-month review and a statewide series of public hearings, including several stops in northern Michigan.

"Our tourism policy needs to be updated. Aggressive marketing, highway improvements and a swifter response to inquiries by potential travelers are all key concerns that will determine Michigan's place in the competitive Tourism industry," Bodem said. "As travel patterns continue to change, Michigan must respond if it plans to be a competitor. Success depends on our reaction to changing population trends."

Bodem said that good highways, access roads and airports will help to project a positive image for Michigan. Other priorities for the committee include:

- urging developers to design and construct facilities at tourist sites with minimal impact on the environment
- encouraging state officials to design new license plates with an attractive logo featuring Michigan as a tourist center
- developing a partnership between school districts and the Michigan Travel Bureau to discuss the consequences of the school year starting prior to Labor Day

In addition to her duties on the tourism and recreation panel, Bodem will be a member of three other House committees including Public Health, Economic development and Conservation, Environment and Great Lakes.

"I am pleased with the committee appointments. Tourism is interrelated with our state's economic development and the preservation of our environment so there is a strong connection between my assignments," she said.

Which group gets how much transportation funding

Feds say argue it out among yourselves

By Laurie Lounsbury

The federal government is dishing out federal funds in front of various faces in Charlevoix county. But like a busy, over-worked parent, the feds have essentially offered a vague lump sum to local departments and said in regard to divvying it up, "Work it out among yourselves." With that admonition, the Charlevoix County Road Commission, the Transit Authority, and the cities in the county are trying to figure out how to allocate funds available through federal legislation known as I.S.T.E.A. (Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act).

The top priority of I.S.T.E.A. is to provide money for states and counties to build and improve their roads. The state of Michigan will receive an allocated portion of funds, which they will then redistribute to the counties. It sounds like a good enough plan, but the federal government and the state gave the counties no guidelines as to how the funds should be appropriated.

Charlevoix County Road Commission manager Larry Hamlin said, "It's an awkward situation. MDOT has said, 'Figure it out on your own.' We are supposed to reach a gentleman's agreement."

The road commission would like to see the available funds used to build and improve roads in Charlevoix County, while the local cities in the county are entitled to a share of the funds for their infrastructures. Transit manager Art Sawarski wants to make sure the transit department gets their fair share as well. The three different entities are left to devise their own plan for distribution of the funds.

At the last county commissioner meeting, Sawarski discussed the I.S.T.E.A. funds. "The transit has a right to apply for some of these funds," he told chairman Don Smith. "It (I.S.T.E.A.) does not say this money can be claimed in its entirety for the road commission," Sawarski added. Smith responded to Sawarski saying, "I think the public would rather see money that comes in go to roads and streets."

Hamlin said that while he understands the funds are designed to be shared among cities, the transit system, and the road commission, he questions just how much of the money should go to the transit system. According to Hamlin, transit would use funds for shop tools, computers, and building insulation. "We have a bit of a problem seeing that money going to items that don't directly build roads," Hamlin said. Of the money that will go to the transit system, Hamlin said, "It needs to be an appropriate amount, maybe based on service to the community."

Hamlin, Sawarski, and Bob Johnson, who represents the cities in the county, have until July to determine how the funds should be allocated. The three groups must have a plan in place by then in order to receive the money from the state. "The state says we must have decided upon a plan or we'll be passed over for funding," Hamlin said.

Commission chairman makes no bones about it: he wants the money spent on roads

Don Smith, chairman of the County Board of Commissioners made no attempt to hide his feelings regarding the county transit system at the board's most recent meeting. "A 15-bus system is too big for me. I'm willing to provide a transit system for the elderly and the handicapped, but not to haul people to work," Smith added. Smith questioned Transit manager Art Sawarski about the numbers of people using the transit system for commuting purposes. Sawarski said that roughly 30 percent of the ridership is comprised of commuters riding to work, another 30 percent are handicapped riders, and the remaining 30 percent are elderly. In the 30 percent of elderly riders, 10 percent aren't actually people, but are meals for the elderly, which count as riders.

The 15-bus system will be replenished with two new buses costing a total of $111,792. Funds for the buses come from state money, which comes from the gasoline tax. As Smith said, "I'm paying to haul commuters with my gas tax dollars when I drive my car to work."

Gregg Seaman of Charlevoix is among the students named to the first semester Dean's List at Siena Heights College in Adrian. To be named to the Dean's List a student must be carrying a full load of classes and have a grade point average of 3.5 or better on a 4 point scale.

During the recent Democratic State Convention held in Detroit Feb. 6, and 7, Harold Chase of Charlevoix was elected to serve as a member of the Democratic State Central Committee (DSCC). Chase will serve as one of 11 delegates and 11 alternates representing the newly redistricted 1st Congressional District. The DSCC is the ruling body of the Michigan Democratic Party.

Band students receive high marks

Eleven Charlevoix High School instrumental music students participated in this year's District solo and ensemble festival Saturday in Gaylord. The students performed musical selections as soloists and in small ensembles at the festival along with instrumental musicians from more than 30 other schools throughout northern Michigan. In preparation for this event, several weeks ago the students were given selections of music from which they chose one to learn and perform. The responsibility for preparing the music is left to each individual student, with occasional help from the band director. Charlevoix band director Terry Iscobar had high praise for the band students who devoted the time and work necessary to prepare for the festival.

The following Charlevoix instrumental soloists received first division (I) ratings at the festival: Jake Porath, flute solo; Jamie McKinney, flute solo; Janet Campbell, clarinet solo; Annette Gardner, Bassoon solo; Sheila Siegart, cornet solo; Amy Parrish, trumpet solo; Anne Schairbaum, French horn solo; Russell Hand, trombone solo. A first division rating was also awarded to a brass quintet whose members are: Sheila Siegart and Nicole Moore on trumpet, Anne Schairbaum on French Horn, Russell Hand on trombone, and Paul Henne on Euphonium.

Receiving second division (II) ratings were: Jason Firman, cornet solo; Nicole Moore and Amy Parrish, trumpet duet.

Piano accompaniments for the events were played by Mr. Steve Stargardt.

Ski team claims two conference titles

The best - and it wasn't even close

Charlevoix won both the boys' and girls' conference ski titles Feb. 10 at Nubs Nöb. The Rayder girls flat dominated the conference meet finishing 42 points ahead of second place Harbor Springs. The boys' team won, but by only six points over a Harbor Springs which the Rayders had been unable to beat earlier in the season.

"It was a great race for us," said coach Eric Lundieigen. "It was the first time since '87 that we've won both the boys' and girls' title."

Team results for the girls' race were: Charlevoix, 32; Harbor Springs, 74; Boyne City, 101; Traverse City St. Francis, 148; Grayling, 203; Bellaire, 209; Kalkaska, 220; and Elk Rapids, 270.

Individually, freshman Carolyn Campbell led the Rayders with first place finishes in both the slalom and giant slalom. In the giant slalom, Campbell was joined by Amy Spang and Heidi Miller to give the Rayders a sweep of the top three places.

Individual results for the Rayder girls were as follows: Campbell, 15; 1GS; Spang, 35; 2GS; Kim Keller, 45; 8GS; Jessica Kline, 115; 10GS; Jodi Allison, 145; Sheila Siegwart, 325; 7GS; Miller, 35.

Team results for the boys' race were: Charlevoix, 45; Harbor Springs, 51; Boyne City, 92.5; Grayling, 146.5; Bellaire, 167.5; Traverse City St. Francis, 180; Elk Rapids, 276; Kalkaska, 282; and Mancelona, 315.

Individually for the Rayders, J.H. Heck placed first in the slalom while Scott Boyer placed third in the slalom and second in the giant slalom.

Complete individual results for the Rayders were as follows: Heck, 15; DOGS; Boyer, 35; 2GS; Jake Porath, 55; 5GS; Robbie Bunting, 85; 9GS; Charles Meier, 165; 30GS; Ryan Smith, 335; 12GS.

Charlevoix will be among 18 schools competing in the Regional race at Boyne Mountain Thursday.

"There are probably five schools that can win it. And we're definitely one of them," Lundieigen said.

Men's recreation basketball results

Russell's Auto Body came away with a big upset and Charlevoix County Construction also won in men's recreation basketball league play Thursday, Feb. 11.

In the opening game of the evening, Russell's Auto Body snapped Townhouse's two-year unbeaten streak with a 69-66 win.

In the opening game of the evening, Russell's Auto Body snapped Townhouse's two-year unbeaten streak with a 69-66 win. Russell's trailed at the half 38-32, but used a height advantage in the second half to come back for the win. For Russell's Jim Parrish had 25 points and Dave Norton, 22. Bud Kloosier led Townhouse with 17 points while Dave Storm had 15 and Chris Putman, 12.

Charlevoix County Construction moved into a tie with Townhouse for the league lead at 3-1, beat Waste Management 78-65. Vince Left led Charlevoix County Construction with 28 points while Brandon Joss had 24. Randy Holeccheck had 26 points for Waste Management while Kevin Swanson had 14 and Mike Dennis, 11.

Senior guard Matt Smith came off the bench to make a contribution in Charlevoix's 54-41 homecoming win Friday.

Senior forward Vince Voisin goes up for two of his team high 16 points against Mancelona Friday evening.

Youth hockey

The Char-Em Youth Hockey Pee Wee team won two games this past weekend. On Friday night the team defeated Mackinaw City 5-0 leading 1-0 and 3-0 at the end of the first and second periods.

For Char-Em goals were scored by Hunter Christoph, Matt Bondy, Jon Heise, Tim Boyer and Darrell Lawson. Assists were made by Cory DeNio, Bondy, and two by Cheyne Corey. Steve Fetting capped the shut out in goal.

On Saturday in Gaylord, the team won 7-0 leading 2-0, and 4-0 after the first and second periods. Cheyne Corey scored a three goal hat trick, with other goals scored by Mike Barach, Matt Bondy, Jon Heise, and Blair Welham. Assists went to Welham and Colin Carr. Fetting played goalie in the game and Mike Marr played strong defense.

The team, sponsored by the Sports Peddler, has a 7-9 record. The team is coached by Tim Bondy and Mike Marr.

In the bantam division, Charlevoix beat Cheboygan 7-4 at Cheboygan Feb. 7.

Jeremy Biggerstaff had a hat trick for Charlevoix while Shay Arnold scored two goals and Gerald Wagar and E.J. Ranville each had one. Cam Carr got the win in goal. Zach Kehler had three assists. David Bellairs had two and Alison Bonser, one.

Basketball team breaks losing streak with homecoming win

Charlevoix's varsity basketball team entered Friday evening's homecoming game against Mancelona being ridden by a four-game losing streak and looking to get well. It wasn't the prettiest game ever played, but the Rayders jumped out to a 16-4 lead by the end of the first quarter and despite a few slumps here and there came out of the evening with a 54-41 win.

The Rayders dominated the first quarter, using full court pressure to push the pace. Junior guard Brandon Webb came off the bench midway through the quarter and picked up the tempo of a game which was already moving too quickly for the visiting Ironmen. Had Charlevoix not missed some easy shots, the lead could well have been more than 12 points at the end of the quarter.

Charlevoix continued to play well early in the second quarter scoring the first two baskets of the quarter to extend their lead to 20-4. But late in the second quarter, the Rayders had trouble and were outscored 11-9. Offensively, the Rayders were shaky in their set of offense. And when they don't score out of their set offense, they don't get an opportunity to get into a full-court pressing defense to create transition baskets. Despite the offensive glitches the Rayders still led 29-15 at halftime.

In the first half, as in the second half, the Rayders held Andy Bowman, the league's leading scorer scoreless. Although Bowman wasn't having any luck on the offensive end, he was playing well on the defensive end. Despite spotting Rayder center Brad DeGrow a few inches in height, Bowman did a nice job of fronting DeGrow and preventing him from getting the ball.

The second half of the game was rather ragged and generally hum. Mancelona never mounted a serious threat, yet Charlevoix never pulled much further ahead. At the end of the third quarter the Rayders led 43-27.

Individually for the Rayders, forward Vince Voisin scored 16 points and had 11 rebounds. Jason Psihopaidas had 11 points and 10 rebounds. Don Jess had four assists. Webb, five steals, David Dohulis three blocks, DeGrow 13 rebounds and four blocks.

Charlevoix won the junior varsity game 59-55. Chuck Pop led the Rayders with 15 points while Jerry Duhat had 14.

Charlevoix will host East Jordan, Friday, Feb. 19.

Volleyball team finishes fourth in 1993 conference race

Charlevoix's varsity volleyball ended up fourth in the Great Northern Conference volleyball standings following the conference tournament Saturday in Kalkaska. Elk Rapids took the conference title followed by Kalkaska, Traverse City St. Francis, Charlevoix, Harbor Springs, East Jordan, Mancelona and Boyne City.

The Rayders faltered in pool play in the tournament going 2-4 on the day. Charlevoix split with Mancelona 15-3, 12-15, split with East Jordan 9-15, 15-2 and then lost to Elk Rapids 15-9, 15-12.

Top setters for the Rayders were Christy Siwarga and Melissa Cox.

Top servers were Liz Grunch and Laura Loder. Leading the offense were Angelina Doan and Anne Schairbaum. Top defenders were Doan and Grunch.

Charlevoix's next game is Wednesday, Feb. 17 at home against St. Ignace.

Parish wins his second league wrestling title with two pins

Team places sixth, but several freshmen wrestle well

132, Elk Rapids, 112, Whittemore-Prentiss, 107, Grayling 96.5, Charlevoix, 83, Kalkaska, 73 and Mancelona, 62.

David Morales, a freshman, placed second in the 125 pound weight class. Morales won his first two matches and lost in the finals on a pin at 5:48 after leading for most of the match.

Steve Wilson, another freshman, finished third at 112 pounds, going 2-2 for the day. In the consolation finals he won on a pin in 2:12.

Ron Haggard, a freshman wrestling at 145 pounds, entered the tournament unseeded, but finished fourth. He thrashed the tournament's third seed 17-4, lost to the eventual champion 12-11 and then lost in the final 30 seconds of this third match.

Also placing fourth were freshman heavyweight Matt Skippergosh and sophomore Jason Hughes at 103 pounds.

Charlevoix's next match will be Wednesday, Feb. 17 in the Class C team districts at St. Ignace.

ORDER TO ANSWER

At a session of said Court, held in the courthouse for said Circuit, on this 22nd day of January, 1993, PRESIDING The Honorable Richard M. Pailles

On 12/30/92, an action was filed by the above named Plaintiffs, against the above named Defendant in the Circuit Court for the county of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, to quiet title to real property situated as follows:

In the Township of Eveline, County of Charlevoix, Michigan, commencing at a 1-inch iron pipe at the south quarter corner of Section 33, T33N, R6W, thence along the South line of said section South 89 degrees 49'10" West 2630.36 feet to a 3/4 inch pipe at the Southwest corner of said section; thence along the West line of said section North 00 degrees 18'24" West 2747.87 feet; thence South 58 degrees 38'40" East 552.72 feet (recorded as South 58 degrees 50' East 548.9 feet); thence South 53 degrees 35'00" East (recorded as South 53 degrees 34' East), 296.30 feet to a 1/2-inch iron at the Northwest corner of the Gripenrog Family Revocable Living Trust dated January 9, 1991 property as described in Liber 328, Page 620, Charlevoix County records, being the POINT OF BEGINNING of this description; thence North 12 degrees 04'28" East 76.98 feet to the shore of Lake Charlevoix; thence along said shore South 54 degrees 19'00" East 23.64 feet; thence continuing along said shore South 59 degrees 53'00" East 64.32 feet; thence continuing along said shore 65 degrees 48'30" East 29.84 feet; thence leaving said shore South 09 degrees 22'37" West 84.98 feet to a 1/2-inch iron at the Northeast corner of said Gripenrog property; thence North 72 degrees 30'00" West (recorded as North 72 degrees 34' West) 25.00 feet to a 1/2-inch iron; thence North 53 degrees 35'00" West (recorded as North 53 degrees 34' West) 100.00 feet to the point of beginning; being a part of Government Lot 1 of Section 33, T33N, R6W. The above described parcel includes all land to the water's edge of Lake Charlevoix Northeastly of the courses described as being along said shore.

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the Defendant JENNIE L. COPP, as above named, and any heirs, successors, assigns, or others claiming thereunder, shall answer or take such other action as may be permitted by law on or before March 25, 1993. Failure to comply with this order will result in a judgment by default against Defendant for the relief demanded in the complaint.

PLEASE NOTE that a hearing will be held on April 12, 1993 at 2:15 p.m. in the Circuit Courtroom of the Charlevoix County Building in Charlevoix, Michigan, in connection with this matter.

Date signed: 1-22-93

Performing Arts students to present "Of Thee I Sing" Saturday, Feb. 27

The Charlevoix High School Performing Arts Team presents one of George and Ira Gershwin's earliest musicals, the political satire, "Of Thee I Sing," Saturday, Feb. 27 at 7:30 p.m., and Sunday, Feb. 28 at 2:30 p.m.

Based on the outrageous campaign for the presidency by John P. Wintergreen and his bumbling running mate Alexandra Throttlebottom, "Of Thee I Sing" leaves little about the American political scene unscathed. Virtually every type of politico is satirized.

The play opens as backroom political operatives persuade the handsome Wintergreen to base his otherwise idea-lacking campaign on the theme of love. Wintergreen agrees to marry the winner of a beauty contest, but when she turns out to be the sultry southern vamp, Dianne Devereaux, Wintergreen jilts her for the more wholesome Mary Turner. When Devereaux protests and the pompous French ambassador threatens war, the golf playing Supreme Court, a half-awake gaggle of silly members of congress, and the ever-eager Vice President Throttlebottom begin impeachment proceedings.

"Of Thee I Sing" was Charlevoix high school's entry into the annual drama competitions, during which Charlevoix placed third at Districts and fourth at Regionals, held in St. John's Feb. 13.

"This is a very broad farce," commented team coach Mrs. Connie Ford. "It was a new style of acting for a lot of our team and they had a lot of fun with it."

"I was extremely proud of their performance at Regionals. They had polished the play since districts and we were the highest placing C-D school. We were up against tremendous competition."

According to Ford, St. John's High School's presentation of "Into the Woods" won the Regionals with a perfect score of 1-100. Midland High School places second with "Taming of the Shrew" and Midland Dow took third with "Dames at Sea."

"Charlevoix gave an excellent performance. We drew a lot of laughs and a lot of positive remarks from the judges," Ford stated.

Excellent acting awards were presented at Regionals, to David Skeel as Wintergreen, Amber Phillips as the jilted beauty queen Dianne Devereaux, Paul Keehan as Senator Lipman, and Wendy Jacobs as Senator Fulton. The team also received considerable praise for its ensemble acting work.

Tickets for "Of Thee I Sing," now on sale through team members and at the high school office, are $4 for adults, $3 for students and senior citizens, and $12 for a family.

The inauguration and marriage of John P. Wintergreen, foreground (David Skeel) to Mary Turner, left front, (Mindy Noirot) is overseen by Vice President Alexandra Throttlebottom (Megan Bickersteth), the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court (John Parish) and Senator Lipman, (Paul Keehan).

Right: The French Ambassador (Nancy Damman) assures Dianna Devereaux (Amber Phillips) that France will go to war if U.S. President Wintergreen does not keep his promise and marry her.

SCRAPBOOK

Sno Challenge Festivals at Mt. McSaubia in past years drew large crowds for the thrills and spills downhill racing and downhill distance jumping. Skiing equipment then was far less refined, often consisting of nothing more than barrel staves and leather straps.

Lake levels are on the rise

The Great Lakes basin continued to receive above average precipitation in January. This is a continuation of a trend which first started in July 1992 and has led to a marked increase in the water levels of all the lakes. At the present time shoreline residents of lakes St. Clair, Erie and Ontario are alerted to this high water condition. If conditions worsen, the Corps will provide additional information in the update letters that accompany the Monthly Bulletin of Lake Levels. The 30-day outlook published by the National Weather Service projects moderate precipitation in the Great Lakes Region for the month of February.

The forecast, published in the Monthly Bulletin of Lake Levels for the Great Lakes projects Lake Superior to be near its long-term average levels for the next six months while Lakes Michigan-Huron, St. Clair, Erie, and Ontario will likely remain above their long-term average levels.

Lakes Michigan-Huron at the end of January were at elevation 579.20 feet (176.54 meters) above the mean water level at Rimouski, Quebec, or 20 inches (51 cm.) above Chart Datum. This was about 6 inches (15 cm.) above what it was a year ago, and about the same as one month ago. The January monthly mean level of 579.20 feet (176.54 meters) was about 7 inches (18 cm.) above the long-term average for January. The lakes, however, remained about 26 inches (66 cm.) below their all-time high January monthly mean level, which was recorded in 1987. The forecast shows that at the end of February, the level of Lakes Michigan-Huron will be about the same as what it was at the end of January. The lakes are expected to begin their seasonal rise in February. The water level in July 1991, is expected to be about 12 inches (30 cm.) above the long-term average for that month, and about 15 inches (38 cm.) above what it was in 1992.

Charlevoix receives proceeds from annual CROP Walk

Charlevoix County food pantries will receive $540.98 as their share of the funds raised by the 1992 CWC/CROP Walk, Charlevoix co-chairpersons Mary Helen Riggie and Kay Smith have announced.

Last September 113 walkers from Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan raised $6,647.60 in the annual CROP Walk sponsored by the Charlevoix County Ministerial Association. Funds are designated for overseas and local hunger relief, with one-fourth of the money being returned to local food pantries.

In 1992, Church World Service/Christian Rural Overseas Project returned $325,872 to Michigan communities, benefiting hundreds of programs that provide food to those in need. This was the seventh consecutive year that Michigan led the nation's CWS regions in raising income through CROP Walks.

The 1993 CROP Walk will take place on the second Saturday of September.

Funds being raised to protect small lakes

Local citizens committed to preserving and protecting the integrity of the Elk River Watershed as well as their communities' natural resources have teamed up with the Little Traverse Conservancy of Harbor Springs and the Grand Traverse Regional Land Conservancy of Traverse City to raise money for a new protection effort.

This effort is focused on preserving a large, marshy wetland on the river that connects Lake St. Clair and Six Mile Lake. This wetland is critical to the watershed for its ability to protect the region's water quality, removing polluting nutrients, preventing serious flooding, adjusting lake levels and stream flow differences, and to providing critical habitat for wildlife.

Six Mile Lake and Lake St. Clair, in both Antrim and Charlevoix Counties, are located in the Chain of Lakes near the headwaters of the Elk River watershed. The Chain of Lakes area in northwestern Michigan's Lower Peninsula is known as one of the state's most beautiful lake districts. The five hundred square-mile Elk River watershed features an interconnected system of large, deep glacially carved lakes, plus numerous spring fed lakes and miles of top quality trout streams. These waters and the surrounding lands have long been prized as outstanding recreational resources.

Carpenter Street site proposed for City DPW complex

Former councilman Bob Timms suggests alternative

By L. Scott Swanson

Former city councilman Bob Timms has suggested that rather than building a new public works building on US 31 south of town, the city consider purchasing the old Impac Tool/lonex property on Carpenter Street and put a new public works complex there. Second ward city councilman Butch Russell brought the suggestion before the City Council Monday evening and the possibility has been referred to the planning commission for further study.

In 1991 the City Council voted to purchase a 6.39 acre parcel of property off of US 31 south of town for approximately $102,000. (The purchase came after some wrangling when the 1990 council authorized the purchase and the 1991 council initially balked at authorizing the funding to go through with the deal. The purpose of purchasing the property was to acquire land for the eventual relocation of city public works facilities presently located near the corner of Ferry Avenue and Stover Road. The city's long range plan is to move the public works building and convert the land near Ferry Beach into some type of park facility.

Timms opposed the US 31 property purchase when it took place and continues to oppose it. He also opposes a proposal to eventually build a new public works complex on the US 31 site at an estimated cost of $2.4 million.

Students encourage organ donation

By Laurie Lounsbury

Are you an organ donor? Does the idea of making a promise to relinquish some of your body parts upon death make you nervous? The Potoskey chapter of Health Occupational Students of America (H.O.S.A.) is working to convince community members that organ donation can save lives. Charlevoix high school students Dawn Bowman and Brandy Sexton are members of H.O.S.A. Along with students from Potoskey, Boyne Falls, and Boyne City, the regional group is going into the communities to give presentations about organ and tissue donations. The community awareness project is one aspect of H.O.S.A. program, which trains juniors and seniors in high school for a career in the health field.

Bowman and Sexton gave a presentation to Charlevoix high school students last week. After the presentation they answered questions from the students and handed out organ donor cards. "A lot of kids have the attitude, 'I want to die with it,' when you talk about donating organs," Sexton said. "They're stubborn, I guess." Bowman added, "Both said that they felt the videotaped presentation helps to enlighten students about organ donation. 'I think they understand it more after they see the presentation,' Bowman said.

Band planning trip to Toronto

Spaghetti dinner to help fund May 9-12 trip to "Fiesta-val"

After years of planning and fundraising, the Charlevoix High School Symphonic and Concert bands will be heading to Toronto, Canada May 9. The three-day trip is being paid for almost entirely with money raised by the Charlevoix Band Boosters. The bands will be taking part in Toronto's Fiesta-val, an invitational festival for bands from Canada and the United States. Eighty Charlevoix band members will take part in the four day trip in May. While in Toronto, the band members will also have the opportunity to see Phantom of the Opera and make a quick stop at Niagara Falls on their return trip.

A Spaghetti Dinner Feb. 26 will help raise the remaining funds necessary for the band to take the trip. The all-you-can-eat dinner will be in the high school gym. The dinner is a part of the seventh annual Band Day, a day devoted to recognizing Charlevoix's band members.

This building and the 5.65 acres of land it sits on are being considered as a possible site for a new City Department of Public Works complex. Monday evening the city council referred the matter to the planning commission for further study.

...alternative DPW site considered

Timms compared a municipal public works complex to a household furnace. He said it's necessary and you want it to be efficient, but it doesn't necessarily have to be beautiful.

"I'm trying to look out for the taxpayers," Timms said.

Although he noted that "you can leave the utility department where it is for my money," he explained that if it is going to be moved it can be moved more cost effectively to the Carpenter Street property, which is currently for sale with a listed price of $195,000. The Carpenter Street site includes 5.65 acres and a 9,841 sq. ft. building.

In an information sheet he prepared on the issue, Timms listed what he feels are seven advantages to the Carpenter Street site as compared to the US 31 site. Those reasons are: Carpenter Street site is closer to the center of the service area of the City of Charlevoix; most of the needed utilities such as electricity, water and gas hook-ups are already in place at the Carpenter Street site; the existing building at the site makes the building cost less; the cost of employee travel time would be less saving hundreds of thousands of dollars over the years; security will be better at the Carpenter Street site which is within the patrol area of the City Police as opposed to the US 31 site which is not; liability for City vehicles would be greater at the US 31 site because it would require City vehicles to go through the busy US 31 and M-66 intersection and make left turns at a higher speed section of US 31; the Carpenter Street property can be purchased using money from the public works fund, motor pool fund and fringe benefit fund.

Timms wrote, "The decision to buy the lonex (i.e. Carpenter Street) property will save the taxpayers of the City of Charlevoix many thousands of dollars in the short run and untold thousands of dollars in the long run."

"Please don't throw good money after bad by using the Stump Dump (i.e. US 31) site for the Public Works Complex."

City council discussion of the proposal was minimal Monday evening. First ward council member Cheri Hoffman asked if people living near the Carpenter Street site might object to having a public works complex there. Russell said that will be one of the things for the planning commission to consider.

Rare and unusual Charlevoix reminiscences from near and far

Would you believe that Ralph Hamilton, member of the Historical Society, writes me that his memory goes back to the very first caretaker of East Park, Billie Cowen, who was so fastidious about the park's maintenance, that he used to follow the kids around who were eating popcorn and pick up the kernels that they dropped!

He also recalls that the "Charlevoix Song" was first sung by the Charlevoixes, a branch of the popular barber shop quartet in our area. The trio consisted of Alice Bellinger, Esther Hawley and Mildred Webster, whose lyrical voices were in great demand. I might add that this sentimental song, sung to the tune of "Little Bit of Heaven," is still heard occasionally at weddings and funerals of nostalgic Charlevoixians.

Another letter from Anne Olmstead, Charlevoix native and now California resident, recalls working at the Courier office from 1939 to 1944.

It seems the Courier had a society column in 1940, because she was sent to L.E. Block's house, on 431 Michigan Avenue, to report on the fashionable wedding of Mr. Block's daughter to Oscar Serlin, Broadway producer of "Life With Father."

"I remember that the Blocks were most gracious to a green kid from the local paper. I didn't know then he was CEO of Inland Steel until I later saw his picture in a spread about an collectors in LIFE magazine. I do remember that the new Mrs. Serlin's wedding dress was a brown lace, from Hattie Carnegie, which must have impressed me a lot to stick in my memory this long. They left for their honeymoon on that Sunday night's Resort Special—but then, didn't everybody?"

"You might remember the summer baking my mother, Millie Higman, did. Her schnecken, dobosh tortes and chocolate roles were famous."

Yes, I do remember, Ann, and the recipes for those famous schnecken and dobosh tortes are in my book "All About Parties!"

She continues, "My father, William Higman, master carpenier, worked on your neighbor's house at 514 Michigan Avenue when it was built. My husband, Franklin Olmstead, is also a Charlevoix native and two of our three sons were born there; in fact, we scored about 42 on your clever quiz last summer, and I was sorry you got such flack about it. Some people have no sense of humor."

"Keep up your good column. We do like to read about whatever it is that's stirring up the populace. Now that everybody loves the new band shell, we are eagerly waiting for resolution of the squabble over the new fire truck. Our opinion is that the 350 engine is not powerful enough. We'll stay tuned."

Governor's privatization program explained

(Editor's note: The following story was submitted by Jim Barrett, chairman of Governor John Engler's Michigan Public-Private Partnership Commission.)

In today's economy, businesses and individuals have to examine their budgets and make adjustments. State government should do the same.

That's why Governor Engler appointed the Michigan Public-Private Partnership Commission—to develop a system to evaluate the way state services are provided. The Commission recently presented final recommendations to the Governor and Legislature.

Our commission believes current and future state services should be carefully examined under a comprehensive analysis called PERM: Privatize, Eliminate, Retain, or Modify. State government has an obligation to ensure services are delivered in the most cost-effective manner possible.

Let's take a look at the PERM process of evaluation. Privatization, one of the four possible outcomes under the PERM process, is the transferring of the financing and/or the production of a service from the public sector to the private sector. Under the right circumstances, competition and market forces can cause cost savings of 20 percent or more, often accompanied by improvements in service quality. Competitive bidding for provision of state services ensures that Michigan residents get the best use of their tax dollars.

Significant improvements in government efficiency already have taken place in Michigan through privatization. As an example, during the Blanchard administration, the Michigan Department of Treasury privatized the collection of back taxes by hiring an outside firm. It created a computerized system that has proved much more effective and efficient than the previous case of state-hired and managed employees.

If privatization is chosen, it's imperative that contracting out is done properly. Open, competitive bidding precludes cronyism; carefully written contracts subject to periodic renewal maximize a contractor's incentive to keep standards high; and careful monitoring of contractor performance ensures every detail in the contract is followed.

Privatization is not the answer for every situation. Comprehensive evaluation, under the PERM process, may yield three other outcomes: elimination, retention of a service in its present form, or modification.

Elimination: In the case where the need for a state service no longer exists, or it is operating only for the economic benefit of a select special interest, the activity should be eliminated. The resources supporting such a service should be redirected to other uses.

Retention: If the activity is being run in the best and most efficient manner possible, it should be retained in its present form.

Modification: In this outcome, a program/activity is altered to be more effective or efficient and is retained in its modified form. For example, when the maintenance of Wayne County roads was put up to bid, a streamlined Wayne County Road Commission won over private contractors. This has saved taxpayers over $400,000 to date and is estimated to save up to $1 million every year.

In another example, the Michigan Department of Civil Rights modified operations through computerization and new procedures. Even though it had fewer staffers last year and three fewer offices, it cut processing time of cases dramatically and for the first time in years, resolved more cases than it took in.

We believe, if implemented, the PERM process has the potential for significant savings for state government. If programs are operated more efficiently, taxpayers' resources can be freed up for priority activities.

The PERM process ensures the state will consider all options: eliminating useless programs; modifying current service delivery systems, making no changes or privatizing. As Democrat Gov. Mario Cuomo of New York says, "It's not government's job to provide services, but to see they're provided."

PERM makes sense. The challenge is to overcome special-interest groups who are bound and determined to defend the status quo no matter what the cost to Michigan taxpayers.

Mathews - Oostmeyer

Kelly J. Mathews of Grand Rapids and Todd A. Oostmeyer of Grand Rapids were married December 4, 1992 at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church. The bride is the daughter of Andrea and Vernon Mathews of Charlevoix. The groom is the son of Linda Oostmeyer of Charlevoix and Richard Oostmeyer of Seattle, Washington.

Two hundred guests witnessed the double ring ceremony performed by Pastor Bill Mindell. The bride's mother and father gave the bride away in a church decorated for the candlelight ceremony in a Victorian theme with black lace and tulle. Cedar boughs were used with silk flowers in eggplant and mauve. A large grapevine wreath was decorated with silk flowers and black tulle.

The bride's dress was designed and sewn by the bride's mother. The bridal gown featured a modified mermaid bodice of white princess velvet with Venice lace of roses encircling the off-the-shoulder neckline. Venice lace of leaves and roses trailed down the full skirt of white tulle over silk with a chapel train. The entire dress and full chapel veil was embellished with Australian crystal. Her headpiece was made by the bride with Venice roses and Australian crystals. She carried a bouquet of loose white roses, eggplant mums, Queen Ann's lace, baby's breath, cedar, and eucalyptus.

Music was provided by Steve Stargardt and the Assembly of God Orchestra. They played Eric's Theme from Chariots of Fire.

Stephanie Lambert of Petoskey served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Kristy Mathews of Cary, North Carolina; sister of the bride; Danita Mathews of Charlevoix; sister in law of the bride; Dora Mindell; and Lisa Farmer, both of Petoskey.

The bridesmaids wore two piece Victorian styled outfits with a floral print bodice. They were trimmed in black velvet with eggplant roses and hunter green leaves, all edged in gold. The tea length skirts were made of black chiffon. The bridesmaids carried loose bouquets of eggplant and mauve silk roses, eucalyptus, tied with black tulle.

Flower girls were Kelsey Heisler and Shelby Marie Mathews, the bride's niece. Kelsey wore a dress with a drop waist chiffon skirt and a bodice of black velvet. Shelby wore a black velvet print dress with pantaloons. The ringbearer was Travis Oostmeyer, son of the groom.

Best man was Paul Balmus of Chicago, Illinois. Groomsmen were Mark Price of Chicago, Bob Johnson of Petoskey, Craig Mathews, brother of the bride, and Mark Oostmeyer, the groom's brother of Detroit. Ushers were Denny Lechowicz and Chris Lambert, both of Petoskey.

A reception was given by the bride's parents at the Charlevoix Assembly of God church. Denay and Mary Lechowicz hosted the event. A rehearsal dinner was held at the Weatherlane Restaurant the evening before the wedding, hosted by the groom's mother.

A Caribbean honeymoon is planned for early spring. The newlyweds reside in Grand Rapids. The groom is a U.S. Army recruiter in Wyoming, WY, and the bride works as an educational consultant for Matrix Hair and Skin Care of Solon, Ohio.

Kenney - Duckworth

Joan M. Kenney of Charlevoix and Theodore K. Duckworth of Charlevoix were married December 12, 1992, in an afternoon wedding at St. Francis Xavier Church in Petoskey.

The bride is the daughter of Dorothy and William E. Kenney of Charlevoix. The groom is the son of Marilyn and Delmar Duckworth of Las Vegas, Nevada.

Approximately 80 guests witnessed the double ring ceremony performed by Father Glenn Phillip.

The bride was given in marriage by both her mother and her father in a church with decorated with poinsettias. She wore a satin wedding gown with a hand beaded wedding band collar and a reverse dropped basque waist adorned with lace and studded with pearls. Her dress also featured log-cotton sleeves and an open back with draped pearls and a scalloped cathedral train of sequins and lace.

The maid of honor was Mary Ann Mielke of South Haven, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Jayne Scharenbroch of Rochland, MA, and Kristin Hawkins of Charlevoix.

The bridesmaids wore velvet emerald green, form fitted gowns with a white satin V back accented with a bow. They carried flowers of star gazers, carnations, and fire and ice roses with ivy.

The best man was Rodney Guster of Charlevoix. Serving as groomsmen were Jim Kenney, brother of the bride, and Kevin Peters of Mio. A reception was given by the parents of the bride at Alexander's of Charlevoix. The rehearsal dinner was given by the groom's parents at Alexander's of Charlevoix.

Woman begins dialysis program while awaiting kidney transplant

By Ralph McRae

To understand dialysis, it is necessary to have some idea of the multiple functions a normal kidney serves. Among a body's organs, a kidney is second only to the heart in performing vital services. Kidneys clean and filter the blood to remove waste products. They stimulate red blood cells and control blood pressure. And they maintain the proper balance of necessary chemicals, such as potassium, sodium, calcium, phosphorus, chloride and other minerals. Using very tiny filters, the kidneys do their work every minute silently and efficiently. For a person living 70 years, kidneys will go through 105 million quarts of blood.

Kidney problems can be caused by a number of conditions such as infections, diabetes, high blood pressure or polycystic (the formation of large numbers of cysts) conditions. Mrs. A's life-threatening kidney problems resulted from an onslaught of cysts which eventually shut down the kidneys' filters and caused them to no longer function. In her case, this tendency was inherited, but it didn't make its appearance in Mrs. A until she was past age 40. Now, at 60, she is in the advanced stages of renal disease, or complete kidney failure.

Just a few weeks ago, Mrs. A had to choose between two forms of dialysis. One type is done at the hospital, three times a week and takes six hours. The other type can be done at home, but must be done four times a day and takes half an hour each time. Mrs. A chose the home dialysis.

In order to have dialysis, Mrs. A had to have an incision made in her stomach and a tube placed in the incision. Attached to the end of the tube is a membrane which filters the dialysis solution. When the dialysis solution flows into the stomach cavity, it works in harmony with the membrane and through osmosis absorbs impurities. Once the solution has absorbed the impurities, it is removed from the body and replaced with fresh solution. Monthly, a 600 pound shipment of dialysis solution and 120 transfer kits (the external tubes etc.) are delivered to her home. Over a period of a year the solution and equipment would weigh three tons. Caution is used to make sure everything is kept sterile since an infection could cause serious complications.

Mrs. A has now performed this self treatment more than 40 times. Her professional background as a nurse has been very helpful. It takes 30 minutes each time. During the process, Mrs. A passes the time by reading or watching TV. The process only cleans the blood. It doesn't carry out all of the functions of the kidneys. Mrs. A must also take prescribed vitamins and follow a very strict diet. To monitor the efficiency of her diet, Mrs. A must have her blood analyzed weekly.

Mrs. A has a wonderful attitude and appears healthier since beginning dialysis. As mentioned in the last article, she is on a transplant list and it is hoped that through a niece she will receive a healthy kidney this summer.

Landfill begins accepting Grand Traverse garbage

Out-of-county garbage accepted following Supreme Court decision

By Laurie Lounsbury

With the assumption of the United States Supreme Court's blessing, Waste Management is hauling solid waste from Grand Traverse County and dumping it in the Cedar Ridge Landfill.

A Supreme Court ruling in a case involving a southern Michigan landfill against the Michigan Department of Natural Resources found that, "Waste import restrictions unambiguously discriminate against interstate commerce."

What that means is that a local county's solid waste plan can't dictate to private landfills where they can do business, and from where they can accept waste. Barney Way, manager of Waste Management's Cedar Ridge Landfill said, "It is Waste Management's opinion that flow control was unconstitutional as it was laid out in the solid waste plan." The Supreme court ruling said that Public Act 641, which mandated solid waste plans in every county in Michigan, was in violation of the interstate commerce clause of the U.S. Constitution. Legal council for Waste Management has taken that a step further and has interpreted the ruling to mean that if a waste company can accept out-of-state waste, then they shouldn't be restricted on accepting out-of-county waste.

Way said that Waste Management will continue to look for more out-of-county waste in order to support the operating costs of the Cedar Ridge Landfill. "We aren't the only guys doing it," Way added, noting that other waste companies are seeking out-of-county waste. Way said he believed the competition for garbage will benefit everyone. "Prices haven't gone down, but they haven't gone up either," he said.

Waste Management says it has no intentions of filling up the landfill in a hurry and then moving on. "Our goal is still to maintain a long-life site," Way said. The present life expectancy of the landfill is ten years. Way said accepting out of county waste will shorten the life expectancy by months, not years. Waste Management would like to be able to expand the landfill to a 20-year life expectancy.

County Planner Larry Sullivan acknowledges that rumors are circulating regarding a possible lawsuit brought by the county commissioners against Waste Management, but he said, "To my knowledge the board is not contemplating any legal action at this point."

BUSINESS

School in-service to focus on teamwork and communication

Charlevoix Elementary School will be the site of a school-wide in-service for the staff of the Charlevoix Public Schools Thursday, March 4, from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. Speaker and facilitator for the evening will be Gail A. Holtmeyer, President/Owner of Communication Workshops, Inc. of Rochester, Michigan. Holtmeyer comes to Charlevoix with 18 years experience in facilitating team building and conducting communication seminars in both the educational and business settings. A former high school teacher and community college instructor in business, Holtmeyer assists both business and educational professionals in developing and implementing plans to achieve goals and objectives.

The topic of the in-service will be "Building Team of Excellence: No One Works Alone!" Charlevoix

Schools are currently involved in school improvement, a process which involves the whole community.

"Your school," states Holtmeyer, "like many others, has realized that people working together can accomplish more than individuals working alone or as adversaries. The goal of the team process is to maximize a school's human resources to improve the quality of instruction and student achievement."

Participants will practice "some of the essential concepts and skills necessary to create a highly effective and interactive staff."

Names in local business

LexaLite International Corporation recently named Ronald L. Sitzema vice president of Lighting and Technical Services, an in-house group that provides optical design, photometry testing and CAD design. Sitzema has been with LexaLite over 21 years and was previously manager of the independent Lighting Services Group.

Sitzema started at LexaLite in 1971 as a part-time draftsman and is now an extremely active and respected member of the lighting community. His professional memberships include the Society of Automotive Engineers, International Commission on Illumination, and International Society for Optical Engineering.

In addition to these organizations, Sitzema belongs to the Illuminating Engineering Society of North America (I.E.S.N.A.). He was chairman of the Off Roadway Committee for seven years, and, during that time his committee published three important lighting standards books. He currently serves on I.E.S.N.A.'s Off Roadway, Measurement and Calculations, and Headlighting subcommittees.

Sitzema was privately tutored in optic design by Lighting Engineer Bill Weible and LexaLite's Josh Barnes. Sitzema is the co-inventor of nine patents and has seven patents pending.

Health Department addresses Boyne City hepatitis case

Charlevoix Courier Wednesday, February 24, 1993 - PAGE 11

Brian L. Youngs, M.D., Medical Director/Health Officer for District Health Department No. 3, and the management of McDonald's in Boyne City believe that the public should be provided information about infectious hepatitis (hepatitis A) in one employee of the restaurant.

On Feb. 15, an employee at McDonald's Restaurant in Boyne City was diagnosed with hepatitis A. The individual has not worked since Feb. 3. The restaurant has been evaluated by an environmental health sanitarian from the health department. Current and past food inspections have been very good. The employees use good food and personal hygiene measures. To ensure community safety, the facility has taken necessary precautions to include prophylaxis with immune globulin of all employees. Immune globulin can provide immunity to individuals exposed to hepatitis A.

The virus enters the body through the mouth, multiplies in the body and is passed in the stool. If careful hand washing with soap is not done, the virus can then be carried on an infected person's hands and can be spread by direct contact, or by consuming food or drink that has been handled by that individual. In some cases, it can be spread by consuming water contaminated with improperly treated sewage. It should be emphasized that hepatitis A virus is not normally spread to classroom contacts or work associates.

The symptoms of hepatitis A may include fatigue, abdominal pain, muscle or joint pain, nausea, poor appetite, fever, and vomiting. Urine may become darker in color, and stools light colored, and then jaundice (a yellowing of the skin and whites of the eyes) may appear. The disease is rarely fatal and most people recover in a few weeks without any complications. Infants and young children tend to have a very mild illness or no symptoms. They are less likely to develop jaundice than are older children and adults. Not everyone who is infected will have all of the symptoms.

The symptoms can appear from two to eight weeks after exposure, but four weeks is the general rule. An infected person can spread the virus (contagious period) from about two weeks before the symptoms appear to one week after the onset of jaundice. Once an individual recovers from hepatitis A, he or she is immune for life and does not continue to carry the virus. There are no special medicines or antibiotics that can be used to treat a person once the symptoms appear. Generally, bed rest is all that is needed.

Hepatitis A is primarily transmitted through person-to-person contact, generally through fecal contamination and oral ingestion. Sharing utensils or cigarettes or kissing is not believed to transmit the hepatitis A virus. The single most effective way to prevent spread is careful hand washing after using the toilet. This measure cannot be emphasized strongly enough. Infected persons should not handle foods during the contagious period. They should also practice good personal hygiene. Patrons of the restaurant do not need immune globulin.

Dr. Youngs wants to reassure the public that restaurant and health officials are doing everything they can to ensure people are informed, and that transmission of the disease is prevented. If you have questions or concerns, please contact a physician, the Charlevoix County public health nurse, or Dr. Youngs at 347-6014.

Print exhibit to be displayed at Arts Center

The Twelfth Annual Alma College Statewide Print Competition will be displayed at the Virginia McCune Community Arts Center throughout the month of March. A celebration of printmaking in Michigan, this 11-month tour began in December. The exhibition showcases the work of 38 prints by 29 Michigan artists.

The Crooked Tree Arts Council is proud to host this "Great cross section of creative personalities... from a zany trumpet player, to a sophisticated nude, to the haunting poetry in another work." Garo Antreasian, juror. "Looking at it from a strictly archival, historical perspective, this annual Alma College Statewide Print Competition is a service provided to the state." Antreasian said. "In 50 years, this collection will be a significant part of the creative resource of the State of Michigan."

The exhibition will open Monday, March 1 and run through Monday, March 29. Visitors can see the show Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. There is no admission charge and the museum is handicap accessible. For information call 347-4337.

Boys' and girls' ski teams both qualify for State meet

Of 18 schools in region, only Charlevoix qualifies two teams

Charlevoix's boys' and girls' ski teams both qualified for State Finals at Regional Competition Thursday at Boyne Mountain. Of the 18 teams competing in the regional race, Charlevoix was the only school to have both their boys' and girls' teams place in the top two and thus qualify for the State Finals. Both Rayder teams placed second. The Rayder girls finished 20 points behind Petoskey while the Rayder boys finished 41.5 points behind Harbor Springs.

Following the success at the regional race Coach Eric Lundteigen and his team have turned their attention to the State meet March 1 in Marquette.

Lundteigen said the team isn't planning on going to Marquette just for the sake of making the trip. "We're going up there to do well. We're going to give it a good shot," he said.

This is not the first trip to the State Finals for the Rayder ski team. However, it is the first time since 1987 that both the girls' and boys' teams have qualified in the same year.

In the past, the Rayders have had some individuals do well in the state meet and placed second as a team, but they've never won a state title. Year in and year out, Northern Lower Michigan produces the top Michigan ski teams. Traverse City, Petoskey, Harbor Springs and Charlevoix are traditionally among the state's best teams.

Of this year's state meet, Lundteigen said, "We're one of the top four teams in the state and in a race like that anything can happen."

One thing which may help the Rayders this year is substantial fan support.

"I think we're going to have a fairly large contingent going up there with us," Lundteigen said.

Results from the Regional meet follow:

The top three girls' teams and their scores were: Petoskey - 47; Charlevoix - 67; Gaylord - 125. Individual results in the slalom (S) and giant slalom (GS) for the Rayder girls were: Carolyn Campbell

"We're one of the top four teams in the state and in a race like that anything can happen."

Team scores for the boys were: Harbor Springs - 84; Charlevoix - 125.5; Petoskey - 164. Individual results for the Rayders were: J.H. Heck 5S, 11GS; Scott Boyer 8S, 8GS; Robbie Bunting 16S, 21GS; Charles Meier 52S, 36GS; Ryan Smith DQS, 18GS; Jake Porath DQS, 7GS.

Charlevoix will compete in the State Finals meet Monday, March 1 in Marquette.

Keith Carey measures his steps as he prepares to take the ball to the basket in the Rayders 74.53 win over East Jordan Friday night.

Freshman Carolyn Campbell placed first in the giant slalom and second in the slalom among skiers from 18 schools at last Thursday's Regional ski meet.

Parish and Hughes to wrestle in Regional Keith Parish placed second and Jason Hughes fourth in the Class C district individual wrestling tournament at Sanford-Meridian High School Saturday. They were the only two Charlevoix wrestlers to place. Both of them will advance to the Class C individual regional Saturday, Feb. 27 at Ithaca.

Parish, a junior, wrestled in the 189 pound class while Hughes, a sophomore, wrestled at 103 pounds.

Parish was 2-1 for the day. He won his first match on a technical pin over an opponent from Mancelona. In his second match, he beat a Maple City-Glen Lake wrestler and he was pinned in the finals by an opponent from Coleman.

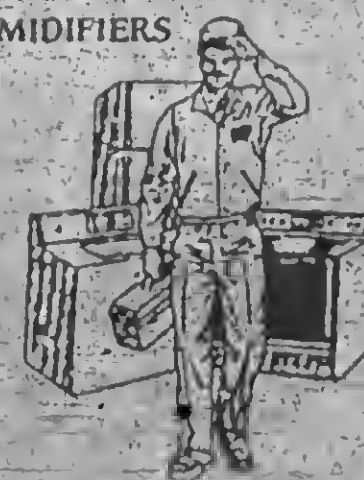

Hughes drew a first round bye and then won on a pin in 3:19. He then lost a 5-1 decision to an Elk Rapids wrestler and was later pinned by a wrestler from Rogers City.

Rayders start well and beat East Jordan

Using aggressive defense and taking advantage of some floating East Jordan passes, Charlevoix jumped out to an 11-1 lead against the visiting Red Devils and rode that lead to a 73-54 win. Although the Rayders outscored the Red Devils big early and late in the game, East Jordan played well enough in the second and third quarter to hang around and keep the game interesting. In the third quarter, East Jordan even managed to outscore the Rayders 16-15.

Charlevoix opened the game against the visitors from the southern part of the county in a full court pressing defense. When East Jordan either floated or telegraphed passes, the Rayders stepped into the passing lane, intercepted and converted. With East Jordan down 11-1 and 2:09 left in the first quarter, Red Devil coach Bill Chase called a time out. The time-out in combination with the insertion of sophomore Steve Wilfrong into the line-up spurred an East Jordan rally and the quarter closed with the Rayders up 13-8.

Although the Rayder defense made life difficult for East Jordan in terms of passing, something the Rayders did not do well in the first half was prevent the Red Devils from getting offensive rebounds. But that wasn't the easiest thing to do. This year's East Jordan team does not lack in either height or mobility. And they aren't the least bit shy about bringing that height and mobility hard to the offensive glass. While Charlevoix's defense made it difficult for East Jordan to pass the ball, the Red Devils' greatest downfall in the first half was shooting. With the exception of Wilfrong, none of the other Red Devils could get the ball to stay in the hole. It was just one of those frustrating nights. And the offensive rebounds were wasted when second and third shots rattled on the rim and coughed out just the same as first shots.

While East Jordan was having problems scoring in the second quarter, Charlevoix's all junior line-up of David Dobulis, Brandon Webb, Matt Norton and Don Jess was having no such difficulty. The Rayders scored 22 points in the quarter and went into halftime leading 35-20.

In the third quarter, East Jordan and Charlevoix essentially traded baskets with East Jordan outscoring the Rayders by one 16-15 and cutting the Rayder lead to 14 points, 50-35 entering the final quarter.

In a mid-season slump which the Rayders appear to be coming out of they were having problems with fourth quarter scoring droughts. That didn't happen Friday evening.

Jess and center Brad DeGrowth keyed a Rayder roll which totaled 23 points in the quarter.

Individually for Charlevoix, Jess had 16 points, four assists and four steals. DeGrowth had 14 points and 10 rebounds. Jason Psihopaidas contributed a dozen points while Keith Carey just kind of helped out wherever he could - scoring 11 points, collecting seven rebounds, dealing out four assists and making three steals.

The win raised the Rayders' league record to 8-4 and season record to 11-5.

For East Jordan, Wilfrong had 22 points and Corey Chambers added 10 points. The loss dropped East Jordan's league record to 4-8 and season record to 5-12.

Charlevoix also won Friday evening's junior varsity game 61-54. Justin Gengle led the Rayders with 20 points, Jerry Duhart had 11 and Charlie Pop, 10.

Charlevoix will host Harbor Springs Friday, Feb. 26.

Methodist Church welcomes minister

Rev. Dale Ostema to serve in Charlevoix and at Greensky Hill

Rev. Dale P. Ostema and family

Rev. Dale P. Ostema, 34, is the new pastor of the Charlevoix and Green Sky Hill United Methodist Churches. Ostema assumed responsibilities on Feb. 1 of the 182 member Charlevoix United Methodist Church and the 39 member Greensky Hill United Methodist Church.

Prior to coming to Charlevoix, Ostema helped found the Baldwin Covenant Community United Methodist Church. He led the Baldwin Church for five years.

Ostema and his wife, Debbie, are both graduates of Michigan State University, with Bachelor of Science degrees in education. In 1988, Ostema graduated from the Methodist Theological Seminary in Ohio.

The Ostemas have two children, River, 4, and Alison, 2.

Church services at Greensky Hill begin at 9:30 a.m. Sundays. Charlevoix United Methodist services begin at 11 a.m. Sundays. Sunday school for all ages begins at 9:30 a.m. in Charlevoix.

Joel Pardee, 92, of Charlevoix, died Feb. 17, 1993, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility in East Jordan.

His funeral was Saturday, Feb. 20, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton of the Community Church of God officiated. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery.

He was born May 24, 1900, in Marion, the son of Charles and Annie (Ackley) Pardee.

Mr. Pardee worked as a lumberman his entire life and had lived in Charlevoix since 1949.

He married Violet Loucks on Dec. 27, 1927, in Germfask. She preceded him in death on Feb. 24, 1979.

Survivors include one son, William W. Pardee and his wife Marilyn of Charlevoix; three daughters, Mrs. Ernest (Joella) Williams of Deland, Fla., Mrs. Joe (Melva) Armstrong of Mar-

Local couple featured in national magazine

What do you look for in a spouse? Well, someone who likes old tractors

Dudley and Paula Stevens are shown on their wedding day in front of one of the old tractors belonging to their parents. The couples shared affection for old tractors and the role that played in their wedding is chronicled in the March edition of "The Gas Engine Magazine," a national magazine focusing on old fashioned gas engines and machines they power.

A local couple has photos of their wedding day in the March edition of a national magazine. And the magazine is a far cry from "Modern Bride." The magazine is called "The Gas Engine Magazine." It centers around old fashioned gas engines and the equipment they power.

The local couple is Dudley and Paula Stevens who were married this past September. The magazine story, written by Dudley's mother, Donna Stevens, tells about one of the shared interests which helped bring the couple together, a shared affection for old tractors.

Dudley and Paula are both the children of parents stricken with tractor-mania. Paula's parents, Bob and Pauline Crandall, of Charlevoix, own four old restored Rumely tractors. Dudley's parents, Bill and Donna Stevens, own five old restored Allis Chalmers tractors. Both families attend summer get-togethers of people who share their interest in old machinery. Skip and Pauline Crandall are charter members of the Northern Michigan Antique Flywheelers Club, a group which has a big summer show near Walloon Lake. Bill and Donna Stevens are part of a fairly large contingent of Charlevoix people who travel to Buckley each summer and camp in travel trailers during a large showing of old time engines and equipment.

The magazine story, which appears on page 17 and 18, details Dudley and Paula Stevens' appreciation of old tractors. The story is a bit more than a page long and includes two color photographs and a black and white photograph. All three photos incorporate old tractors.

Local man and friends enjoy "Sled-mania"

By L. Scott Swanson

When the snow flies and the weather turns bitter cold in northern Michigan, most people stay indoors and huddle by the fire. But not John Taylor. Out the door he goes, shovel in hand, water hose at the ready, bound and determined to build something.

When he was a boy in Oak Park, Michigan he and his mother built skating rinks in the back yard. Later, at Michigan Tech University, he designed and worked with his fraternity brothers in constructing four first place ice statues at the University's annual winter festival. For the past several years, at his home in the rolling hills of Hayes Township, he has designed and built sled (luge) runs.

"Instead of building statues, now I build this sled run," Taylor says.

And Taylor hasn't been content to go out and play in the cold by himself. No, he's led several other local people down a slippery slope of winter frivolity.

"This year, about 25 other people helped (build the sled run)," Taylor explained. "I figure we've got around 200 man-hours into it."

Among those who help Taylor is his girlfriend, Kim Rowe. While some women might at the very least express some reservations about a boyfriend who looks forward to subfreezing weather, Rowe never bats an eye. She joins right in, grabbing a shovel when the run needs to be cleared and then sorting through a pile of plastic sleds and scooting down the run.

A few of the many other people who have helped build the run include: Joe Schmidt, Tom Pluister, Aaron Dishong and Eric and Robin Johnson. This year's run, which is the ninth for Taylor and company, features Sledding isn't just a solo sport at John Taylor's home. Often friends link arms and legs and come down the elaborate sled run as a unit.

City Council adopts $9.5 million budget

By L. Scott Swanson

Monday evening the City Council approved a 1993-94 fiscal year budget calling for $9,575,500 in expenditures. The budget calls for $1,787,300 in general fund expenditures and $7,788,200 in total expenditures from a variety of other funds.

Prior to approving the budget, the council cut $240,000 proposed for a six-year City Hall improvement program and revised water and sewer increases down from proposed figures of 29 percent and 17 percent to 11.2 percent and 5.7 percent. Although the rate increases were reduced for this year, the council's plan is not to increase rates less for the long term, but simply to spread the initially proposed increase out over a number of years. In other words, rather than increasing rates a lot every few years, the plan is to increase rates some each year. Likewise, the City Hall improvement program has been shelved for this year, but will be back next year when there is a more detailed improvement plan.

The budget calls for a total city millage levy on residential property of 13.47 mills. That is down from 14.06 mills levied in the current year. (A mill is $1 per every $1,000 of state equalized value (SEV), which is 50 percent of theoretical market value.) Despite the drop in millage, city tax revenues will be higher due to increases in SEV. In the current year, each mill levied by the City brings in approximately $91,531 to the general fund. According to estimates, each mill levied in the coming year will bring $107,500 into the general fund. Multiplying those figures gives you an anticipated tax revenue increase of $161,100 to the City's general fund budget.

In addition to the modifying the City Hall improvement program and the water and sewer rate increases, council and audience members raised several other questions prior to approving the budget. Third ward council representative Bruce Livingston said he believes that the financial condition many local taxpayers are in behooves the council to try to trim anything not absolutely necessary out of the city budget.

Livingston was one of several people who questioned a proposed $225,000 Downtown Development Authority (DDA) expenditure for new street lights. "The figure just kind of grabs you by the throat right off the bat," Livingston said.

Second ward council representative Ted Felter noted that even if the council disapproved of the expenditure, the money would still stay with the DDA. Livingston asked what would happen if the money was still there when the DDA program ends in 1998. Felter said that it would probably be distributed to various taxing entities, much like leftover Tax Increment Financing Authority (TIFA) were distributed when that program concluded.

To which Livingston remarked: "So it's like one of these government things where you have the money so you have to spend it."

Mayor Dave Novotny and city attorney Jim Young pointed out that the time for the council to consider specific DDA projects is in DDA development plan discussions rather than in city budget discussions. Jacqueline Merta, Executive Director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, defended the proposed street lights and reminded the council that a city appointed task force has spent many hours working on downtown lighting as well as lighting in other parts of the city.

Second ward council representative Butch Russell questioned setting aside money for a new public works complex. Russell said that when property for the complex was purchased, he said that the next thing would be

Extravaganza kicks off annual Charlevoix Middle School Week

The annual Charlevoix Middle School Extravaganza will take place from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m., Saturday, March 6 in the Middle School gym. The Extravaganza, which is coordinated by parents of Middle School students, will feature a variety of games and fun along with food in the cafeteria. Proceeds from the Extravaganza are used to purchase special student items. For example, in past years Extravaganza revenues have funded items such as a digital message board for students and a new Middle School trophy case.

The Extravaganza also serves as a kick-off for Charlevoix Middle School Week. The schedule for Middle School Week activities this year is as follows:

Monday, March 8: An assembly featuring a show by a magician.

Tuesday, March 9: 6:30 a.m. to 8 a.m. - A breakfast for staff and community members who work with Charlevoix Middle School students.

Wednesday, March 10: Parents day for sixth grade students. (An opportunity for parents to attend school with their student for all or part of the school day.)

Thursday, March 11: Parents day for seventh grade students.

Friday, March 12: Parents day for eighth grade students and in the evening a dance for seventh and eighth grade students.

In explaining the objective of Charlevoix Middle School Week, school principle Dennis VanGuilder said, "It's all set up to draw attention to the distinct middle school level. Sometimes we get lost in the shuffle."

State figures allow comparisons to be made between school districts

The Michigan League for Human Services recently released a comprehensive report on K-12 public education in Michigan. Included in the report were sheets of information (see chart at top left corner of page) which allowed a comparison of school districts on a county by county basis.

Michele Robotham of the League for Human Services said the reason for the report was "just to provide a resource for people to look through and compare."

Information from the report was sent to newspapers throughout the state. Robotham said, "We've had more press response than we thought we were going to get."

She noted that the data in the report is from the Michigan Department of Education and all financial figures are from the 1990-91 school year and are the most recent data available.

"I feel like we got the best data we could," Robotham said.

In addition to the comparisons of schools within counties, the report also offers a comparison of school financial figures between counties within the state.

According to the report, Charlevoix County has the eighth highest tax base per pupil among 82 Michigan Counties. Charlevoix's millage rate, while not in the bottom 10, is on the low end among Michigan counties. Charlevoix's average school millage rate in 1990 was 29.9 compared to a state average of 31.43.

Charlevoix County schools had an average teacher salary of $31,740 compared to a statewide average of $31,498. Staffing levels in Charlevoix County schools averaged 16 students per classroom compared to a statewide average of 19 students per classroom.

The drop-out rate for Charlevoix County students was 3.6 percent compared to a state average of 6 percent.

taxpayers getting hit with increases to pay to build on the property. He said that at that time he was told that all the City was doing was buying property; but that now, as he predicted, taxpayers are being asked for money to eventually build a new public works complex.

Novotny and first ward council representative Cheri Hoffman defended the concept of setting aside some money each year to eventually build new buildings. Novotny said the City is saving ahead of time to get what it will need later. Hoffman said she favors putting money away and then having it when it's needed rather than eventually deciding to build something and being pushed into a corner to determine how to fund it.

Russell also said he would like to cut half a mill from the 8.5 mill figure. Novotny and Hoffman asked what could be cut from the budget in order to do that.

"I don't like paying taxes any more than anybody else does; but I like the service we get," Hoffman said.

Township Association says don't blame local assessor for large property tax increases

An Open Letter to the Citizens of Michigan.

Property owners in Michigan have probably received a notice from their local assessor announcing that the assessment on their property will be increased. Some of these increases, especially on residential property, will be in double digits. Many will announce increases of 30 percent, 40 percent, 50 percent and even higher. Why has this happened? Who is at "fault"? What can we do about it?

First of all, please don't blame your local township officials or assessors. Everything they do is required of them by state law or administrative rule. If they do not perform as required by law, they can be fined or jailed, removed from office or have their assessor certification revoked. They are literally pawns in the property tax assessment process. Assessment levels are monitored and controlled by the county board of commissioners and the State tax commission through the equalization process.

Assessments for existing property were "frozen" in 1992 at 1991 values. This was required by a law passed by the legislature in 1991 (P.A. 15, 1991). The hope was that a ballot proposal to reduce property taxes would pass in 1992. It didn't. That "freeze" period is now over so that all properties must be assessed at 50 percent of current market value. Most properties, especially residential, resort and waterfront have increased in value dramatically over this two-year period causing a "tax assessment shock." Michigan was one of the highest property tax states before the increase.

Property owners might properly ask, "What happened to that constitutional amendment we passed in 1978? Wasn't that amendment (known as the Headlee Amendment) supposed to hold property taxes in check with inflation?" The amendment has caused millage to be reduced in a limited fashion when assessments as a total increase more than inflation. The problem is the amendment as written and adopted does not apply to individual properties or separate classes of property. As a result, high value increases in residential property are offset in the formula by slower growth in commercial, agricultural and industrial properties. The result? Very little tax break even with high assessment increases!

To locate one major problem with property taxes look at your tax bill. On the average nearly 70 percent of the total bill is for school operational millages levies. Eighty percent or more of school operational millages are used for salaries and fringes of teachers and support personnel. Simple arithmetic reveals that over 50 cents of every property tax dollar goes for a purpose having nothing to do with property ownership. Schools are not about to give up this "golden goose" easily.

Township officials through the Michigan Townships Association have been laboring for years to reduce the reliance on the property tax for school funding. Their pleas have not been heeded. Once again township officials, through their statewide association and other groups, are bending the ear of legislators in Lansing. The goal is to have some form of property tax relief in place before the March meetings of the board of review. That's an aggressive time schedule when you consider that the legislature has not been able to provide an alternative over the course of two decades.

...Township Association says local officials not to blame for high property taxes

It is difficult to predict what kind of property tax package will be presented by the legislature to the governor. There are many proposals being offered and space permitted in this letter does not allow a description of them or a comparison between them. Every citizen should simply make a telephone call or write a letter enclosing their assessment increase notice to their legislator. Local officials have been the scapegoat for this perennial problem for too long. A three dollar phone call or a 29-cent stamp urging a simple reduction in the property tax would work wonders if it was done now. Help your township officials help you.

Six Reasons Why We Don't Have Property Tax Reform - Yet!

The political pundits in Lansing are predicting that Governor John Engler will sign some form of property tax relief into law early this spring. My hopes are also high — again! But I'll believe it when I see it.

Why have we been unable to relieve the burden of Michigan's high property taxes — which are among the highest in the nation — after all these years of trying? There are many reasons, however, the following are my top six candidates:

1. Voters fear and distrust government. This distrust was reinforced when Michigan voters passed a constitutional amendment that permitted the state to conduct a lottery so the proceeds could be used to help pay for public education. When the state's share of the education budget was subsequently reduced because of the offsetting lottery funds, citizens became more reluctant to vote for ballot proposals because they distrusted their eventual impact. The attitude is, "The devil I've got is better than the devil I don't know."

2. Many taxpayers are relatively happy. The homestead property tax credit returns hundreds of millions of dollars each year to many property taxpayers, reducing their burden significantly. Farmers who voluntarily enter their lands into Public Act 116 agreements likewise realize millions in savings. Mobile home owners who live in mobile home parks are exempt from property taxes on their homes. By receiving these limited tax breaks, these voters have had the edge taken off their insistence for a change that would benefit all taxpayers.

3. Tax exemptions created by Public Act 198 and the Commercial Forest Act support the status quo. Hundreds of millions of dollars in potential property tax collections are foregone each year when local governments grant industrial tax abatements. Abatements can include real estate as well as personal property, and they very often fall far short of their goals to create and retain jobs. Michigan timberland owners may also avail themselves of a special tax exemption that reduces their costs to hold land to a mere pittance. While it is true that corporations do not vote with a ballot, it is also true that they maintain powerful forces to lobby for continued special treatment. They can also launch effective campaigns to prevent a ballot proposal that would not be in their best interest from passing. Why change a good thing?

4. School personnel salaries and fringe benefits rely on the property tax almost 70 percent of all property taxes. (66 percent in 1989) are used for school operating millage. About 80 percent of school operating costs go to pay teachers and support personnel's salaries and fringe benefits. This means that over 50 percent of every tax dollar paid in this state is used for salaries and fringe benefits. Is it any wonder that unions and associations representing teachers and support personnel are so reluctant to make a change? This group represents a formidable block of voters who traditionally, and not surprisingly, exercise their rights.

5. The partial failure of the Headlee Amendment. Although well-intended and providing some relief, the ballot proposal was not properly worded to provide the relief it could have. By not permitting rollbacks in millages by class of property or by individual properties, its impact was seriously weakened and probably fostered more distrust of government than the tax relief it gave.

6. The threat of recall makes legislators cautious. When the Legislature voted a temporary income tax increase in 1983, two state senators were promptly recalled from office. This event has traumatized the Legislature to the point that it will not consider raising the income tax as a partial solution to the property tax dilemma. If there is to be any replacement revenue to offset a property tax reduction either in whole or in part, it must come from the sales tax revenue, which requires voter approval to change.

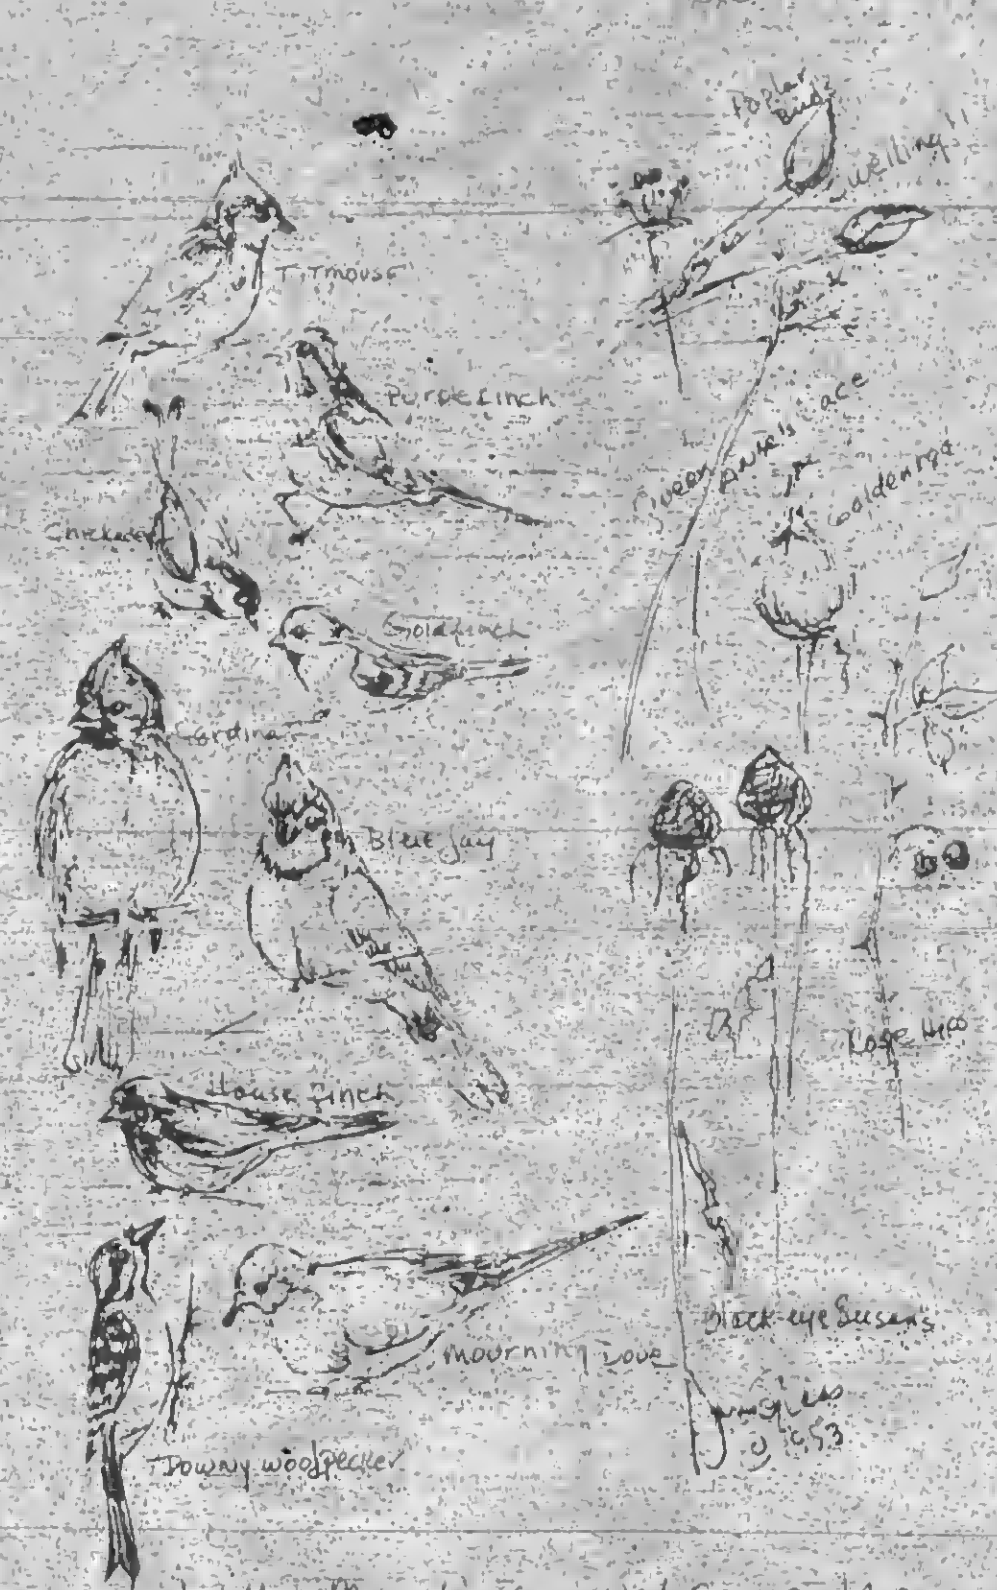

Can we overcome these and other reasons to avoid the property tax issues? Has the time come when the reasons to change outnumber the reasons not to? I think it has.

Lansing is a political furnace, and when the assessment notices go out soon, it will approach meltdown. The legislators know that. Political observers believe that a property tax reduction plan will be on the governor's desk before the first public meeting of the board of review. I sure hope they're right.

Jan Glass

With March's arrival came the first day of sunshine and warmer temperatures that we've had in what seems like eons. I've been watching for any sign of spring. All the seeds from the black-eyed susans have been totally devoured by the Goldfinches and they are beginning to molt just a little, getting rid of their drab winter colors to their more cheerful summer gold. The jays are scrappy, the mourning doves are singing their mourning call and all my daily visitors seem so anxious for spring. As I am, there were six starlings diving their squeal up and doing their "courtship" when sitting in the bass tree. So maybe spring is coming.

Let's live up to our principles.
Not just up to the law;
Let's live as He has taught us...
Not just by tooth and claw.

Kidney dialysis means life to 35,000 Americans

(Editor's note: The following story is one in a series written for the Courier by Ralph McRae. McRae is a former mayor and city council member who continues to be active in a number of civic causes. The story which follows is the fourth in a series of stories concerning a local woman's battle against kidney disease and her options for dialysis while awaiting a kidney transplant. She chose home dialysis which was detailed in last week's story. This week's story discusses hospital-based dialysis.)

By Ralph McRae

There are two types of dialysis: peritoneal (home-based, which was discussed last week); and hemodialysis (usually hospital-based). To do this story, special permission was obtained from Northern Michigan Hospital to visit its renal treatment center at the Lockwood-MacDonald facility. The visit to the facility was a learning experience broken down into three segments.

In the first segment, hospital staff member Paul Hoadley, a ten-year veteran of various dialysis procedures offered an overview of the Lockwood-MacDonald dialysis program. His explanation included the chronological development and basic operating costs for the program. The overview of the program also included viewing three video tapes. These tapes are shown to all prospective dialysis patients. The tapes show the kidney's many functions and also explain the diseases which afflict it.

Approximately 150,000 people in this country are on dialysis in 2,000 treatment centers. Each year about 35,000 people develop renal failure, 35 percent of these cases are attributable to diabetes complications. Many other cases are due to cystic encroachments or low blood pressure.

Presently, under the direction of the Petoskey treatment center there are about 35 people using the Lockwood-MacDonald premises and another 35 people utilizing home-based treatment. Northern Michigan Hospitals also owns and operates a similar center in the Munson hospital in Traverse City. The two centers draw patients from 22 northern Michigan counties. However they do not treat children younger than 12. Children must go to pediatric dialysis centers.

Medicare pays 80 percent of the costs of treating all end-stage renal diseases (ESRD). These costs average $20,000 a year for every patient, regardless of if the treatments are in or out of the home. It was not until 1943 that machines began to be used to cleanse the blood of kidney disease patients. Before that, thousands of people simply could not be saved. The first kidney transplant was performed in 1954. Surprisingly, peritoneal dialysis (the home kind) didn't come into use until 1980. In the first few years of treating kidney disease patients, Northern Michigan Hospitals sent buses and the dialysis machines directly to the patients' homes.

In the second segment of learning about the dialysis center, Ann Oleszek, Director of the Center, fielded about 20 questions which were brought to mind by the video tapes.

The room where dialysis takes place is a spacious, well-lit L-shaped room. Against the wall, sitting in stuffed chairs, were about a dozen men and women undergoing one of their three-weekly dialysis sessions. Each of them had a tube in their arm from an artery just above the wrist. The tubes were attached to machines, one machine stood beside each person. A cupfull of blood at a time is directed through the machine. A fine filter and clean dialysis solution combine to remove impurities from the blood. Once the blood is cleansed, it returns to the person and into a vein. It takes about 20 minutes for all of the blood to go through the process once. This must be repeated 10 or more times before the blood is clear of all impurities. Depending on the person, it takes two and a-half to four hours for each treatment. During this time the patient relaxes by reading or watching a TV.

Three times a week a morning group and an afternoon group, totaling 19 people show up every Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Likewise two groups totaling 16 people come in Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. Each of the dozen or more blood cleaning machines costs $17,000. In some cases, they are placed in a patient's home. But these life extending devices do not perform all of the functions of a healthy kidney. Additional control is done through medication and a very strict diet.

The doctor specializing in kidney damage cases is called a nephrologist. Northern Michigan Hospitals have two nephrologists on their Burns Clinic staff.

Johnson plays to perfection

Led by Ed Johnson II's perfect score of 968 Feb. 18, the Odd Fellows extended their lead over the Masons to 1,818 points in the two group's annual cribbage tournament. The Odd Fellows scored 361 points more than the Masons Feb. 18.

While Johnson led the Odd Fellows, Melvin Plum was high man for the Masons with 927 points. There were seven tables in play.

Play resumed Feb. 25 and the Odd Fellows continued extending their lead, that night by 401 points.

Sims Baker and Bill Bergmann shared high man honors for the Odd Fellows, each with 951 points. Bob Heise, playing for the first time this year, led the Masons with 931 points. There were eight tables in play.

Play will continue at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, March 4 at the Masonic Temple.

Draft horses still used for logging

By Laurie Lounsbury

Vivian Reedy just hates to cut down trees. For that matter, Reedy hates to do anything that disrupts the pristine serenity of her woods. That's why Reedy decided to hire Alfred Moblo and his draft horses to remove the oldest trees from her woods in Ironton.

Reedy said that her biggest trees were dying on top, and the woods were too thick for the young trees to mature. The trees surrounding Reedy's house were forming a canopy over the home, making it too dark inside. "I hate to cut trees, but it had to be done," she said.

After Reedy made the decision to thin out her woods, she started thinking about how she would get the job done. She saw an ad for Moblo and his draft horses in a weekly paper. "I wanted to use horses, because they're easier on the woods and the ground," Reedy said. "I didn't want a bunch of bulldozers in the woods," she added.

So Alfred Moblo, his son Larry and two of his draft horses snaked their way into Reedy's woods and began to clear out the dying trees. Moblo's horses weigh in at 2,450 pounds each, so hauling tree logs nearly two feet in diameter is just a stroll in the woods for them. Moblo and his horses trekked back and forth through the woods, hauling logs out to the road where mill trucks will pick them up and use them to make maple veneer.

A couple of enormous trees with dying branches remain next to Reedy's house. "I had to keep a couple trees for the woodpeckers," Reedy said. "I love the woodpeckers."

Rayders beat Rams 70-63 despite fourth quarter slump

It wasn't easy, but Charlevoix managed to take a 70-63 win from Harbor Springs Friday evening. The Rayders led the visiting Rams for virtually the entire game, but faltered for much of the fourth quarter before righting themselves to close out the game.

Jason Psihopaidas got hot in the fourth quarter, scoring eight points to turn back a Harbor Springs rally which had them within a basket of the Rayders with just more than two minutes left in the game.

With the exception of the early fourth quarter drought, Charlevoix's scoring attack was balanced throughout the game. At the end of the first quarter, the Rayders were up 15-14. By halftime, they had extended their lead to 32-28. Entering the fourth quarter, the Rayders led 51-42. But in the fourth quarter, the Rayders were outscored 21-19 with Harbor Springs doing the bulk of their scoring early in the quarter and Charlevoix scoring late.

Charlevoix had five players in double figures. Senior center Brad DeGrow had 14 points and 10 rebounds. Psihopaidas also had 14 points. Vince Voisin had an even dozen points. Don Jess had 11 points and seven assists. Keith Carey had 10 points, 10 rebounds and two steals.

The win, combined with a Kalkaska loss, moved Charlevoix into a tie for second place in league standings. Charlevoix and Kalkaska are both 10-4. Boyne City has wrapped up the league title with a 13-1 record, their only loss coming to Kalkaska.

Charlevoix also was victorious in Friday evening's junior varsity game, beating Harbor Springs 69-63. Jerry Duhan led the Rayders with 20 points while Gary Leitner and Justin Gengle each had 14 and Chuck Pop, 12.

Middle school hosts girls' tournament

The Charlevoix Recreation Department Girls' Youth League hosted its third annual elementary division invitational tournament at Charlevoix Middle School this past Saturday. Seven Charlevoix teams and three Petoskey teams participated.

Petoskey Team 1 defeated Charlevoix's Swishers 22-14 in the finals to take the tournament crown. Carrie Harrison led Petoskey with 13 points while Sarah Norton had eight for the Swishers.

Charlevoix's Pistons placed fourth with a 19-17 win over Charlevoix's Spartans who placed fifth. Taya Drost led the Pistons with 20 points while Heather Trowbridge had eight for the Spartans.

Ski teams both finish in top five

Charlevoix's boys' ski team placed fourth while the girls' team placed fifth at the State Finals Ski Meet in Marquette Monday. Top individual finishers for the Rayders were J.H. Heck who placed third in the giant slalom and tenth in the slalom and Carolyn Campbell who placed fifth in the giant slalom.

Rayder coach Eric Lundteigen said the boys skied a pretty solid race while the girls dug themselves a hole in the morning slalom races.

"It was a good year," Lundteigen said. "We made a couple of mistakes yesterday, but that's part of ski racing."

Traverse City won the boys race while Petoskey won the girls' race.

Kim Schoenheit of the Kookamunga Wildcats sets up to take a shot during the elementary girls' basketball tournament this past Saturday.

BUSINESS

Mary Jane Barnwell stands in the midst of some of the many books at the Charlevoix Bookshop. The store, located just south of the bridge, recently hosted its grand opening. Barnwell says the shop's initial weeks have gone well.

New book store opens near bridge

By Laurie Lounsbury

Nestled like a quiet refuge just down the street from the jackhammering and drilling taking place on the drawbridge sits Mary Jane Barnwell's new bookstore, the Charlevoix Bookshop. Patrons to the bookstore have been quick to tell Barnwell what a welcome addition the store is to Charlevoix. "Charlevoix people are so nice, they're so grateful to have a book store in town," Barnwell said.

Barnwell is not new to the book business. She and her sister started the successful Island Bookstore on Mackinaw Island five years ago. Barnwell had been working as a clinical nutrition teacher at Wayne State University and thought that owning a bookstore on the Island would be a pleasingly compatible summer endeavor. Barnwell was so taken with books and Mackinaw Island that she quit her job at Wayne State and moved permanently to the Island. A marriage one year ago brought Barnwell to the Petoskey area. She decided to open the Charlevoix Bookshop after consulting with SCORE, an acronym for Senior Core of Retired Executives. The Petoskey chapter of SCORE assists individuals considering a new business. "They asked the hard business questions that I had been afraid to ask," Barnwell said of the SCORE group. The retired executives made sure that Barnwell did her research before embarking on her new endeavor.

Barnwell's bookstore will be a general, full service bookstore. As an independent bookstore, Barnwell says that she can service the community better than a chain store would be able to do. "I can tell what the customers want, and I can buy accordingly," Barnwell said. With computerized book listings, Barnwell can also special order books for customers with ease.

Barnwell has already determined from her first week of business that Charlevoix readers have different tastes than the Mackinaw Island tourists. "Charlevoix people buy more trade books than mass market books. They seem to be a little bit better read," Barnwell said. Trade books are the type of books that are printed in limited numbers and may not have the mass appeal of best selling paperback books.

Barnwell is aware of the fact that she faces competition from another new bookstore tentatively scheduled to open later in the season in the former Market Mall. "I'm optimistic. I'm going to stay," Barnwell said of her competition. Her glance moved slowly around the neatly stacked bookshelves and she said, "I'm doing what I love to do."

Missing sprocket stalls renovation of 1895 tandem bike

By L. Scott Swanson

Last week someone took a chrome-plated sprocket and pedal arm which probably has absolutely no value to them, but is an integral part of a project John Gaskin has been working on for nearly nine years.

The sprocket is from an 1895 tandem bicycle originally built by the Grand Rapids Cycle Company. Gaskin purchased the bicycle at an auction in Hart, Michigan about nine years ago. He has been refurbishing it over the years and was within a couple of months of completing the project.

Last week, he had the sprocket with him in his car. He had taken it with him to talk to another man about how it could be reworked. He had it on the floor of the back seat of his car later when he attended a meeting downtown. He suspects someone took it while he was attending the meeting.

"It hasn't got any intrinsic value," Gaskin said, noting that although the chrome sprocket is kind of pretty, the only thing it's good for is for the particular bicycle it came from.

Gaskin said he usually locks his car when he's got something of value inside, but the sprocket wasn't something he figured anybody would want to take.

Although whoever took the sprocket probably has no use for it, Gaskin does. The loss of the sprocket now stands in the way of completing a project which Gaskin has a lot of time and money into.

In addition to his own time, Gaskin has also hired other people to work on various aspects of the project. Brian VanMeter, from a local body shop, painted the frame and the wheels. Mike Hilligan, from Ace Hardware, tracked down new spokes for the tires. Gaskin found new inner tubes for the tires at the Hoover Machine Company in West Virginia. Gaskin estimates that he has more than $1,000 into the project.

Although Gaskin has filed a report with the City Police, he's not necessarily interested in having somebody arrested.

"I'm not interested in anything, but getting the sprocket back," he said. "I just wanted to get the thing (the bicycle) together and be done with it."

Anyone with information about the missing sprocket is asked to call Gaskin at 547-5332. He says he would be willing to make arrangements for someone to leave it somewhere where he could pick it up.

Schairbaum receives $500 Zonta award for Civic involvement

Anne Schairbaum has been chosen as this year's recipient of the Zonta Club of Charlevoix Area Young Women in Public Affairs award.

Schairbaum received a check for $500 along with plaques honoring her. She will now compete at the Zonta district level. The winner of the district award will then join 26 other district winners for selection of an international winner.

Joan Buday, Zonta selection committee member, says Schairbaum was chosen because of her outstanding record of community service and leadership. Her student activities include cross country skiing, volleyball, track, drama, debate, drum major and pep band student conductor. She also served as treasurer of the National Honor Society, worked for the Charlevoix Soup Kitchen, the CROP walk for hunger and helped design the interior of the Charlevoix Youth Center and organized work crews. In making the presentation, Buday said, "We have an outstanding young lady here, and we are proud to have her represent us."

The Young Women in Public Affairs awards were established to encourage women who will be graduating in the current year to enter careers of seek leadership positions in social policy-making, government and volunteer organizations.

Zontans encourage high ethical standards and work to improve the legal, political, economic, and professional status of women.

Who do you blame for property tax assessment hikes?

By Laurie Lounsbury

You can't blame your new tax assessment on the assessor. You can't blame it on the equalization department either. You can blame it on people moving into your neighborhood and paying higher prices for property.

"It's the market that dictates increases. It's not the assessor creating the market," explains Charlevoix County Equalization Director Joan Blanchard.

Blanchard says that a mass appraisal technique was used in assessing property in Charlevoix County. A mass appraisal collectively appraises market value in a neighborhood by studying sales information. From that information, a number known as the Economic Condition Factor (ECF) is established and all homes in the same neighborhood will be multiplied by the ECF giving them the new appraised value. In the City of Charlevoix, the base appraisal value (which is the figure multiplied by the ECF) is derived from a city-wide appraisal done by the Great Lakes Appraisal Company in 1987.

Property values are only one half of the equation in overall property taxes. The other half is millage. (For a definition of terms, see the box accompanying this story.) To determine an overall property tax bill, you multiply property value (SEV) by millage. Put in mathematic terms - Millage x SEV = property tax.

An increase in property values can be offset by a decrease in millage. For an idea of how that would work consider the following example using small numbers. Say in a particular year your millage figure was 3 and your property value was 3. Multiplying 3 x 3 means your property tax figure would equal 9. Now, say that in the following year due to inflation you expected your property tax figure to equal 12 instead of 9. For that to happen, and assuming your millage figure stayed the same, your property value figure would have to rise to 4. Then your property tax equation would be 3 x 4 = 12.

But what if instead of increasing from 3 to 4, the property value number in the equation increased from 3 to 6? How can that be offset so that the property tax number still ends up as 12? Simple. Reduce the millage figure in the equation from 3 to 2. Then your final equation would read 2 x 6 = 12.

The Headlee Amendment, which Michigan voters adopted in the late 1970s is designed to automatically roll back millage if assessments on property increase beyond the rate of inflation. However, Headlee only affects millage that is in place when assessment notices come out. The effect of the Headlee Amendment can be negated by putting millage renewals up for a vote each year after the assessment increases. In recent years, the Charlevoix School system has been having a millage

Three area fire departments were called to the Themm farm on Ferry Road to battle a barn fire this past Thursday. According to Dennis Themm, who discovered the fire, that particular barn was used as a workshop and he felt an electrical problem with a light started the fire. There were five tractors in the barn. Two of them were saved. Smoke from the fire could be seen from more than a mile away.

Hayes Township to solicit bids for fire protection

Township board objects to city's current billing rationale

By L. Scott Swanson

Hayes Township will not renew its present contract with the City of Charlevoix for fire protection and is putting the contract up for bids. Whether or not the City bids on the new contract will be up to the City Council.

Currently, the City of Charlevoix Fire Department provides fire protection to the City and all of Hayes, Marion and Norwood Townships, and a portion of Eveline Township. For fire protection, the City charges Hayes Township four-tenths of a mill (a mill being $1 for every $1,000 of assessed property value) based on the township's total assessed property value. That system of billing is the source of the current debate.

Hayes Township supervisor Paul Hoadley says that although the township is billed for fire protection based on millage for all of the township's assessed value, due to the Headlee Amendment and Truth in Taxation provisions, the township has to roll back millage. In other words, although the township's maximum millage levy for tax purposes is 1 mill, due to rollbacks the township can only levy .92 of a mill. Since the fire contract does not take the rollback into account, rather than paying four-tenths (40 percent) of 1 mill, the township is paying four-tenths (40 percent) of .92 of a mill. Hoadley says that as property assessments continue to rise causing a greater millage rollback, the percentage of township revenue taken by the fire contract will continue to increase. "If things continue the way they are, it just gets further and further skewed," Hoadley said. Hoadley said he feels that rather than basing the charge on SEV, it should be based on the cost of providing service.

City manager Mike Wiesner, who spoke to the township's fire committee, said that rather than being overcharged, Hayes Township may be undercharged. According to Wiesner's calculations, by the time the cost of fire hall construction, fire department equipment and staffing are added up, city taxpayers are paying 1.8 mills for fire protection. The 1.8 mill figure includes a deduction for the township's contribution.

Wiesner said other cities that provide townships with fire protection charge higher rates. Boyne City charges seven-tenths of a mill. Big Rapids and Cadillac charge 1 mill plus an added cost per run.

The current fire contract between the City and Hayes Township expires at the end of April. It would have been automatically renewed.

...explanations and options exist for assessment increases

Not all of the millage the Charlevoix School District receives is voted millage. Last year, of 27,1554 mills the school received, only 17.05 was voted millage. The remainder is allocated millage - millage the district can levy without approval of local voters.

Last year the Charlevoix School District received approximately $268,000 for every mill levied. (That would be about $4,569,400 in voted millage plus $2,708,247 in allocated millage for a total property tax revenue of $7,277,647). Following increased property assessments, school business manager Rich Kelly estimates that the school could receive as much as $332,000 for each mill levied in the coming year. The net effect would be that even if the voted millage is renewed at the same level, 17.05 mills, school revenue from voted millage would increase from $4,569,400 to $5,660,600. That equates to an increase of 23.8 percent.

A couple of factors which need to be noted are: 1. The increase is for two years, not one year due to a one-year freeze on assessments last year due to State legislative action. 2. Not all of the increase in property tax revenue is due to increases in the value of existing property. Other factors which can increase the revenue per mill are new construction and the end of tax abatements. 3. While the Headlee Amendment can be negated for voted millage, it will affect allocated millage.

Kelly said he can't say at this point what the school will do in regard to a millage rollback. Two state legislative proposals in Lansing could affect the millage request. Governor John Engler's proposal would reduce SEV from 50 percent of market value to 45 percent this year, then to 42.5 percent the following year and 40 percent the year after that. Kelly said that the school district is not in favor of the governor's proposal at all. "It would be devastating. There is nothing to make up what you lose," Kelly said.

Another Lansing proposal, known as the Bipartisan Legislative Team (BLT), is a more complex method of reducing millage. The BLT proposal would reduce millage on residential and agricultural property to a total of 17 mills this year and 16 mills the next year. This loss in revenue would be offset by increasing the state income tax from 4.6 percent to 6 percent. Voters would later have the option of reducing the income tax by increasing the state sales tax from 4 percent to 5 percent.

Charlevoix school administrators are watching Lansing to see if any legislation is passed prior to the June election. Kelly said that normally the school system has a millage proposal ready by April for a June election, but this year the board will probably wait until early May to decide what to put on the ballot.

"We don't know what's going to happen," Kelly said. "So we don't know what to ask for."

...fire contract

but the township board took action Feb. 24 to cancel the contract when it expires. Monday evening the board received contract bid specifications from the fire committee and forwarded them to the township attorney. Following attorney review, the board will solicit bids.

Hoadley said the likely bidders would be the City and Charlevoix Township. The Resori-Bear Creek Fire Department is another possibility.

"There'll be no games, playing one off against the other or any of that stuff," Hoadley said. "We'll simply bid it out."

"None of this had anything to do with the squabble the city has with its volunteer fire people. It has nothing to do with the size of fire trucks or anything like that," Hoadley noted.

In the current year, Hayes Township is paying the city between $25,000 and $30,000 for fire protection. Given recent property assessment increases, that figure could increase by approximately $7,000, Wiesner said that at this time he's unsure how the city would offset the loss of revenue if the township no longer hires the city for fire protection.

Editorial

Millage should be reduced to offset tax assessment increases

Unless the state legislature acts on some form of property tax reform soon, the Charlevoix Board of Education should give serious consideration to decreasing the school district's millage levy. Barring either state legislative action or a millage reduction, local property owners are going to be faced with exorbitant property tax increases due to soaring property values.

A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of assessed property value (also known as State Equalized Value or SEV). Currently each mill the school district levies brings in about $268,000. Due primarily to an increase in assessed property values, next year each mill levied according to estimates will bring in $332,000.

Currently the school district's voted millage is 17.05 mills. Multiplying that by $268,000 tells you that currently the school revenue from voted millage is about $4.57 million.

The next school millage election will take place in June. If voters renewed the millage levy at its current rate of 17.05 mills, the school's revenue from voted millage would increase by almost 24 percent, or from about $4.57 million to $5.66 million. That is an unnecessarily high increase which voters should simply not allow.

Granted, the state legislature froze property assessments for one year so the proposed increase is for two years rather than for one. But even at that, inflation has been running between three and four percent. That might make a seven or eight percent increase in school tax revenues palatable, but it certainly doesn't justify a 24 percent property tax hike.

One of three things should happen between now and the June school election. Either the state legislature should act, the school board should decide to seek a lower millage levy, or the board should look at some alternative millage proposals rather than a simple operational renewal at the current rate.

It's probably unwise to count on the state legislature acting within the next few months. After all, they've debated the issue of property tax reform for years and haven't come up with anything palatable to voters.

Scaling back school operational millage to a level which would allow an increase only high enough to account for inflation is a decision the local school board has the power to make. Or if the board won't do it, local voters can force the issue. Scaling back millage in this manner would take some of the sting out of reason property assessment hikes.

The other alternative is to scale back operational millage, but within the current 17.05 mills begin setting aside money for future facility needs. Currently a school facility committee (which the writer of this editorial is part of) has been meeting to look at the long range needs of the school system. Regardless of what type of plan the committee comes up with, there is bound to be a price-tag attached. Rather than borrowing money, and consequently paying attorney fees for the paperwork and interest fees, the school district and the taxpayers it serves would probably be better off to set aside money and avoid those fees. This is not unprecedented in the Charlevoix School system. The pay-as-you-go program worked quite well in the technology update.

Although the June election is still almost three months away, the time for school board members and for voters to consider what might be on that ballot is now.

New street lights supported

(Editor's note: When Dale Boss dropped this letter off at the Courier office, he and I got into a debate about just when the current downtown street lights were installed. He maintained it was in 1967, while I maintained it was in the mid 1970s. Research into back issues of the Courier indicates we were both right. The poles went in in 1967 and subsequently the sodium (yellow) heads were installed in 1975. L. Scott Swanson)

Editor,

We were so glad to read that the Downtown Development Authority is finally going to be able to put old fashioned street lamps back on Bridge Street. It's just unfortunate that the powers to be couldn't see to have it done when the brickwork was done, as it would have saved several thousand dollars.

EDITH GILBERT

What a surprise to see Grace Hartigan appear on the Charles Kuralt TV show last Sunday morning! It brought back to mind her brief visit to Charlevoix in the early '70s. Hartigan, in case you didn't know, is considered by some, one of the major artists of the 20th century. She was the only woman selected for the Museum of Modern Art's pivotal exhibition, Twelve Americans (1956).

Grace and our mutual friend Gertrude Kasle stayed at the Lodge and came to our home for a small, intimate dinner with the late Nathan Cummings and his wife Joanne. Nate, you may remember, always shared a painting from his fabulous art collection, to be displayed at the annual Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair in the park. I was disappointed that Nate didn't add one of Grace's paintings to his outstanding collection, but he said, "I only collect European painters."

He meant painters such as Matisse, Degas, Monet, Cezanne, and Leger.

The conversation at the dinner table that evening sparked with personal anecdotes. Grace recalled her early days when she became friends with America's pioneer Abstract Expressionists, Willem de Kooning and Jackson Pollock. Her studio then was a dingy loft in New York. As she tells it, one day there was a knock on the door and two burly men walked in. It was a shake down for protection. The fellows looked around and said, "There ain't nothing here but junk. Let's go." Today that junk sells for $50 to $75 thousand dollars a painting!

Gertrude Kasle loves to tell this story on Grace. At a very posh dinner party, Grace was seated next to a gentleman who asked her, "What do you think of African Art?" Her quick witted answer was "I think it's great for the Africans."

During the Charlevoix visit,

Grace and Gertrude rented a flat bottomed boat and floated down the Jordan river with the memorable Teddy Kotavich as guide. It was an unforgettable trip for aside from admiring the beauty of the woody scenery and tasting the delicious watercress growing on the river bank, the women experienced a heavy downpour. They covered themselves up as best they could and sat huddled together until the weather cleared. It was then that a canoe with two athletic young men drifted by, with the chuckle of the day, because they were heard to say, "We must get our mother's to do this sometime!"

For those further interested in art and artists, there's a gorgeous, big, colorful book out called, "Grace Hartigan, a painter's world." It was published by Hudson Hill Press, Inc. in 1990. My autographed copy reads, "For Edith. With fond memories of our time at Charlevoix — Grace Hartigan."

Thought you might enjoy the enclosed clipping in the Charlevoix Courier, of 4-18-67, written by Anne Harsha, longtime Charlevoix resident, and donor of the Charlevoix Historical society's Harsha House museum. It is very befitting that after 26 years of harsh, overlit streets, we may again enjoy the beauty of Charlevoix in the evening. Maybe the younger generation will understand what it was like to stroll down Bridge Street hanging onto hands, and enjoying the romance of softly lit lamps.

Little city on the lake,
How I wonder what's at stake,
That you should ponder vapor light.

To make your city oh so bright!

It must be violent crime you fear,
Or are the lights so very dear,
To city fathers who forswear
Beauty — be it anywhere!

Little city four block long,
I think I know just what is wrong,
The council sits and figures how
To spend your money here and now!

What nicer thing than vapor light,
So folks on Bridge can read at night,
How nice they'll look up in the sky

How fine for planes just passing by!

Oh little city way up north,
What next will councilmen bring forth,

What are you setting out to be
A monumental Christmas tree?

Cinderella will be bringing her coach and coachmen to Charlevoix on St. Patrick's Day, courtesy of the Charlevoix Council for the Arts. The play will be performed by the New York based Prince Street Players.

Cinderella to visit Charlevoix

New York's Prince Street Players bring their original musical production of Cinderella, complete with elaborate sets and dazzling costumes, to Charlevoix High School, Wednesday, March 17, at 7:30 p.m., under the auspices of Charlevoix Council for the Arts and Charlevoix Public Schools.

For the second year, the Charlevoix Council for the Arts is working with the schools to bring an outstanding art-related event to Charlevoix, with public performances in the evening, special performances for elementary and middle school students, and with all proceeds benefiting a high school arts program.

Last year the high school band program worked with the Council to bring the Grand Rapids Symphony Orchestra to Charlevoix. All ticket sales monies were given to the high school band program.

This year, the Charlevoix High School Performing Arts Team will assist The Prince Street Players with the production of Cinderella and will handle ticket sales. All proceeds will be used to help defray the team's many expenses of travel, competition, and production in debate, drama and speech.

The Prince Street Players are an Emmy winning professional touring company, which specializes in glittering productions of children's classics. Founded in a Greenwich Village loft in 1965, by Jim Eller and Jeanne Barge, the theatre company has since moved to Broadway, been featured on television, and played some of the most prestigious theatres in the country, including New York's Helen Hayes Theatre and Lincoln Center, Los Angeles' Mark Taper Forum, Washington's Kennedy Center, and myriad others in the U.S. and Canada.

The Charlevoix Council for the Arts is "dedicated to exposing Charlevoix children to the best possible per-

Ethel B. Ryder

Ethel B. Ryder, 91, of Charlevoix, died March 4, 1993, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility in East Jordan.

Her funeral was Saturday, March 6, at the Charlevoix Assembly of God. The Rev. Lowell Anderson officiated and burial will be in Brookside Cemetery.

She was born Aug. 2, 1901, in Charlevoix, the daughter of Jim and Sarah (Sommerville) Barber. She spent her entire life in Charlevoix.

On April 3, 1926, in Saginaw, she married John W. Ryder. He preceded her in death on March 15, 1985.

Mrs. Ryder was a member of the Charlevoix Assembly of God.

She is survived by one son, Patrick; her foster children, Lawrence Mawhinney of Flint, Mrs. James (Patricia) Hutton of Flint, Mrs. Jerry (Marguerite) Triggillo of California, and Mrs. William (Diane) Moppin of Decatur, Ill.; 14 grandchildren; several great-grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by two sons, John W. Ryder Jr. and James Graham.

Bonnie M. Mays

Charlevoix native Bonnie M. Mays, 50, died March 5, 1993, in Haughton, La.

Her funeral was Tuesday,

March 9, at Hill Crest Memorial Funeral Home, in Bossier City, La. Rev. Larry Stafford officiated.

She was born June 16, 1942, in Charlevoix, the daughter of Chester and Ruth (McGhan) Smith. Mrs. Mays had been a resident of Haughton for the past 24 years.

She is survived by her husband of 30 years, Richard L. Mays of Haughton, La.; her mother, Ruth I. Payne, and four daughters, Sharon Golden, Toni Lott, Michelle Jones, and Jodi Burr, all of Louisiana; one sister, Billie K. Oliver, two brothers, Donald Smith and Skip Smith; and 10 grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Assembly of God. Envelopes for memorial contributions will be available at the church where friends may call from 11 a.m. until the time of service on Saturday.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Ione H. McClanaghan McFarland

Ione H. McClanaghan McFarland, 81, of Charlevoix, died March 7, 1993, at her home.

Her funeral will be Wednesday, March 10, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Lowell Anderson of the Charlevoix Assembly of God will officiate. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery.

She was born July 8, 1911, in Gilmore Township, Mich., the daughter of James and Verenea (Mount) Robinson. She moved to Boyne City at an early age and graduated from Boyne City High School.

On March 19, 1935, she married Lionel McClanaghan in Boyne City. Following her marriage, she moved to Charlevoix. Mr. McClanaghan preceded her in death on Sept. 22, 1980.

She married Harold McFarland in Charlevoix on Sept. 14, 1985. He preceded her in death on Sept. 21, 1987.

She attended the Barnard United Methodist Church.

Survivors include two sons, Harold L. McClanaghan, and Lionel McClanaghan and his wife Irene, all of Charlevoix; one daughter, Mrs. Charles (Verenea) Sullivan of Austin, Texas; seven grandchildren; two sisters, Lola Harmon of Boyne City, and Mrs. Frank (Florence) Force of Pinchurst, N.C.; and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Ellen Robinson of Boyne City.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Barnard United Methodist Church. Envelopes for memorial contributions will be available at the Winchester Funeral Home.

Volunteer painters needed

The Charlevoix-Emmet Housing Coalition has scheduled and is coordinating an Area Paint Blitz, Saturday, June 12. The purpose of the blitz is to organize volunteers to paint homes of people who cannot paint them, themselves. Civic, school, church groups, businesses and individuals are invited to help in this effort. The coalition is currently looking for both people willing to volunteer to paint and for people who need painting done. To become a part of this program or for more information, phone 347-9070.

Clair J. Bartholomew

Clair J. Bartholomew (also known as "Jack" or "Bart"), 89, formerly of Charlevoix, died March 2, 1993 in Bradenton, Florida.

Mr. Bartholomew was born and raised on a farm near Charlevoix with his cousins Wesley and Milo Smith. His parents were Floyd J. and Lillian (Smith) Bartholomew. He began his education in a one-room schoolhouse and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1922.

In 1926, he married Phyllis McCabe. He received a Bachelor of Science degree in Civil Engineering from Michigan State College as a Detroit Edison company co-op student in 1928. Immediately following graduation, he began his lifelong career with Detroit Edison.

His career was interrupted by World War II. He was inducted into the U.S. Army where he rose to the rank of Lt. Colonel while serving in Europe, performing transportation and logistic duties. In 1945, he was honorably discharged and resumed his career with Detroit Edison while continuing to serve in the U.S. Army Reserves.

He rose from his engineering duties to the position of Superintendent for the Underground Lines Department.

After 35 years of marriage, in June 1961 his wife Phyllis died of cancer. In 1962, he married Elizabeth Irene (Haag) Cockburn and in 1966 took an early retirement, leaving the Detroit area to build a retirement home on Lake Charlevoix. Mr. and Mrs. Bartholomew spent summers in Charlevoix and winters in Ellenton, FL until her death in 1986.

Mr. Bartholomew is survived by three sons: Richard of Dearborn; Ralph of St. James City, Florida; Robert of Bingham Farms; a stepson, Jo Coburn; 18 grandchildren; and 27 great grandchildren.

A memorial service is scheduled for 2 p.m., March 13 at the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix.

Church music workshop planned

The Thirteenth Annual Church Music Workshop will take place from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., Saturday, April 17 at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix.

The morning session will be for church choir directors and choir members. Guest choir clinician will be Mark Puchala from Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City.

Following a luncheon there will be three afternoon sessions running concurrently for two hours. Eloise Salenger of Big Rapids will lead a session for organists. Jane Andrews of Petoskey will lead a handbell session. Ellen Addington of Charlevoix will lead a choral session.

Music packets will be available upon registration. The registration deadline is April 1, or as long as the music packets last.

For additional information, phone 547-9122 between 8 a.m. and noon on weekdays or 547-9479. Registration forms are available at the McCune Arts Center in Petoskey and at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix. All denominations are welcome to attend the workshop.

This trailer is temporarily housing the Charlevoix Area Hospital Admitting Department and Switchboard due to the hospital's construction project.

Hospital admitting unit temporarily in trailer

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Admitting Department and Switchboard have been moved to a trailer adjacent to the Emergency Room entrance in order to accommodate remodeling of their offices as well as the lobby and waiting areas.

In addition, the temporary main entrance to the hospital for patients and visitors is through the ambulance entrance under the canopy.

Remodeling of these areas is expected to be completed by summer. In the meantime, anyone who must register for admission or emergency, and outpatient services, including X-ray, laboratory, cardiac testing, respiratory therapy, must come to the temporary Admitting offices first.

Following registration everyone will be given directions to their appointment. Although the Information Desk, Switchboard, and Gift Shop, will not be available, volunteers will be stationed to assist anyone with directions.

We hope to keep any inconvenience to our patients and visitors during this busy construction period to a minimum," says Richard Krueger, president. The building program consists of new surgical and obstetrical units, along with kitchen and dining facilities and this remodeling phase. The entire construction project is set for completion in the Fall.

Grange to host St. Patrick's Dance

Barnard Grange will host a St. Patrick's round and square dance beginning at 8 p.m. March 13 at the American Legion Hall. Music will be provided by the Tag-a-longs and other musicians from the area. Square dance callers for the evening will be Lloyd Cummings, Dave Stolt, Rod Stevens and Bill Stevens.

If you don't round dance, come anyway and tap your toes to a polka, two-step or a waltz. If you don't square dance, someone will help you.

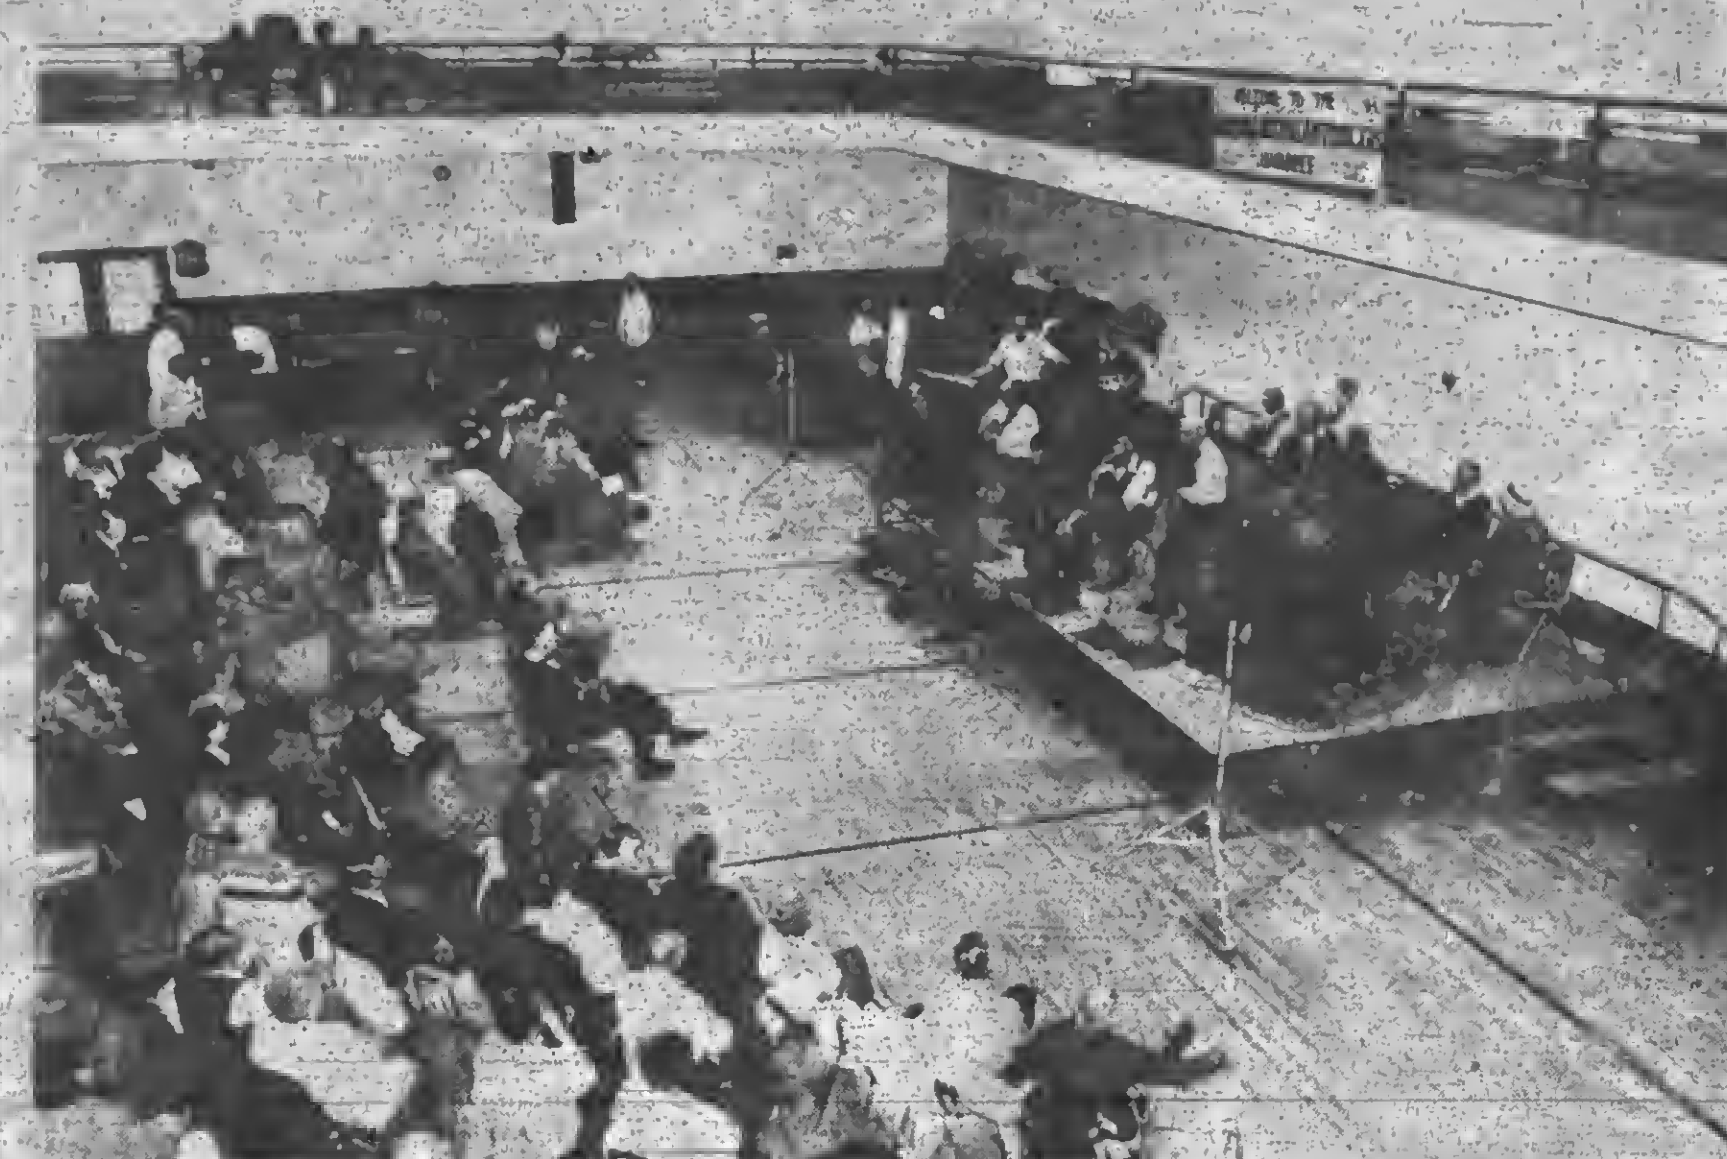

Tickets are available from a Grange member or at the door. $5 a person or $8 a couple.

The evening of fun includes dancing, lunch, 50-50 raffle and door prizes.

No alcoholic beverages.

Correction

A story in last week's Courier incorrectly referred to Charlevoix's Memorial Bridge as a draw bridge. It is a bascule bridge, meaning that a system of counterbalance weights assists in lifting the bridge to open it.

Fiddlers from throughout Michigan converged on East Jordan Saturday for the annual Fiddlers' Jamboree. The event drew a large crowd of people to the East Jordan Civic Center for music in the afternoon and dancing in the evening.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE

FORECLOSURE SALE

Default has occurred in the conditions of a mortgage made by Rosario S. Oelke, an unmarried woman mortgagor, to Old Kent Bank and Trust Company, a Michigan banking corporation, mortgagee, dated April 18, 1989, recorded in the Office of Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, on April 21, 1989, in Liber 208, Page 009, and assigned by mortgagee to Old Kent Bank and Trust Company by an assignment dated April 18, 1989, and recorded in the Office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Michigan, on April 21, 1989 in Liber 208, Page 101. Because of said default, the mortgagee has declared the entire unpaid amount secured by said mortgage due and payable forthwith.

LEGAL NOTICE 210

NOTICE BY PERSONS CLAIMING TITLE UNDER TAX DEED

To the Owner or Owners of any and all interests in, or Liens upon the Lands herein described:

Take Notice, that sale has been lawfully made of the following described land for unpaid taxes thereon, and that the undersigned has title thereto under tax deed or deeds issued therefor, and that you are entitled to a reconveyance thereof, at any time within 6 months after return of service of this notice, upon payment to the undersigned or to the Treasurer of the County in which the lands lie, of all sums paid upon such purchase, together with 50 % additional thereto, and the fees of the Sheriff for the service or cost of publication of this notice, to be computed as upon personal service of a Summons upon commencement of an Action, and the further sum of five dollars for each description without other additional cost or charges. If payment as aforesaid is not made, the undersigned will institute Proceedings for possession of the land.

The premises covered by said mortgage are situated in the City of Boyne, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and are described as follows:

The North 78 feet of Lots 3 and 4 including the vacated alley between said lots as vacated in Liber 203, Page 355, Charlevoix County Records, CALBERT'S ADDITION to the Village (now City) of Boyne City, according to the recorded plat thereof. The property is commonly known as 311 Division, Boyne City, Michigan 49712.

Notice is further given that the length of the redemption period will be six months from the date of sale, unless determined abandoned in accordance with MCL 600.3241a, in which case the redemption period shall be 30 days from the date of sale.

Healthy lifestyle aids in recovery from leg amputation

By Ralph McRae

Prior to January 31, 1992 Carol Paxton ran six to eight miles a day, six days a week. A healthy personal lifestyle was in harmony with her professional life as an administrator with District Health Dept. #3. As Director of Health Promotion services she oversees a broad range of health related activities in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego Counties. Most of those activities stress prevention of chronic health problems through healthy living habits for adolescents and young families.

At about 6 p.m. Jan. 31, 1992 Paxton and another runner were out for a training run on Michigan Avenue when a car coming from behind them lost control and skidded toward them. Paxton was flung on top of the car's hood and then pinned between the car and a tree. Much of her right leg was crushed.

Paxton was rushed to Charlevoix Area Hospital and one hour later transferred to Northern Michigan Hospitals in Petoskey. Thanks in no small part to her excellent physical condition, her life was saved. However, efforts to save her leg failed and on Feb. 5 she gave doctors permission to amputate it.

After the operation, less than 12 inches of her leg was left below the hip socket. The portion of the leg which had been removed accounted for approximately one-sixth of her original body weight.

During her lengthy stay in the hospital, Paxton was overwhelmed by uplifting visits from many friends. Being a single parent, her greatest concern was for her 14-year-old son, Galen. But while his mother was in the hospital, he stayed with his father and friends of the family.

With the amputation, Paxton became one of nearly 2 million amputees living in the United States. She is much younger than most other amputees as three-quarters of all amputations involved people age 65 or older.

Fortunately for Paxton, great technological progress has been made in the field of artificial limbs. Next week, this story will continue with Paxton's experiences in learning not only to walk again, but to build her field of physical activities back toward the level they were prior to the accident.

Oil and tires from three tractors which couldn't be saved from a barn fire south of Charlevoix caused clouds of smoke to roll from the burning building. The barn was used as a workshop and consequently contained the oil and tractors.

...firing of firemen draws protests at council meeting

The matter involves an ongoing quarrel between Wiesner and some members of the fire department other than himself.

"This was an excuse to give the power struggle people reason to get rid of the people who weren't in agreement with them," Thompson maintained.

The press release from Carver said that when the three firemen left the fire scene, it "was still considered an active fire scene with firefighters still inside of the building. When these firefighters left the scene, they did so without regard to the safety of the other firefighters, or the home owner."

Firemen and their supporters take exception to that statement.

"That was totally untrue," Thompson said. He said that his observation at the time he left is that things were under control and nothing more was going to be done. He said that his understanding, based on his conversation with Carver the next day, is that the firemen never even took any equipment off of the truck. Thompson said he was Chief of the Charlevoix Township Fire Department for 11 years and continues to serve as an officer with that department and would never do anything to jeopardize the safety of another fireman or a property owner.

At Monday evening's city council meeting, Tom Meggison also took issue with the characterization of the fire as an active fire scene. "There was no fire in that house. There wasn't even smoke. There's more smoke in the Townhouse bar on a busy night than there was in that house," Meggison told council members.

Meggison was one of nearly 20 people who addressed the council. Doug Bergmann said that prior to being dismissed from the fire department, he had been suspended for passing a fire truck while driving another fire truck to a March 4 fire. He passed the truck on the first long hill on Barnard Road. Citing sections of the Michigan Motor Vehicle code, Bergmann maintained that he had done nothing wrong in the incident. He said he was traveling at less than 60 miles per hour and had more than 2,000 feet of sight distance.

Bergmann offered a summary of conflicts involving Wiesner and the fire department in recent years. He noted a recent Hayes Township decision to cancel a $28,000 per year contract with the city for fire protection. Bergmann alleged that the purpose of suspending and firing the firemen was to take attention away from mistakes allegedly made by Wiesner.

"I would say this is quite a smoke screen," Bergmann said.

City mayor Dave Novotny argued that according to the City Charter, a personnel matter falls under the jurisdiction of the city manager and that the city council does not have the power to reinstate the dismissed firemen.

Some members of the audience were unwilling to accept that. Jeff Pine argued that the council could make a recommendation to Wiesner. Gabe Campbell suggested stronger action. "The council has got the authority. They can fire the guy that's firing," he said.

Other people in the audience suggested either firing or suspending the city manager or having some type of inquiry into the fire department firings.

Council members favored some type of inquiry by an objective body from outside of the community.

Second ward council representative Butch Russell referred to a fire department study done approximately a year and a half ago which indicated that fire department needed a policy manual. Russell asked if that policy manual is in place yet. Wiesner said, no. Russell asked how long Carver has been fire chief. Wiesner said he wasn't sure of the exact number of months. (Carver was hired last summer.) Russell asked who is Carver's boss. Wiesner said he is.

Prior to Monday's council meeting, in a phone interview with the Courier, Carver was asked about progress on a policy manual. He said the manual has been drafted and reviewed by the city's attorney. He said there are a few things remaining to be fine tuned and then it will be ready.

At the close of Monday's council meeting, council members told Wiesner they would like to have the policy manual completed within the next few weeks. They also said they would like to see some type of inquiry by an objective panel from outside the city. Novotny is going to work on putting together a panel to address the council's concerns.

First ward council representative, Cheri Hoffman said that although the majority of the people speaking at Monday evening's meeting voiced support for the dismissed firemen, prior to the meeting, she had talked to many people who advised her to support the fire chief's decision.

"On my job, if I walked off the job before somebody in authority told me the work was over, I'd be fired," she noted. She added that although she would support some type of hearing, "I would certainly not support firing the city manager over a personnel decision."

Although details and interpretations obviously vary depending upon who you talk to, the following is a summary of what happened Feb. 25 at a chimney fire in Hayes Township:

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department received a call and notified the City Fire Department of a fire on Boyne City Road. The location of the fire was given as a mail box address at a driveway with a white mailbox. Bob Lindstrom was the full-time fireman on duty at the time. After setting off monitors for the volunteer firemen, he got into one of the fire trucks and headed to the fire. Apparently, he initially had difficulty locating the fire. Mail box addresses on Boyne City Road are on the Boyne City side of the boxes and consequently difficult to see when driving from Charlevoix.

Despite some initial difficulty finding the fire, the truck arrived in a short time. Volunteer fireman Tom Meggison was among the first firemen on the scene. He met a lady who lived at the building where the fire had been. She told him that she had put the fire out. The fire had been in some type of wood stove. It had started to burn too hot and she had become concerned and called the fire department.

The building, which is an old school house, sits atop a hill. Rather than driving up the hill, some of the firemen parked at the bottom and walked up.

Tom Meggison, his brother Jerry Meggison and fire chief Doug Carver entered the house. Neither Meggison was wearing turn-out gear (i.e. a fire helmet, coat, gloves and boots). Carver was wearing turn-out gear.

Firemen Curt Thompson and Charles Bergmann were standing in the yard in front of the house. Neither was wearing turn-out gear. Lindstrom ordered them to put on turn-out gear. The tone of the order annoyed both Bergmann and Thompson. According to Thompson, Bergmann began walking down the hill to leave the scene. Apparently, he encour-

Youth basketball program has a value beyond the game

If you have a daughter or grand-daughter in the fourth through eighth grades, it's likely you're aware of it. If not, you may have missed a nice thing going on in our community. For the past two months, approximately 140 elementary and junior high school girls have been going down to the middle school gym on Saturdays to play basketball. The league is under the auspices of the Charlevoix City Recreation Department, but is staffed completely by volunteers.

Faye Parrish and Rick Grunch coordinate the program. Faye's husband, Jim, is, as he describes it, in charge of nothing, yet recruited to help with everything. Numerous other people also lend a hand. There are a total of 14 teams, seven in the fourth and fifth grade division and seven in the sixth, seventh and eighth grade division. Coaching duties are handled by fathers and some of the players from the high school girls' basketball program. Officiating, along with keeping the scoreboard and running the clock, is also handled by volunteers. Grunch and Jim Parrish end up officiating a lot of games.

League rules are geared toward the level of play. Each girl must play at least one quarter of each game. There is no languishing on the bench and only playing for 30 seconds after the game has been decided. The league is instructional. Neither league can apply a full court press until the final two minutes of the game. In the elementary league, double-teaming is not allowed on defense. In the elementary league, officials are fairly liberal about traveling violations and double dribbling. Things are called more closely in the junior high division since by that age the girls are getting a pretty good handle on what the game is about.

At the junior high division, the level of play is remarkably good.

Yet it is also not so advanced that the players are just refining their games. Sometimes, by just picking up a few fundamentals, the players improve by leaps and bounds at a rate which is amazing.

For high school sports enthusiasts, the girls' recreation program gives the future of Charlevoix High School girls' basketball great promise. One of the first things you notice about some of the junior high girls is how tall they are. As any coach will tell you, you can teach a player to dribble or shoot, but you can't coach them to grow. But you can work with players and show them how to use their natural height and ability to its greatest advantage.

More important than the effect the Saturday basketball program will have on the future of the high school basketball program is the overall effect it has on the players and volunteers, both now and in the future. At heart, the value of the program is not about basketball. The real value is in giving some young ladies with a truckload of enthusiasm a healthy way to spend their time. The value is in having adults and young people take the time or make the time to get together and do something fun and productive.

Amanda Eaton attempts to get a shot around the outstretched arms of Lisa Parrish.

...opinions vary regarding fire

tered Doug Bergmann and Barry Wood on the way down the hill and talked to them.

Thompson said he did not have his turn-out gear with him. He carries it in his truck. When the fire siren blew, he was in his car on his way out to dinner with his wife. He said he was coming down the north hill on Bridge Street when he met the fire truck coming in the other direction. He turned the car around and followed the truck to the fire.

Although there are extra sets of turn-out gear carried on the fire truck, Thompson says he was not aware of that. Thompson said that after Lindstrom ordered him to put on turn-out gear, he stood around for a few minutes, determined that the fire was out and that there was little more to be done, so he walked back down to his car and drove home.

After talking to Charles Bergmann, Doug Bergmann and Wood also apparently became upset. Doug Bergmann, who had driven fire engine #85 to the fire, got back in the truck and drove it back to the fire hall. Wood walked up the hill and confronted first Lindstrom and then Carver. Both exchanges were heated.

According to Carver, Wood wanted to fight with him. Carver said Wood had a flashlight in one hand and was slapping it into the palm of his other hand and challenging him to go behind the house or behind the truck and fight.

"I declined to participate in it," Carver said.

Wood says he was upset, but did not want to fight with Carver. "I did not want to fight with Carver. I wanted an end - and I still want an end to this situation of running up and down the road not knowing where the fire is."

The Charlevoix Band Boosters would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone who worked on our fund-raiser. Thanks to all the Band Boosters who enjoyed our spaghetti dinner and participated in the grand raffle.

Special thanks to Charlevoix Noon Lions and Medusa Cement Co. for their generous donations of $250 each for the $500 grand raffle.

The winner of the grand raffle was Sally Bennett from Charlevoix. Other winners were Anneke Dhaseler and Bob Elliott also from Charlevoix.

Profits from the years fund-raiser will be used for the High School Band's performing trip to Toronto in May.

Again, thank you for your enthusiastic participation and support making this year's 7th Annual Band a huge success. We could not do it without all of you.

A group of gangsters invaded Charlevoix this past Friday evening and were seen cruising around town in a limo. Worse yet, one of them was found to be a murderer.

In reality the "Roaring '20s" ensemble was a group of Charlevoix residents attempting to beat the winter blahs with a murder mystery party.

The party began with a formal dinner at the home of Mickey and Lindsay Byers and then took to the road in a limousine, stopping at the Snowflake Lounge at Boyne Mountain, the Sportsman's Bar in Boyne City and the Flight Deck in Charlevoix.

Costumes were rented from Mary's Magic Mirror in Boyne Falls.

Wood - Lemerand

Wedding vows were exchanged February 19 between Tammy Wood and Larry Lemerand Jr. The bride is the daughter of Christine Wood and the late Donald Robb Wood. The groom is the son of Joan and Larry Lemerand of Charlevoix.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother Donald Wood. Bridesmaids were Tina Farris, Diane Gibson, and Candy Krueh. Groomsmen were Victor Lauria, Cal Lauria, and Jeffrey Lemerand, brother of the groom.

The ceremony was performed by Detroit Police Chaplain Lowell Lawson at the Wedding Chapel on Main Street in Plymouth. A reception followed immediately at the Plymouth Manor. Guests came from as far away as Scotland.

The newlyweds have not yet finalized their honeymoon plans, but may include a trip to Scotland.

The bride is a 1984 graduate of Plymouth High School and recently began training for the city of Southfield as a police, fire and ambulance dispatcher.

The groom is a 1982 graduate of Charlevoix High School and a 1987 graduate of Northern Michigan University. He is presently employed as a police officer for the city of Novi.

The couple resides at their home in West Bloomfield Township.

Senior Citizen Center to host roast beef dinner

The Charlevoix Senior Citizens Center will host a roast beef dinner at the center from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday, March 23 at the center.

Tickets for the dinner cost $5 for adults, $2.50 for children ages five to 12, and no charge for children younger than five. Money raised will go toward continued repairs and improvements at the senior citizen center, which is located at the corner of Carpenter Street and Norwood Road.

Oh Boix

A collection of praises, awards and accomplishments involving Charlevoix people.

Frances H. Pleiz of East Jordan has been reappointed by Governor John Engler to represent the general public on the Library of Michigan Board of Trustees. Pleiz served as the Executive Director of the Michigan Library Association from 1969 to 1982.

Bruce MacArthur of Charlevoix recently completed a week of tennis training at John Gardiner's Tennis Ranch on Camelback in Scottsdale, Arizona.

Larry C. Lemerand Jr., a former Charlevoix resident, was recently named Police Officer of the Year by the Novi Jaycees. Lemerand received the award and a letter of appreciation at a breakfast ceremony at the Novi Sheraton. Lemerand has been an officer on the 51-man Novi police force since September, 1987. Novi is in Oakland County in the Western Detroit metropolitan area.

Lemerand is the son of Joan and Larry Lemerand Sr. of Charlevoix.

Larry Lemerand Jr.

Diane Scheuerer of Melbourne, Florida was recently named state's Home Economics Teacher of the Year by the Florida Home Economics Association. Scheuerer is the wife of Dr. Daniel Scheuerer. She is the daughter of Mrs. Bill (Ida) Hall of Charlevoix.

Betsy Jo Straw of Charlevoix is among the students named to the quarterly Dean's List at Ferris State University. To be named to the list a student must have a full schedule of classes and a grade point average of 3.5 or better on a 4-point scale.

Breakfast to kick off local March of Dimes WalkAmerica project

The March of Dimes will host a kick-off for Charlevoix's 1993 WalkAmerica project at 7:30 a.m., Thursday, March 18 at Nanny's Restaurant. The kick-off will explain how the WalkAmerica program raises funds for the March of Dimes and what those funds go toward. Anyone who is interested in becoming involved in WalkAmerica as a corporate, business or organization team representative, captain or volunteer is invited to attend. Please R.S.V.P. to Joy Halverson at 547-4813.

Charlevoix's WalkAmerica program will take place April 24. Co-chairmen for the event are Dennis Halverson, incoming Rotary President and Jacquie Mabey, Rotary Treasurer.

Last year's walk drew between 80 and 90 walkers who raised nearly $10,000 for March of Dimes programs.

Odd Fellows wrap up 1993 cribbage title

Bob Heise turned in a perfect 986 score and the Masons shaved 390 points off of the Odd Fellows lead, but it was too little too late in the final night of the Sixty-third Annual Charlevoix Masons and Odd Fellows winter cribbage tournament. After 10 weeks of play, the Odd Fellows ended up taking this year's tournament by 1,573 points. The win not only gives the Odd Fellows bragging rights for the coming year, but also means that the Masons will be hosting the tournament's end-of-the-year supper this year.

Heise's perfect score this past Thursday evening was the second for this year's tournament. Earlier in the year, Eddie Johnson had a perfect score. This past Thursday, Johnson had a 951 - a few shy of perfect, but good enough to make him high man for the Odd Fellows.

people who have already pledged donations to the pool fund will find this tax credit an additional benefit — and those who haven't yet made a gift to the fund now may reconsider," he says.

The Charlevoix Community Pool Fund is open-ended and can be added to at any time, according to Tambellini. Future pledges and donations will now be directed to the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

Efforts to build and operate an indoor swimming pool in Charlevoix have been underway for several years. A group of service organizations, led by the Friends of the Pool and the local Kiwanis Club, has worked diligently to raise funds and gather support for the project. David Strawbridge, active in the Friends group, says he hopes the new arrangement with the Community Foundation will spur wider support. "So many people have told us they want a community pool for recreation, health, and safety," he says. "School kids, senior citizens — everybody who lives here — could use the pool year 'round. It would be a wonderful asset to our community."

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is one of more than 400 community foundations around the country that receive charitable donations, manage them in a permanent endowment, and redistribute earnings to meet local need. Started in 1992, the local foundation is guided by a board of trustees representing communities throughout the county.

More information about the Foundation, or the Charlevoix Community Pool fund, may be obtained by calling the Foundation's office, 536-2440 or by writing, c/o P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, MI 49727.

Volleyball teams brave the cold

Approximately 125 people braved the cold and turned out for inaugural Cabin Fever co-ed volleyball tournament at Ferry Beach this past Saturday. Ten teams competed in the tournament which was won by Radio Shack of Charlevoix.

Playing for Radio Shack were Steve Lenhart, Lisa Weisgerber, Jamie Monteith, Vickie Rogers, Shari Jones, Glen Paramo and Shelly Anderson. Second place went to The Beanery team of Brenda Bryan, Tammy Holm, Stacy Tilton, Dave Campbell, Paul LeFevre, John Wulf and Gregg Swanson.

Despite bitterly cold weather, the tournament went well. Many local businesses donated food and prizes. Tom Meggison manned the grill. LeFevre, who organized the tournament said, "Everybody enjoyed themselves. There will be a second annual - much bigger, much better.

Annual Tax Sale

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

ORDER FOR HEARING
No. C99-036-1872
In the Matter of the Petition of the State Treasurer of Michigan, in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

I reviewed the petition of the State Treasurer who is requesting a judgment in favor of the State against each parcel of land therein described, for the amounts claimed to be due for taxes, interest and charges on said parcels of land, and that the lands be sold for the amounts claimed by the State.

It is ordered that the petition will be brought on for hearing and judgment at the April term of this Court, to be held at Charlevoix, in the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan on the 12th day of April, 1993. At the opening of Court on that day, all persons who have an interest in the lands of any part thereof, who wish to contest the same claimed by the State, shall appear in Court and file their objections with the clerk on or before the first day of the term of this Court mentioned above, and a judgment will be made as requested in the petition if the amounts due are not paid.

It is further ordered that the lands described in the petition, will be sold for the taxes, interest and charges on the first Tuesday in May thereafter, beginning at 10:00 A.M. on that day or days after, that are necessary to complete the sale of each parcel, at the office of the County Treasurer, or at a location selected by the Treasurer, at the County seat of the County mentioned above.

This sale will be open to the public and each parcel described in the judgment shall be separately offered for sale and sold to the person who pays the full amount charged against the parcel and accepts the smallest unadvised interest in the property, parcel of land and tract sold on the first day of the sale, or on the succeeding day, or before the close of the sale, if not sold on the second offering the County Treasurer shall bid the parcel in the name of the State.

Witness the Hon. Richard M. Pajala, Circuit Judge, and the seal of said Circuit Court of Charlevoix County this 22nd day of March, 1993.

Countersigned:
Jane E. Brannon, Clerk

Richard M. Pajala, Circuit Judge
STATE OF MICHIGAN
In the Matter of the Petition of the State Treasurer of Michigan, in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

To the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, Douglas B. Roberts, State Treasurer of Michigan, shows for the County of Charlevoix, that he is the State Treasurer and files this petition under the provisions of P.A. 206 of 1993, as amended, and P.A. 369 of 1995, as amended.

The attached Schedule A is the tax record required by the act and contains the description of all lands in the above county upon which taxes were assessed for the years mentioned therein and have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned delinquent.

That the amounts opposite each description of land are (a) the total amount of delinquent taxes which may lawfully be sold at the next annual tax sale; (b) interest calculated as provided by law to the first day of May; (c) a county property tax administration fee of four percent, with a minimum of $1.00; and (d) all other expenses, all of which are in accordance with the act mentioned above.

A. That all of the taxes, interest and charges are valid and have remained delinquent for sufficient time to require the sale of the lands against which they were assessed at the next annual tax sale, and constitute a valid lien upon each of the parcels of land, and that a judgment in favor of the State against the land for the payment of the amounts specified, and not paid, that the lands be sold.

Therefore your plaintiff requests:
a. That within the time provided by law the taxes, interest and charges be assessed, and that the taxes, interest and charges be assessed and constitute a valid lien upon each of the parcels of land described in Schedule A;
b. That within the time provided by law the court make a final judgment in favor of the State against each parcel of land for the payment of the taxes, interest, and charges in Schedule A, and that the amounts listed in the column headed "Amounts" shall constitute the amounts adjudged against the lands, unless so amended by the court;

c. That if the amounts in the schedule are not paid, the lands, or the portion that is necessary to satisfy the amount adjudged against the lands, shall be offered separately at the tax sale as the law provides;

d. That your plaintiff may have such other and further relief that the court finds just and equitable.

Low precipitation eases problems with high lake levels

Below average precipitation and net basin supplies brought some needed relief to the Great Lakes basin. Shoreline residents of lakes St. Clair, Erie and Ontario should continue to be on the alert for high water conditions. The 30-day outlook published by the National Weather Service projects light to moderate precipitation in the Great Lakes Region for the month of March.

The forecast, published in the Monthly Bulletin of Lake Levels for the Great Lakes, projects Lake Superior to be near its long-term average levels for the next six months while Lakes Michigan-Huron, St. Clair, Erie, and Ontario will likely remain above their long-term average levels.

A more detailed summary of Lakes Michigan-Huron water levels follows. All elevations are referenced to International Great Lakes Datum 1985.

Lakes Michigan-Huron at the end of February were at elevation 579.04 feet (176.49 meters) above the mean water level at Rimouski, Quebec, or about 18 inches (49 cm.) above Chart Datum. The February monthly mean level of 579.10 feet (176.51 meters) was about 6 inches (16 cm.) above the long-term average for February. The lakes were about 24 inches (60 cm.) below their all-time high February monthly mean level, which was recorded in 1986. The forecast shows the March monthly mean level of Lakes Michigan-Huron will be about the same as what it was a Mid-February. The lakes are expected to complete their seasonal decline in March. The water level in Mid-august 1993, is expected to be about 7 inches (18 cm.) above the long-term average for that month, and about 10 inches (26 cm.) above what it was at the same time in 1992.

Garden Club names winners of third annual poster contest

Recently the Charlevoix Area Garden Club sponsored its third annual Environmental Poster Contest and nine Charlevoix elementary students received awards for their entries. The poster contest is a national contest given through local chapters of the national Council of State Garden Clubs, Inc. The posters must be based on a Woodsey Owl (environmental) theme or a Smokey Bear (fire prevention) theme and use either or both characters in the artwork.

Winners this year were in the kindergarten through first grade division: first place Amy Hilligan (kindergarten - St. Mary's), second place Christopher Golski (kindergarten - St. Mary's), and third place Kyle Borths (first grade - St. Mary's). In the second through third grade division first place went to Lindsey Miller (second grade - St. Mary's), second place Mike Sullivan (third grade - St. Mary's), and third place Christina Whitley (second grade - Charlevoix Elementary). In the fourth and fifth grade division first place was tied between Susan Agnello (fifth grade - Charlevoix Elementary) and Brian Hater (fifth grade - Charlevoix Elementary) and second place was awarded to Tonya Brodin (fifth grade - St. Mary's).

All of the students were given award certificates and a package of bulbs to plant in their spring garden plus the four First Place award winners each received a $50 savings bond from the Charlevoix Area Garden Club. The First place posters have been sent on to be adjudicated at the state level and from there the best entries in each division will be sent on to the Regional chairman for judging.

Tournament loss to Boyne City ends Rayder basketball season

Charlevoix finishes year with 15-6 record

By L. Scott Swanson
For all but four teams in the Michigan high school basketball postseason tournament the season ends in a loss. Charlevoix will not be one of those four teams. The Rayders' final loss of the season came to Boyne City Wednesday, March 10 in the District Tournament at Harbor Springs by a score of 52-40. Charlevoix finished the 1992-93 season with a record of 15-6, three of those losses courtesy of Boyne City which finished the regular season 18-2.

In the two regular season games, Boyne City center Steve Seelye gave the Rayders fits. In the second game, he not only had scored in double figures, but he got Rayder center Brad DeGrow in foul trouble early in the game. Having DeGrow on the bench put a big hole in Charlevoix's offense in that game and Charlevoix ended up getting blown out. In last Wednesday's tournament game, Rayder coach Jim Kanine made a strategic move to correct that problem. He changed defensive assignments, putting DeGrow on a Boyne City forward while having Vince Voisin guard Seelye. That move was a limited success. While Seelye still took the Rayders for 20 points, Kanine did manage to keep DeGrow out of early foul trouble.

Both teams came out tight in the first quarter of the tournament game. The first few shots Charlevoix put up were flat, ugly, rim-rattling missiles. But at the other end of the court, Boyne City's offense was equally unimpressive. The first point of the game did not come until two minutes into the quarter when DeGrow staked the Rayders to a 1-0 lead with a free throw. Boyne City did not score for the first three minutes of the game. They finally got on the board with a basket by Seelye. A minute later Seelye scored again and Boyne City was up 4-1. Late in the regular season Seelye injured his ankle. Coming into the game there was a question as to how much the injury would hurt Seelye's play. In the first quarter, he answered that question. The ankle injury wasn't going to hurt his play nearly as much as his play was going to hurt the Rayders. Seelye scored eight of the Rayders' 10 first-quarter points. Charlevoix could add only two baskets to DeGrow's free throw in the quarter. Voisin scored off a rebound midway through the quarter and DeGrow scored with less than a minute remaining in the quarter. Entering the second quarter, Boyne City led 10-5.

Charlevoix's best quarter of the game was the second when they outscored Boyne City 16-12. Almost all of the Rayders' points came from shots in the paint or at the free throw line. Charlevoix got almost no scoring from the perimeter for the entire evening. DeGrow had eight points in the quarter. Voisin and David Dobulis combined to hold Seelye to just a single basket in the second quarter. Dobulis, a junior, gave Charlevoix a nice lift off the bench. In the closing minutes of the second quarter, he blocked three shots. Point guard Don Jess also had a blocked shot near the end of the half. The second period rally left Rayders trailing by just a single point, 22-21 at half-

The game began to unravel for Charlevoix in the third quarter. Ironically, the quarter started well for the Rayders. Keith Carey scored and was fouled, then made the free throw to give Charlevoix a 24-22 lead. Boyne City tied the game at 24 and then the two teams matched baskets until the game was tied at 28-28 when Boyne City called a time-out with 3:07 left in the quarter.

Coming out of the time-out Boyne City's Derrick Lamy hit a three-point shot to give the Ramblers a 33-28 lead. A DeGrow basket brought the Rayders to within three at 33-30, but then the game turned into a bust for the Rayders. DeGrow's basket came with 2:09 left in the third quarter. During the next eight minutes the Rayders scored just four points. Meanwhile, Boyne City scored 18 points, six of them in the final 58 seconds of the third quarter. And for all intents and purposes, that was the ball game.

Individual scoring for the Rayders was as follows: DeGrow, 18; Voisin, 6; Dobulis, 4; Skeel, 4; Carey, 3; Jess, 3; Psihopaidas, 2. Charlevoix will lose four of its starting five players, DeGrow, Voisin, Carey and Psihopaidas, to graduation. Jess will return at guard. Other juniors who came off the bench early in games this season are Dobulis, Skeel, Brandon Webb and Matt Norton.

Charlevoix's Brad DeGrow attempts to shoot over Boyne City's Steve Seelye. DeGrow scored 18 points and Seelye 20 in the District Tournament game won by Boyne City 52-40.

Girls' recreation league wraps up season

After going 1-7 during the regular season, the Unbelievables peaked at the right time and won the Charlevoix Recreation Department Girls' Basketball junior high division post season tournament Saturday. The Unbelievables were coached by Delbert and Liz Kelly.

The junior high tournament featured seven Charlevoix teams made up of sixth, seventh and eighth grade girls and was played in a double-elimination format.

The Unbelievables went through the day undefeated, beating the Lady Gladiators 24-23 in the final game. Earlier in the day the two teams locked horns in an overtime contest which the Unbelievables won by a score of 26-25. For the Unbelievables in four games on the day, Lisa Parrish totaled 39 points and Jodi Bingham, 20.

For the Lady Gladiators, coached by Bill Eaton, Amanda Eaton had 35 points, and Julie Gregory 25 points.

The Lady Gladiators shared the best regular season record at 7-1 with the Wanda Bees. The Wanda Bees, coached by Scott Blanchard placed third in Saturday's tournament. Candice Vandergriff led the team with 48 points on the day while Rhonda Williams had 15.

Fourth place went to the Naughty Girls, coached by Bernie Ward. Jessa VanGuilder scored 20 points for the Naughty Girls while Christie Ward and Liz Dohm each had 13.

Fifth place went to the Spirits, coached by Liz Grunch. Ann Terryberry scored 26 points and Christine Sweeny added nine.

Sixth place went to the Heavy Bees, coached by Mike Pearsall. Jenny Eveleigh led the team with 18 points while Angie Potter and Katy Coplan each contributed eight.

Roger Gowell's Chargers placed seventh. Annie Pair scored 16 points in two games.

Prior to the semi-final game, the league hosted its post season awards ceremony. Each girl voted to the All-Star team received a plaque and all coaches received appreciation certificates. Based on a vote of the All-Star coaches, three players received special plaques. Amanda Eaton was named league MVP. Lisa Parrish was named best offensive player and Ann Terryberry was named best defensive player.

April 5, 1993 - 5:30 p.m.

Charlevoix City Council
City Hall, 210 State Street
April 5, 1993 - 7:00 p.m.

Reference: A zoning ordinance amendment which provides for rezoning change from "R-4," Planned Residential to "PO," Professional Office.

Applicant: Tim Fisher
H. Jack Bagrow
John Ferguson, 101 Bridge Street
Charlevoix, MI 49720

Owner: Kit Carson
6103 Park Lake Road
East Lansing, MI 48823

The City Planning Commission and the City Council will meet to consider an ordinance which in summary amends the zoning classification of the lot(s) which are commonly known as 101 West Dixon Avenue from "R-4," Planned Residential to "PO," Professional Office.

The proposed rezoning application and ordinance amendment may be viewed at the City Planner/Zoning administrator's office at City Hall during office hours. Oral and written comments from the general public are welcome.

The abbreviated legal description is as follows:

In the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, the east 82.0 feet of Lot 2, Block 1, of Dixon's addition to Charlevoix, according to the recorded plat thereof, also: beginning at a point on the North line of Dixon Avenue 82.0 feet west of the west line of Michigan Avenue (Bridge Street); thence North, parallel to Michigan Avenue, 66.0 feet; thence West 50.0 feet; thence South 66.0 feet; thence East on Dixon Avenue 50.0 feet to the point of beginning; being a part of government Lot 2, Section 26, Town 34 North, range 8 West, and a part of Lot 2, Block 1, Dixon's Addition to Charlevoix.

MORTGAGE SALE

Default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage made by Robert T. Heise and Nanette M.
Heise, husband and wife, to Mayflower Mortgage Corporation, a Michigan corporation, Mortgagee, dated September 5, 1986 and recorded on September 5, 1986 in Liber 187, on page 680, of Charlevoix County Records, Michigan, which was assigned to Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation by an assignment dated September 5,
1986 and recorded October 15,
1986 in Liber 188, Page 261,
Charlevoix County Records, Michigan on which there is claimed to be due at the date hereof the sum of Forty One Thousand Nine Hundred and 56/100 Dollars ($41,098.56), including interest at 10.5% per annum. No suit or proceeding at law has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and the statute in such case made and provided, and to pay said amount with interest, as provided in said mortgage, and all legal costs, charges and expenses, including attorneys' fees allowed by law, and all taxes and insurance premiums paid by the undersigned before sale, said mortgage will be foreclosed, by sale of the mortgaged premises at public sale to the highest bidder at the East door of the City Building, 310 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan on April 2, 1993, at 10:00 a.m.

The premises covered by said mortgage are situated in the City of Boyer, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and are described as follows:

The North 78 feet of Lots 3 and 4 including the vacated alley between said lots as vacated in Liber 203,

Records, CALBERT'S ADDITION to the Village (now City) of Boyer City, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof. The property is commonly known as 311 Division, Boyer City, Michigan 49712.

Notice is further given that the length of the redemption period will be six months from the date of sale, unless determined abandoned in accordance with MCL 600.9241a, in which case the redemption period shall be 30 days from the date of sale.

St. Patrick's Day reminds Islanders of their Irish heritage

atives. McDonough said that on his first trip to Arran More, he stopped in a pub to hoist a few beers and was immediately struck by the similarities of Arran More Islanders and Beaver Islanders. "They even look like Beaver Islanders, their mannerisms and facial expressions are the same," McDonough said. "I realized it all had been earned on through the generations."

The Arran More-Beaver Island connection continues to grow stronger. Kathleen Early Mulcrone is an Arran More Island native who routinely visits Beaver Island with her husband Dominic. Several years ago the Mulcrones were on a trip through northern Michigan when they saw a sign for Beaver Island while passing through Charlevoix. Mulcrone remembered Beaver Island from her school days on Arran More Island. "The students couldn't tell you where New York or Chicago was on a map, but they could always point to Beaver Island," Mulcrone said. As Mulcrone considered a visit to Beaver Island, she called her parents back in Arran More, who encouraged her to make the trip to Beaver Island and to look up Billy McDonough. The McDonoughs and the Mulcrones quickly grew to feel like family towards one another after that first encounter.

Mulcrone will be spending this St. Patrick's day in Chicago where she now lives. She and her husband will attend mass in the morning and then volunteer their time at the Irish American Heritage Center, where the festivities will last all day long. Mulcrone hopes to celebrate St. Patrick's day on Beaver Island next year. "We go back there not as visitors, but as family," Mulcrone said of Beaver Island.

Not all Irish celebrate St. Patrick's Day

Not all Irishmen will be wearing the green on St. Patrick's Day. For some, the color of choice is orange. Sam Kelly is one Irishman who won't do anything to celebrate St. Patrick's Day. Kelly emigrated to North America in 1919 from Northern Ireland, which is Orangeman's country. Although Kelly prefers to raise a toast to Orangeman's day in July instead of St. Patrick's Day in March, he's still a pure Irishman. Looking like a spry old leprechaun, Kelly reminisces about his childhood in Ireland. He remembers watching St. Patrick's Day parades and Orangeman Day parades, where the parade marchers walked in crisp, uniform lines. "The parade would start nice, but all it took was for one person to throw a bottle and then the fights would break out," Kelly recalls. "They'd fight and fight for the whole length of the parade." Kelly put his fighting Irish skills to good use when he was a young man living in Detroit. He traveled all over Michigan as a featherweight boxer. "I got two buffalo nickels for my first win," Kelly said. Kelly wishes that the Irish love of fighting would come to an end in northern and southern Ireland. "It's been going on forever," Kelly said of the fighting. "It's time to bring it to an end."

Polish student takes a look at local way of doing things

By L. Scott Swanson

Early in his two week visit to Charlevoix, Mariusz Jurgielewicz, a 23 year old student from Poland, was taken to a Charlevoix City Council meeting. It just happened to be the meeting where more than a hundred people packed the council chambers, many of those people upset about problems with the city fire department.

At the start of the meeting Jurgielewicz's host, City Manager Mike Wiesner (who also happened to be the focus of discontent for some of the people who had come to the meeting to complain) introduced Jurgielewicz. The audience applauded and gave the Eastern European visitor a warm welcome. And with that dispensed with, people then got down to business and did what they had come to the meeting for - some serious complaining.

"I recall a few meetings during elections in Poland," Jurgielewicz said a few days later when asked about the city council meeting. "There was shouting, sometimes people speaking before thinking."

"I recall a few meetings during elections in Poland. There was shouting, sometimes people speaking before thinking. Was almost the same."

Polish visitor Mariusz Jurgielewicz, commenting on a March 15 Charlevoix City Council meeting he sat in on.

Jurgielewicz has been in Michigan since late last summer. He is here on a foreign study program. He spent his first several months studying at Michigan Technological University. Currently he is in the midst of three two-week internships with city managers in three Michigan communities. He spent two weeks in Southfield, is now spending two weeks in Charlevoix, and next will spend two weeks in Hancock.

Originally from Legnica, a city in southwest Poland, Jurgielewicz is currently a student at the technological university in Wroclaw, Poland. He was one of seven students chosen for a foreign study program jointly sponsored by the U.S. Government, Michigan Tech University and the Michigan City

Hello mom - yeah, it's me I'm trapped by snow in Georgia

By L. Scott Swanson

When Tania Egger left college for spring break and headed south she figured she would be going somewhere where it was warm. Little did she know that she would end up spending 21 hours sitting on I-75 just north of Atlanta, trapped in a blizzard.

Egger is a 20-year-old Central Michigan University sophomore. She graduated from Ellsworth High School in 1991 and worked at Terry's Place in Charlevoix this past summer. Her father, Warner Egger, is a Charlevoix businessman and her mother, Rhonnia Egger, works at the Rocking Horse Toy Company in downtown Charlevoix.

During spring break, Egger and four friends loaded themselves into a minivan and like thousands of other college students made a pilgrimage to Daytona Beach. She said the stay in Daytona Beach was fun, but it was the trip home which went awry.

The five girls began their trip home around 10:30 a.m. Saturday, March 13. As they were leaving, the weather, even in Florida, was by no means sunny and pleasant.

"There were tornadoes and bad winds in Florida. We hit snow south of Atlanta," Egger explained.

The girls had heard weather reports indicating there was a big storm on the way. Their objective

"There were tornadoes and bad winds in Florida. We hit snow south of Atlanta."

Local college student Tania Egger, explaining where her trip home from a spring break trip to Daytona Beach met up with hostile weather.

when they left Florida on Saturday morning was to make it to Dalton, Georgia about 30 miles north of Atlanta and get a motel room.

By early evening they had made it as far as Atlanta and roads were getting bad. Just north of Atlanta things got very bad and traffic on I-75 came to a standstill. Egger said there was three inches of ice on the road and trucks jack-knifed across the road.

"We just sat there," Egger said. They sat and they sat and they sat some more. From 8 p.m. Saturday night until 5 p.m. Sunday night (that's 21 long, cold, boring and dreary hours) the car went nowhere. Fortunately, the van had plenty of gas so the girls were able to run that enough to stay warm. The girls were dressed suitable for a casual drive, not for an arctic trek. Egger said she was wearing a sweater, spring jacket, jeans and tennis shoes.

Managers Association. Jurgielewicz said the program is the first of its kind in his country.

During his time in Charlevoix, Southfield and Hancock Jurgielewicz is attempting to get a general view of local government and look at the various activities of the cities. Given that he is staying with city managers in the United States, the obvious question was is that the type of job he intends to pursue when he gets back to Poland. He said he might, but that wouldn't be right away because currently there is no such job in Poland. In fact up until a couple of years ago, there was no such thing as local government in Poland.

"Two years ago, 2,500 local units of government were created," he explained. "It was only federal government before." He noted that in Poland people are not so interested in local affairs. He said the Polish people are "more interested in what's going on in whole Poland."

Jurgielewicz said Poland has been near the front of the movement toward democratization in Eastern Europe. He said other countries such as East Germany have been a few steps behind. While the transition has led to civil war in some countries, he doesn't foresee that happening in Poland.

"There's no chance probably now," he said. "Poland has been more peaceful. People argued a lot and discussed, but the situation was never close to what happened in Yugoslavia."

Jurgielewicz said that he would like to see Poland eventually join the European Community. He said that the most optimistic time table for that occurring is 10 years, but that he suspects it will be at least 15 years.

"Two years ago, 2,500 local units of government were created," he explained. "It was only federal government before."

Polish student Mariuz Jurgielewicz explaining the development of local government in Poland.

As a student, Jurgielewicz is a management major with specialization in computer data base management. In his time at Michigan Tech he said he found that in the United States the approach is different than in Poland. He described it as more "customer oriented." He said that in Poland, rather than picking and choosing classes, students have a very strict program to complete.

In a way, that difference carries through throughout American society. "Citizens have much more power (here) than in Poland," Jurgielewicz observed.

He said that he and the other Polish students are looking at things in the United States with an eye toward making things better in Poland. Some U.S. ways of doing things the Polish will adopt and some they won't. "We have a chance to learn from somebody's mistakes," he said.

One thing which he noted could stand some immediate improvement in the United States is the quality of the beer. He said that in Poland they drink lager beer which is "much better." He noted that it's not just Poland which has better beer than in the U.S. "Generally, beer from Europe is better," he said.

"I could go anywhere and find things which are surprising for me," Jurgielewicz said of his visit to the United States. As an example, he cited a huge food market in Southfield. He said that's just something you don't see in Poland.

He said that people in the U.S. have been quite hospitable. "Here, people mostly are very friendly. In communist countries, they are more distrustful."

OPINIONS

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

It's been quite a trip!

After a long Charlevoix winter, I looked forward to getting a lead on spring by visiting my nephews Larry in Raleigh, North Carolina and Peter in Washington, D.C. I was anxious to smell the fragrance of flowering shrubs, to step on a dry sidewalk and cruise past freshly mowed, green lawns.

Little did I know that the worst storm of the century was about to kick off the snowball between the goal posts of New York and Florida!

Due to the storm, my train from Raleigh to Washington, D.C. was an hour late. We were only five minutes out of the station when the train came to a complete stop. Something must be seriously wrong, I suspected. True enough. A young man slipped on a plastic bag and crashed in the aisle. A passenger, who happened to be a nurse, came to his aid. The young man was diabetic and an ambulance was called. It was tricky strapping him to a stretcher in that narrow aisle and then maneuvering him off the train onto the platform, but it was accomplished with care. After passengers were interviewed as witnesses, the train resumed its journey. Now we are two hours late. I was concerned because Bruce and Barbara MacArthur were meeting the train to take me to stay with my nephew, Peter, who is married to their daughter, Nancy. Fortunately, Bruce called to check on the arrival time and was told of the delay.

Arriving at Union Station, without boots, of course, I was disappointed to see more snow than on Mt. McSaub. This is exactly what I wanted to get away from, but from here on my luck improved. Washington is fun to visit even when one isn't rubbing elbows with the high and the mighty, one may still enjoy following in the trail of their prominent footsteps. During lunch in a gorgeous new home on the Potomac, our hostess tells us that president, Bill Clinton lived on this very spot for several years when he was a student at Georgetown University. My niece, Nancy, shares the story that her hairdresser confided that Tipper Gore is a regular customer in his salon. She now arrives before the shop opens and after it has been checked by security.

We chat during dinner with the owner of "Trattoria," a small, fine Italian restaurant. He recalls with embarrassment that someone made a reservation for dinner. What a surprise when George and Barbara Bush walked in and had to wait ten minutes before they could be seated! My dinner guests, Ginny and John Sullivan as well as Nancy and Peter Smith are amused. Many readers will remember Ginny and John were married on the banks of Round Lake a few years ago. The ceremony was followed by a champagne cruise on the Beaver Islander. People waved from shore as the boat steamed through the channel into Lake Michigan bearing a huge sign, "Just Married."

Both the Smiths and the Sullivans share the Charlevoix Connection, and are already juggling dates with family and friends for the annual summer visit.

As for me, Sally, who works in the Courier office says that the weather is getting warmer - it's above 20 degrees! To quote Shelley in his eloquent poem, Ode to the West Wind, "If Winter comes, can spring be far behind?"

Dismissal of firemen disturbing

Editor,

Thanks for your unbiased and informative accounting of the Charlevoix City Fire Department firings and the aftermath. You obviously took time to investigate the City's News Release announcing their dismissals by talking to the parties involved instead of just printing the News Release. I found your assessment of the events to be 99.44/100% accurate.

Now that the residents of Charlevoix have been given the whole story, they can draw their own conclusions and hopefully act accordingly.

One additional bit of information that was presented to the City Council members on Monday night but not included in your coverage is the fact that 2 of the 4 men had to read about their dismissals in Friday's News Review. Their letters of dismissal arrived by regular mail on Saturday, not on Thursday as the News Release stated. If this is the way the city handles its business it is disturbing to say the least.

Thanks again Scott for your accuracy and thorough reporting. Keep up the good work!

Louise Thompson

Time to change property tax system

Editor,

Last Nov. 3, where were all you taxpayers who are now finally becoming aware of the need for property tax reform? Then you had a chance to support two property tax relief proposals, but you allowed the special interests (for one example - those who believe that some school administrators are worth $80,000 plus a year) to defeat both proposals.

Those of us who wrote letters to newspapers, and tried in other ways to further the passage of these proposals, were largely ignored.

It may not be too late. Please write Senator McManus, Reps. Bodem and/or Gagliardi, urging them to support the tax relief proposal now before the legislature. I suspect that Rep. Gagliardi especially needs a nudge in that direction. Also, it is particularly important that you ask your friends in Southern Michigan to write to their legislators.

Always remember that the special interests that want taxes kept high work at this 365 days a year and taxpayers must be equally vigilant.

No tax relief proposal will satisfy everyone; there will always be certain provisions that will be "nit-picked." We can't wait for the perfect tax program. "Action Now!"

Township wants school financing changed

(The following letter was sent to Governor John Engler and also to the Charlevoix Courier.)

Editor,

At a regular meeting of the Eveline Township Board held on March 10, 1993 the following letter was discussed at length and approved to be sent to state and county governments:

The Eveline Township Board recommends the State of Michigan Government, the Governor and the Congress change the present method of taxing property owners and funding school districts. Most properties, especially residential, resort, and lakefront have increased in value dramatically over the past four years causing a tax assessment shock. This large increase is unfair to the property owner and in some cases causing undue hardship to the property owner.

The present method of funding school districts is unfair and unjust to both the property owner and the school districts. The higher S.E.V. school districts receive a golden egg in funding while the poorer school districts receive less funding than required to operate a good school system. What is needed is a system of taxation that fairly distributes funding to school districts and doesn't over burden the property owner.

If the state government can't come up with a fair tax method now, the present S.E.V. should be frozen at 1992 value until Congress can come up with a just method of property taxation.

We would appreciate your consideration of the above suggestions. Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

Eveline Twp. Board
(Submitted by Marsha Steward, Eveline Twp. Clerk)

...there's nothing quite like taking Atlanta by storm

When traffic first came to a standstill, the girls didn't think the delay would last too long. They had some sandwiches in the car which they ate and even shared with some other people who were stopped. Egger explained that it wasn't like traffic was stop and go. Cars were stopped dead in their tracks. She said people were getting out of their cars and chatting with other people. She said she talked to several other people and even met another group of students from Central Michigan.

Around 10 a.m. Sunday morning (14 hours into the long, dull wait) Egger and one of the other girls decided to make a break for civilization (at least as much civilization as you can hope to find in Georgia on a snow-covered morning) and set out on foot. They walked about two miles ahead to a rest stop.

Things weren't a great deal better at the rest stop. Egger and her traveling companion found that people at a restaurant had also been stranded by the storm. Egger called her parents, whom she later described as frantic, and informed them of her whereabouts and status. After phoning home, she and the other girl secured what food they could and hiked back to the highway to rejoin the main body of their party.

About 21 inches of snow had fallen and that in conjunction with the ice had overwhelmed the snow removal equipment of Georgia. When faced with that kind of weather the South will rise again, but it has to thaw out first. Egger said there were very few snow plows and what few there were appeared to be wooden ones parked alongside the road.

"Up here it would have been a big storm, but not paralyzing."

Tania Egger describing the storm which left her and four college friends stranded on I-75 just north of Atlanta for 21 hours.

Asked what kind of problems such a storm might have caused in Northern Michigan, Egger replied, "Up here it would have been a big storm, but not paralyzing."

As to whether she ever felt her predicament was life threatening, Egger said, "Not life threatening, but it was a real hassle." She noted that one of the other girls in the van took a picture, but that she chose not to because she didn't ever want to see it again.

At about 5 p.m., Sunday traffic began to move again. Egger said there was one lane of I-75 open and moving at about 35 miles per hour all the way from just north of Atlanta to Chattanooga, Tennessee. The five girls found a motel which they suspected had the last open room in Chattanooga.

"You had to have reservations at the Denny's in Chattanooga because they were running out of food," Egger noted.

Egger said she called her parents again when she reached the motel to reassure them that things had taken a turn for the better and she was making progress toward home.

The five girls finally rolled into Mount Pleasant at about 3 a.m., Tuesday, March 16. After spending that much time together in the van, Egger noted, "We were all pretty cranky when we got back."

Asked if she would be returning to Florida for spring break next year, Egger promptly replied, "Heck no." She said if she goes south next year it's going to be on a plane to Cancun.

Riding program preparing for spring

The Exceptional Riders Program at Lake Charlevoix Farms is gearing up to begin its spring session. Classes are scheduled to begin Tuesday, April 13 with orientation for students at 7 p.m. If you are interested in volunteering to help with the classes or would like to register a student, please call Barb Lane at 347-3300.

Students are wanted!! The classes are open to physically, mentally and emotionally challenged of all ages. Students are taught to ride a horse, not just taken for a "pony ride." Each student is assisted by a volunteer horse leader and, depending on the student's ability, one or two side helpers. Safety is emphasized. The classes are one hour long and take place in the indoor riding arena at the Lake Charlevoix Farms, located on the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road. They run for eight consecutive Tuesdays starting

April 13, at 6:30 and 7:30 p.m.

Several factors are important to making this program a success. The first is people, every session requires approximately 30 volunteer helpers - to lead horses, assist the students and help with many other jobs in the barn and class area. Secondly, financial support from our community. LCFERP is a non-profit, tax-exempt charitable organization. There is no fee for these classes, but students should arrange their own transportation to and from the farm.

If you would like more information about this program, would like to volunteer to help with the classes, or know of a person who would benefit from participating as a student, please contact Barb Lane, Program Director, at 616-347-3300. A note to potential students, classes fill up quickly, so please call by April 1, 1993. Hope to see you there!

A baby quilt made by Junior Girl Scout Troop 365 of East Jordan was given to Brenda Graham, of East Jordan, and her new baby Courtney Lynn. The quilt was to be given to a baby girl born at Charlevoix Area Hospital in honor of National Girl Scout Week March 7-13. Courtney was born March 14. The girls who made the quilt are: Heather Jones, Traci Potter, Kattie Brooks, Melissa Brillely, Missy Yawn, Patti Murray, Kristin Haley, Kelly Brodin, Amanda Daniel, and Nichole Mobla. Nancy Brooks is the troop leader and Betty Murray and Donna Murray are co-leaders. Brenda Graham said the quilt was extra special because she knows many of the girls who made it.

Grandvue Auxiliary discusses plans for the coming year

At their first regular meeting of the new year, Grandvue Auxiliary members discussed plans for their annual Spring Games Party and Bake-sale. The event will take place Thursday, April 8, at 1 p.m. at the Facility on Peninsula Rd., East Jordan. Members are urged to fill a table for cards of their choice, furnish baked goods for the sale, and bring a small door-prize.

Following is the recent Wish-list for Grandvue Medical Facility: old cook books, an incubator (for chicken eggs), a food dehydrator, a large beanbag chair, a scanner for CB and Ham radio reception, recent issues of Life, Country or Country Woman magazines, flatware, more nice teacups and saucers, colored hand towels (for patients to fold) and for use at nail care.

Also, volunteers are needed at the facility to perform the following: passing out mail, setting hair (on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday), weekend receptionist (answer phone, give directions etc.), training will be provided), reading to residents, going on outings, simple carpentry (someone to make beanbag toss game, a busy-board, and to rebuild some planters).

A collection of the good deeds, awards and praises of Charlevoix people.

Two Charlevoix, four East Jordan and one Boyne City student are among the 1992 fall semester graduates of Central Michigan University. Bruce Hamilton of Charlevoix received his Master of Arts in Humanities degree. Lorelei Southwood of Charlevoix received her Bachelor of Arts degree. Scott Diller of East Jordan received a Bachelor of Science degree. Brenda Drenth of East Jordan received a Bachelor of Science degree. Jeffrey Gee of East Jordan received a Bachelor of Science degree. Anthony Ruhlman of East Jordan received a Masters degree. Roxanne Zell of Boyne City received a Masters degree.

Navy Seaman Recruit Richard J. Kent, a 1989 graduate of Charlevoix High School, recently completed basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the cycle, recruits are taught general military subjects designed to prepare them for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 occupational fields.

Studies include seamanship, close-order drill, naval history and first aid. He joined the Navy in November, 1992.

Marine Lance Cpl. David J. Agnew, son of Steve J. Agnew of Charlevoix, recently participated with 3rd Battalion, 2nd Marines, 2nd Marine Division, Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, N.C. in Exercise Forest Light at Camp Takada, Japan. The training was conducted in conjunction with units from the Japanese Ground Self Defense Force. The exercise was conducted in order to improve the capabilities of these units in cold weather operations.

In addition to conducting ski-borne operations with the Japanese, the U.S. Marines had several opportunities for cultural exchange and fellowship with the host Japanese forces. At the completion of Exercise Forest Light, the Marines will go to Korea for further training and participation in Exercise Team Spirit in March.

The 1991 graduate of Charlevoix High School joined the Marine Corps in May, 1991.

Odd Fellows and Masons gather for cribbage dinner

...which, due to a shortage of 1,537 points, the Masons were cooking this year

The Charlevoix Masons and Odd Fellows got together for their annual post-cribbage tournament dinner. Swiss steak was prepared and served by the Masons this year since they lost the 63rd annual winter tournament. The Odd Fellows took the ten-week tournament by 1,537 points.

Various awards were presented following the dinner. William Bergmann was the overall top point scorer for the Odd Fellows this year while Ted Pennell led the Masons. Three players had perfect scores for one night of play. They were Eddie Johnson, Hugh Mayne and Bob Heise.

Captains for next year's tournament will be Bill Bergmann for the Odd Fellows and Ted Pennell for the Masons.

Individual scores for players who played on at least eight of the ten nights this year were as follows:

Others who participated, but played in fewer than eight games were: John Barber, Richard Sutton, Edward R. Johnson, Chester Omasowski, Tom Redman, Pete Joyce, Ed Leverich, Gordon Neff, Eugene Bergmann, Bill Bacot, Max Novak, Ron Winchester, Al Sharrow, Cliff Hosler, Craig Swanson, Jerry Dohn, John La Rue, George Renton, Joe Stutzman, Al Smith, Bob Smith, Bob Heise, Bob Sehlmon, Ron Geer.

Bill Bergmann and Ted Pennell will be the captains for next year's tournament which will begin Jan. 6, 1994.

Ted Pennell was the top scorer for the Masons while Bill Bergmann accumulated the most points for the Odd Fellows in the 63rd annual cribbage tournament. The two will serve as team captains in next year's tournament which will begin Jan. 6.

Assembly of God rehearsing for Easter Musical

Rehearsals for the fourth annual production of an Easter Musical featuring choir, orchestra, and drama are in progress at the Charlevoix Assembly of God. This year's production entitled "The Promised Victory" is a blend of the two productions done in the past: "The Victor" and "The Promise." Performances are Thursday, Good Friday, and Easter Sunday, April 8, 9, and 11 at 7 p.m. at the church on m-66 two miles South of U.S. 31.

Depicted in the musical are scenes from the life of Jesus Christ, including: His baptism by John the Baptist; His interaction with the twelve Disciples; His teaching the Beatitudes; and His miracles; as well as scenes from the passion week. The triumphant entry to Jerusalem; the last Supper; His betrayal by Judas the mock trial. His crucifixion and the resurrection. The one-hour performances are fast moving and action filled. Young and old alike are inspired, challenged, and blessed by this musical and dramatic presentation of the life and teachings of Jesus Christ.

Experienced leadership is one factor in the high quality of performances by the people of the Assembly congregation, most of whom had no prior experience in dramatic/musical productions. The talented leadership of Steve Stargardt in directing the choir and orchestra has brought to light hidden musical talent that many had not previously realized they possessed. Pam Kilander, drama director, possesses an extensive background of drama/musical production that has enabled her to nurture and draw out dramatic talent from many participants who were initially reluctant to become involved.

"While this is the fourth successive year to perform an Easter Musical it wasn't just a foregone conclusion that we would do one this year," states Pastor Lowell Anderson. Doing a production of the magnitude that the church has been doing is very time consuming and physically taxing for the people for six weeks before Easter. "Before beginning rehearsals this season we asked important questions about our motives and purposes," states Pastor Anderson. "We decided that our purpose for the production is to present the simple story of Jesus Christ to our community and to share His love with them." An invitation is extended to everyone to attend.

A few warm days have begun to break up the ice on the local lakes, but the bulk of the break-up, like the bulk of the warmth, is still ahead of us.

J. Arthur "Cubby" Baer

J. Arthur "Cubby" Baer, 71, of St. Louis, Missouri died March 19 at St. Mary's health Center in Richmond Heights, Missouri. Mr. Baer had vacationed in Charlevoix since his childhood and for the past 18 years had been a summer resident of Charlevoix, owning a condominium at La Croft.

Mr. Baer was a prominent retailer and active in a multitude of St. Louis civic affairs. He was the last of three generations to head the department store that bore the family name, but now is known as Dillard's.

In 1963, Mr. Baer became president of Stix, Baer & Fuller, which was founded in 1892 and grew to become an institution in St. Louis retailing. His grandfather, Julius A. Baer, was among the founders. His father, Arthur B. Baer, also served as president of the chain.

Mr. Baer was an active alumni of Duke University. During World War II, he served with the American Red Cross at the Great Lakes Naval Training Center outside Chicago.

Mr. Baer was involved in many civic affairs, among them: the National Kidney Foundation; construction of the Cervantes Convention Center; Civic Progress, Downtown St. Louis; the United Way; the Red Cross; the University of Missouri at St. Louis; the Mathews-

Dickey Boys' Club, KETC (Channel 9); the Boy Scouts; and the Dance Concert Society. He also served as board president of The Muny, a St. Louis theater.

Mr. Baer was married to Constance Goldman from 1943 to 1964 when they were divorced. In 1965, he married Pauline Nickles Miller. She died in 1991.

Among Mr. Baer's survivors are: two sons, J.A. "Ted" Baer III of Los Angeles; Terence M. Baer of Clayton; a daughter, Patricia B. Lehr of Seattle; a sister, Mary Baer Fisher of Olivette; and five grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were handled by Rindskopf Roth Funeral Chapel in St. Louis.

Harbor Light to present "Passover Lamb"

Harbor Light Chapel will be presenting the "Passover Lamb", April 8 through Easter Sunday, April 11, at 7:00 p.m. Doors open at 6:30 p.m. This is an outstanding Passion Play, which presents the Palm Sunday Entry of Jesus, all the way through the Ascension.

This year has special drama presentations, new stage settings, special effects, and live music. The Passover Lamb casts over 150 members with over 25 band members as well. With a four-night sell out and more than 4000 attending last year, we encourage you to pick up your tickets early.

Tickets are available for $3 each at these locations: Rainbow Book Store, Traverse City; Brewbaker's Furniture, Onaway; World Book Store, Gaylord; Miss Ellen's Mercantile, St. Ignace; Noah's Ark Book Store, Central Lake; Gospel Book Store, Cadillac; Glenn's Markets, Charlevoix & Cheboygan; New Attitudes & Country Clutter, Petoskey.

Harbor Light Chapel is located at 8220 Clayton Road, Harbor Springs. Just off M-119.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

by REV. LOWELL ANDERSON

As a Pastor I've conducted scores of funerals in my life but in none of the processions to the cemetery was the hearse ever pulling a U-Haul trailer! The timeworn phrase is so true ... you CAN'T take it with you.

You DO leave it here! I'm not talking just about money and material possessions. I'm talking about the legacy of meaning and significance you found in life that will make a difference for others after you've left the scene.

While self-actualization and self-fulfillment are the catch phrases of our society, they are ultimately empty and meaningless pursuits. "Someone all wrapped up in himself makes a pretty small package," the truism states. It's true. While preoccupation with self brings momentary pleasure, it never lasts. When the party's over the fun stops.

True meaning while you live and a lasting legacy when you die is not how much you've gotten but in how much you've given. Money's not the point here at all.

A popular attitude is, "get all you can, can all you get." A beer commercial a number of years back captured the contemporary mood: "you only go around once in life ... grab all the gusto you can!" The only problem with gusto is once you grab it, it vaporizes in your hands! Certainly there's more to life than "gusto."

Jesus Christ addressed the issues of the meaning of life and the life hereafter in numerous teachings. Probably the most popular is the Sermon On The Mount.

He said, "Do not store up for yourselves treasures on earth where moth and rust destroy and where thieves break in and steal. But store up for yourselves treasures in heaven where moth and rust do not destroy and where thieves do not break in and steal. For where your treasure is, there your heart will be also." (Matthew 6:19-21 NIV)

The treasure that does not rust, and that you can both send on ahead and also leave behind, is your investment in loving and serving others. Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." Jesus said: Is your neighbor hungry? Feed him. Is he naked? Clothe him. Is he sick or in prison? Visit him. You'll discover that in giving you will receive. By loving you will be loved.

"You can't take it with you," but you can send it on ahead!

(Rev. Lowell Anderson is pastor of the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church. Beacons of Blessings is provided to the Courier by Anderson and other members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.)

Watershed Council establishes endowment fund

For more than 14 years the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council has been at work to protect the lakes, streams, wetlands, and groundwater in northwest lower Michigan. And for the past three years the Watershed Council has also taken a bold step towards protecting the future of these water resources by creating a $517,000 Endowment Fund.

"We have seen an increased demand for our services year after year projecting a need for a stable financial future," said Gail Gruenwald, Watershed Council Executive Director. "The Watershed Council relies heavily on annual income from membership contributions for its day-to-day operations. The Endowment fund will not replace membership income but will be a safety net for the future," said Gruenwald. Interest from the Endowment Fund will be used only for emergency or other specially approved expenditures, while the capital will be protected from use.

The creation of the Endowment Fund was inspired by a matching gift offer from the Harder Foundation of East Detroit. "We are very grateful to the Harder Foundation for their encouragement and support," stated Gruenwald. Through-out a three year period, the Harder Foundation provided a $2 matching gift for every $3 raised.

"As with all gifts we receive, the Watershed Council is making the best use of the Endowment Fund," states Bill Kanine, Watershed Council Treasurer. "The fund is being professionally managed to provide the highest possible return through financially and environmentally responsible investments."

The Watershed Council is a non-profit organization which protects and promotes the wise use of water resources in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, and Emmet Counties. Membership and Endowment contributions are always welcome and are tax-deductible. For more information about the Watershed Council and its programs please call (616) 347-1181 or write P.O. Box 300, Conway, Michigan 49722-0300.

Memories of Yesterday

Gordon N. Neff - Woodcarver

Local man's book filled with memories of Charlevoix

Gordon Neff of Charlevoix has published a book entitled, "Memories of Yesterday." The book is just what the title indicates - a collection of memories. Many of the memories deal with outdoor things such as fishing and hunting.

Neff's book is sprinkled with familiar Charlevoix names and landmarks. Some of the names included are: Bonnie Nickerson, Joe Smith, Jim Annis, John Cross, Clayton Smith, D.D. Walker and John Hughey. People familiar with Charlevoix's boating history are likely to recall the yachts Mettamar and Sylvia.

Neff writes of working on the old railroad bridge and owning The Quality Food Store. For the past several years he has made his living carving wooden birds and many of his recollections relate to his observation of birds through the years.

Copies of the 26-page book are available at the Charlevoix Public Library and are also for sale at the Charlevoix Bookshop.

Annual Tax Sale

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

ORDER FOR HEARING

In the Matter of the Petition of the State Treasurer of Michigan, in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

It is ordered that the petition of the State Treasurer, who is requesting a judgment in favor of the State, against each parcel of land therein described, for the amounts claimed to be due for taxes, interest and charges on each parcel of land, and that the lands be sold for the amounts claimed by the State.

It is ordered that the petition will be brought on for hearing and judgment at the April term of this Court to be held at Charlevoix, in the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan on the 12th day of April, 1993. At the opening of Court on that day, all persons who have an interest in the lands or any part thereof, who wish to contest the lien claimed by the State, shall appear in this court and file their objections with the clerk on or before the first day of the term of the Court mentioned above, and a judgment will be made as requested in the petition if the amounts due are not paid.

It is further ordered that the lands described in the petition, which are to be sold, shall be separately offered for sale and sold to the person who pays the full amount charged against the parcel and accepts the same in full satisfaction of the property. Any parcel of land that is not sold on the first offering shall be resold on the succeeding day or before the close of the sale. If not sold on the second offering the County Treasurer shall bid off the parcel in the name of the State.

Richard M. Pappas, Circuit Judge, State of Michigan

In the Matter of the Petition of the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

To the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, Douglas B. Roberts, State Treasurer of Michigan, shows and alleges:

1. That he is the State Treasurer and free the petition under the provisions of P.A. 208 of 1983, as amended, and P.A. 380 of 1985, as amended.

2. That the attached Schedule A is the list of lands required by the act and contains the description of all lands in the above county upon which taxes were assessed for the year 1992, and which have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned delinquent.

3. That the amounts opposite each description of land are (a) the total amount of delinquent taxes which may be collected by the State at the annual tax sale, (b) interest calculated as provided by law to the first day of May, (c) a county property tax administration fee of four percent, with a minimum of $1.00, and $10.00 for expenses, in accordance with the act mentioned above.

4. That all of the taxes, interest, and charges are valid and have been collected by the State for the time provided by law in the act mentioned above.

5. That all of the taxes, interest, and charges are valid and have been collected by the State for the time provided by law in the act mentioned above.

6. That the amounts in the schedule are not paid, the lands, or the portion that is necessary to satisfy the amount adjudged against the lands, shall be offered separately at the tax sale as the law provides.

7. That your plaintiff may have such other and further relief that the court finds just and equitable.

Annual Tax Sale

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

ORDER FOR HEARING

In the Matter of the Petition of the State Treasurer of Michigan, in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

It is ordered that the petition of the State Treasurer, who is requesting a judgment in favor of the State, against each parcel of land therein described, for the amounts claimed to be due for taxes, interest and charges on each parcel of land, and that the lands be sold for the amounts claimed by the State.

It is ordered that the petition will be brought on for hearing and judgment at the April term of this Court to be held at Charlevoix, in the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan on the 12th day of April, 1993. At the opening of Court on that day, all persons who have an interest in the lands or any part thereof, who wish to contest the lien claimed by the State, shall appear in this court and file their objections with the clerk on or before the first day of the term of the Court mentioned above, and a judgment will be made as requested in the petition if the amounts due are not paid.

It is further ordered that the lands described in the petition, which are to be sold, shall be separately offered for sale and sold to the person who pays the full amount charged against the parcel and accepts the same in full satisfaction of the property. Any parcel of land that is not sold on the first offering shall be resold on the succeeding day or before the close of the sale. If not sold on the second offering the County Treasurer shall bid off the parcel in the name of the State.

Witness the Hon. Richard M. Pappas, Circuit Judge, and the seal of the County of Charlevoix, Michigan the 2nd day of March, 1993.

Richard M. Pappas, Circuit Judge, State of Michigan

In the Matter of the Petition of the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

To the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, Douglas B. Roberts, State Treasurer of Michigan, shows and alleges:

1. That he is the State Treasurer and free the petition under the provisions of P.A. 208 of 1983, as amended, and P.A. 380 of 1985, as amended.

2. That the attached Schedule A is the list of lands required by the act and contains the description of all lands in the above county upon which taxes were assessed for the year 1992, and which have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned delinquent.

3. That the amounts opposite each description of land are (a) the total amount of delinquent taxes which may be collected by the State at the annual tax sale, (b) interest calculated as provided by law to the first day of May, (c) a county property tax administration fee of four percent, with a minimum of $1.00, and $10.00 for expenses, in accordance with the act mentioned above.

4. That all of the taxes, interest, and charges are valid and have been collected by the State for the time provided by law in the act mentioned above.

5. That all of the taxes, interest, and charges are valid and have been collected by the State for the time provided by law in the act mentioned above.

6. That the amounts in the schedule are not paid, the lands, or the portion that is necessary to satisfy the amount adjudged against the lands, shall be offered separately at the tax sale as the law provides.

7. That your plaintiff may have such other and further relief that the court finds just and equitable.

Elaine Whitley among Class of '93 banking graduates

Elaine Whitley (center) of Charlevoix was among 22 graduates of the Class of 1993 Northern Michigan School of Banking (NMSB) at Northern Michigan University. She is the loan processor at the Charlevoix County State Bank - Charlevoix. Flanking her are LoAnne Brown (seated far left), also of Charlevoix County State Bank and chair of Group II of the Michigan Bankers Association, and Susanne Boxer, president of Houghton National Bank and chair of Group I of the Michigan Bankers Association. The NMSB, sponsored by the Michigan Bankers Association, Groups I and II, was begun in 1964 to meet the need for continuing education in banking. Students attend for one week in each of two consecutive years to develop banking skills and learn new concepts in banking. More than 600 bankers from the Upper Peninsula and northern Lower Peninsula have become graduates of the program.

School board extends superintendent's contract

By Laurie Lounsbury

School Superintendent Dr. Roberta Jackson got the school board's nod of approval at a March 15 meeting and a one-year renewal of her contract in the amount of $76,796.

At the meeting, board member Scott Beatty read a prepared statement regarding the superintendent's evaluation. "The board of education finds that the direction the Superintendent has carried the school system during her brief tenure is fully supported by the Board. During the time that Superintendent has been on staff, we have gone through the strategic planning process, adopted a core curriculum, adopted action teams to implement the extensive planning which was done, and begun refining the school's current curriculum to align it with the planning done to date.... The Board is fully supportive of Dr. Jackson in those efforts."

The board also renewed contracts for the following school administrators at the following rates: Business Manager Rich Kelly, $66,060; High School Principal Dave Smith, $64,978; Middle School Principal Dennis VanGuilder, $58,890; Elementary School Principal Vane Smith, $58,890; and High School Assistant Principal, Dick Swenor, $57,254.

Elementary school principal Vane Smith will be retiring at the end of this school year, along with teachers Jim Jensen, Norm Probert, Doris Robinson, Gordon Robinson, Richard McLennan and Arla Staublin.

In other business, Jackson gave a report from her recent visit to Washington, D.C. She said that the big word in Congress regarding education is change. Some of the change will come in the form of youth apprentice programs, which will replace career technical education, increased career counseling, and creation of national standards and assessments. Jackson said of the people wanting to see change in educational standards and goals, "It's not just one or two people - it's everybody."

The board also set the date of June 14 for the school board election. The seats of Mary Lee Campbell and Max Novak will be up for re-election. There will also be a millage request on the ballot since the school's current voted millage levy expires this year. The amount of the millage request has yet to be determined.

Probate Court improves program while reducing costs

By Laurie Lounsbury

The Charlevoix County Probate Court is using treatment methods which court administrators feel are not only more effective, but are also less expensive than traditional methods such as incarceration.

In a report presented to the Charlevoix county commissioners at the commissioners last regular meeting, probate Judge Mulhauser explained the philosophy which is allowing the probate court to continue coming in under budget, yet effectively deal with juvenile offenders. The court's approach to treating juvenile offenders has been to keep them in the home, use electronic tethers, and implement intensive therapy programs. The philosophy behind the treatment is that offenders always return to their homes eventually. Thus, it is better to treat juveniles and their families as a whole in their own environment.

"Treating juveniles in the community is more effective in a shorter amount of time with a lower cost," Mulhauser said.

Mulhauser went on to say that the recidivism rate (i.e. percentage of repeat offenders) in juveniles was down to 4.5 percent from last year's 7 percent rate. State and national recidivism rates can be as high in some areas as 30 to 40 percent. Although recidivism statistics don't carry over into adult courts, probate court director Dave Bitler anticipates that the court's system of treating juveniles will start having an effect in adult court cases within the next year.

During Mulhauser's four years as probate court judge, court expenditures have gone from a high of $1,284,000 in 1989 to $1,001,000 in 1992, in spite of a 67 percent increase in the number of juvenile cases going through the court system.

"I think that what we're doing is working, and I feel good about it," Mulhauser said.

Wrestlers from 13 junior high schools compete in Charlevoix

Three hundred junior high wrestlers from 13 schools were in Charlevoix Saturday to compete in the annual Charlevoix Invitational Middle School Wrestling Tournament. During the course of the day the wrestlers participated in a total of 360 matches.

Two Charlevoix wrestlers, Roger Pittman and James Popp, won their weight classes going 3-0 on the day.

"Roger Pittman and James Popp were outstanding," said Gregg Whitley, the Rayder middle school wrestling coach. Whitley noted that Pittman, a seventh grader, has already drawn the attention of opposing coaches. They've been sending their best wrestlers out on the mat against him and he's been sending them back with losses. So far this season Pittman is 9-1.

In addition to Pittman and Popp's first place finishes, Charlevoix's Steve Hart placed second while Ryan Lietner, Matt McClellan, Josh Skel and Jeremy Antaya each had third place finishes. Derrick Lietner and Pat Mathews also won at least one match on the day.

This coming Saturday Charlevoix will be traveling to Elk Rapids for a middle school wrestling tournament.

City applies for two state recreation grants to fund Michigan Beach and ball field plans

Council will decide by July 1 whether to tear down or restore water tower

By L. Scott Swanson

The City of Charlevoix is applying for state grant money to help make improvements to two recreation areas. One is Lake Michigan Beach from the water tower to the end of Lake Street. The other is the Carpenter Street softball and Little League baseball complex.

The grant application for the Lake Michigan site contains two cost figures. One figure would be applicable if the old water tower is torn down. The other would be applicable if the water tower is restored. Between now and July, the City Council will host public hearings and decide which course of action to take.

The Lake Michigan Beach project carries an estimated price tag of either $473,000 or $565,400. The low figure would be for removal of the water tower. The high figure would be for restoration of the water tower. The city is seeking state grant funding for up to 75 percent of the project cost from one of two grant programs. The Michigan Recreation Bond program could pay up to $424,050. The Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund program could pay up to $375,000 of the project cost. The city's projected cost would be $141,350 or $190,400 depending on the success of the state grant application and how much state money is available.

The Lake Michigan park improvement plan includes the following items: improving a parking lot on Park Avenue, $25,000; water tower area improvements, either $94,000 (to tear the water tower down) or $178,000 (to restore the tower); Parking lot improvements at the Fish Hatchery site, $69,000; building a picnic shelter and miscellaneous other improvements near the Fish Hatchery, $49,000; making road and curb and gutter improvements near the beach, $15,000; parking lot improvements near the water plant, $13,000; improving the Palmer Street access, $24,000; installing a sprinkler system, $44,000; additional Park Avenue parking work, $21,000; miscellaneous landscaping, $19,000; remodeling the concession stand building, $44,000; signage, $13,000; engineering, $43,000 to $51,400.

The ball field improvement plan carries a total estimated price tag of $323,400. The City is applying for $242,550 in state grant money while local funds of $80,850 would cover the remainder of the cost.

The plan calls for the following items: parking lot construction, $128,000; sidewalk construction along Carpenter Street from the ball fields to State Street, $41,000; new restroom facilities, $44,000; ball field lighting, $33,000; installing a sprinkler system, $22,000; parking lot lighting, $15,000; landscaping, $11,000; engineering, $29,400.

City council members approved both grant applications by a 4-0 vote - council members Butch Russell, Bruce Livingston, Don Meggison and Jackie Cross voting in favor. Council members Cheri Hoffman and Ted Feller were absent.

Topper Carey's spirit remains high despite cancer surgery

By Laurie Lounsbury

Topper Carey won't let a little thing like a brain tumor stop him. He won't even let it slow him down much. "Brain cancer, can you believe it?" Carey said from the confines of his hospital bed last Saturday. "Well, I'll just have to fight it. That's the way the Carey boys do it."

Topper Carey is a 47 year old Charlevoix native who now lives in Traverse City with his wife, Nina, and his daughter, Lauren.

On St. Patrick's Day, Topper, Carey and Nina went to Manson Medical Center because he wasn't feeling well and had been plagued with a bad headache for about ten days. Within a half hour of their arrival at the hospital, the emergency room doctor had the results of a CAT scan and told Carey, "You have a brain tumor and it is significant."

On March 18, Carey was taken into surgery for the removal of a malignant brain tumor. The surgeon was only able to remove part of the growth, because the tumor ran too deep and too close to an artery.

Carey's wife Nina was cautioned by the doctors before the surgery about the possible outcome. "You might not get the old Topper back," they told her. When Carey woke up from the surgery, Nina listened with guarded optimism as the nurse asked him questions, testing his brain capacity. "Do you know where you are, Topper?" she asked. "The Townhouse," Topper quickly replied. "Do you really believe you're at the Townhouse?" the nurse prodded. "No, but I wish I was," Topper fired back. Nina knew at that moment that the first big hurdle had been crossed. She had gotten the old Topper back.

Nearly two weeks have passed since Carey's surgery. He is paralyzed the length of the left side of his body from the surgery and bears a large C-shaped scar on the right side of his head. While outsiders may consider Carey's prognosis grim, close friends and family will paint a picture of a very different prognosis. Topper Carey will survive. He will beat this illness into submission armed with his incredible spirit and an unflappable sense of humor.

A steady stream of visitors have made the trek to Topper Carey's hospital room, prepared to offer their condolence and support. They leave with a spring in their step and smiles on their faces, all sharing the same sentiment. "If anyone can beat this, Topper can," is their common refrain.

Carey is not fighting this tumor alone. His wife Nina is unflagging in her support. You can practically feel the positive energy radiating from her as it fills the hospital room. "PMA, PMA. Right Topper?" Nina repeatedly says to her husband, always with a beaming smile. PMA is their acronym for Positive Mental Attitude. Topper's 14 year old daughter Lauren is a rock of steadfast devotion as she sits by her dad, one arm gently resting on her father's motionless left arm. And when Lauren and Nina need to take a break and recharge their PMA batteries, Nina's sister Lou Fay is there to pick up the slack, teasing and cajoling her brother-in-law into obeying the hospital rules. Even with his left

Lansing moving faster toward property tax reform

Analysis

By L. Scott Swanson

After years of talk, the State legislature in Lansing may be ready to make a move on property tax reform. State Senator George McManus, R- Traverse City, says he expects to see something begin to happen this week.

In a phone conversation with the Courier late last week, McManus said the Michigan Education Association (MEA) still had some questions, but everyone else seemed to be coming around. The current proposal would lower millages, reduce and then limit assessment increases and offset that loss by raising the state sales tax from four to six percent. Before the plan is adopted, state voters would have to approve the increase in the sales tax. McManus said he anticipates that election request coming before voters in June.

McManus said that according to the figures he's seen most area school districts will get more revenue if the proposal is adopted. Charlevoix is an exception to that and from what the figures say looks to break even.

"You're a district that just breaks even. Other Charlevoix County schools gain," McManus said.

According to Senate fiscal figures, Charlevoix currently levies 27.1554 mills and spends about $6,166 dollars per student. (See accompanying table.) According to projections, if reform passes Charlevoix's millage will be lowered to 25 mills; assessed values will be rolled back and the school will still have $6,166 per student to spend. The cost of that will be an increase in sales tax.

Doing the math at the Courier office resulted in the following figures. (To make the math figures simple, calculations were based on a salary of $20,000 and a home with a market value of $80,000.) For a person earning $20,000 per year, raising the sales tax from four percent to six percent would mean a tax increase of $400. On the other side of the scale, for a person with an $80,000 home a decrease in millage from 27.1554 mills to 25 mills would mean a tax decrease of $86.

If you only compare those two figures, you get a net tax increase of $314. But the finance reform proposal also calls for rolling back recent property assessment increases to 1992 levels while allowing about a three percent increase for inflation. That would mean an average increase in assessments of three percent rather than 19 percent. For the owner of an $80,000 house that means a decrease of another $300. So when all is said and done and the $86 decrease and the $386 total property tax decrease is compared to the $400 sales tax increase, the result is, as McManus indicated, about a wash.

In addition to the immediate financial ramifications, there are some other factors which come into play. Shifting from a property tax to a sales tax based system means the tax revenues take a trip to Lansing before coming back, if indeed they do come back. to the local school district. Property taxes, for the most part, have always been raised locally and stayed local. That did change on one recent occasion when the State passed a tax based sharing plan which allowed the State to take property tax revenues from one school district and send them to other school districts. McManus opposed that plan which cost the Charlevoix school district approximately $100,000 one year. That plan has since been put on hold and according to McManus, if the reform proposal passes, will be permanently scrapped. In the past, State money has also been distributed according to a State School Aid Formula. The formula, which changed from year to year, left some school districts (Charlevoix among them) "out-of-formula," and therefore ineligible for state school aid funds. McManus said that it is his understanding that the finance reform proposal will also eliminate the problem of some school districts being deemed "out-of-formula."

...cancer fails to take local man's sense of humor

side paralyzed and throbbing pain in his skull, Carey persistently tries to hoodwink new visitors into lowering the bed's guard rail so he can make his great escape. "I think I can make it as far as the 7-11," he quips. The usually robust man is less than thrilled with his hospital bed captivity. Nina patiently smiles at him. She's delighted with his determination to be ambulatory again, but keeps reminding him, "Little steps first, Topper."

Carey admits that the battle is a tough one. "Anxiety creeps up on you slowly every day, along with the fear," he says. "It's just mind over matter trying to be stronger than that fear." Strength is foremost in his mind now. "I've got to be strong for the chemo. I've got to keep eating my groceries," he said after polishing off a big lunch.

Topper Carey has been knocked down with one of the most dreaded illnesses imaginable. The medical community says that he has everything going for him, with his strength, young age, and otherwise good health. Carey will receive the best treatment available, with combined chemotherapy and radiation.

But any visitor to his hospital room can tell you that there's more to his healing than medicine, radiation, and chemotherapy. There is love, humor, optimism, and the Carey family's indomitable spirit. These are the factors that will tip the scales in Carey's favor, stretching a slim margin for long term survival into a wide path - wide enough for the Carey family to walk side by side, elbows locked and chins up, all the way to his recovery. As Carey said of the tumor, "It got the first two licks in, but I'll get the last lick - with chemo and radiation, I'll kick its butt."

Kalkaska school problem should be a lesson learned

Here's hoping that the State does require the Kalkaska school district to reopen regardless of the whining of the Kalkaska school board, administration, faculty and the Michigan Education Association (MEA).

Here in Charlevoix, we joined people from across the nation in witnessing the Kalkaska debacle. What we are seeing has relevance to the Charlevoix school district and every other school district in the state of Michigan in that it is clearly a battle over who is going to set the parameters for educational spending: taxpayers or school administrators and educational unions. In Kalkaska, the educational union with the compliance of the administration and a school board which appears to have been led like a docile cow with a ring in its nose attempted to force taxpayers into spending at a higher level than they could afford. Kalkaska taxpayers stood their ground, not once, not twice, but three times.

Rather than coping with financial constraints as any other institution would have to and controlling costs to live within their means, the Kalkaska educational establishment whined a lot, threw a fit, blamed everyone but themselves and took their toys and went home. Unsure that their Kalkaska branch was capable of whining loud enough on their own, the MEA staged some type of farce they called an educational "vigil" and joined in. Faced with a Lansing legislature which is appropriately moving to thwart the Kalkaska educational play by forcing the school to reopen, the MEA is now trying to fight its battle under the banner of local control. When you see the MEA extolling the virtues of, or decrying the loss of, "local control," feel free to substitute the words, "MEA control." Clearly in Kalkaska, local control meant a school board and administration which were jumping like puppets on a string for the MEA. Now that Kalkaska taxpayers have stood the line on taxes, their next step should be correcting some administrative and board problems.

Here in Charlevoix we don't ever want to go through the problems Kalkaska is facing. To avoid that situation, we must recognize some fundamental realities.

Tax dollars are finite and educational costs, like all other costs, must be controlled. In regard to the salaries of educational administrators and teachers, like the salaries of all other tax funded positions, there is an inescapable link between their salary levels and the salary levels of taxpayers. You can't have a great disparity between the salaries of those who are putting into and those who are taking out of tax coffers.

The appropriate means of determining educational priorities is to have the community (which the educational system is an integral part of) establish priorities; then have the community's elected representatives (i.e. the school board) direct the administration to implement those priorities; and then have the school staff carry out those priorities. That's something we're working on in Charlevoix.

It is not appropriate for the school staff and educational union to determine a community's educational funding levels and priorities; have the school administration put those plans in writing; and then have the school board rubber stamp and try to squeeze money out of taxpayers to fund those priorities. Kalkaska tried that and found that ultimately it doesn't work.

Bridge getting stuck in the up position?

By Laurie Lounsbury
Work on the Memorial Bridge came to a screeching halt when a steel girder on the east side of the bridge broke free and jammed the cylinder mechanism that raises and lowers the bridge. The bridge is stuck in the full upright position, and transportation experts estimate it will be four to six weeks before the girder can be freed and damage to the counter weight system fixed.

It could only happen on April 1

The accident occurred when the bridge was raised at approximately 10:30 p.m. to work on the bascule weight system. The bridge was raised at about an 80 degree angle when a steel girder broke loose and jammed into the cylinder that raises and lowers the bridge.

Transportation officials have acknowledged the terrible inconvenience that the stuck bridge will cause. Commuters from the north side of town will have to drive through Boyne City and East Jordan to get to the south side of Charlevoix. In an effort to compensate for the inconvenience, the state is going to make emergency funds in the amount of $3 million dollars immediately available to Charlevoix. "The funds are to be used in whatever way the townspeople see fit in order to ease the burden of this tragic situation," said Ima Spender, Lansing based director of CASH (Community Agency to Spend Heavily).

The availability of $3 million in discretionary funds immediately resurrected efforts for a community pool. If a decision is made to spend the money on a pool, the pool will be built as soon as possible on the north side in order to allow north side residents to begin swimming and build up their endurance so they will be able to swim across the channel as soon as the weather breaks.

A resident of a neighboring community offered absolutely no sympathy and beyond that said she didn't see where the sticking bridge should even cause any problem for the people of Charlevoix. "If those people were as high and mighty as they think they are, the bridge shouldn't even slow them down. They should be able to just walk across the water."

Courier Editor Scott Swanson was among the first on the scene. Observers said Swanson stood for several minutes, gazing towards the bridge and mumbling, "I'm in suspenders - what's going on?" He muttered, "I'm not sure, 'cause I've never really seen one before, but this has all the earmarks of a fast-breaking news story." With that, Swanson made an impressive dash to the bridge, running with such lightning speed that his momentum carried him over the bridge and into the water below. He thrashed and flailed in the frigid waters until some commercial fishermen were able to fish him out with an old gill net. They tried to get him out with a trap net, but the wiry Swanson kept slipping through the holes.

Courier reporter Laurie Lounsbury showed up on the scene with her camera while Swanson was still in the water and the fishermen were trying to net him. Lounsbury shot a roll of 24 pictures that probably would have been spectacular action shots if only she had remembered to put film in her camera. When Swanson learned that Lounsbury had arrived at the scene without film, he suspended her for not showing up in the proper reporter turn-out gear.

Although elementary students from the south side of town might not be able to make it to school until the bridge is repaired, they are being encouraged to make daily field trips to the edge of the channel. Here in Charlevoix, we realize that not every student is another Einstein; yet each day we try to take each and every student as far as they possibly can go...and for a while, that's going to be to the edge of the channel.

Field trips are scheduled to begin on April 1, which, incidentally, is April Fool's Day - quite a pertinent fact to this particular story.

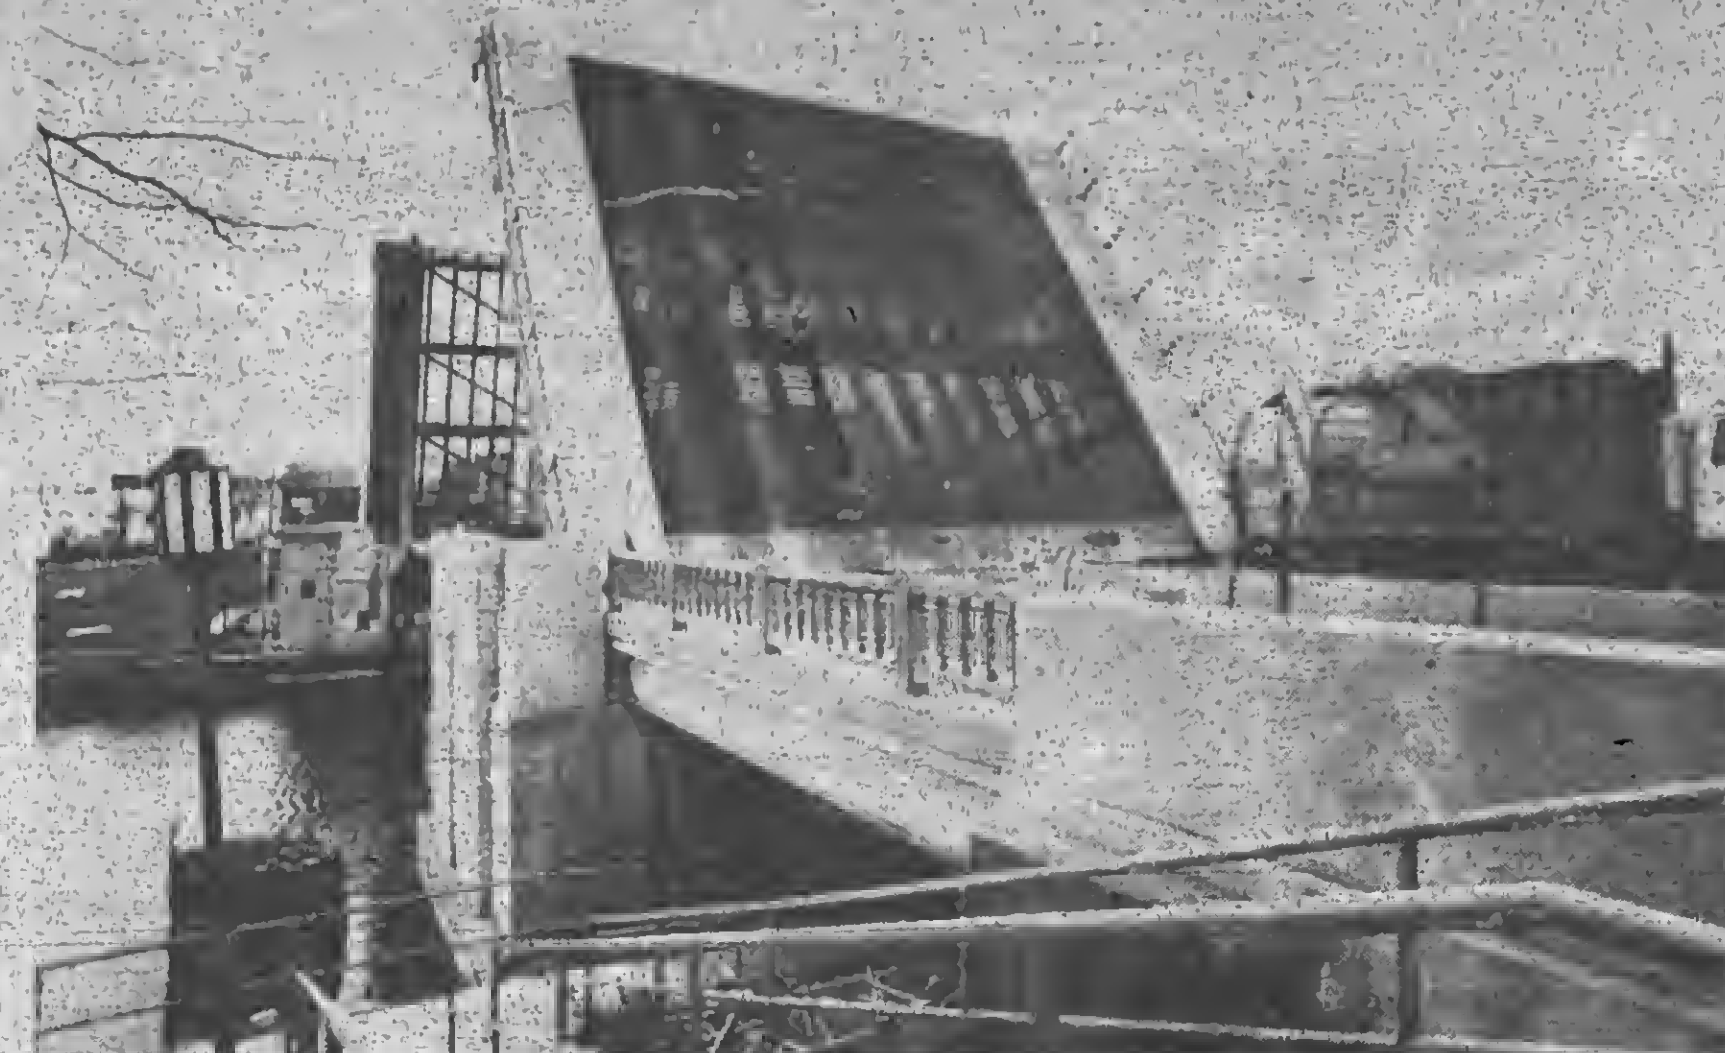

(Editor's note: In case anybody hasn't figured it out for themselves, yes, the story above is an April Fool's story and in reality the bridge is not stuck. However as the bridge repair project nears completion for the current year, the Courier would like to compliment state and local officials, bridge construction crews and residents of the community for their efforts and patience during the project.)

K of C will be out with Tootsie Rolls

The Father Pierre Charlevoix Council of the Knights of Columbus will join other K of C Councils from throughout the state in the annual Tootsie Roll drive to benefit the mentally retarded. The Charlevoix drive which is being chaired by Gabe Campbell will take place April 2-4. Last year the drive raised more than $1 million statewide and the local Knights raised $1,207.

Foundation looking for projects in need of funds

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is ready to begin funding projects and is seeking proposals from eligible groups. Applicants for grants must be municipalities, educational institutions or non-profit organizations that hold tax exempt status in Charlevoix County. According to Robert Tambellini, director of the Community Foundation, the organization expects to grant up to $14,000 to worthy programs in this first funding cycle.

To be considered for funding, a proposed project should promote and support education, community development, health, social services, the arts & culture, or civic activities in Charlevoix County.

"In setting guidelines for grant requests, our trustees wanted to be as inclusive as possible," Tambellini explains. "We want to fund programs that will meet a variety of needs and serve the greatest number of citizens."

Factors that will be considered in choosing which proposals to fund include a project's ability to prevent problems or social concerns, enhance cooperation among community organizations, promote the development of young people and families, and encourage people to help themselves. A committee of civic leaders from throughout the county and Community Foundation trustees will review grant requests and make funding decisions.

Organizations that have a project they believe is appropriate for funding should contact the office of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation at 536-2440 for additional information and a grant application form. Grant requests are due April 30, 1993, and funding selections will be made shortly after that date. The Community Foundation plans to make grants twice a year and will consider requests again this fall.

Started in 1992, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation receives charitable donations and manages them in a permanent endowment. Income from the endowment is distributed, in the form of grants, to meet local needs. The Foundation is one of more than 400 community foundations throughout the country. More information about the Foundation is available by calling the Foundation's office, 616/536-2440, or by writing, c/o P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, Michigan, 49727.

New trustee named to foundation board

Calvin K. Diller, President of East Jordan Plastics, has been appointed to the Charlevoix County Community Foundation Board of Trustees. Diller's appointment was announced by Scott Beatty, president of the foundation board at the group's last meeting.

Diller, a native of East Jordan and Director of FMB Northwestern Bank, joins thirteen trustees from throughout Charlevoix County who govern the new foundation. In accepting his new volunteer position, Diller praised the vision of community leaders who started the foundation. "I'm excited about the potential of this new organization," he says. "These board members are hard workers who will make good things happen in our community."

...Lansing closing in on tax reform

A key long-term ramification of the reform plan will be the stipulation capping annual assessment increases at the rate of inflation, or five percent, whichever is less. For Charlevoix-area property owners, that is a crucial factor. Were that stipulation in place now, property owners would be looking at assessment increases for the past two years of three to three and a-half percent rather than eight to nine percent.

Although the reform proposal would cap property tax assessment increases, voters currently have the ability to cap net property tax increases. Property taxes are calculated by multiplying millage times assessed value. If assessments increase, voters can offset that by simply voting against any millage levy which is not lowered to offset the assessment increase. However, voters have not done that in the past.

"I'm enthusiastic about the plan," McManus said. He said he feels it answers some of the concerns people had about Proposal C, a similar property tax finance reform proposal which state voters rejected in the November general election.

His funeral was held Friday, March 26 at the Boulah Baptist Church in Missouri with burial following in the Boulah Cemetery. The Rev. Bill Belmar officiated at the service.

Mr. Barker was born March 2, 1911, in Lutesville, Mo. He married

Wilma Lashley on March 26, 1942, and she survives.

He was a veteran of World War II, and was a member of the First Baptist Church of Charlevoix.

Survivors include his wife, Wilma, of Des Arc, Mo.; three daughters, Blanche Bracco of Farmington, Mo., Patricia Gregory of Sterling Heights, Mich., and Victoria Halsey of Deslodge, Mo.; six grandchildren; two stepgrandchildren; three great-grandchildren; two stepgreat-grandchildren; four brothers, Elmer Barker of Dexter, Mo., Marion Barker of Warren, Mich., Clarence Barker of St. Louis, Mo., and Warren Barker of Dexter, Mo.; and four sisters, Ethel Wilson of Metropolis, Ill., Grace Williams of Mount Clemens, Mich., Alma Rose of Marion, Ohio, and Hazel Kibler of Berkeley, Mich.

Arrangements were handled by the Ruegg Funeral Homes Inc. of Piedmont, Mo.

Bertil Clason

Bertil Clason, 90, of Atwood, died March 24, 1993, at Boulder Park Terrace Nursing Home in Charlevoix.

No services are planned.

He was born July 7, 1902, in Goleborg, Sweden, the son of Hjalmar and Berta (Ekstrom) Clason.

He moved to the United States in the late 1920s.

Mr. Clason worked for General Motors in the Cadillac Division and retired from AC Spark Plug in Flint in 1964.

He married Sonja Carlson on March 4, 1934, in Flint. The couple made their home in Atwood in 1969.

Mr. Clason is survived by his wife, Sonja, of Atwood.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix County Humane Society. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix where arrangements were made.

Arthur G. Harter

Arthur G. Harter, 74, of Central Lake and formerly of Ellsworth, died March 20, 1993, at his home.

He was born Nov. 30, 1918, in Middleville, the son of Oscar and Helen (Denny) Harter.

On Aug. 15, 1978, in Newberry, he married Anna Belle Dawson. They made their home in Ellsworth until 1983 when they moved to Central Lake.

Mr. Harter was employed by International Disc Corporation in Ellsworth until his retirement in 1986.

He was a veteran of World War II serving in Korea and Vietnam with the U.S. Army from 1942-45, and with the U.S. Air Force from 1950 to 1966.

Mr. Harter was a charter member and life member of VFW Torch

Post No. 6985 in Central Lake, and a member of the VFW National Home in Eaton Rapids.

Survivors include his wife, Anna Belle; two stepsons, Robert Schemke of Central Lake, and Howard Schemke of Marion; 15 grandchildren; seven great-grandchildren; two brothers, Harvey Harter of Central Lake, and James Harter of Traverse City; and several nieces and nephews.

There will be no visitation. A VFW memorial graveside service will be held in the spring at Lakeview Cemetery in Torch Lake Township.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Central Lake Fire and Rescue.

Arrangements were handled by the Hastings Funeral Home in Ellsworth.

Archie R. Himebauch

Archie R. Himebauch, 69, of Bay Shore Estates, Petoskey, died March 27, 1993, at Boulder Park Terrace in Charlevoix.

Funeral will be 11 a.m. Wednesday, March 31, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. Cecil Drost will officiate and burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery, Charlevoix.

He was born April 4, 1923, in Hazel Park, the son of Lloyd and Anna Belle (Campbell) Himebauch. He grew up in Charlevoix and attended Charlevoix schools.

On Nov. 8, 1947, he married Betty E. Kuhns in Boyne City. She preceded him in death in 1990.

Mr. Himebauch served in the U.S. Army from 1942-45 in the South Pacific. He was a reconnaissance crewman and was involved in the battles of New Guinea, Guadalcanal, Northern Solomons and Luzon.

He worked as a ship's carpenter for Hamilton Marine for 28 years. He also worked for Irish Boat Shop for six years, and the Waters Edge Boat Shop where he retired in 1988 after 10 years.

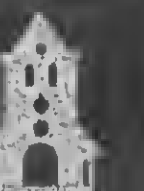

He served as a volunteer fireman in Charlevoix for 27 years.

He was a member of the Charlevoix American Legion Post, and was an avid fisherman and hunter.

Survivors include four sons, Lloyd John of Redford, David R. of Bay Shore, Ronald J. of East Jordan, and Jeffery L. of Ellsworth; two daughters, Mrs. Mary Ann

Estes of Bellaire, and Mrs. Margaret Jean Cole of Petoskey; 16 grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Katherine Denny and Mrs. Anna Mae Vanderslik, both of Ellsworth; and numerous nieces, nephews and cousins. In addition to his wife, Betty, he was preceded in death by two brothers, Henry and Carl.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to Boulder Park Terrace or to the Hospice of Little Traverse Bay. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix where friends may call 4-6 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. Tuesday, March 30, and from 10 a.m. until the time of service on Wednesday, March 31.

Adele A. Nachazel

Adele A. Nachazel, 83, of East Jordan, died March 27, 1993, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Mass of Christian burial was held Tuesday, March 30, at St. Joseph Catholic Church in East Jordan with the Rev. William McKeon officiating. Interment will be in Calvary Cemetery, East Jordan.

She was born Jan. 23, 1910, in Quinnesec, the daughter of Ephraim and Georgina (Ayotte) Teffault. She graduated from St. Benedict's High School in Highland Park and she attended St. Benedict's Church in Highland Park.

She lived in Royal Oak for many years, where she was employed as a clerk at Oakridge Variety Store. She was a member of St. Ann's Altar Society in Royal Park.

She moved to East Jordan in 1965, where was a member of St. Joseph Catholic Church. She enjoyed ceramics and artwork.

On May 21, 1930, in Detroit, she married Charles A. Gierthy, and he preceded her in death on March 5, 1972.

On April 20, 1974, she married Frank Nachazel, and he preceded her in death in 1980.

Survivors include one daughter, Patricia Clor and her husband Anthony of Elaca; two sons, Charles G. Gierthy and his wife Phyllis of Troy, and Dr. John F. Gierthy of East Greenbush, N.Y.; nine grandchildren; and nine great-grandchildren. In addition to her husbands, she was preceded in death by 10 brothers and sisters.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Paulin Funeral Home in East Jordan.

Eugene H. Bergmann

Eugene H. Bergmann, 69, of Charlevoix, died March 25, 1993, at his home.

His funeral was March 27 at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix with the Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum officiating. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery.

He was born Dec. 18, 1923 in Charlevoix, the son of Fredonck J.W. and Sybel (Cook) Bergmann. He grew up in Charlevoix and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1946.

On April 24, 1949, he married Maxine Lewis in Charlevoix and she survives.

Mr. Bergmann was a veteran of World War II serving in the European Theater and was assigned to the Army Quartermasters Truck Co. He served with the U.S. Army in 1943-45.

He worked as a machine operator for Harbor Industries for more than 30 years, retiring in 1987. Mr.

Bergmann was a member of the First Congregational Church and the Round Lake Lodge of Odd Fellows. He was an avid woodsman and enjoyed fishing and hunting.

He is survived by his wife, Maxine; two daughters, Jeanne Eaton and her husband Bill of Charlevoix; and Carol Bergmann of Charlevoix; two sons, Thomas E. Bergmann and Jeffrey A. Bergmann, both of Charlevoix; six grandchildren; four brothers, Bill, Richard and his wife Lucina, Charles and his wife Betty, and Alfred, all of Charlevoix; three sisters-in-law, Rose Bergmann, Lillian Bergmann and Mrs. Josephine Bergmann Wood, all of the Charlevoix area; and numerous nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by three brothers, George, Ted and Robert.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the First Congregational Church. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Clayton O. Healey

Clayton O. Healey, 76, of East Jordan, died March 24, 1993, at his home.

His funeral was held Friday, March 26, at the Stackus Funeral Home in Boyne City with the Rev. Donald Gordon of the First Presbyterian Church officiating. Burial will be in Eveline Township Cemetery.

He was born May 10, 1916, in Eveline Township, the son of Charles E. and Cora (Prine) Healey. He graduated from East Jordan High School in 1934.

On June 11, 1938, he married Agnes Dietze in Petoskey and she survives.

Mr. Healey was a farmer most of his life. He owned and operated Healey's Dairy Delivery.

Mr. Healey was a member of the Charlevoix County Soil Conservation Board, the Agricultural Stabilization Conservation, the Boyne City Co-op Board, and the East Jordan School Board. He was also a member of the Char/Em Intermediate School Board for 40 years and served as past president.

He had also served as drain commissioner for Charlevoix County.

Survivors include his wife, Agnes; two sons, Fritz Healey and his wife Celestine of East Jordan, and Terry Healey and his wife Janet of Boyne City; one daughter, Patricia Racine and her husband James of Cadillac; seven grandchildren; one great-grandson; and one sister-in-law, Mary Healey of Muskegon.

Wallace elected to gift shop board

By Laurie Lounsbury

Shop of The Gulls owner Jeanine Wallace was recently elected to serve on the board of the Gift Association of America (GAA), the oldest and largest gift association in America. Wallace considers it a great honor for a small gift shop owner from a little town like Charlevoix to serve on such a prestigious board. She is modest about her success as a gift shop owner for nearly three decades. As she said on the extensive questionnaire she filled out for the GAA board of directors: "After 28 years I feel like I've finally clawed my way to the middle."

Wallace previously served on the Chicago Gift Show board, which was what earned her the nomination for a spot on the GAA board.

Wallace explained that the GAA is a large organization that helps small retailers. "They've really gone to bat for small gift shop businesses," Wallace said. By forming a large group from many small businesses, the GAA can offer retailers low cost group health insurance plans, retail software systems, discount rates on travel, and trade show seminars.

Wallace enjoys the intangible benefits of belonging to the GAA. "It doesn't make you feel so isolated," she said. As an independent business owner, Wallace said it's nice to attend trade shows or seminars put on by the GAA and talk with fellow shop owners.

...Wallace elected to association board

Wallace will serve a three year term on the GAA board. There are 25 members on the association board, with hundreds of members across the country. Wallace will serve on the membership committee and sit on the round table committee. The round table committee is comprised of wholesalers, manufacturers, and retailers. It gives them an opportunity to air their feelings and ideas.

Gift shop owners can have a great deal of influence on large numbers of people when they work together. One good example of that is the "Gift For Life" campaign started by a gift shop owner. A simply looped red ribbon pinned on one's clothes symbolizes support for AIDS victims. The red ribbons, so often seen worn by celebrities at awards ceremonies, can be acquired at gift stores with a donation to help fund AIDS research and education.

Wallace is energetic and supportive of the GAA and the service it performs for retailers. "I'm really excited about it, and I was really pleased to be made a part of this," she said.

Although it had always been part of the plan, many people were surprised when the old hospital lobby area was recently removed as part of the remodeling effort. The current phase of construction is expected to be completed in June.

Sommerville's art to be displayed in New Jersey

By L. Scott Swanson

Darrell Sommerville, a Bay Shore artist, is going to have his work displayed at a show in New Jersey from April 18 to May 16. The show, which will take place at the Gallery of Fantasy Art in Upper Montclair, is being promoted throughout New York and New Jersey.

Sommerville is a graduate of Charlevoix High School and at one time was a barber in downtown Charlevoix. Currently he is a boiler operator at the Wolverine power plant in Advance. He has been drawing and painting since childhood. Although he hasn't really had any formal art training, he has made art something of a personal study and spends as much time as he can drawing and painting.

"I try every chance I get," he explains. "Even after I work a midnight shift, I come home and draw for a couple hours." He said that until he's found some time for drawing it's like he hasn't completed his day.

Sommerville's wife, Sandy, is very supportive. "I think it's great," she says. "Darrell's happiest when he's painting."

When Sommerville went through Charlevoix High School, there wasn't really an art program available. He took the closest class he could find, architectural drawing, which was taught by Uno Suomela. Sommerville's preference for free art over architectural design became apparent to Suomela. Rather than fighting with the student and trying to make his work conform, Suomela allowed Sommerville to do a lot of free hand drawing and helped out where he could. Even today, more than 25 years later, it is evident in talking to Sommerville that he appreciated that.

During high school, Sommerville also did a lot of drawing and painting for friends outside of the classroom. He said that he used to do drawings in India ink for other students on high school letter jackets. Some of those jackets ended up being well traveled. Sommerville said that Tom Martin of Charlevoix was in Spain one time and saw someone wearing a Charlevoix High School letter jacket featuring one of Sommerville's drawings. The man wearing the jacket was apparently off a Navy ship and he had borrowed the jacket from a shipmate.

After graduating from high school, Sommerville attended barber school and was a barber in downtown Charlevoix. When he had the barber shop, he sold prints of some of his works. He also sold some paintings to local people and was in the Charlevoix Art Fair during the fair's early years.

Sommerville also served in the military and for the past several years he and Sandy have been busy raising a family. Within just the past year, they became grandparents.

Sommerville's paintings are remarkably diverse. He likes cartoons and has also done several wildlife and sea and landscape paintings. And then there are his pictures of women.

"Here, a couple of years ago I got painting girls," he says.

It is his series on women which drew the attention of the proprietor of Constance Enterprises and has led to the New Jersey show. Sommerville's pictures of women feature bright colors and very modern looking and alluring young women. There's no getting around it. Sommerville's paintings of women are provocative and hot. In fact, the New Jersey show is being billed by Constance Enterprises as an "Erotic Art Show."

Over a cup of coffee at the kitchen table of he and his wife's quiet home in northern Michigan, Sommerville just kind of shrugs at the billing of his paintings as erotic. "I call them exotic. They call them erotic," he says. He adds, "I have not tried to insult women, but to compliment beauty."

Although his paintings of women are what will be on display and sold at the New Jersey show, they are only one small facet of Sommerville's work. In his small studio, less than three feet away from the brightly colored paintings of stunning women is a large yet-to-be-completed painting of a wooded area along Inwood Creek south of Charlevoix. On the wall of his living room is a picture of a leprechaun. Near the leprechaun is a picture of a quiet street scene which brings to mind the poetry of Robert Frost. Sommerville once put the street scene on display at an art show, but he wouldn't sell it because it was a painting he had done for his wife. A pen and ink sketch on the kitchen table depicts an English city like you might envision while reading a book by Charles Dickens. On another wall of the living room is a buffalo, reminiscent of Frederick Remington or Charles Russell, two artists Sommerville admires.

Over the years, Sommerville has submitted his work to various publications. He said he once sent some of his cartoons to the Detroit Free Press and received a letter back from one of the editors saying the art work was among the best he had seen, but that the cartoons weren't funny enough.

As to whether he will do more shows following the one in New Jersey, Sommerville says, "I'm not really sure. I'll see how this one goes."

Onset of spring increases the activity of wildlife

By L. Scott Swanson

As the snow melts, the wildlife has been coming out of the woods. Deer and turkeys can be seen in the fields of rural areas surrounding Charlevoix on almost any evening.

According to local Department of Natural Resources Field Officer Roger Bush, deer fared well this winter. He said that given the limited amount of snow the deer were only forced to yard up in the deep woods for about a week or two. While deer benefited from mild winter weather, they also benefited from last summer's cold, wet weather. Due to bad weather last summer, much of the corn crop never reached maturity so farmers left it in the fields.

As Bush puts it, this past winter "paths going into and out of cornfields were wide and deep."

Deer that have been coming out on the hill-sides in the evenings are looking very fit. Bush said that normally at this time in the spring he will get phone calls from people about dying deer. That hasn't happened this year.

He said he's looking for a bumper crop of fawns with a lot of does giving birth to twins. Those young deer will join an already large deer herd so that there will be plenty of deer available for hunters again this fall.

Last year there were a lot of deer around, but hunters didn't have as much success as anticipated. Some hunters have attributed this to a hunting style which Bush refers to as "bait and wait." In bait and wait hunting, hunters put out bait piles and then sit and watch the bait piles. In addition to the bait, two other factors which have led to hunters doing more sitting than moving have been more blinds and portable blind heaters. In the past, a hunter would go out and sit on a stump until he, or she, got cold (which on some mornings didn't take long) and then get up and wander around to get warm. In wandering around, the hunter might kick deer out to other hunters. Now, hunters who have taken the time to haul bait into the woods and build a blind, and are perched comfortably next to a heater aren't as inclined to move around. With full stomachs and no hunters forcing them to move, the deer sleep all day and wait until dark when the hunters go home; then they go out and eat all the food at the bait piles.

That situation hasn't been good for farmers. When the deer aren't eating at bait piles they're eating farmer's crops. Bush said that in recent years, the rapport between hunters and farmers has improved. Farmers are receiving block permits to harvest deer and are working with hunters to thin the herd.

Despite improved cooperation between farmers and hunters, deer numbers are still uncomfortably high. Although things worked out this winter, there's no guarantee that the weather next year will be as mild. A harsh winter with deer numbers as high as they are at present could make things ugly in terms of deer die-off.

This is also the time of year when there are problems with dogs running deer. Dog owners should keep a close eye on their pets and be aware that their cute little family pet hasn't evolved that far from the wolf and given the opportunity will run a deer down and kill it. According to state law the dog owner is responsible for any deer their dog kills. And according to state law, that responsibility currently translates into $1,000 per deer.

Deer aren't the only critters that are up in numbers. Bush said there is also a good population of turkeys in the area. Turkey hunting is growing in popularity and Bush said he expects a good turkey hunt this spring for area turkey hunters. The Traverse Bay Wild Turkey Federation is sponsoring a turkey hunters' workshop, beginning at 9 a.m., April 9 at East Jordan High School. The workshop will feature demonstrations on calling, hunting tips and a variety of hunting equipment will be for sale. There will also be door prizes and a raffle. Proceeds from the event will go toward a winter turkey feeding program.

Other animals which appear to be up in numbers are opossums, raccoons and beavers. All three can be a nuisance. Opossums and raccoons eat a lot of eggs from the nests of birds such as grouse and when around people can lose fear almost to the point of becoming brazen. Beavers can take down valuable trees and plug up waterways resulting in flooding which can not only block roads, but kill vegetation.

MORTGAGE SALE

Default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage made by Robert T. Heise and Nanette M. Heise, husband and wife, to Mayflower Mortgage Corporation, a Michigan corporation, Mortgagee, dated September 5, 1986 and recorded on September 5, 1986 in Liber 187, on page 680, of Charlevoix County Records, Michigan, which was assigned to Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation by an assignment dated September 5, 1986 and recorded October 15, 1986 in Liber 188, Page 261, Charlevoix County Records, Michigan on which there is claimed to be due at the date hereof the sum of Forty One Thousand Nine Hundred and Sixty One Dollars ($41,098.56), including interest at 10.5% per annum. No suit or proceeding at law has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Under the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises, or some part of them, at public vendue, at the main entrance to the County Court Building in the City of Charlevoix, Michigan at 10:00 a.m., local time, on Friday, April 16, 1993.

Said premises are situated in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and are described as:

The East 48 feet of the South 1/2 of Lot 76 and the West 12 feet of the South 1/2 of Lot 77, Upright & Hurlbut's Addition to the Village (now City) of Charlevoix, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof.

The redemption period shall be six months from the date of such sale, unless determined abandoned in accordance with 1948 CLE 600.3241a; in which case the redemption period shall be 30 days from the date of such sale.

LEGAL NOTICE 210

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

DEFAULT has occurred in the conditions of a mortgage made by Wellington G. Cowles and Sherri L. Cowles, husband and wife, ("Mortgagors") to First National Bank of Gaylord, a wholly owned subsidiary of North Bancorp, Inc., a national banking corporation, with its principal offices located at 501 W. Main, Gaylord, Michigan ("Mortgagee"), dated May 24, 1990, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan on May 30, 1990 in Liber 217 on Pages 0340-0342, Charlevoix County Records. By reason of such default, the undersigned elects to declare and hereby declares the entire unpaid amount of said Mortgage due and payable forthwith.

As of the date of this notice, there is claimed to be due for principal and interest on said Mortgage the sum of Sixteen Thousand Six hundred Thirty and 50/100 dollars ($16,630.50). No suit or proceeding at law has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage and the statute in such case made and provided, and to pay said amount, with interest, as provided in said Mortgage, and all legal costs, charges, expenses, including the attorney fee allowed by law, and all taxes and insurance premiums paid by the undersigned before sale, said Mortgagee will be

A compilation of awards, accomplishments and honors involving Charlevoix area people.

Five Charlevoix students were included on the Michigan Technological University Winter Quarter Dean's List. They are: Helen Hamlin, a freshman in General Engineering; Michael Himebauch, a senior in Electrical Engineering; Matthew Robinson, a freshman in General Engineering; Neal Stangis, a junior in Mechanical Engineering; James Zeitler, a junior in Civil Engineering.

Michael Stargardt of Charlevoix and Mindy Stadt of Boyne City are among more than 250 students eligible to participate in Alma College's 1993 commencement exercise. Eric Richardson of Charlevoix is also eligible to participate, having completed degree requirements in 1992, but is now in the process of completing the requirements for a second degree. Stargardt, a 1989 graduate of Charlevoix High School, is the son of Steve and Sara Stargardt. He will receive a Bachelor of Science degree in biology and Spanish. Stadt, a 1989 graduate of Boyne City High School, is the daughter of Leon and Wendy Stadt. She will receive a Bachelor of Arts degree in sociology and English. Richardson, a 1988, graduate of Charlevoix High School, is the son of Ralph and Beth Richardson. He received a Bachelor of Science degree in physics in 1992 and is now working on a Bachelor of Arts degree.

Three Charlevoix students, two East Jordan students and two Ellsworth students are on the Michigan State University fall semester Dean's List. Charlevoix students named to the list are: Heather Dietrich, a junior majoring in social science; Luke LaBlance, a freshman majoring in general business administration; and Matt Schnackenberg, a sophomore majoring in studio art. East Jordan students named to the list are: Barbara Lercel, a sophomore majoring in zoology; and Dennis Skrocki, a junior majoring in finance. Ellsworth students named to the list are: Lori Anne Ruiz, a junior majoring in audio speech science; and Matthew Koivisto, a freshman with no declared major.

Health Department urges caution to prevent poisoning

A poison is any substance that is swallowed, breathed in, or absorbed by the body and interferes with the body's normal functioning. Some poisons are familiar such as pesticides, animal poisons, and cleaning and other household chemicals. Parents must be aware of poisons in and around their homes; take steps to protect their children; keep the number of the Poison Control Center near the telephone, and know what to do in an emergency.

You can prevent poisonings by knowing that small children are at special risk of poisoning. Keep all poisons out of reach by keeping hazardous items in high cupboards, on tall shelves, or in locked cabinets. Designate special areas for poisons in your home or garage and keep them secure from children. Remember many common household goods, garden and garage aids, and medications are potential poisons. If you store any poison in a container other than the one in which it was originally packaged, be sure to label the can or bottle clearly; the word "POISON" should be prominently printed. Never use baby food bottles or other familiar food containers to store poisons.

A poisoning may be recognized by seeing the child seated on the floor surrounded by a chemical or medications. Other signs may include burns or redness around the mouth and lips; breath that smells like chemicals or gasoline; burns, stains, and odors on the person's, or on the child's clothing, or on objects in the area; difficulty breathing, vomiting, or other unexpected medical symptoms. Other conditions may mimic poisoning. If you find no indication of poisoning, do not treat the person for poisoning. However, call for emergency assistance.

If you conclude that a poison has been consumed, take the following steps:

1. Give the person a glass of water or milk to drink. However, if weak or unconscious do not force the liquid on the child.

2. Call the poison control center (Children's Hospital in Detroit) (313) 645-5711. Write this number down before you need it. Center staff will need to know the circumstances - who you are, who the poisoned person is, his or her condition, your location, and most importantly, exactly what was swallowed. Please note that if you live in the 517 or 906 area code number, you can not use the Blodgett Hospital Regional Poison Control number. Only residents in the 616 area code numbers may call their 1-800-632-2727 toll free number.

3. Do not hang up, the person at the Poison Control Center will tell you what to do.

4. Do not induce vomiting, if you do not know the identity of the substance ingested. You may be told to induce vomiting, but make sure that the person does not inhale the vomitus into the lungs. Try to have the chin lower than the level of the hips.

5. Monitor vital signs. Be alert for changes in the person who has been poisoned. If breathing stops, CPR must be performed. Treat for shock by getting the person to lie down, keeping the person warm and comfortable, and summoning emergency care.

6. Remove clothing and flush the skin and eyes with water, if the poison has spilled on the person's clothing, skin, or eyes.

7. Go to an emergency room immediately. If you are unable to transport the poisoned person, summon an ambulance. Be sure to take the container or packaging in which the poison was stored with you. If the poison is unknown and the person has vomited, take a sample of the vomitus for analysis.

Sheriff's Department compiling list of people who would need help in emergency evacuation

Citizens in Charlevoix County who reside within a 10-mile radius of the Big Rock Point nuclear plant and who are of an "invalid" status, or who would be unable to evacuate in the event of a general emergency because of physical disabilities, are requested to contact the Charlevoix Sheriff's Department.

The Sheriff's Department would like the name, telephone number, location of residence and type of disability of all area residents who would need assistance during an evacuation.

When the information has been compiled, the citizens will be informed of the evacuation plan and arrangements will be made to see that transportation is available to remove invalids from their residence to proper shelter in an emergency situation.

Are local buildings the work of master architect?

Author suspects Frank Lloyd Wright design may have been built in Charlevoix

By L. Scott Swanson

Did legendary architect Frank Lloyd Wright design buildings which were constructed in Charlevoix? Monday afternoon, a New Jersey author in conjunction with Courier editor L. Scott Swanson and Chicago Club manager Jerry Balch were looking into just that possibility. Perhaps Courier readers will be able to unravel the historical mystery.

New Jersey based author Bill Storrer has written one book about Wright's work and is hearing completion on another. The first book was published in 1974 and revised in 1978. The second book which will be the most complete compilation of Wright's work to date. If there is a Wright designed building in Charlevoix, Storrer would like to include it in the book.

Wright, who died in 1959 at the age of 91, is considered by many to be the finest architect ever to work in the United States. Storrer has found documents indicating that near the turn of the century Wright designed three buildings for Chicago businessman Edward C. Waller. According to the drawings, Waller planned to build the three buildings in Charlevoix. Edward C. Waller Sr. was a wealthy Chicago builder who built some major apartment complexes in that city. In 1915, his son, Edward C. Waller Jr., built Midway Gardens, which Storrer notes was a fabulous building in Chicago. Storrer visited Charlevoix one afternoon last summer and looked around, but being unfamiliar with the area and short of time had no success in his search. According to the evidence he's found so far, Wright designed three buildings for Waller. One of them was constructed on a bluff which, according to old photos, appeared to overlook a lake. When Storrer visited Charlevoix, he drove along the bluffs overlooking Lake Michigan and also came across Waller Road, north of Charlevoix, but found neither the building, nor the bluff he was looking for.

As the press deadline for Storrer's book approached, he decided to give the Charlevoix mystery one last shot. Friday afternoon, he called Charlevoix's City Hall. He said the person there told him about the Courier's Scrapbook page (which features old photos) and gave him the Courier phone number.

Storrer contacted the Courier shortly before 5 p.m. Friday, April 2. He told Swanson about his

Lions Club bringing Kelly-Miller Circus to town

By L. Scott Swanson

The Charlevoix Lions Club will be bringing the Kelly-Miller Circus to town July 9. Monday evening, Charlevoix Lions Club representative Bern Cannan addressed the City Council, seeking permission to have the circus on the grass airport runway off of Carpenter Street. Following objections by airport pilots, the council and the Lions Club have agreed to have the circus site be on the airport property off of U.S. 31 rather than on the grass runway.

Don Seelye was one of several Charlevoix pilots who opposed having the circus on the runway. He said he didn't object to the circus, but objected to closing the runway. He said closing the grass runway would leave pilots without an optional landing strip should the main runway have to close for some reason. He also noted that airplanes, cars and people don't mix well and that having a circus and other events on a grass runway could leave ruts in the runway. The council recently approved a request by an airstream trailer group to have a rally on the grass runway in 1994. Seelye said he also objects to that, noting that again he doesn't have a problem with the people or the event, he just doesn't feel the event should take place on an airport runway.

Norm Cook, another pilot, echoed that opinion. "I'm not opposed to either one of these activities, but it's (the airport runway) just not the right place for it."

When the airport site near U.S. 31 was suggested, Cannan said he has no problem using another part of the airport and that all the Lions Club needs for a site is a 300 foot by 300 foot space. He said the tent would be in place for about 12 hours on the day of the circus. Cannan said the Lions considered several sites, but wanted to stay in the City of Charlevoix for an event that is going to draw a lot of people.

The Kelly-Miller Circus was founded in 1938 and is headquartered in Hugo, Oklahoma. It is a traditional three-ring tent circus. In recent years the circus has visited Elk Rapids and Indian River. It has been several years since a circus has visited Charlevoix. The circus will arrive in Charlevoix on the morning of July 9 with performances later in the day and early evening.

AHEAD LINES

Burn permits to be suspended to prevent wild fires

Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Director Roland Harnes recently announced that the DNR, United States Forest Service and those local units of government authorized under the state's forest fire law (Act 329), will not be issuing burn permits from April 17 to May 16 in an effort to curb Michigan wildfires.

"Spring is the most critical time of year for wildfires in Michigan," Harnes said. "Some 42 percent of all the state's wildfires and more than half of those that burn over 100 acres occur during the last two weeks of April and the first two weeks of May. The outdoor burning of yard and household debris is responsible for 37 percent of the wildfires during this time period."

While burning permits are not required under the state's forest fire law for recreational campfires, burning in an approved debris burner (a masonry or metal container with a metal cover having openings no larger than 3/4 inch), or when the ground is snow-covered, wildfire officials are asking people to refrain from outdoor burning during the April 17 to May 16 period.

This 30-day action does not affect those townships and municipalities with local ordinances on burning permit issuances that are stricter than the state forest fire law. However, all units of government with such authority are strongly encouraged not to issue permits during the moratorium.

...history mystery: search is on for F.L. Wright building in Charlevoix search and of how he had visited Charlevoix, but hadn't found anything along the bluffs of Lake Michigan. Based on Storer's information, Swanson surmised that maybe Waller was from the Chicago Club and that the bluff overlooking a lake overlooked either Lake Charlevoix or Round Lake. Swanson advised Storer to contact Balch and keep him posted.

Storer left a message on Balch's answering machine Monday morning indicating that Swanson had suggested talking to him. Balch received the message and contacted Swanson to see what the deal was. Swanson told Balch what Storer was looking for and asked if there ever had been an Edward C. Waller at the Chicago Club. Balch didn't know for sure off the top of his head, but as the two of them talked and Swanson told Balch about Storer's trip to Waller Road, it triggered a memory in Balch's head. A couple of months ago he had been cleaning out a basement and found some old blue prints which had the name Waller on them. The blue prints were for some type of milkhouse on a farm. Balch assumed they were for the old Waller farm on Waller Road.

By now the mystery had Balch curious too so he went and dug out the blue prints. He also called Mrs. Timothy Ives of the Chicago Club board. Ives told Balch that yes, there had been an Edward Waller who lived at the Chicago Club, but the house he initially lived in was not one he built, but one that he bought from a man named Caleb Gates. That house had been built in 1882. Ives also noted that the Waller who had lived at the Chicago Club had a farm and property north of town on what is now known as Waller Road. That information was subsequently confirmed by Charlevoix-Historical Society curator Geoff Reynolds.

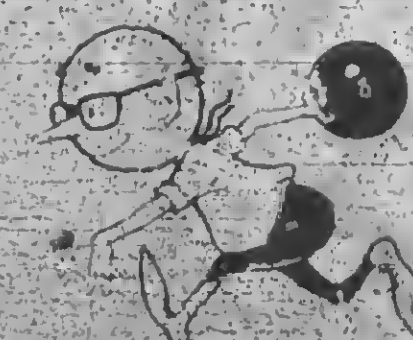

Swanson and Storer talked again by phone Monday afternoon and Storer provided a couple other pieces of interesting information. Wright had done three building designs for Waller. One was for a private bath house which according to the records was constructed. The other two were for a "summer home" and separate smaller house with a pavilion. According to records, those two buildings were never constructed. As he looked at the summer house design, Storer noted that it was huge with 10 bedrooms upstairs and two bedrooms downstairs. He said the overall width of the building was 116 feet and the depth of the building approximately 60 feet. He said that perhaps the building had been intended as some type of clubhouse. In fact, there is information on the design that indicates the building may have been initially designed as a clubhouse for Lake Delavan, Wisconsin. However, Storer said the design indicates the house is to sit up on a big bluff and that he has been to Lake Delavan and knows of no such bluff. He said it is possible that Wright originally designed the house for Lake Delavan and later modified the design for Waller and a site in Charlevoix.

So the question which came to mind is - was the Chicago Club clubhouse either designed, or perhaps inspired by a design, by Frank Lloyd Wright? A conversation with Balch indicated that the dimensions of the clubhouse are in the neighborhood of 116' by 60'. At one time there were two downstairs rooms which people stayed in and there are also numerous upstairs bedrooms.

Edith Gilbert of Charlevoix noted that once was a Mr. Bapst of the Chicago Club who had accumulated and stored a great deal of information about the club. That information was subsequently donated to the Charlevoix Public Library and is in the library's Michigan room.

As of the Courier's press time this week there were still more questions than answers to the mystery of Frank Lloyd Wright's connection to Charlevoix. Storer is sending photos by express mail and additional information is being gathered. Next week's paper will offer an update. Anyone with additional information is welcome to contact the Courier office at 547-6558.

OPINIONS

EDITH

by EDITH GILBERT

Sure enough, there are pluses and minuses to everything. Being in Charlevoix during spring break is positively minus 10!

First of all, there's the weather. It was so foggy the other day on Bridge Street that one couldn't see Round Lake. Even the seagulls were flying around in a blizzard of confusion over the park. Black mounds of melting snow dot the streets. Dark wet leaves cover the promise of petunias along the curbs. Large puddles of water dip from the gutters across the sidewalks forcing pedestrians to meander like a drunken body down the street. All the sand that was spread on the street this winter is still there going crunch under one's shoe leather. The sky is grey. It's damp. The trees look like a bunch of brown, dead twigs stuck together. Even the usually green cedars seem dusty enough to be vacuumed.

As for people, there aren't any. Go into any store that isn't closed and talk to the attendant. She's standing around looking for something to do. There are no lines at the checkout counter. There is no line at the bank's drive-in window. The only people I see around here are working on somebody's roof. When the phone rings, it's a telemarketing call. You could shoot an automatic rifle from Mackinac to Traverse City and not hit anyone.

To top it off, there is nothing to do. The nets aren't up at the tennis courts. The golf courses aren't open. The boats aren't in the water. The local ski hill isn't operating. Many of the restaurants are still closed. Tho' I will say the Weather-vane tried to bring a little life to town last Saturday night. My invitation read, "dine and dance to celebrate 'Bridge Night'". The celebration, of course, was the partial completion of the construction of the Bridge, which has had only one lane open to cars for months. Traffic on the north side frequently has been backed up all the way to Don's IGA. Unfortunately, work on the Bridge was not completed as scheduled Saturday night, but the crowd at the Weather-vane didn't seem to mind, with the good food and lively dance music and all, they could just as well have been in the Rainbow Room in New York City. Well, almost.

People who work and have children out of school are in a real pickle. Some parents take their children to work with them. Some lucky parents find day care. Some stay-at-home moms tell me they are nursing their children back to health, some have their kids raking the yard, and some send their young ones to visit friends. A few kids are shooting baskets by the garage. The consensus is there's not much to do.

The most interesting bit of Charlevoix news for those who are not here is that Cross's family-owned Fish Market is enlarging its space. Chunks of concrete are being broken up and dust is flying all over the place. Service will be much faster and more convenient next summer for the increased retail business.

The same holds true for Kwikee Duplicating Center. The place is much larger with more equipment for the convenience of the customers. Paul Casciani, the owner, has been doing most of the remodeling work himself between printing jobs and it will be a big improvement when it's finished.

The new health club in the downtown mall called "Biceps" will be completed in May. In the meantime the temporary quarters were fairly well attended this winter in spite of its unfinished appearance.

Driving by the hospital renovation facing Lake Michigan makes one eager to see the finished expansion. Presently, patients must detour via a mobile unit to be processed.

Maybe when the crocuses come up and the brittle Christmas wreaths with their tired red bows come down, those of us who were here during spring break will forget what it's been like.

Stupak to host town meeting April 8

EDITH GILBERT

Congressman Bart Stupak (D-Menominee) will be in Charlevoix Thursday, April 8 for a town meeting. The meeting will be from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m. at the Charlevoix Senior Citizens Center at the corner of West Carpenter Street and Woodward Road. Stupak will summarize current issues in Washington and field questions. The public is welcome to attend.

Stupak was elected as the congressman from Michigan's First District this past November. This is his first town meeting in Charlevoix since the election.

OPINIONS

Charlevoix Sketchbook

Jan Glass

Squirrels can be a real nuisance, robbing bird feeders, invading storage sheds, and even houses. Their bushy tails are very ineffective when it comes to finding a means to get at the food they want. Their staple food is nuts, but that varies according to availability and the season, as was evident the other day when a large black squirrel had a healthy and tasty snack of swollen cottonwood tree buds. They will also strip the bark from trees if they don't eat the bark (altho they will use some for their nests) they are really after the sap that is trapped under the bark. Now that spring is officially here many animals that have overwintered are out and about. A pair of very friendly chipmunks took turns eating a pile of corn out of a chip shaver pot out for them.

Group plans walk to raise money to preserve river bank

A group of area people will take steps to save a 17-acre natural area with an Earth Day "March for Parks" April 17. The group is raising money to purchase a strip of land (see accompanying photo) on a small river between St. Clair and Six Mile Lakes in South Arm Township. Members of the Lake St. Clair-Six Mile Lake Natural Committee are seeking sponsors for a 1.9-mile walk which will begin at 9 a.m., April 17 at Wooden Shoe Park in Ellsworth and proceed to South Arm Township property across the river from the preservation site.

The public is welcome to join in the morning walk. For additional information, or to help with fundraising, contact Ron Tschudy at 544-6167 or JoAnne Beemon at 547-4820.

Breanna Mae German

Girl wins toddler model title

Breanna Mae German of Ellsworth recently returned from the American Beauty and Dance Pageant at the Royal Hotel in Romulus. There she was crowned "Michigan Toddler Model 1993." This is German's third queen title.

The 4-year-old also participated in the Cinderella Pageant at the Grand Traverse Resort in Traverse City March 20. There she received first place in the Party Dress category and the award for All-American Smile. She was sponsored in the event by the East Jordan Iron Works, Dura Mechanical components, EZ Dock Boat Systems, Four Seasons Marina, Rt. 66 Oil Exchange, and the East Jordan Co-op, all of East Jordan.

German will be a contestant in this year's "Little Miss of America" Michigan state finals April 24 and 25 at the Van Dyke Park Hotel in Warren. The national pageant held annually in Hollywood California will be staged this year at the Sheraton Universal located on Universal Studios lot in July.

German's instructor is her mother, Dawn German. Dawn teaches baton twirling and dance through Ellsworth community education. German is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William German of Ellsworth.

East Jordan Rotary Grant to fund foundation scholarships

The East Jordan Rotary Club has transferred $48,800 from its scholarship foundation to a new endowment fund within the Charlevoix County Community Foundation. Income from the endowment will be used each year to grant scholarships to graduates of East Jordan High School.

According to Scott Beatty, president of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, the first of the scholarships will be awarded later this spring. "This gift reaffirms a long-standing commitment East Jordan Rotarians have made to our community's young people," Beatty says. "Their generosity will enable students to pursue a college education who otherwise might not have had that chance."

The gift from the East Jordan Rotary Club not only boosts the Community Foundation's permanent scholarship endowment to $148,800 — it also qualifies for matching grants from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation. Under an arrangement with Kellogg, each local dollar raised by the Charlevoix County Community Foundation is eligible for a 50-cent matching gift.

Beatty says that's one of the primary benefits of the new Community Foundation. "We have an opportunity to increase our capacity for funding local programs and responding to community needs that much sooner because of matching gifts," he explains. "Tax incentives and challenge grants such as the Kellogg match make charitable gifts to our Community Foundation as wise investment."

Those who are interested in learning more about the East Jordan area scholarships may do so by contacting a counselor at the East Jordan High School. Applications are available at the counseling office.

Started in 1992, The Charlevoix County Community Foundation receives charitable donations, manages them in a permanent endowment, and redistributes earned income through grants to meet local need. The Foundation is one of more than 400 similar community foundations throughout the country. Additional information about the Foundation is available by calling 616/536-2440, or by writing c/o P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, Michigan 49727.

Head Start registration organized for next year's classes

The Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency, Inc. is announcing the recruitment activities for enrollment in the Petoskey, Pellston, Boyne Valley and Ironton (serving Charlevoix & East Jordan) HEAD START PROGRAMS for the school year 1993-94. Please call 347-9070 for more information and to make an appointment for registration.

Head Start is a comprehensive, interdisciplinary preschool program primarily for children three to five years of age whose families have a limited income.

The basic goal of the program is to encourage well-founded development. This is done through the teaching of health, language, self-help, large and small muscle, socialization, and cognitive (thinking) skills. Teachers, community professionals, support staff and parents (whose participation is extremely important) work together to accomplish this goal. Through the involvement of parents, the program aims at enhancing the parent's role as the prime educator of their children. The program is carried out through center and home-based activities.

To qualify for Head Start, your income must be within the following Federal Income Poverty Guidelines: household size 2 - $9,430; 3 - $11,890; 4 - $14,350; 5 - $16,810; 6 - $19,270. For each additional person add $2,460.

While this is an income eligible program, families whose income exceeds these guidelines may still qualify if their child has a special need documented by a professional (doctor, psychologist, teacher, social worker) who makes a referral to the program. Ten percent of the enrolled families are over the income guidelines.

For Jim Nystrom, trapping is a way of life

Trapper and his family enjoy every minute they can spend in Michigan's woods, streams and ponds

By L. Scott Swanson

By the light of the moon, Jim Nystrom waded through a swamp in 14-inch deep water. His 10-year-old daughter, Shannon, kept her arms wrapped tightly around daddy's neck as she rode piggy-back to avoid getting water in her boots. Nystrom's eight-year-old son, Jordan, followed along behind, carrying an axo and keeping an eye out for beavers. In addition to carrying his daughter on his back, Nystrom carried a dead beaver in each hand. This night of trapping had been very good. He and the children checked three traps and found three beavers — on the evening, they batted LIII.

"I don't consider it a sport, but a way of life," Nystrom said, when asked about his trapping. He noted that right now, due to running around with the children to things such as Shannon's singing and dance classes and Jordan's soccer and hockey practices, it's not as big a part of his life as it has been at other times, but still it is a way of life.

Nystrom, who works for Consumers Power Company maintaining northern Michigan substations, has been trapping since he was in high school. Coyotes, fox, beavers, otters, mink, skunks, raccoons, opossums, badger and bobcats are among the animals he has trapped in Michigan as well as in other states. Coyotes are his favorite game. "There's not a critter in Michigan smarter than a coyote," Nystrom says. He adds that a coyote is ten times smarter than the smartest fox.

Beavers are also something Nystrom enjoys trapping. Last week he had nine beavers. Due to time constraints, Nystrom limits himself to about 20 beavers a year. In addition to the time spent preparing, setting and checking traps, it takes about an hour per beaver for skinning and pelt preparation. Currently pelts are selling for about $20 locally and $30 to $35 if you ship them to Canada. Dried beaver castor glands sell for $20 a pound.

Pelts prices are, and for some time have been, low due to opposition to people wearing real furs. Nystrom said that at one time several years ago when fur prices were high, he received $117 for a single beaver pelt. That pelt came from an extremely large beaver. Beaver pelts are graded (and consequently priced) based on size, color and general quality.

Nystrom said that given current fur prices and if you figure in your time, trapping isn't a money-making proposition. Consequently, there aren't as many trappers as there once were. That has caused an increase in the population of beavers and led to beavers causing problems. Many of the beavers Nystrom traps are beavers people ask him to trap because they are cutting down valuable trees and building dams which flood property and roads.

Nystrom, who moved to Charlevoix from Gaylord a few years ago, recalls with amusement one particular incident in the Gaylord area. He had been driving past a small lake and noticed signs of a lot of beaver activity. Having trapped as long as he has, he has gotten so that just by looking around he can get a pretty good idea of how many beavers are working in an area.

There was a cottage by this particular lake. Nystrom pulled into the driveway, got out of his vehicle and introduced himself to the owner of the cottage. He told the cottage owner, you've got quite a few beavers working around here. If they aren't thinned out they're going to cause problems. I'm a trapper and I'd like to get your permission to trap some of them.

No way, the cottage owner replied. My wife and I enjoy watching those beavers. I don't want you trapping them. You get out of here and leave them alone.

So Nystrom said, fine and got in his truck and left.

Well, less than two months later Nystrom got a call from a Department of Natural Resources (DNR) officer. The officer said, Jim, we've got some beavers that are causing problems, and we need you to trap them. The officer gave Nystrom directions to the home of the property owner who was having beaver problems. Sure enough, it was the same guy who less than two months before had been enjoying watching the beavers. Why the change of opinion? One of those cute little beavers had felled a tree right across the back corner of the guy's garage.

You were right, the guy told Nystrom. Go ahead and trap every beaver around this lake. I want them all gone.

Nystrom said he would trap some of the beavers, but not all of them because he doesn't believe in that. He said he'd thin the beavers out enough so that they wouldn't cause any more problems and yet there would still be some left to reproduce and for the man and his wife to watch.

Like many trappers, hunters and fishermen, Nystrom is very conscientious about game management and good public relations. A few years ago when skunks were a problem in several parts of Charlevoix, Nystrom was hired to trap some of them. He said he trapped more than 100. It wasn't necessarily a financially lucrative endeavor, but it gave him a chance to meet a lot of people and do some public relations work for trapping by handing out pamphlets from the National Trapping Association.

There wouldn't be nearly the anti-trapping sentiment if people did things right," Nystrom noted. Granted, in trapping the death of the animal is part of the program. But if traps are set properly the animal's death is as quick and humane as possible.

Foot-hold traps receive the most criticism. People envision them as a trap with teeth which breaks an animal's leg and they hear horror stories of animals chewing off the leg in order to escape. In reality, foot-hold traps with teeth are pretty much a thing of the past. In reality, when the trap is set properly, no bones are broken. The animal is caught by the foot which goes numb in under two minutes. A trap which is appropriately anchored and uses swivels results in minimal thrashing by the trapped animal. The trapper has a practical, as well as humanitarian reason, for not wanting the animal to thrash or suffer. Thrashing can damage the pelt.

In the case of beaver trapping, the beavers are killed almost immediately. In setting a beaver trap, two stakes are driven, one in about four inches of water and the other out in water about waist deep. A foot-hold trap is attached to a wire running between the two stakes and set near the top stake. The trap is attached to the wire by a clip which will allow the trap to slide down the wire toward the deep-water stake, but not back up the wire.

On shore near the top stake the trapper places feed sticks and builds a small mud pie. He puts castor (beaver oil) on the mud pie. Mud pies are used by beavers to mark territory. When the beaver swims up to investigate the mudpie and puts his foot on the bank, he hits the trap. When he turns and goes back into the water, the wire leads the beaver underwater and he suffocates. The term suffocates is appropriate as opposed to drowns because beavers don't get water in their lungs. They have a flap in their throat which closes when they're under water.

Foot-hold traps are one of three varieties of traps. The other two are

James W. Carver

James W. Carver, 87, of Huron Beach, died March 30, 1993, at his son's home in Charlevoix.

His funeral was Saturday, April 3, at the Bill Brietzke Funeral Home in Rogers City. The Rev. Christopher Keen of Huron Beach Baptist Church officiated and burial will be in Memorial Park Cemetery.

He was born Sept. 10, 1905, in Mokone, Mo.; the son of Ezekiel and Minnie (Grabenstein) Carver. He graduated from Mokone High School in 1923.

In 1924, Mr. Carver moved to the Detroit area where he began working as a millwright for a number of companies. He later became employed by the Ford Motor Co. where he worked for 42 years until his retirement in 1972.

On June 9, 1945, he married Jane Forbes in Connecticut and the couple made their home in Detroit. Mrs. Carver preceded him in death on Nov. 8, 1989.

Mr. Carver was a 32nd Degree member of the Free and Accepted Masons Westgate Lodge for more than 65 years.

In 1954, Mr. and Mrs. Carver purchased a vacation home at Huron Beach and following Mr.

Carver's retirement they made it their permanent residence.

He was a member of the Huron Beach Baptist Church and was very active in its affairs.

Survivors include his son, Douglas and his wife Tootie of Charlevoix; three grandchildren, Douglas Jr. and Keith Carver and Mike Parker; two great-grandchildren; and nieces and nephews. In addition to his wife, he was preceded in death by one sister.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the American Cancer Society or to the Charlevoix County Hospice.

Clarence H. Dewar

Clarence H. Dewar, 68, of Charlevoix, died March 31, 1993, at home.

A memorial service will be held 1 p.m. Thursday, April 8, at the First Baptist Church on M-66 in Charlevoix. The Rev. Michael Dennis of the First Baptist Church will officiate. Burial will take place in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

He was born April 2, 1924, in Saginaw, the son of Earl and Anna (Blain) Dewar. He grew up in the Saginaw and Reese area and attended Reese schools.

On Jan. 31, 1968, he married Agatha Grandmaitson in Reno, Nev., and she survives.

Mr. Dewar served as a cavalryman in the U.S. Army during World War II from 1943-46. He served in the European Theater.

Mr. Dewar was employed as manager for a retail farm equipment store, and he enjoyed fishing, card playing, gardening and was a car auction buff.

Survivors include his wife, Agatha; one son, John H. Dewar and his wife Cathrine of Anchorage, Alaska; one daughter, Kathleen Britzke and her husband Robert of Rogers, Ark.; one stepson, Dennis Wojciechowski and his wife Sandra of Corvallis, Calif.; one stepdaughter, Sandra Kish and her husband Joseph of Hillsborough, Calif.; 10 grandchildren; four great-grandsons; two brothers, Arthur of Reese, and Kenneth of South Bend, Ind.; and several nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by one brother, Lloyd, and one sister, Agnes.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix County Hospice, First Baptist Church of Charlevoix, or the Cherry Blossom Mennonite Church of Traverse City. There will be no visitation.

Kenneth Krulik

Kenneth Krulik, 90, of Charlevoix, died March 28, 1993, in Naples, Fla.

His funeral was Saturday, April 3, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. Cecil Drost officiated and burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

He was born Oct. 9, 1902, in Charlevoix, the son of Charles and Josephine (Sykora) Krulik. He grew up in Charlevoix and attended Charlevoix schools.

In 1926, he married Nellie Ward, and she preceded him in death in 1982.

Mr. Krulik was a commercial fisherman for Cross Fisheries. He retired at the age of 65 and then worked for Drigget Fish Market.

Mr. Krulik loved the outdoors and was an avid hunter.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Harrison (Shirley) Elzinga of Charlevoix, and Mrs. Forrest (Joyce) Burke of Naples, Fla.; nine grandchildren; 13 great-grandchildren; two great-great-grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Lottie King of Dearborn, and Vlasta Krulik of Charlevoix; and several nieces, nephews and cousins. In addition to his wife, he was preceded in death by two brothers, Spid and Charles; one sister, Sylvia; one daughter, Wilma; and one grandson, Brian.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Silas Paul Doctor

Silas Paul Doctor, 81, died April 3, 1993, at his home in Ellsworth.

His funeral was Tuesday, April 6, at the Central Lake Bible Baptist Church with the Rev. Thomas A. Hunter officiating. Burial will be in Atwood Cemetery.

He was born Oct. 22, 1911, in Banks Township, the son of John and Gertrude (DeYoung) Doctor.

On July 3, 1936, he married Johanna Veenstra in Banks Township where they made their home.

Mr. Doctor was engaged in farming most of his life, and was also employed at the East Jordan

Iron Works until his retirement in 1973.

Mr. Doctor was a member of the Central Lake Bible Baptist Church where he served as a deacon and taught Sunday school for many years. He drove school bus for several years, and delivered APS mail. Mr. Doctor also served on the Antrim County Welfare Board, sang with the "Singing Grandfathers" and enjoyed hunting deer and rabbits.

He is survived by his wife, Johanna; three sons, Robert Doctor of Petoskey, Kenneth Doctor and his wife Donna of Otsego; and Silas Doctor and his wife Mary of Manistique; two daughters, Mrs. Ted (Ray) Sessler of Jamestown, Ohio, and Mrs. Ernie (Vangie) DeVrou of Atwood; 14 grandchildren; eight great-grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Marion (Lillian) Sitzema of Ellsworth; one brother, Paul Doctor of Atwood; and many nieces and nephews.

Memorial contributions may be made to U.P. Prison Ministries, c/o the Central Lake Bible Baptist Church. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Hastings Funeral Home in Ellsworth.

Marion E. MacKay

Marion E. MacKay, 73, of East Jordan, died March 30, 1993, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Her funeral and committal services were held Friday, April 2, at the Paulin Funeral Home in East Jordan. The Rev. James D. Green of the Bible Baptist Church of Charlevoix will officiate and burial will be in Brown's Cemetery.

She was born May 25, 1919, in Hamilton, Canada, the daughter of Frank and Louella (Adams) Mitchell. She grew up in Hamilton and attended Loreta Academy.

On May 30, 1942, she married Basil E. MacKay in Canada, and they resided in Windsor until 1958 when they moved to Detroit. In 1968, the couple moved to East Jordan.

Mrs. MacKay enjoyed artistry and often painted as recreation.

Survivors include her husband, Basil; one son and his wife, Mitchell J. and Allison MacKay, and one daughter, Marilee J. MacKay, all of East Jordan; and three grandchildren, Heather, Shaun and Jesse MacKay.

Mildred "Millie" M. Skeel

Mildred "Millie" M. Skeel, 68, of East Jordan, died April 4, 1993, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral will be 11 a.m. Wednesday, April 7, at the Paulin Funeral Home in East Jordan. The Rev. Merlin K. Delo of the United Methodist Church will officiate and burial will be in Sunset Hill Cemetery, East Jordan.

She was born June 19, 1924, in Grayling, the daughter of Charles Thomas and Hilda B. (Baker) Green. She grew up in East Jordan, lived in Muskegon from 1937-1966, and then returned to East Jordan.

On April 1, 1967, she married Gene H. Skeel in Boyne City. He preceded her in death on April 3, 1978.

Mrs. Skeel enjoyed fishing, motorcycle riding, mushroom hunting and socializing with her friends.

Survivors include two sisters, Cecelia "Peggy" Loper and her husband John of Oak Hill, Fla., and Virginia P. Strong of East Jordan; several nieces and nephews; and one sister-in-law, Darlene Green. In addition to her husband, she was preceded in death by her brothers, Clyde P. Green in 1984, and Clifford P. Green in 1985.

Memorial contribution may be made to the American Cancer Society or to the family. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Paulin Funeral Home in East Jordan.

Bethany Lutheran schedules special Holy Week services

The final week of the Passion Season at Bethany Lutheran Church will begin with Maundy Services at 7 p.m. and the Lord's Supper will be observed with Holy Communion.

On Good Friday, the church will be open from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. as a time for individual prayer and meditation. The evening service will be at 7 p.m., with a video depicting the "Arrest and Crucifixion."

On Easter morning, there will be a Sun-rise service at 7:45 a.m. Breakfast will be served by the men of the congregation at 8:45 a.m.

The festive service will start 9:30 a.m. Nursery service is available for the 9:30 service.

The celebration of Easter is a time for new beginnings. As we welcome the changes of the season and look forward to warm, sunny days, flowers in bloom, and all the pleasures we enjoy daily, let us not forget the significance of the Resurrection.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

by MERLIN R. WELLHOUSEN

If one could turn the calendar back nearly two thousand years, and put one's self in the middle of the city of Jerusalem, the events which led up to the infamous first Good Friday could be seen by some onlookers as truly good. Some bystanders say the public opinion of a certain Jew named Jesus go from the exultant praise of Palm Sunday, who cried out "Hosanna to the Son of David," to vehement shout of "Crucify Him! Crucify Him!"

These bystanders could all be lumped into two groups. One who wanted to do away with Jesus and get him out of the way; the other, a group of people who hung on every word which He said and trusted that He was the Promised Deliverer. To the former it was good that Jesus was crucified; to the latter, their Hero was prematurely snuffed out. To the former, their lives were rid of their nuisance; to the latter, their hopes were crushed.

Then why do we call it Good Friday? We were not even there. It is Good Friday because something "good" came out of that day. The good which squirted its way through the betrayal, the denial, the hate, the lies, the blood, the beating, the crown of thorns, the crucifixion, the cross, the nails, the Death, was this: That an innocent Jesus went to the cross and died for a guilty world that deserved to pay the penalty for its own sin. It is "Good" Friday, because sin was dealt a fatal blow on the cross of Jesus when He died for you and me.

When we take time to reflect on why they call it "good" Friday, try to look past all the "gory" details to the love that motivated Jesus to walk through that day in which we call Good. "God so loved the world that He gave His unique, one of a kind son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." John 3:16. That is why we call it Good!

The history behind Easter traditions

By Laurie Lounsbury

Unlike Christmas, Easter is a movable feast. The date of Easter changes from year to year - to the confusion and frustration of many people who like to plan their holiday activities ahead of time. The First Nicene Council in the year A.D. 325 is to blame for the mobile Easter date. The council set the method of determining the date for Easter, saying that Easter will fall on the first Sunday after the first full moon on or after March 21. Easter cannot come before March 22 or after April 25, according to the council's rules.

For those who like to plan ahead, here is a list of future Easter dates.

1993 - April 11
1994 - April 3
1995 - April 16
1996 - April 7
1997 - March 30
1998 - April 12
1999 - April 4
2000 - April 23

So which came first, the bunny or the egg? Or for that matter, which came first, the birth of Christ or the bunny and the egg? The egg has been a symbol of new life that comes with spring since ancient times. Not surprisingly, the rabbit represents fertility and has been used in spring rituals since the ancient times as well. These pagan symbols of spring were around long before Christ.

Easter feasts have their own traditional Easter foods. Lamb is a perennial favorite, either in the form of leg of lamb, or lamb pound cakes that double as a table centerpiece. The lamb represents Jesus and parallels his death to that of the lamb sacrificed on the first Passover. Jesus is often referred to as the "Lamb of God."

Pretzels are an old world Easter food. The twisted shape of the pretzel symbolizes arms crossed in prayer. From England, we have hot cross buns, which were originally baked for Easter and marked with icing in a cross for Christ.

What to wear, what to wear - It's a constant dilemma for most women. On Easter Sunday, the answer is simple. Wear something new. The tradition of wearing something new goes back to the earliest Easter celebrations. Wearing new clothes on Easter Sunday symbolizes the new life given to all Christians after Christ's resurrection. The women, eager to parade about in the new Easter finery, created the tradition of Easter parades. After all, there's nothing worse than being all dressed up with no place to go.

A good thousand years before Jesus arrived on the scene, the Israelites were struggling to free themselves from the bondage of the Egyptians. In 1200 B.C., God brought his tenth plague down on the Egyptians, killing the first born child in every Egyptian home. The Israelites were passed over by God's Angel of Death, since they marked their doors with the blood of a lamb that was sacrificed for the angel. This event brought about the tradition of Passover, for it not only symbolized the time that the Israelites were passed over by the angel of death, it also represents the Israelites' passing over from slavery to freedom. The Israelites, poised and ready for flight from Egypt, invented Matzah bread, a flat, unleavened bread. The Israelites didn't have time to wait for their bread to rise as they readied themselves for their departure from Egypt so they created the unleavened bread, possibly the first fast food known to man.

Passover also moves around on our Roman calendar, but it always falls in March or April on the fifteenth day of the Hebrew month Nisan. This seven-day religious celebration began on April 6 this year.

For anyone from pagan to Christian to Jew, this week is a time to celebrate the renewal of life and rejoice in the miracle of spring as it returns to northern Michigan.

Kwikie Duplicating expanding services

By Ralph McRae

Across this nation in towns both small and large there are little firms that help make this country economically sound. Some of these companies are companies which give some type of service that is helpful to every kind of enterprise. One such firm in Charlevoix is the Kwikie Duplicating Center.

Kwikie Duplicating Center Inc. of Charlevoix has only one stock holder, Paul Casciani. The Kwikie

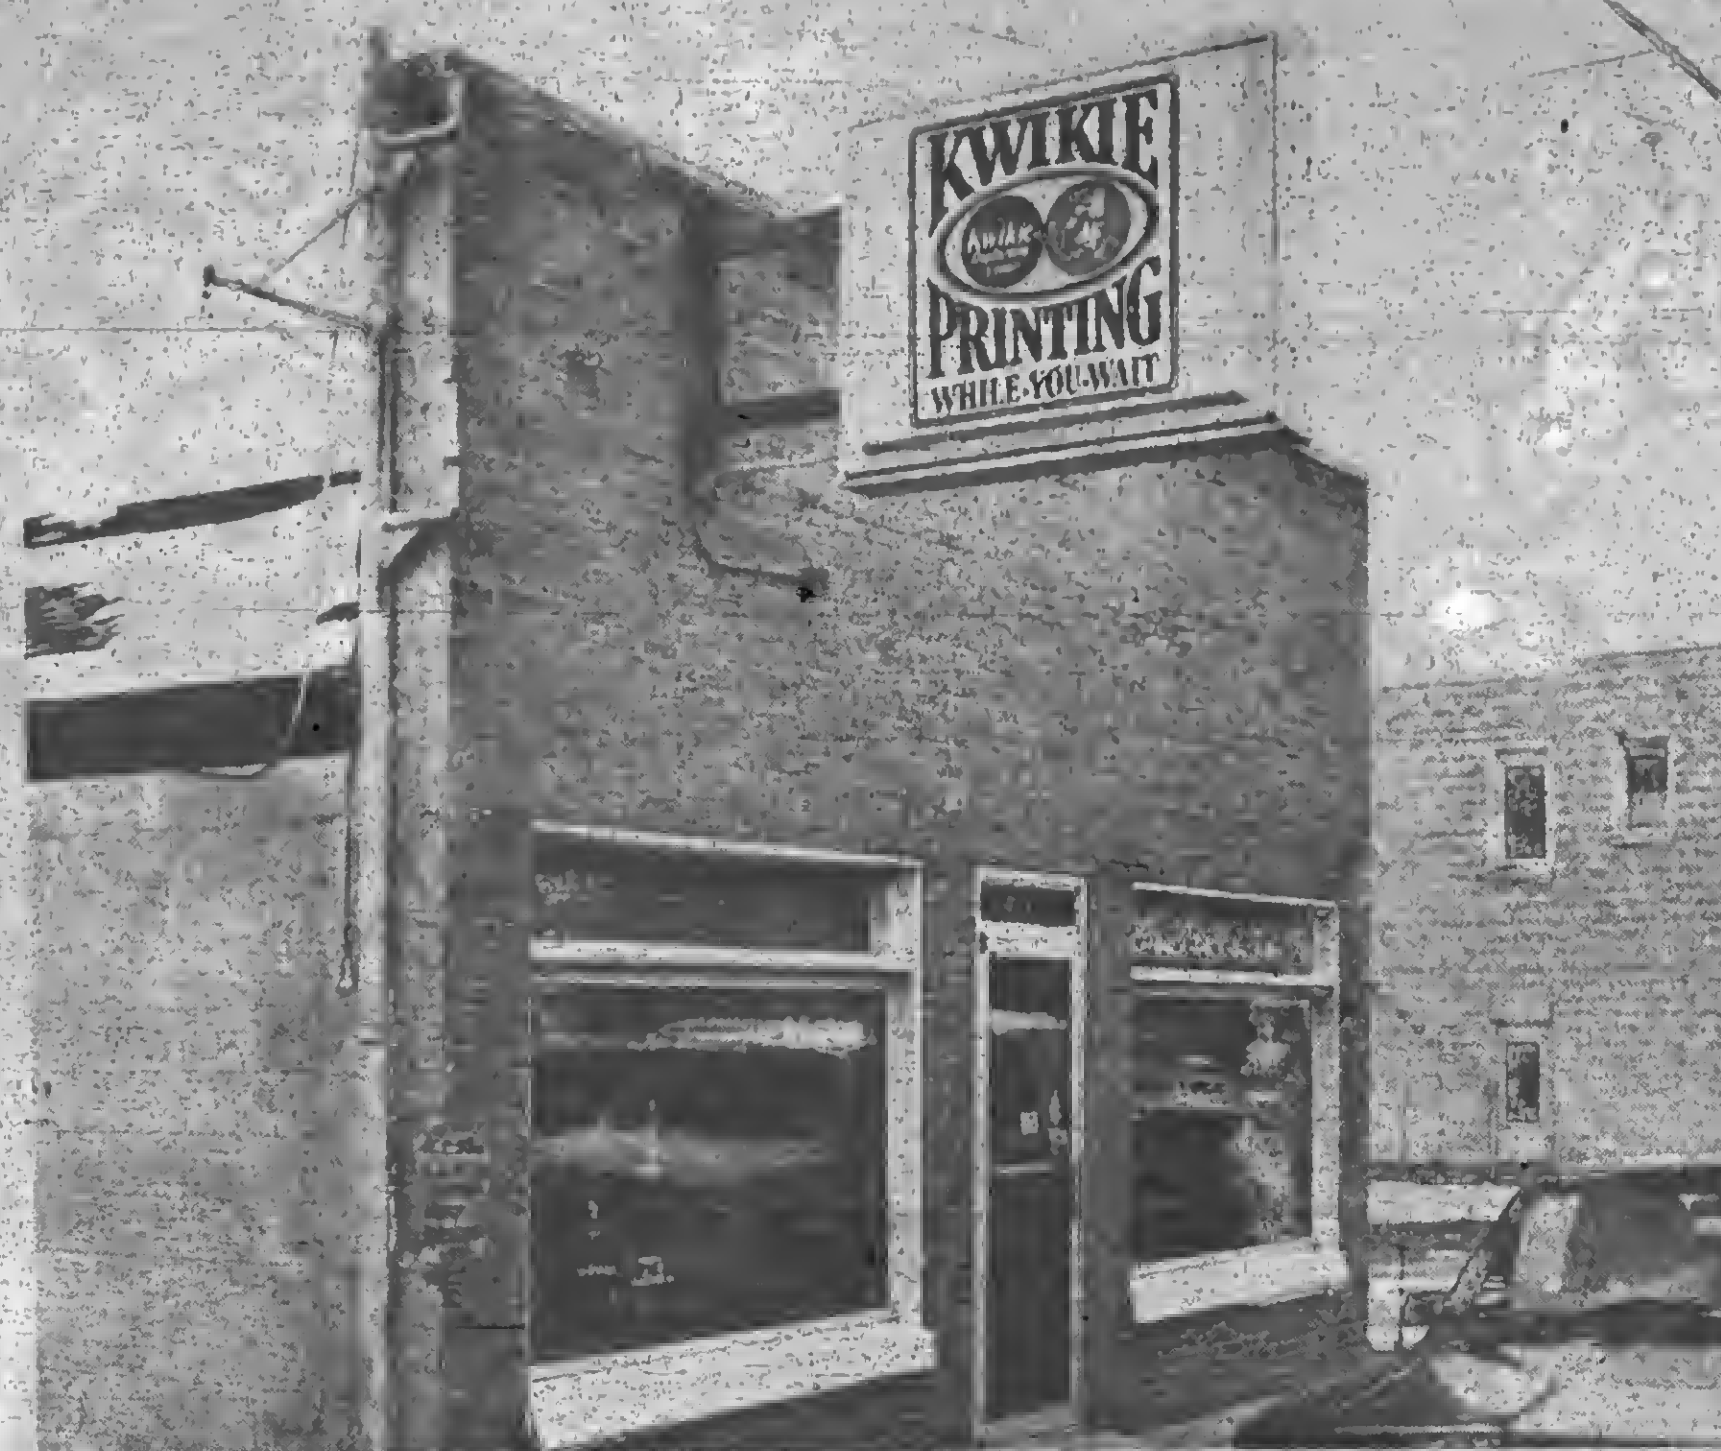

Duplicating company is based in Florida and has many outlets carrying the same name.

Born and raised in a printing environment, it was a natural thing for Casciani to make printing his life's occupation.

Like most other Charlevoix businesses, Kwikie Duplicating's slacks off during the cold winter months and is overworked in the summer. Much of the trade is filling small orders for many local concerns and organizations; supplying items such as letterheads, stationery and menus.

Readily accessible to walk-in customers are three very advanced copying machines capable of making and collating stacks of copies in a matter of minutes. Business at Kwikie has increased every year since the opening in 1974. Located at 111 Antrim Street, the shop continuously adds new services for its clientele. To accommodate more things the shop's interior has been undergoing extensive changes. Renovation work began in November and will be completed by May.

Last year an oversized copying machine was installed. This equipment will reproduce engineering drawings, blue prints and poster sized sheets - all within 30 seconds. It will turn out copies in 18 x 24, 24 x 36 and 35 x 45 inch sizes. In addition to large copies Kwikie also offers plastic laminating for documents up to 12 x 12 inches and fax service.

The front of the shop has a casual business atmosphere, but behind the offices at the rear of the shop the atmosphere is completely different. Here, machines clatter busily, producing a variety of printed material.

The process starts with two pieces of photographic development equipment. These machines project overlays on to sensitized metal surfaces. These metal plates are then wrapped and clamped on revolving cylinders. As the cylinder revolves, the plate picks up ink at one point during the revolution and prints at another point of the revolution. Additional rollers allow the printers to add color to the printed material.

Most of the paper used at Kwikie is manufactured in the United States although a portion also comes from Canada. Less than 15 percent of the paper used is recycled paper. Printing ink is imported from Japan.

Seventy percent of Kwikie's business comes from large corporations. In addition to Casciani, Kwikie employs five people. They include an assistant manager, a photo person, a typesetter, a printer and a sales person.

School board candidates must file by this coming Monday

By L. Scott Swanson

People who wish to be listed as candidates for the Charlevoix School Board on the June 14 election ballot must file nominating petitions by Monday, April 12. In order to be listed on the election ballot, candidates must pick up a petition at the school business office at 208 Clinton Street, collect the signatures of at least 20 registered Charlevoix school district voters and return the filled out petition by 4 p.m. Monday, April 12.

The two board seats up for election June 14 are currently held by Max Novak and Mary Lee Campbell. Novak, who has already filed for re-election, has been on the board for 21 years and has been board president for more than a decade. Campbell was appointed to the board in December to fill the remainder of former board member Doris Pearl's term. Pearl stepped down from the board when she was elected to the Norwood Township Board.

The filing date for this year's school election was moved up due to recently enacted state legislation. In past years the filing deadline has fallen later in April.

In addition to filling the two board seats, voters will also be deciding some type of millage proposal June 14. The school district's current voted millage levy of 17.05 mills expires. Although there will be a millage request on the June 14 ballot, the number of mills has yet to be determined later this month or early next month. Complicating that determination is the state's proposed tax reform package. State voters will decide in a June 2 election whether to accept or reject a proposal to raise state sales taxes from 4 percent to 6 percent in exchange for capping the rate of property tax assessment increases. If the state proposal passes, it will affect the amount of mills Charlevoix's school district can levy regardless of the results of the June 14 election.

Extended degree classes available for area adults

Working adults in the Traverse City area who want to begin or resume undergraduate degree work can meet with a Central Michigan University representative April 28 or 29 at CMU's Extended Degree Programs Center at Northwestern Michigan College's Boardman Lake Campus in Traverse City.

An information workshop for prospective students is scheduled for 5:30 p.m. April 28. Advising sessions for current students will take place from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. April 28 and 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. April 29.

Learning packages, correspondence courses, weekend and evening classes, and credit for relevant prior learning help make CMU's undergraduate degree program accessible to adult students. Students in the program can earn a bachelor of science degree with a major in administration or an option in community development.

To preregister for the informational session or to arrange an advising appointment, call (616) 922-0537.

Caregivers group to meet at Boulder Park

A meeting of the Charlevoix County Caregivers Support Group will be held Saturday, April 17, at 1 p.m. at the Boulder Park Terrace Nursing Home.

Anyone who is responsible for the care of a sick or frail person outside the hospital setting is invited. Those who must deal with the stresses of caring for a loved one at home or in a nursing home will find the group informational and enjoyable.

Camille Greene, Charlevoix Area Hospital social worker, will present an audio tape program titled "Home is Where the Care Is."

The meeting is free of charge. Refreshments will be served. Call Janet Walter at 536-2554 for information. Reservations not required.

Parents planning senior class party

Parents of the Charlevoix High School 1993 graduating class are organizing an all-night party for the graduates. The drug and alcohol-free party will begin Sunday, June 6, the same day as the commencement ceremony. The purpose of the annual graduation party is to give the graduates a safe place and way to have a memorable graduation celebration.

Parents organizing the party are seeking donations of money, gifts or services. To make a donation for the party, contact Nancy Allison at 547-4574 or 348-6610 or Dianne Dryer at 547-4651.

Davenport retires Ferris State Athletic Director

Charlevoix native Dean Davenport, Ferris State University athletic director since 1979 and an FSU coach and administrator for 23 years, will retire at the end of June.

Davenport's long and successful career is highlighted by the growth and success of the intercollegiate athletic and recreation/intramural programs at Ferris. For 12 straight years, the Bulldogs have won the all-sports trophy — the President's Cup — in the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, while winning a total of 73 league championships. In addition, FSU captured the co-championship in the Midwest Intercollegiate Football Conference this past fall in the third year of existence for the conference.

The position of athletic director will be posted this spring and nationwide search will be conducted to locate the best possible successor.

Davenport, 58, was instrumental in the planning of the FSU Sports Complex, the growth of women's intercollegiate athletics, the emergence of the Division I hockey program and entrance into the Central Collegiate Hockey Association, and the development of the athletic scholarship program at Ferris. Under his direction, a new thrust was undertaken in campus recreation was record growth and participation.

A graduate of Central Michigan University, where he lettered in basketball, Davenport's career in education spans 36 years. He was head basketball coach at Traverse City High School, an assistant basketball coach at Central Michigan University and California State University at Northridge, and the athletic director and head basketball coach at Iowa Wesleyan College before moving to Ferris in 1970. He served as assistant basketball coach and coordinator of athletics and developed the recreation and leisure curriculum. He served the University as acting director of the division of health, physical education and recreation from 1977 to 1979 when he was appointed director of athletics.

Dean Davenport

Regarding his retirement, Davenport said, "The time is right for a change. Our staff is intact and, in my opinion, is the best NCAA Division II staff in the country. Our student-athletes are graduating and maintaining a higher grade point average than ever before. We have had no NCAA infractions. And, now that football has joined the success level of our other sports, the time is right."

Davenport noted that he will be leaving at a high point in FSU athletics. "I've had the chance to hire some truly great coaches here at Ferris. Through their efforts, this fall and winter have been a fan-tie sports success," said Davenport. The 1992-93 sports season has been a great legacy for Davenport. Football won a conference co-championship and advanced to the second round of the NCAA Division II playoffs. The volleyball team was selected for post-season play and advanced to the finals of the region. Women's tennis wrapped up another conference title and will be represented in the NCAA spring championships. And the FSU hockey team won the "Mariucci Classic" in Minnesota and went on to reach the CCHA semi-finals at Joe Louis Arena in Detroit.

LEGAL NOTICE 210

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

The mortgage described below is in default:

Mortgage made by Charles A. Kitley and Carmen J. Kitley, husband and wife, as mortgagors, to The Federal Land Bank of Saint Paul, now known as AgriBank, FCB, as mortgagee, dated December 10, 1982, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Michigan, on December 21, 1982, in Liber 167, pages 258-260. The amount claimed to be due on the mortgage at the date of this notice is $197,676.23. The mortgage contains a power of sale, which has become operative due to the default, and no suit or proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the debt secured by the mortgage or any part thereof.

NOW, THEREFORE, take notice that the mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the property described in the mortgage, at public auction to the highest bidder on Friday, May 7, 1993, at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon, at the main door, East entrance, of the Charlevoix County Courthouse, 301 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan (that being the place where Circuit Court for Charlevoix County is held). The mortgagee will apply the sale proceeds to the debt on the mortgage, as stated above, plus interest charges at the rate of 8.5% variable rate, and expenses including the attorney fees allowed by law, and also any amount which may be paid by the mortgagee to protect its interest in the property.

Mystery of house designed by Wright quickly solved

And there's a story behind the house's demise

By L. Scott Swanson

The mystery of the Frank Lloyd Wright designed house in Charlevoix has been solved. In the early part of the century, there was a house designed by the world renowned architect overlooking Lake Michigan north of Charlevoix. But according to local lore, in about 1922 or 1923 either a grieving man or an irate spouse arranged to have it burned.

An article in the April 7 Courier told of a New Jersey author who had information leading him to believe that a Frank Lloyd Wright designed house had at one time existed in Charlevoix. The author, Bill Storer, is currently nearing completion of his second book on the works of Frank Lloyd Wright. If the house still existed, he wanted to include it in the book.

The Courier article hit the streets on the morning of April 7 and less than 24 hours later local history buff Dale Boss not only had figured out where

This site, north of Charlevoix on Lake Michigan once was home to a house designed by world renowned architect Frank Lloyd Wright. Dale Boss, shown looking at the remaining foundation, knew immediately where the house was when he read an article in last week's Courier seeking information about it.

Charlevoix petunias are already growing

By Laurie Lounsbury

As spring arrives, folks start having flowery thoughts of daffodils, crocuses, and tulips. Petunias are definitely not foremost in the minds of flower fanciers. Vern Sayan of the Renolda Greenhouse in Harbor Springs is the exception to the rule. He's busy tending petunia seedlings - about 45,600 of them as he prepares petunias for the Charlevoix petunia planting.

Sayan and his son Merlin have been growing the Charlevoix petunias for 12 years. Charlevoix's petunia czar Dale Boss won't go anywhere else for the petunias. "They're not mass produced, and it's a quality plant that doesn't get tall and spindly," Boss said of Sayan's petunias. "I refuse to get them anywhere else."

Sayan's petunias are uniquely desirable. They grow thick and bushy, branching out on their own instead of needing pinching like most petunias. Sayan attributes this growing quality to a secret chemical formula he uses to treat the petunias. The chemical treatment stunts the growth in the center of the plant and makes them branch out. "It's mixed a certain way and done at a certain time - that's where the trick is," Sayan said of his formula. A visitor to Charlevoix from Pierre, South Dakota was so impressed with the bushy petunias lining the Charlevoix roadside that he asked Sayan to grow and ship petunias to South Dakota. Sayan declined, although he was flattered by the request. Sayan won't say exactly how he arrived at his secret formula, but after 47 years in the greenhouse business he's had plenty of time to develop it.

Sayan started planting the petunia seedlings for Charlevoix on March 19. The seedling plugs are big enough to be transferred to flats this week. With 950 flats of petunias to grow and house for Charlevoix, Sayan decided years ago to build a greenhouse just for the Charlevoix petunias. The petunias will move into the Charlevoix

...mystery house was located north of town

the house had been, but had taken Courier editor L. Scott Swanson out to the site to take pictures. The house no longer exists, but the foundation and the stonework shown in an old picture are still there. The site is on a bluff overlooking Lake Michigan near the end of Pabashan Lane.

After Boss contacted the Courier, nearly a dozen people subsequently either phoned or stopped by the Courier office, saying they had reached the same conclusion as Boss. Charles Bergmann said that in the late '50s he had worked for Ed Shanahan, who at that time owned the property the site is on, and knew of the house. Marjorie (Edwards) Malone said that in her childhood her father was the caretaker of the house, and property where it was located and she used to play there. Vane Smith said that when he was a boy, he and Art Ranger used to camp on that bluff near the house's foundation.

There's quite a story behind the house and its demise. According to Storer, Wright designed the house and two other buildings for Edward C. Waller Sr., a wealthy Chicago businessman. Chicago Club records indicate that Waller was one of the earliest members of the Chicago Club. Waller also owned approximately 2,000 acres of land north of Charlevoix. Waller's property extended from Mercer Boulevard north to about where Lexa Lane now is and west all the way to Lake Michigan. Waller donated at least some, if not all, of the land for the Municipal Golf Course which originally belonged to the Chicago Club. Waller Road is named after Edward C. Waller.

According to historical records, although Wright (the Chicago based architect considered by many to be the United States' premier architect) designed three buildings for Waller, only one was actually built. That house was the one on Pabashan Lane. This would have been shortly after the turn of the century. At that time Pabashan Lane was nothing more than a two-lane trail out in the middle of the wilderness.

Over the years, Boss and Charlevoix Historical Society curator Geoff Reynolds have both spent quite a bit of time talking to elderly people in Charlevoix to get a picture of the area's history. Both have heard the same story about the old beach house.

The house was first owned by Waller and later by a family named Allen. Shanahan bought the property in the 1950s, long after the house was gone.

As local lore has it, the house out in the wilderness served as a location for parties. Boss said that according to what he's been told there used to be a man with a still who lived right about where Boss' house is now at North Point. The speculation is that the parties at the Frank Lloyd Wright designed house were often fueled by the fruits of that still.

The house mysteriously burned down in about 1922 or 1923. There are at least three versions of the story behind the fire.

One version has it that some man planned on moving into the house with a woman, but that she died. Once the woman had died, the man no longer wished to move into the house and so in his grief he burned it down.

The second version of the story has it that some man's wife caught him at the house with another woman and a short time later the house burned down.

The third version has it that a man caught his wife with another man at the house and that a short time later the house burned down.

In addition to the house on Pabashan Lane, Wright designed two other buildings for Waller. One was a huge summer home. In discussing the design, Storer and Swanson speculated that the building might have been the Chicago Clubhouse. Swanson and Chicago Club manager Jerry Balch investigated that possibility and evidence indicates that it probably isn't the same building.

To begin with, according to Storer, Wright designed the summer home in 1902 or 1903. According to the Chicago Club records, the clubhouse was built in 1881. According to club records, Waller became involved with the club golf course in 1900 and was listed as a stockholder in the club in 1902. He is listed on the club's 1905 board of directors.

Although the design and construction timetable clearly indicate that the clubhouse probably wasn't designed by Wright, there were some interesting similarities between the clubhouse and the Wright design. Both were designed with an open area between two wings. The dimensions of the buildings were also similar. The Wright designed building was 116 feet across the front while the clubhouse, excluding the casino and porch is 113 feet. The depth of the Wright designed house was approximately 60 feet while the clubhouse is more than 80 feet deep. The Wright designed building has 10 bedrooms upstairs. The clubhouse has 17 rooms, six bathrooms and a couple of storage rooms upstairs. The Wright design indicates that the building was to be on a bluff overlooking a lake. The clubhouse is on a bluff overlooking Lake Charlevoix and Round Lake, although trees which have grown up since the clubhouse was built now obscure the view of Round Lake. It's possible that Waller intended to either build a new Chicago Club clubhouse or that he intended to build a new house for himself on club grounds. Club records indicate that Waller owned lot 10 which is below the clubhouse terrace and overlooks Lake Charlevoix.

Performing Arts students qualify for Regional competition

Charlevoix High School speech students won the right to compete in seven categories at the Michigan Interscholastic Forensics Association Regional Competition to be held this coming Saturday (April 17) at Midland Dow High School.

Twenty-one students have moved on to Regionals after top finishes at the District speech tournament, known as Individual Events, held March 23 in Cadillac.

Qualifiers and their District finishes are: Tiffany Karczmarski, 2nd place 9-10 Prose; John Parish, 3rd place Story Telling; Mark Schairbaum, 1st place Poetry; Paul Keen, 1st place duo; Jessie Wheat, 2nd place Oratory; and Mike Station, 3rd place Sales.

Two Multiples from Charlevoix were also winners at districts: David Skeel, Ellen McKinney, Wendy Jacobs, Keith Parish, Nick Himebaugh, and Lori Darrah won 2nd for their entry "Freedom," and Amy Van Guilder, Dorsey Sherman, Missy Vincent, Beth Norton, Debbie Hamilton, and Mary Beth Gagnon, won a 4th place and a slot as alternate to Regionals with their entry "A Child's Mind."

Letters to the Editor:

Fire chief criticized

Editor,
April 12, 1993.
To: City Council Members
From: Louise Bergmann
Reference: Chief Carver's passing of engine 85.

I, Louise Bergmann would like to make a formal complaint to the council of the City of Charlevoix. As you are aware my husband, Doug Bergmann, was given an indefinite suspension for an apparent driving violation. The suspension read as follows:

Dear Mr. Bergmann:

It was observed by myself and others that while you were responding to a fire scene on Ferry Road on Thursday, March 4, 1993, you passed another fire truck on a hill in an unsafe manner on Barnard Road. Because this incident or a similar incident in the future, could potentially cause harm to yourself and others, I am suspending you indefinitely pending a full investigation of the incident.

During the period of suspension, you are not allowed to enter the fire or ambulance building, unless requested by myself.

Sincerely,
Wm Doug Carver,
Fire Chief

My complaint is about fire chief Doug Carver responding to a barn fire on South Barnard Road on Friday, April 9, 1993. I witnessed Doug Carver pass engine 85 on the same stretch of Barnard Road that Doug Bergmann passed truck 1 on March 4, 1993. During the April 9th instance engine 85 was driven by Jeff Stevens. There was radio traffic by Doug Carver to engine 85 that he was passing him. This can be verified by the Sheriff's department tape recorder. There is also another firefighter who witnessed this incident and will come forward if necessary.

If Doug Bergmann was suspended for an apparent driving violation, then Doug Carver should also receive an indefinite suspension, or Doug Bergmann should have his suspension officially removed from his personal file and a public apology should be given.

Respectfully,
Louise A. Bergmann

There's still ice on Lake Charlevoix, but the ice on Lake Michigan and around Beaver Island has cleared enough so that the Beaver Islander was able to make its first trip of the season last week.

greenhouse in the next couple of weeks, where they will stay until the proposed May 27 planting day.

Sayan can control the petunia growth and blooming time pretty well by regulating the temperature in the greenhouse. One variable Sayan can't control is the weather outside. Last year Sayan carefully coerced the flowers to bloom in time for a pre-Memorial weekend planting only to have frosty temperatures force a planting delay. Sayan added that last year the petunia beds had a lot of road salt in them, which stunted the petunia growth.

Sayan isn't getting rich from the Charlevoix petunias. At a total cost of $5,300 for 45,600 petunias, Charlevoix is getting the petunias for about 11 cents a plant. They're good honest people with the best product," Boss said of the Sayans.

Boss reported that there will be a color change in the petunia line-up this year. Dark purple will be returning, taking the place of the medium pink shade of petunia. Planting day is scheduled for May 27, the Thursday before Memorial weekend, weather permitting. Sayan will have the petunias ready, and we can only hope that mother nature will provide the rest.

Grange plans week of activities

The week of April 18-24 has been designated as Grange Week in Michigan, and across the nation. In recognition of Grange Week, several events have been planned by Barnard Grange.

The week will open with a hymn singing on Sunday, April 18 beginning at 7 p.m., under the direction of Jessie Cunningham. The hymn singing will be followed by an award to a non-Granger for the person's outstanding service to the community.

Coffee and finger food will be served.

Monday, April 19 is clean-up night at the hall. Members will meet at 6 p.m. and are asked to bring rakes and other outside equipment as well as cleaning supplies to clean both the yard and the interior of the hall.

Wednesday evening April 21, the Junior Grangers will serve an "all-you-can-eat" pancake supper from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Adults $3. Ages 5-12 years $1.50, under 5 years, free. Family tickets for $8. The menu includes pancakes, sausage, coffee and milk. Everyone is invited.

Saturday April 24 concludes the week with a potluck supper at 6 p.m., followed with a pedro party. Please bring your own table service. Everyone is welcome.

Police to host Child Watch meeting

On Thursday, April 15, at 9 a.m., the Charlevoix Police Department will be hosting the Annual Spring Meeting of the Michigan community Child Watch Association. Volunteers and Law Enforcement from around the state will gather at the Weatherlane Terrace Hotel to conduct their annual business and discuss the Child Watch program. This meeting is open to any citizen who is interested in learning more about the program or how it operates.

The Child Watch program is designed to teach adults how to observe, record, respond, and report any suspicious happenings in the neighborhoods, specifically regarding children. This program has proven effective in a variety of communities.

Bodem to visit Friday, April 16

State Rep. Bev. Bodem, R-Alpena, will host local office hours in Charlevoix County Friday, April 16.

From 9 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. she will be at the Charlevoix County Courthouse in Charlevoix. From 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. she will be at the Boyne City Courthouse annex in Boyne City.

Anyone wishing to discuss state issues with Bodem is welcome to stop by and talk with her.

FAMILY

Hansel and Gretel will be in Charlevoix April 19

On Monday, April 19, Theatre Works/USA will bring to elementary students in Charlevoix and East Jordan, their version of "Hansel and Gretel" featuring the well-known music of Engelbert Humperdinck. Through a grant underwritten by Pat McKeown Ford, Inc. of Charlevoix, Theatreworks/USA will present this enchanting musical play in the Charlevoix High School at 1 p.m. to more than 500 children.

The classic fairytale has been altered somewhat to remove a few of the more "Grimm" details of the story. It opens in the home of the VonHarberg family of Salzburg, Austria, which has been preparing for weeks a festive living room entertainment. The family has worked painting scenery, sewing costumes, building props and puppets. Uncle Rudy, the famous pastry chef from Vienna has even agreed to play the role of the witch! Excitement and tension are in the air. Tempers run short. The children bicker, as children do. But finally the story begins!

It is, of course, a tale of lost children, an inviting gingerbread house, a wicked witch with a large appetite and a big oven, of brother and sister working together to escape a terrible fate, and of a family's happy reunion. At the end of the evening's entertainment, the Von Harbergs have learned the same lessons as the characters they've portrayed - families must appreciate and take care of one another and never eat a strange, gingerbread house.

Theatreworks/USA, a non-profit organization based in New York City, is America's largest and most outstanding theatre for the young and family audiences. Originating in 1961 with one show, Theatreworks now has a repertory of almost 70 plays and musicals created by both noted as well as emerging playwrights, composers, and lyricists. Performing at their New York home, the Promenade Theatre, and on tours across the country, they reach more than two million people each year.

Theatreworks' goal is to create shows of imagination and sophistication, which educate, entertain, and convey ethical and thought-provoking messages to young people. They have won many honors and awards as well as playing at the White House, Lincoln Center, Kennedy Center, and two Worlds

Arts Council show features Odawa stories and dancing

Performance
April 17 in East Jordan

The Jordan River Arts Council will present Simon Otto, Odawa and Ojibway elder and storyteller, and the Harbor Springs Title V Dance Troupe from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., Saturday, April 17, at the Arts Center, 301 Main St., East Jordan.

Otto was born and raised in Petoskey and writes a column for the Petoskey News-Review called "Talking Leaves". He also has published a book "Walk In Peace," containing stories told to him by his grandfather and family friends such as Susan Madwagon. Otto will be telling stories from the Odawa and Ojibway traditions.

The Harbor Springs Title V Dance Troupe under the direction of Shirley Oldman is a newly formed group of Harbor Springs students of Odawa and other tribal roots who range in age from preschool to twelfth grade. Working with Otto, Oldman and the Dance Troupe will provide a program to educate the public about Odawa culture through stories, dance and drumming.

Crooked Tree selling tickets for $5 million dinner

Turtle Hill in Charlevoix is the setting for the Annual Five Million dollar Dinner, sponsored by the Crooked Tree Arts Council. This glamorous fundraiser will take place Saturday, June 12, and will be hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth MacGillivray, Jr., whose Turtle Hill home is known for its magnificent views of Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix.

The seven-course meal will be coordinated by Stafford's Hospitality and is a team effort by area renowned chefs and restaurants. Planning the hors d'oeuvres are Mike Adams of the Arboretum and Fairs and have received exciting reviews from Parent's Magazine, The Christian Science Monitor, The New York Times, the Los Angeles Times and many others.

This production of "Hansel and Gretel" is sponsored by Pat McKeown Ford, Inc. of Charlevoix and the Crooked Tree Arts Council of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

Bobcats, Wolves, Bears and Eagles enter kitchens

In April, kitchens all over Charlevoix will be seeing some unusual activity. Bobcats, Wolves, Bears, Eagles, Wolverines, Hawks and even Snakes will be cracking eggs, flouring pans and licking beaters. They'll be eagerly preparing for the Cub Scout Cake Auction - with the enthusiastic help of their parents!

On Monday, April 26, at 6:30 p.m., they will bring their specially designed one-of-a-kind cakes to the Charlevoix Elementary School to be auctioned off to the highest (or bravest) bidder. There are several design categories, which makes for a wide variety of cakes. Awards are a part of the fun, too.

Each parent/scout team puts a lot of thought and energy into this project. And every Scout is anxious but beaming with pride as his cake is placed on the auction table. All proceeds go to Charlevoix Cub Scout Pack 11. Community support is very important to an effective scouting program.

Traveling to Japan proves to be interesting

By Ralph McRae

I had just been elected mayor. Knowing that among other things I would soon be bumping heads with the city attorney, I decided that I would go on a journey before taking office. Having been to Europe several times, I decided that this time I would go west.

In one of my travel magazines I came across a small advertisement extolling the advantages of using the Thai airline out of Seattle. Every day at 4 p.m. one of its planes takes off for Tokyo. As the Nov. 17 plane rolled down the runway it had me on board.

Stepping into the plane I had entered another world - a world with an oriental atmosphere. All of the stewardesses were dressed in long decorated gowns with embroidered designs. For the next ten hours they would be fluttering up and down the aisles carrying snacks and hot, damp facial cloths. Their main duty seemed to be offering with tongs rolls of hot, damp cloths. Meanwhile stewards were busy pouring from bottles of wine and liquors, all at no cost to thirsty passengers.

In Japan it was already tomorrow. Somewhere over the Pacific we passed over the international date line, losing one day of my life.

Japan is a nation of 120 million people. Thousands of years ago their ancestors came to Japan from Mongolia. Japan has been ruled by the same family, the Meiji, for two thousand years. Geographically speaking, Japan consists of four large islands and hundreds of small islands. The nation is three-fourths mountainous and has 800 people per square mile, as compared to 70 people per square mile in the United States. Japan has never had a revolution. Ninety-eight percent of the population is native born, descendants of centuries of unbroken family heritage. They have a deeply implanted culture that is difficult to understand.

We arrived on time at Haneda airport, 30 miles from the outskirts of Tokyo. Taking a cab was too costly. A bus and then a cab dropped me off at the hotel, Kayu Kaihan. Eventually I circled the earth, but Tokyo would be the only stop where I had a reserved hotel room. This new hotel catered to foreigners. It sat at the bottom of a natural amphitheater surrounded by exclusive homes perched on upward sloping ground.

I had asked for the more expensive Japanese room. It had a small entry alcove where sandals replaced street footwear. To the left was a two part bathroom. Straight ahead was my ten mat room.

Japanese rooms are designed to fit a specified number of mats. These mats are two inches thick, made of rice straw and are about 36 inches by 72 inches. They will not withstand leather walking shoes. The mats are cheap and are usually replaced every year. Looking around the room I quickly noticed that someone had chopped off the chair legs and had shortened the legs of the small square table to 14 inches above the floor. The TV set sat on the floor and so did the small lamps. The bed was already made up, two futons, one above the other. Futons are flexible, springless mattresses that can be folded up and stored away in their own resting closets. So at night my new abode was a spacious bedroom. In the day time, it became a comfortable living room.

At the restaurant the next morning I ordered a Japanese breakfast. It included some kind of fish soup, and very thin wafers of seaweed to dunk in a spicy soy sauce. The Japanese have soup three times a day. At least the eatery had normal height tables and chairs. Across the room sat three Japanese businessmen enjoying an American breakfast of fried eggs, bacon and toast.

As many Americans and European guests stay at this hotel, the bath tubs were stretched to fit their long bodies. Laying full out, I was having a relaxed bath until the whole building shook and trembled. I mentioned it at the desk and they asked, what else is new? Tokyo is very earthquake prone. Tremors and shockwaves are normal experiences.

I was within walking distance of a subway station that is used by 1.5 million people daily. Using it for the first time, I asked for help from an Australian. I changed the yen into coins for a vending machine which gave out tickets for the destination punched. The trains only stop for a few seconds at each stop - time enough for the train guards to push you through the doors. Sceldom is there an open seat. The city has 13 separate subways. It is the largest underground system in the world. Where I changed cars, it was a three layer station, a line below, one in the middle and the other above. A young Japanese couple offered to help me, but they became confused too.

Downtown Tokyo was a massive nightmare of traffic. People and automobiles moved along like an avalanche toward some other place. A department store was playing American Christmas songs. Stopping to photograph a newly open beauty salon, I was dragged inside by one of the girls. It was the salons opening day. They had professional camera men photographing five models and high lighted displays. The salon was three stories high and had a spectacular layout. Going to the second floor barber shop, I got the full treatment. My haircut and shave included a vigorous massage on the upper back, neck and head. They shave the ears and forehead too.

My next experience was riding the Bullet train to Kyoto, the original capitol of Japan. I was driven in a cab by a chauffeur wearing white gloves. The cab doors swung open when the driver touched a button. When cab drivers are waiting for their customers, they are all busy using feather dusters to keep the polished surfaces of their cabs dust-free. At the Bullet train platform, you stand between two lines where the number of your train is painted on the floor. When the train comes to a stop, you move straight into your car. After moving at half speed through the city of Tokyo, the train accelerates to 130 miles per hour in the open countryside.

Kyoto that day was crowded with thousands of people on a holiday, all visiting ancient shrines. I walked with a professor heading his class of students who were

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

One of the biggest blessings of spring break was getting to spend a full week with the family. It isn't the same when you are at home and the telephone rings or duty calls. There are obligations to take care of and expectations to meet. We go to a little southern Michigan town called Grand Junction and use a cabin located on Lester Lake.

This was our fourth spring break there and tradition calls for certain things to happen. Tuesday is Shermans Ice Cream night. You have never seen a single scoop of ice cream as large and as overflowing as they make it there. A chocolate moustache on my face, blueberry on my wife's, pecan cashew on my daughter's. My son opted for yogurt.

Fishing is a part of our family's celebration of the passing of the seasons. The only problem was that the fish hadn't checked the calendar and they stayed beyond the reach of our shore tossed worms.

There is always the unexpected. The well pump that provides our cabin with water went out. We ran a 150 foot of garden-hose from another building and back fed our water supply. It turned cold though and two nights found the hose freezing. That did not stop roasting hot dogs in the fire place. Debbie, our oldest, has a remarkable knack for cooking marshmallows a golden brown instead of the usual black. Golden brown is definitely better.

Quiet walks in the woods were special. Invisible baseball games on the snow covered diamond were hilarious. Sorry Mrs. Henne, but reading "The Lord of the Flies" during vacation was laborious. Going through Mrs. Chew's "Maniac Magee" was much more fun.

A day trip to Chicago was a challenge. Our beloved Charlevoix drawbridge has nothing on the Windy City's expressway obstacle course. The Science and Industry Museum is filled with wonders. There is an old fashioned diner called Miner Duns that makes hamburgers so big that you can't eat them all. The cabin felt good that night.

Almost as fast as it began, it was time to pack up and go home. The phone has already rung. The message list is long and the school bus is carrying my clan back to work. For some reason, a Bible verse clicked in my mind. "If you then, though you are evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your Father in heaven give good gifts to those who ask Him!"

Though you may not consider yourself an "evil" person, one of the biggest evils we all fall victim to is time. The ones who need our time the most too often end up with the least. Spring break is now but a memory. Don't let the memory of those good times get lost. If you recognize the importance of spending time with your family, just imagine how important it is for God to spend time with you!

Lawrence Bergmann played the role of the disciple Peter in "The Promised Victory," an Easter presentation performed at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church this past weekend.

Sandy Boss (left) and Linda Richardson were two ladies in the cast of "The Promised Victory." The production, which takes hundreds of hours of preparation, is coordinated by the Assembly of God Church, but cast members come from several churches in the Charlevoix community.

Brian Saraney portrayed John the Baptist.

"The Promised Victory"

Ron Browe (left) was cast as a disciple while Eugene Drost (center) and Rod Richardson (right) were cast as prophets in this year's Easter presentation. The presentation is a live drama which also features a choir and orchestra.

The cast of "The Promised Victory" featured performers of all age groups. Some of the younger performers included Jennifer Eggers, Bryan Eggers, Halley Behan, Jared Kyvik and Joshua Browe.

Area people can pick up MBA from Western Michigan through satellite classes Live from Kalamazoo — it's the master of business administration program! Northern Michigan area residents will be able to take classes toward an MBA degree at Western Michigan University this spring via satellite.

WMU is offering the state's only live interactive televised MBA program through the Michigan Information Technology Network (MITN). During the spring session that runs from May 4 through June 10, a course will be taught on campus and beamed to several sites across the state, including North Central Michigan College.

Finance and Commercial Law 607, "Legal Controls of the Business Enterprise," will be offered from 6 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. MITN's interactive key pad system or open telephone lines will allow the students at remote locations to ask questions and share information.

People may sign up for the class by using WMU's telephone registration system, currently available through any touchtone telephone.

WMU's 33-hour MBA program is accredited by the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business. More than 85 percent of the MBA students are enrolled part-time while working full-time. Students who follow the sequence through the full cycle of courses should be able to finish their degrees in less than four years.

Any person with a bachelor's degree can apply to the MBA program. Those who have not previously had business courses may be required to complete up to 30 hours of undergraduate prerequisites, some of which are offered via satellite. Successful completion of the Graduate Management Admission Test also is required.

For more information on the MBA degree program and registration, call the Department of Distance Education in the WMU Division of Continuing Education at (616) 387-4216.

Charlevoix County Hospice sponsoring Grief Recovery program

The Charlevoix County Hospice (CCH) will be sponsoring a Grief Recovery Program starting on Wednesday, April 28. This is a series of five weekly sessions to help anyone who is recovering from a loss. The Grief Recovery program will be conducted by Rev. Milton "Buzz" Walls, retired minister of the Presbyterian Church and Spiritual advisor for the CCH. Anyone who has suffered a loss and who would benefit from the support of others along with informative discussions which will help them deal with grief are invited to attend. The sessions will start at 7 p.m. at Boulder Park Terrace in Charlevoix. Please call the Hospice office at 536-2842 to indicate your desire to participate.

Economic Alliance brings foreign trade specialist to speak with are businesses

The Northern Lakes Economic Alliance will host a community visit by Ed Christie, an international trade specialist from the U.S. & Foreign Commercial Services office, April 21-23, 1993.

Christie will spend three days making personal visits to manufacturers in Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet Counties to help them expand their international markets.

This service is being offered free of charge to local businesses and is coordinated by the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance as part of its business retention program.

Christie joined the US government after a 25-year career encompassing a wide variety of international trade jobs. He works closely with the automotive, consumer products, food processing and health care industries, and is well versed in the Middle East, Europe, the Pacific Rim, Asia and most recently, Russia.

Manufacturers and business owners interested in meeting with Christie can make an appointment by calling Tom Johnson, Northern Lakes Economic Alliance Director at 582-6482.

Third grade students are completing a unit of study on the classic book, "Little House On the Prairie", by Laura Ingalls Wilder. Part of their studies includes building a log cabin or lantern replica of the era and a hasty pudding party, where students can show and tell about their own old family heirlooms. The grand finale is the making of hasty pudding, a mixture of corn meal and maple syrup, considered to be a special treat in the 1800's. Teacher Pat Carland started the "Little House" unit about ten years ago, so it is a long standing tradition at the elementary school.

Mrs. Swenor and Mrs. Withrow prepare the hasty pudding.

Rob Boss models his great grandfather's spectacles.

Krista Swenor and Katie Swenor display their old coffee pots from a plantation.

Taking the plunge!

Nervous? Jill Dreyer?

Melissa Darrah

Brian Darrah

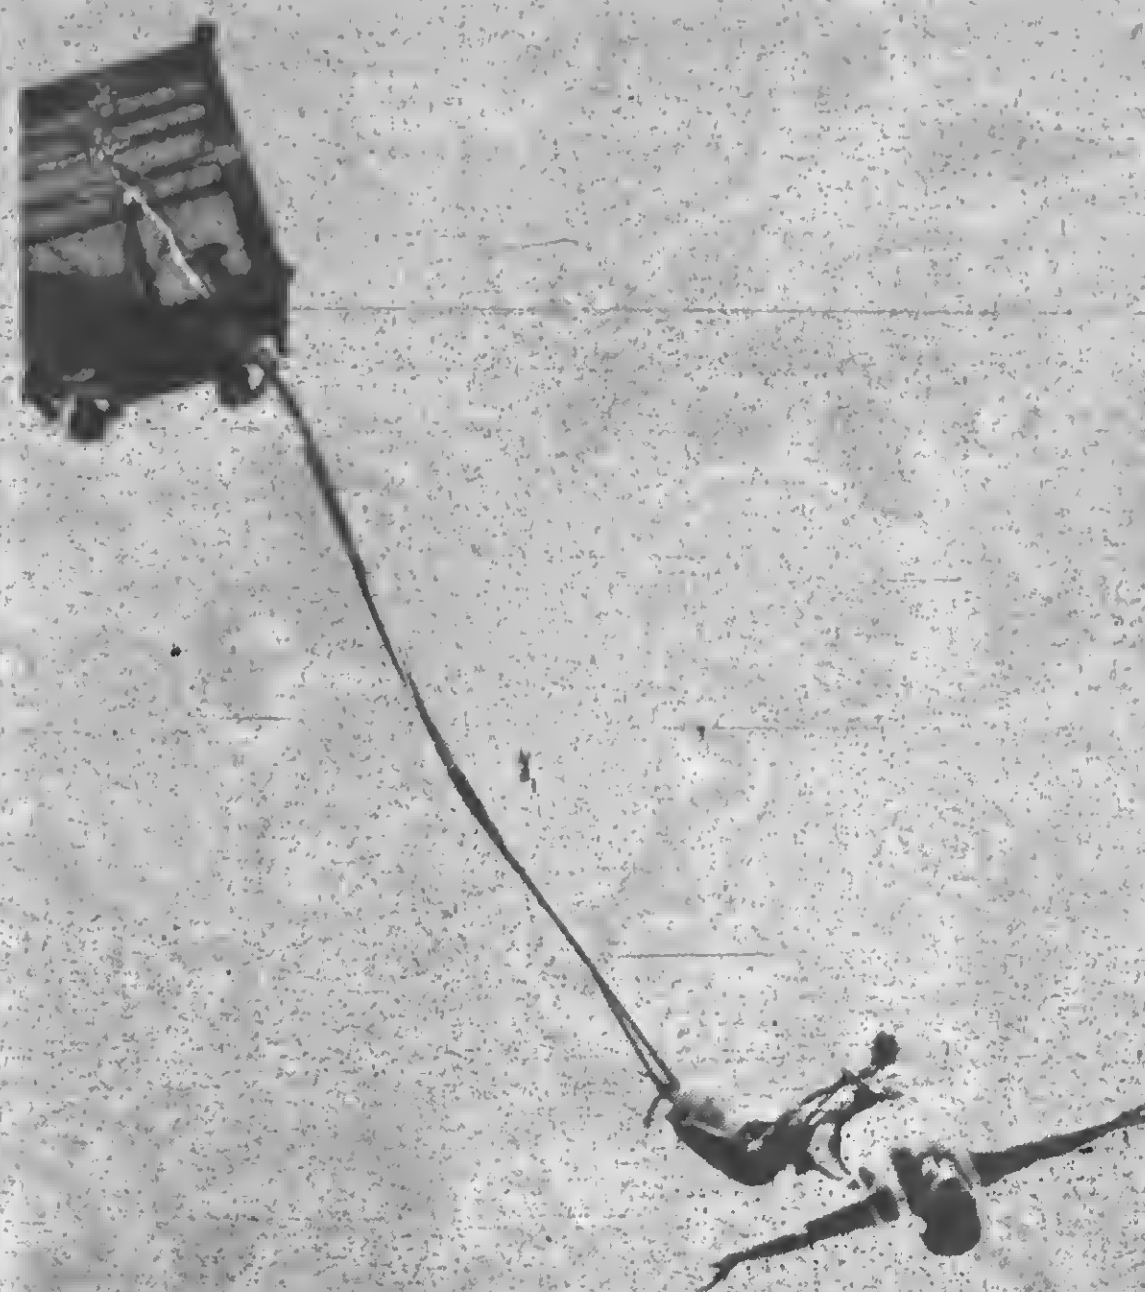

Tense? Angelina Doan?

Why did Charlevoix seem so quiet last week? Because it was spring break and half the town was down in Cancun, Mexico bungee jumping. Five Charlevoix families were in Cancun. They were Bill and Diane Dreyer, Scott and Kay Beatty, George and Mike Wright, Larry and Oma Darrah, Chip and Nancy Allison and a flock of kids.

As fate would have it, there was a bungee jumping set-up at the resort and the younger members of the entourage were all for trying it. A couple of the group's elder statesmen, Bill Dreyer and Chip Allison, considered taking the plunge, but then thought better of it.

Dreyer took the accompanying photographs.

Enter - stage right: Middle School students practice for new performing arts program

By Laurie Lounsbury

Charlevoix High School has its highly touted performing arts team, the K-5 school has Marina LaBlanc's legendary musical program, and now Charlevoix Middle School is taking its place in the performance ranks with a performing arts team of their own. With direction from Sulane Hamilton and support from Sheila Bogart, 70 middle school students will get their first opportunity to perform on stage.

Bogart was the original push behind a performing arts team at the middle school. Bogart and other parents wanted to see a non-athletic extracurricular program offered. With the cooperation of middle school principal Dennis Van Guilder, the program became a reality this semester. With 70 students participating, the desire for performing arts in the middle school is clearly evident.

The middle schoolers will be putting on a variety show called "Et Cetera" at the end of the month. The show will feature poems, sketches, and songs, some of which are original material, some others are parodies of popular songs. The numbers and sketches are centered around a theme of family, friends and school.

Some of the middle schoolers involved in the program have taken to the stage like ducks to water. The show promises to be entertaining and amusing, while providing valuable experience to many middle school students.

Sulane Hamilton coaches students in acting and singing.

Kelly Kusina breathes fire as she practices her part in a "Hot Chili" skit, with Nicky Bunting reciting the verse.

The theme song from Aladdin, "A Whole New World," lends itself well to the middle schooler's voices.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

DEFAULT has occurred in the conditions of a mortgage made by Wellington G. Cowles and Sherri L. Cowles, husband and wife, ("Mortgagors") to First National Bank of Gaylord, a wholly owned subsidiary of North Bancorp, Inc., a national banking corporation, with its principal offices located at 501 W. Main, Gaylord, Michigan ("Mortgagee"), dated May 24, 1990, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan on May 30, 1990 in Liber 217 on Pages 0340-0342, Charlevoix County Records. By reason of such default, the undersigned elects to declare and hereby declares the entire unpaid amount of said Mortgage due and payable forthwith.

As of the date of this notice, there is claimed to be due for principal and interest on said Mortgage the sum of Sixteen Thousand Six hundred Thirty and 50/100 dollars ($16,630.50). No suit or proceeding at law has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage and the statute in such case made and provided, and to pay said amount, with interest, as provided in said Mortgage, and all legal costs, charges, expenses, including the attorney fee allowed by law, and all taxes and insurance premiums paid by the undersigned before sale, said Mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises at public vendue to the highest bidder at the main entrance of the County Building located in the City of Charlevoix, Michigan, on April 29, 1993, at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon. The premises covered by said Mortgage are situated in the Township of Hudson, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, and described as follows:

Lot #6 Thunder Village, as recorded in Liber 2 of the Plats, pages 125-126, Charlevoix County Records.

LEGAL NOTICE 210

Notice is further given that the length of the redemption period will be six (6) months from the date of sale.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

The mortgage described below is in default:

Mortgage made by Charles A. Kiteley and Carmen J. Kiteley, husband and wife, and Charles C. Kiteley and Gay M. Kiteley, husband and wife, as mortgagors, to The Federal Land Bank of Saint Paul, now known as AgriBank, FCB, as mortgagee, dated April 22, 1980, recorded with the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Michigan, on June 2, 1980, at Liber 160, pages 313-315. The amount claimed to be due on the mortgage at the date of this notice is $247,007.14. The mortgage contains a power of sale, which has become operative due to the default, and no suit or proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the debt secured by the mortgage or any part thereof.

NOW, THEREFORE, take notice that the mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the property described in the mortgage at public auction on Friday, May 7, 1993, at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon, at the main door, East entrance, of the Charlevoix County Courthouse, 301 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan (that being the building where the Circuit Court for Charlevoix County is held). The mortgagee will apply the sale proceeds to the debt on the mortgage, as stated above, plus interest charges at the rate of 8.5% variable rate, and expenses, including attorney fees allowed by law, and also any amount which may be paid by the mortgagee to protect its interest in the property.

The property described in the mortgage is as follows:

LEGAL NOTICE 210

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

The mortgage described below is in default:

Mortgage made by Charles A. Kiteley and Carmen J. Kiteley, husband and wife, as mortgagors, to The Federal Land Bank of Saint Paul, now known as AgriBank, FCB, as mortgagee, dated December 10, 1982, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Michigan, on December 21, 1982, in Liber 167, pages 258-260. The amount claimed to be due on the mortgage at the date of this notice is $197,676.23. The mortgage contains a power of sale, which has become operative due to the default, and no suit or proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the debt secured by the mortgage or any part thereof.

NOW, THEREFORE, take notice that the mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the property described in the mortgage, at public auction to the highest bidder on Friday, May 7, 1993, at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon, at the main door, East entrance, of the Charlevoix County Courthouse, 301 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan (that being the place where Circuit Court for Charlevoix County is held). The mortgagee will apply the sale proceeds to the debt on the mortgage, as stated above, plus interest charges at the rate of 8.5% variable rate, and expenses including the attorney fees allowed by law, and also any amount which may be paid by the mortgagee to protect its interest in the property.

The property described in the mortgage is as follows:

High School bands to perform in spring concert

Members of the Charlevoix High School Symphonic and Concert Bands will perform in a Spring Concert Tuesday evening, April 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the Charlevoix High School Gym. The 85 band students will entertain the audience with a variety of instrumental music selections. The two groups will play the selections which they will perform at the international festival in Toronto in May. Also on the program will be excerpts from the musical "Phantom of The Opera" by Andrew Lloyd Weber, and a Canadian Brass arrangement of "A Closer Walk With Thee."

Soloists Jake Porath (flute), Janel Campbell (clarinet), Anne Schairbaum (French Horn), and Russell Hand (trombone) will be heard playing instrumental solos which they performed at the State solo and ensemble festival recently in Big Rapids.

Band director Terry Isenbarger promises that the concert will provide an hour of entertainment which will present the bands at their best, in a culmination of the work which has been accomplished over the past school year. A donation of two dollars per person or five dollars per family will be accepted at the door.

The song, "Down By The Old Mill Stream" could have been written about this mill and stream believed to be in the Ironton area.

Salads and casseroles on the menu for American Legion annual spring dinner

Members of the American Legion, Leslie T. Shapton Post #226, and the members of the Auxiliary, have scheduled Wednesday, April 21 as the date of their annual spring salad and casserole dinner.

The dinner will be open to the public and be served from 5 p.m. until 7 p.m. Cost is $4.50 for adults for the all-you-can-eat dinner, and $3 for children ten years and under.

The dinner will feature chicken, ham, meat and vegetable casseroles, Polish sausage and sauerkraut, varieties of potatoes, gelatin salads, all types of vegetables, all types of salads, relishes and desserts.

All Auxiliary and Post members will be contacted for their donations of food for the dinner. Auxiliary President Katie Curtis and Vice-President Rosalyn Goldstick are in charge of the dinner. Nancy Wood is in charge of the dining room, and Josephine Bindi is in charge of the kitchen.

Fire report unlikely to douse controversy

By L. Scott Swanson

Based on initial reactions, a panel of inquiry report concerning the Charlevoix City Fire Department is unlikely to put out any fires. The panel of inquiry was put together by mayor Dave Novotny to look into ongoing problems at the city fire department, particularly the recent firings of four firemen.

Novotny released the panel's conclusions following Monday evening's city council meeting. Even before the results were released, firemen were questioning the validity of the inquiry.

The panel consisted of three fire department or public safety administrators from other areas of the state. Novotny said he put the panel together at the request of the city council. In putting the panel together he worked the Michigan Municipal League and Michigan Fire Training Council, received several names to choose from, cut the field down to 11 candidates, got resumes from those 11 and ended up selecting three people. He says he tried to get people who had a background in fire, police and personnel matters. The three men he chose were Rich Powell from Saginaw, Fred Mueller from Grand Traverse Township and Ralph Soffredine from Traverse City.

"These guys have been on similar boards around the state. They know what they're doing," Novotny said in an interview with the Courier after the panel had met.

Firemen have claimed the panel was inherently biased in that it was a panel of three fire chiefs being asked to review the actions of another fire chief. During the public comment portion of Monday evening's council meeting Doug Bergmann, one of the four firemen who were fired, not only questioned having three fire chiefs on the panel, but claimed Charlevoix fire chief Doug Carver's daughter is a member of the fire department for which Mueller is chief and said that Carver is an instructor for the fire training council which Powell is involved with. Bergmann also noted that the panel met April 3, a date which he was out of town in Tennessee, and that he didn't feel that was a coincidence.

Bergmann and the other three firemen were dismissed for an incident which occurred Feb. 25 at a fire in Hayes Township. According to a press release by Carver, three firemen were terminated for leaving the scene of an active fire while a fourth was terminated for a heated confrontation with the fire chief. The firemen have maintained that there was no active fire and that the city fire department has no policy as to when firemen may leave the scene of a fire. The firemen have claimed that the real reason behind the dismissal is personality conflicts between some of the firemen and city manager Mike Wiesner.

In addressing the council Monday evening, Bergmann said, "I still believe you should find the root of the problem and deal with the root, not the symptoms."

Novotny received the panel's report several days before the council meeting, but did not distribute to the council until just prior to the meeting and to the public until the end of the meeting.

The two-page report addresses six questions put to the council by Novotny. Those questions and a summary of the answers follow.

1. Were the actions of the Fire Chief and City Manager justified over the last two years?

Panel response: Yes. The Fire Chief has only been with the department for approximately eight months and he appears to be attempting to fulfill the recommendations made in a 1991 administrative study. The actions of the City Manager during the past two years appear to be justified.

2. Are the volunteers' actions in tune with a properly run fire department?

Panel response: No. There was a problem with policies and procedures and prior to two years ago the department was more similar to a men's club than a fire department.

3. Were the firings due to a conflict with the City Manager or were the firings justifiable?

Panel response: There were conflicts, but they were not unjust on the part of the City Manager.

4. Would the (fire) department be better with or without the fired volunteers?

Panel response: The panel concluded that the fire department will be better off without the four volunteer fire fighters who were dismissed.

5. Was the firing at the direction of the Fire Chief or the City Manager. And if the City Manager did the firing, does it make a difference?

Panel response: The panel concluded that the Fire Chief handled the investigation and the firing, although according to the City Charter the City Manager could have fired them. The City Manager and City labor attorney were advised of the process and took part in the process, but the Fire Chief did the firing.

6. What are the conflicts in the Fire Department a result of?

Panel response: The panel felt that for years the fire association, made up of volunteer fire fighters, had been running the fire department. However, times have changed in the last eight to 10 years and practices are being forced to change. "It appears as though there was a power struggle between the former leaders of the volunteers, the men dismissed, and the administration of the City. When that occurs, bad decisions are made, and in this case, the bad decisions were made by the four volunteers that were discharged."

Recycling Team seizes initiative

By L. Scott Swanson

The Recycle Team's name and cutting 'garbage' is their game. When six Charlevoix eighth graders decided they wanted to have Charlevoix Middle School do more recycling, they didn't go browsing around looking for somebody else who would do something about it. Like little Ralph McRae, the six girls saw something they wanted done and simply went to work and started getting it done.

At the beginning of the school year, Anne Scott, Shannon LaVoie, Jodi Bingham, Katie Fletcher, Jessica Babb and Nikki Sheldon decided that in recycling, like most other things, talk is cheap and it's action that counts. They approached middle school science teacher Ann Shindorf and told her they wanted the school to do more recycling. A couple of years ago the school took some steps to improve the environment by dropping the use of styrofoam trays and starting a paper recycling program. But the paper recycling program had declined and the six girls wanted to do more.

Shindorf agreed to work with the girls, but also knew that any school recycling program was going to have to involve the school's custodial staff. She put the girls in touch with school custodian Don Potter.

Potter told the girls he was game for recycling, but he only had a limited amount of time he could afford to devote to it.

"It was more than I could handle. So the ball went into their court," Potter said. When the ball was put in their court, they took it. They worked

DDA looking to move soon on new street lights

The City's Downtown Development Authority (DDA) is preparing to move forward in purchasing new downtown street lights sooner rather than later. At the April 14 DDA meeting, DDA members asked to have the City lighting committee bring a recommendation before the DDA at the April 28 meeting. A proposal to install new street lights is something which has been on DDA burners for more than five years. A lighting committee has been reviewing the City's lighting needs for more approximately two years and offered a recommendation six months ago. DDA members now want their memories refreshed with the notion of making a move.
Earlier this year, the City Council approved a DDA capital improvement budget which included $225,000 for new street lights.
The street lights have been the center of controversy in Charlevoix pretty much since the days of Edison. The proposal to replace the current set of lights is merely the latest chapter.
At the most recent DDA meeting, Bob Gill, who has defended the current streetlights said that when DDA members finally decide exactly what type of new lights they are interested in, he would like to address the board. Gill said he feels it is a question of whether street lighting is something to "see with" or "look at."
"My view is that it would be difficult to justify removing the ones that are now there," Gill said.
Dale Troppman who is a member of the DDA board and who has worked with the lighting committee said the committee is looking at lights similar to those which have been installed along Ferry Avenue. He said the committee has worked hard to find new lights which will meet provide a decorative look and meet standards for appropriate illumination.

DDA extends property purchase timetable on Kusina site

By L. Scott Swanson

The City's Downtown Development Authority (DDA) has agreed to extend the timetable for purchasing the former Kusina Motors property by 180 days. The extension is to give current property owners time for work leading to the property's being given an environmentally clean bill of health.

According to Department of Natural Resources groundwater official Bob Wagner, earlier work at the site, turned up contamination in the form of lead and petroleum hydrocarbons. Wagner said that type of contamination is likely to have come from waste oil. He noted that petroleum hydrocarbon contamination is "probably the most common contaminant we have in northern Michigan."

Much of the site clean-up has already taken place.

"As far as I know, most of the work has been done in terms of removing contaminated soil," Wagner said. Wagner noted that lead is the contaminant which is still in question at the site. In initial clean-up efforts all of the stained soil at the site was removed. Following that soil removal a test of remaining soil showed lead levels that were still higher than acceptable. More soil was removed, but another test still showed lead concentrations which are somewhat higher than background (naturally occurring) levels. Wagner said that since lead is a naturally occurring metal, that can complicate determinations as to what is an acceptable level.

Following the two soil samples, the clean-up effort is now taking a different approach. Rather than attempting to remove any lead which remains, efforts are now being directed toward showing that what lead is left is not doing any harm. As part of that effort, groundwater samples were taken Jan. 8.

"If they (the current property owners) can show the lead doesn't leach or go into the groundwater sample, then they can close out the site," Wagner explained. He added that if the water samples come back and they don't show any problem, then the site could be closed out (i.e. declared ok) fairly quickly.

The DDA agreed in December of 1991 to purchase the property from Dennis Kusina for $365,000 with the contingency calling for an environmental assessment showing that the premises is free from environmental contamination and free from any environmental condition which could impose liability to the Purchaser.

The property is located between Antrim and Mason Streets. At the time of the purchase agreement there were buildings on much of the property. Some of those buildings have been torn down. The DDA would like to construct a parking lot on the area which has been cleared and sell the remaining building, which faces Antrim Street.

with Shindorf and Potter to set up a program to recycle all of the school's paper as well as a lot of juice cans. Their program is a hands-on deal. Each classroom has a box where students place recyclable paper. The girls then collect the boxes of paper and take them down to the school entryway (on the Grant Street side of the building) and dump them on the floor. They then separate papers by color, remove staples as well as pieces of plastic and gum and bag the paper so it is ready for the recycler who picks it up on the first Monday of the month.

While the six girls spearhead the program, they say they've got about 30 other students who also help them out.

In addition to hands-on recycling, the Recycle Team also has done some educational work. Shindorf said the girls have had blips inserted into middle school teacher communications advising their teachers to use both sides of the paper when printing tests and to only print as many copies of tests as are needed.

Now that they've got the recycling ball rolling in the middle school the Recycle Team doesn't want to see it dropped when they leave at the end of the year for high school. With that in mind, they made a short middle school recycling video to present to K-5 students. In fact, they even co-located Jess Wood, a classmate who has an interest in video production and is getting good at it, to add some special effects and background music to their video.

Although Shindorf and Potter help out the six girls, they make it clear that the initiative for the program is strictly from the girls.

Why'd you want to do this, they were asked?

"To save the earth."

You recycle at home? Are your parents into it?

"I got 'em into it."

Some people seized the initiative.

Fire report resolves nothing

A board of inquiry report into matters involving the Charlevoix City Fire Department leaves something to be desired and probably resolves nothing. (See story page 1.) Mayor Dave Novotny released the report at the end of Monday evening's council meeting. This is not to criticize Novotny for setting up the panel of inquiry to look at the fire department. Setting up the panel was a good idea, but after reading the report it seems to be a good idea which for some reason didn't really pan out.

For the past two years there has been an ongoing conflict centering around the fire department. That conflict has essentially developed into a feud. Among the primary participants have been City Manager Mike Wiesner and, at least, for the time-being, former firemen Doug Bergmann and Barry Wood. Each side has its adamant supporters and then there are a lot of people in the middle.

In reality, the feud goes back nearly 10 years to the construction of the new fire hall next to City Hall. There was apparently some disagreement at the time between Wiesner and some of the volunteer firemen about where and when the new fire hall should be built. That disagreement has never been resolved. Instead, it provided a spark which smoldered until two years ago when Wiesner hired a consultant to study the administrative structure of the fire department. At the time, firemen felt, correctly or incorrectly, that the study was merely a ploy by Wiesner to take control of the fire department. Wiesner contended that the reason for the study was because then fire chief John Martin was going to leave the fire department to become head of the City street department and consequently the period of transition made the time right for evaluating the administrative structure.

Ultimately, the City Council chose to disband the report's recommendation to consolidate the police and fire departments and instead keep them separate while hiring an additional full-time fireman and a new fire chief.

The process leading to the hiring of new fire chief Doug Carver left the whole situation riled and it hasn't settled yet. Since eight months ago, when Carver was hired, there have been various hassles over the purchase of a new fire truck, suspensions of volunteer firemen for various infractions and ultimately the termination of four firemen.

The panel of inquiry report essentially blames the volunteer firemen for the fire department problems. The panel's conclusion is based upon some background research and a day of interviews. Sitting and watching the situation unfold during the past two years and spending hours talking to various parties involved in the dispute has led to a different conclusion. Neither side has a monopoly on bad moves in this matter. Both factions have been uncompromising and made mistakes along the way.

The time is long past for the factions to sit down and talk and be reasonable. The situation has deteriorated to the point where there's really no point in calling for that to happen. Ultimately, the outcome of the feud will be decided politically. Either the firemen will succeed in rallying enough support to have Wiesner dismissed or he will continue to maintain enough support to stay.

Meanwhile, there is at least one thing which can be done to improve the fire department's operations, even if there isn't an atmosphere of total cooperation.

To begin with, the fire department still does not have a policy handbook. One of Carver's first missions was to draft one. Apparently, he has, but there's been some type of delay in having it reviewed by the labor attorney. Perhaps that delay was justified, but it's been eight months. There has been controversy which a handbook would have helped resolve. People have been fired. The time has come to have that policy handbook completed. We are reaching the point where there are no acceptable excuses for not having it completed. It should come before the council at the next council meeting.

The sainted volunteers who started the Mt. McSaubia Ski area years ago must be gratified by now to see how well their early vision has paid off!

The precious two-year-olds we used to see being carefully guided down the beginner's slope, stashed between their parents' knees in their little padded snowsuits, are now winning national recognition.

One outstanding skier among the Mt. McSaubia graduates is 30-year-old KRISTEN LIGNELL. She is what is categorized an extreme skier. She recently returned from Alaska where 40 men and six women were dropped off by helicopter into a remote area with no trails—just that heavenly fresh powder. You will be seeing her this fall on TV's Wild World of Sports. She also appears in breathtaking scenes in a recently released Warren Miller ski film. In addition, Kristen is considered today to be one of the foremost ski models in the country and appears regularly in various ski magazines. She has also appeared on the cover of SKIING.

Kristen considers skiing merely a second career. The majority of her time is spent as a pediatric nurse in the intensive care unit at the U.C. hospital in San Francisco.

Another Mt. McSaubia graduate is WES CUMBERLAND, age 22. He just returned from Breckenridge where he qualified for the National Ski Championship. This includes the 40 top mogul skiers in the United States—the Olympic team and the U.S. Ski Team. It was a very exciting experience for Wes with TV cameras everywhere. The spring temperature was a mild 50 degrees with sparkling corn snow.

"I was overwhelmed by the caliber of the competition. Mach 1 is the steepest run I've ever skied. Besides skiing through moguls, there are two jumps on the run that are five feet high. You have to fly through the air and maintain control for the next jump and more moguls—one is judged 50 percent on turns, 25 percent on speed and 25 percent on aerial maneuvers."

Wes is currently a business major at North Central Michigan College and hopes to join the pro tour next year. He says, "Skiing gives one the feeling of ultimate freedom. It pumps up your adrenaline. In competing one has to perform one's best and this takes both physical and mental discipline."

Kami Boyer, age 12, our third successful Mt. McSaubia ski graduate is well on her way to bringing Charlevoix additional future laurels. As winner of the Central Division of Cussa (Central United States Ski Association) Kami just returned from Crested Butte, Colorado. She won a silver medal for the combined events, which was presented to her at a banquet ceremony attended by 250 people. She's proud to report that the Central girls won more medals than any other group.

Kami travelled with the team. Her devoted dad, Doug Boyer, who is the ski coach at the Middle School, was required to travel by himself, even though he kindly videoed all the races for the kids to critique at the end of the day.

Kami has attended the Ski Academy one night a week at Nub's Nob since she was six years old. She also skis at Mt. McSaubia once in a while and says, "I like to goof around and have fun with my friends in town." She agrees with Wes that the Boss family has done an outstanding job running the local ski hill.

Competition comes naturally to the Boyer family. Kami's brother, Scott, skis on the High School ski team and her sister, Alison, skis on the college ski team at Albion. Kami's success thus far could be based on her kid-sister positive attitude.

"Anything they can do, I can do better!"

Kami plans to continue with Cussa next year. She'll be in an older age group where the competition will be tougher. My prediction is that Kami will be tougher too—just watch.

Environmental issues to be discussed

The public is invited to attend an informative program on environmental issues on Tuesday, April 27, from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. in room 122 of North Central Michigan College. Speakers are Attorney Richard Joseph of the firm Poinner and Joseph in Charlevoix, Bob Wagner, DNR Bond Program Supervisor, Wil Cwikiel from the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council and John Campbell, President of Site Planning Development in Charlevoix.

The cost of the program is $5 and you may pre-register by sending your check to Denise Poinner, 201 State St., Charlevoix, Michigan. Seating is limited, late registration at the door may be available. The event is sponsored by the Emmet/Charlevoix Legal Secretaries Association.

Letters to the editor

Emergency personnel thanked

I would like to take this time to thank the numerous people who make up the Charlevoix County Emergency Operations Center. The preliminary findings were good with very few points of correction. You've done a fine job. I feel if any situation were to arise, this staff would be able to handle it. This exercise with Big Rock works many agencies together to protect the citizens of this county. The cooperation of the cities and county agencies is great. It's a job we hope we'll never have to do, but we know we're ready. Again Charlevoix E.O.C. Staff, thanks for another job well done.

Earl Muma, Director, Charlevoix County Emergency Services.

Real estate rights should be valued

(Editor's note: The following letter was submitted by Kathy Schleuter, Executive Officer of the Antrim-Charlevoix-Kalkaska Association of Realtors.)

"No person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of the law." These words from the Bill of Rights guarantee the security of homeownership and the basic right to own, transfer and use real property.

In honor of American Home Week, April 18-24, the Antrim-Charlevoix-Kalkaska Association of REALTORS offers a brief look at the history of private property rights and encourages the citizens of Antrim-Charlevoix and Kalkaska counties to join in the celebration of these rights and acknowledge the need to protect them.

Our nation's concept of private property rights evolved from English Common Law, which, to a large extent, was patterned after ancient Roman law. Such laws have stood the test of time and courts, and were strongly supported by the American colonists.

Property rights were well established by the time George Washington became our first president. Washington remarked that "lands are of permanent value; there is scarcely a possibility of their falling in price, but almost a moral certainty of their rising exceedingly in value." However, we don't have the absolute right to exercise these rights as freely as we may wish. "Just as most property is subject to some limitations, so are property rights controlled by some necessary restrictions," explains Doris Leech, president of the Antrim-Charlevoix-Kalkaska Association of REALTORS. "These restrictions may be thought of as protections that enhance property and safeguard its value."

American property rights and privileges are limited or restricted by certain powers of government. The first, power of taxation, is the government's right to tax property based on assessed value and the prevailing tax rate.

The power of eminent domain is taking private property in the public interest. "Just compensation" is required when property is appropriated. Affected property owners participate in the legal processes to ensure that compensation is just.

Police power is the right of the government to regulate property for the protection of the public's safety, health, morals and general welfare. Zoning laws, housing restrictions, building codes and subdivision controls are examples of regulations based upon the police power of the government.

"Because we, as Americans, enjoy more political and economic freedom than any other people on earth, this nation must guard against taking for granted the rights inherent in homeownership," reminds Leech. "All citizens should be aware of local government regulations affecting private property. I encourage you to attend city council meetings. Know your local property issues, such as zoning and taxation."

Franklin Delano Roosevelt once said, "Real estate cannot be lost or stolen, nor can it be carried away. Purchased with common sense and managed with reasonable care, it is about the safest investment in the world."

While this remains true today, the dream of homeownership can be fulfilled only if we continue to protect our private property rights.

Join us in celebrating American Home Week, April 18-24, the national observance of our right to own, use and transfer real property.

The Antrim-Charlevoix-Kalkaska Association of REALTORS is one of more than 1,800 local boards and association of Realtors nationwide that comprise the National Association of REALTORS. As the nation's largest trade association, NAR is "The Voice for Real Estate," representing more than 750,000 members involved in all aspects of real estate industry.

I must find each time two words that rhyme,
And I may have to look 'em up,
But that's the easy part of the job--
What's tough... is to hook 'em up!

Marion Podskalny

Marion Podskalny, 64, of Charlevoix, died April 14, 1993, at Boulder Park Terrace in Charlevoix.

Her funeral was Saturday, April 17, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton of the Community Church of God in Charlevoix officiated. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery, Petoskey.

She was born April 7, 1929, in Ann Arbor, the daughter of Roy and Dorothy (Kurtz) Fisher. She graduated from Plymouth High School and the Ann Arbor Business School.

She worked as executive secretary for Evans Products in Plymouth for several years before moving to Charlevoix in 1973. She was employed at Charlevoix Area Hospital as a billing clerk from 1973-1992.

She attended the Community Church of God in Charlevoix.

Survivors include: one son,

Darrin and his wife Mary of Ishpeming; one daughter, Mrs. Ross (Nancy) Carl of Elk Park, Ill.; one grandson, Taylor Carl; two sisters, Mrs. Matthew (Helen) Fortney of Boyne City, and Mrs. Ron (Kay) Archer of Traverse City; and several nieces and nephews.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Diabetes Association. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Agnes Warner

Agnes Warner, 73, of Charlevoix, died April 15, 1993, at her home in Marion Township.

Her funeral was Sunday, April 18, at the Community Church of God in Charlevoix. The Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton will officiate and burial will be in the Barnard Cemetery.

She was born Oct. 19, 1919, in Marion Township, the daughter of Hiram and Hattie (Sitzema) Potter. She attended the Barnard School through the eighth grade and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1938.

She married Homer Warner on July 26, 1943, and he preceded her in death on Jan. 7, 1971. The couple had always made their home in the Charlevoix area except for a few years when they lived in Detroit.

Mrs. Warner was a member of the Community Church of God and the Women of the Church of God. She was also a member of the Barnard United Methodist Women's Club, the Barnard Farm Bureau and the Barnard Women's Club. She enjoyed sewing and quilting in her spare time.

Mrs. Warner is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Bruce (Wanda) Murray of Lapeer; one son, Dennis and his wife Linda of Swartz Creek; four grandchildren, Kristen and Kimberly Murray, and Christopher and Lindsey Warner; three brothers, Junior and his wife Shirley of Sandusky, Mich., Ernie and his wife Mildred of Charlevoix, and Garrett and his wife Berna of Charlevoix; one sister, Mrs. Carl (Clara) Bogart of Charlevoix; and one sister-in-law, Quinella Potter of Charlevoix. In addition to her husband, Homer, she was preceded in death by her brother, Frank in 1985.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Hospice of Little Traverse Bay. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Mary E. Scott

Mary E. Scott, 87, of Boyne City, died April 16, 1993, at her home.

No services are planned. Burial will be in Woodmere Cemetery, Detroit.

She was born Dec. 5, 1905, in Lethbridge, Ontario, Canada, the daughter of Frank and Mary (Noszaly) David.

She married Red Scott on July 25, 1929, and he preceded her in death. They had been seasonal residents of Boyne City since 1940.

Survivors include: two sons, E.A. "Buck" Scott Jr. of Charlevoix, and Tom Scott of Golden, Colo.; four grandchildren, Shannon and Belin Scott of Denver, Colo., and Gretchen and Anne Scott of Charlevoix; and one sister, Tillo Fargo of Detroit.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

We are Becoming The Righteousness of God

This past Easter Season brought to mind the significance of a single verse of scripture that seems to capture in one powerful sentence the essence of Christ's death on the Cross. "For God took the sinless Christ and poured into Him our sins when, in exchange, He poured God's goodness into us!" (1 Corinthians 5:21 Living Bible).

The mental image that analogy conjures up is fantastic! The exchanging of my sins for His goodness is a prospect that sounds almost too good to be true. But is it true! It is a reality I have experienced! That's why it's called the GOOD NEWS!

Another translation (The New International Version) states the verse this way, "God made Him who had no sin to be sin for us, so that in Him we might become the righteousness of God." Someone has said, "God did not lose a Son, He gained a family!" In Christ God took away our sin and gave us the righteousness of His son. By that exchange we are accepted by the Father as is His Only Begotten Son, Jesus Christ! God's children by New Birth areas near and dear to Him as His Son by Virgin Birth!

"God was reconciling the world to Himself in Christ, not counting men's sins against them" (11. Corinthians 5:19). The purpose of the Father's initiative to exchange our sin for His righteousness through Jesus Christ is an act of His incomprehensible love. Man was created for intimate relationship with the Creator and enjoyed such a relationship until sin served the relationship. The Father would not be satisfied until His original purpose could be fulfilled! There had to be reconciliation! So in Christ God reconciled us to Himself, not counting our sins against us!

Personally accept the work of Christ on the Cross as God's way of reconciling you to Himself. Receive the righteousness of Christ as your very own, and live in joyful fellowship with your Creator! You are as righteous before God as Jesus Christ when you confess your sin and receive Him as your Savior.

(Rev. Lowell Anderson is pastor of the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church. Beacons of Blessings is provided to the Courier by Anderson and other members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.)

Guest speaker at Christ Episcopal

Reverend Canon Mark A. Pearson, President of Institute for Christian Renewal, North Easton, Mass., will speak at Christ Episcopal Church, Charlevoix, Sunday, April 25 at 6:30 P.M. (Adults Only).

In most Christian denominations a period of renewal is taking place. In the "Seed of Harvest" publication of January '93, Reverend David Collins stated, "In renewal it should be made clear that we are not throwing out anything, we are welcoming something else in." He also stated that "Renewal is bringing together the evangelical, Charismatic, and Catholic." Each represents a crucial aspect of Christian life and is necessary for faithful discipleship.

Reverend Pearson will offer a question and answer period. There will be a free will offering. Coffee and dessert will be served.

Christ Church wishes to extend an invitation to all people of all denominations to this enlightening program.

Cub Scouts baking cakes for auction

In April, kitchens all over Charlevoix will be seeing some unusual activity: Bobcats, Wolves, Bears, Eagles, Wolverines, Hawks and even Snakes will be cracking eggs, flouring pans, and licking beaters. They'll be eagerly preparing for the Cub Scout Cake Auction — with the enthusiastic help of their parents!

On Monday, April 26, at 6:30 p.m., they will bring their specially designed one-of-a-kind cakes to the Charlevoix Elementary School to be auctioned off to the highest (or bravest) bidder. There are several design categories, which makes for a wide variety of cakes. Awards are a part of the fun, too.

Each parent/scout team puts a lot of thought and energy into this project. And every Scout is anxious but beaming with pride as his cake is placed on the auction table. All proceeds go to Charlevoix Cub Scout Pack 11. Community support is very important to an effective scouting program.

beds of boards raised several feet above the ground.

Driving around the city it was easy to see that it was a center of a large movie making industry. Making many more movies than Hollywood, Calcutta produces romantic films in a country where there are only a few TVs.

Most tourists come to India for only one reason, to see the Taj Mahal, probably the most imposing building in the world. Located at Agra, the one-time capital of India, the famous mausoleum has been described as the most extravagant monument ever built for love. It was a tomb for the king's wife. Construction started in 1632 and was finally completed 20 years later.

Dr. Judson Cornwall

Cornwall to speak at Assembly

Dr. Judson Cornwall, internationally known Bible teacher and author of 39 books, will be the guest speaker for a Bible Teaching series of services at the Charlevoix Assembly of God, Sunday, April 28, through Wednesday, April 28. Services are at 10:30 a.m. and 6:00 p.m. on Sunday and 7:00 p.m. Monday through Wednesday.

Reverend Cornwall travels extensively throughout Asia, Europe, South America, Austral Asia, Malaysia, and the Holy Land as well as coast to coast across America. Many of his books have been translated into nine foreign languages. Frequent themes of Dr. Cornwall's lectures, and his books, are prayer and worship.

You are cordially invited to any or all of the services with Dr. Cornwall. For information call the Assembly of God at 547-6430.

K-5 Spring Carnival

If you're going to sell balloons, you've got to have the right attitude. You've got to keep your feet on the ground and your head out of the clouds. Shown demonstrating the proper balloon selling technique is Mike Tilley.

Although some adults might have found the crowded carnival somewhat overwhelming, Scott Lamp's daughter Ashley found it to her liking and squealed with delight.

Tim and Patti Moore, shown with their son Charter, joined many other parents in dutifully waiting in line so their children could play carnival games.

School contract talks have started

The Charlevoix school board and school teachers' union have begun preliminary contract negotiation discussions. Both the board and the union have appointed negotiating teams. The two teams have sat down, but thus far the discussion has only centered on determining what process will be used in the negotiations rather than the substance of the contract.

The school board's negotiating team is made up of board members Max Novak, Ben Cunningham and Scott Beatty along with superintendent Roberta Jackson and business manager Rich Kelly. The board has also retained the Lansing-based law firm of Thrun, Maatsch and Noordberg to provide legal expertise and training in negotiation.

The school teachers' current contract expires Aug. 31. That contract was for three years during which teachers received salary increases of 5.75 percent, six percent and six percent. The teacher's 1992-93 base salary schedule ranges from $24,856 at the low end to $49,020 at the top end. Given that the Charlevoix school system has several teachers with many years of experience and graduate degrees, more teachers are at the high end of the scale than at the low end. Consequently, the average teacher salary in the Charlevoix school system is approximately $43,500.

School looking to fill vacancies due to several retiring

The Charlevoix school system is in the process of filling one administrative and six teaching vacancies which will be created by retirements at the end of the present school year.

Currently, two people who are already on staff are being considered for the elementary school principal vacancy from which Vane Smith is retiring. The two people seeking the position are high school assistant principal Dick Swenor and fourth grade teacher Mary Ann Chew.

The six teaching positions have been posted and according to school superintendent Roberta Jackson the school has several good candidates. The candidates are being screened by administrators. Finalists will be interviewed by a panel made up of administrators and teachers who work with in the subject area relevant to the position. The interviewing team will make a recommendation to Jackson who will then make a recommendation to the school board.

The school would like to have the positions filled by early summer in order to give new staff members time to settle in prior to the opening of school in the fall. Jackson noted that not all of the vacancies will be filled in the same fashion they are now. She said that some teaching assignments and responsibilities will change due to the addition of a seventh hour at the high school and enrollment shifts.

Federal judge to speak at Law Day luncheon

The Emmet-Charlevoix Bar Association will host the annual Law Day Luncheon Monday, May 3, at noon in the Reycraft Room of the Perry Hotel in Petoskey. The luncheon recognizes Law Day, which is celebrated May 1 of each year. This year, the theme of Law Day is "Justice for All - All for Justice." The Association will present the Liberty Bell Award to a non-lawyer who has contributed to the improvement of our legal system.

The luncheon is open to the general public.

Guest speaker will be Honorable James Churchill, Senior Judge with the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Michigan.

You too could own a home

If you thought that owning a home was beyond your dreams, think again! If your family income is under $46,920 per year, you may qualify for a home mortgage under the Michigan Initiative Program.

Charlevoix and Emmet County Cooperative Extension Service is offering a workshop that will help you qualify for a Michigan Initiative mortgage, as well as provide basic information you need to effectively shop for and finance a home.

The goal of the workshop is to provide potential homeowners with information on all aspects of home ownership and to help them decide if home ownership at this time is feasible.

Topics to be covered include: House hunting—how to evaluate a house inside and out and the neighborhood; qualifying for a home loan; financing a home—understanding the financial aspects of purchasing a home including monthly costs and mortgage options; and the closing—understanding the closing costs involved in purchasing a home.

The Michigan Initiative helps perspective home buyers by providing education about purchasing a home, cutting the normal down payment requirement to five percent and offering more flexible qualifying criteria than conventional mortgages.

The workshop series is open to all potential homeowners, whether they are interested in the Michigan Initiative or not.

For more information call the Charlevoix County CES at 582-6232 or Emmet County residents may call their Extension Office at 348-1770. Register by May 7 for the May 12 workshop.

Electric plant fire fought by four fire squads

By L. Scott Swanson

Fire destroyed the old city electric plant building last Thursday and sent smoke billowing high into the sky above Ferry Avenue. Four area fire departments fought the fire which was started by an electrical problem.

Electric Department Superintendent Ed Whitley said the fire was started by a lead break switch which was part of a circuit feeding Charlevoix's north side. Earlier in the morning the electric department was having problems with the circuit and workers were working between Division Street and the highway. Whitley said the northside problem and the break switch problem were related, but it's difficult to say which was the cause and which was the effect. The city's northside was without power from about 11 a.m. to 5:45 p.m. The fire started at approximately 11:40 a.m. Electric department workers were able to get to the area of the break switch at approximately 3 p.m.

According to City Fire Chief Doug Carver, electric department employee Terri Jones was at the plant and heard a loud popping noise in the area of the break switch. She radioed Whitley to tell him there was a problem. Wastewater Treatment Plant Superintendent Sam Creswell happened to be near the electric plant and heard the call on his radio. He stopped at the plant, got a fire extinguisher and knocked the fire down. But when the extinguisher ran out the fire quickly reignited. Creswell and Jones evacuated the building and called the fire department.

Carver estimated that the fire department was on the scene within five minutes of being called. He said that he opened a door to the building and found that the building had already become filled with smoke. The Charlevoix fire department called the Petoskey and Boyne City fire departments and asked for them to send their aerial

A statement in a story in last week's Courier was inaccurate. The statement was contained in a story regarding a report by a board of inquiry regarding controversy at the Charlevoix City Fire Department. At the Monday, April 19 City Council meeting a former fireman claimed that Charlevoix Fire Chief Doug Carver's daughter is a member of the fire department for which Fred Mueller (one of the three board members) is chief. Additional information indicates that is not correct.

In an April 21 memo to Charlevoix Mayor Dave Novotny, Carver described his knowledge of the three board of inquiry. That memo reads as follows:

"1. Ralph Soffredine - I had not met or spoken with, prior to the interview.

"2. Mr. Richard Powell - At one point, he was the Executive Secretary of the Michigan Firefighter's Training Council, and I believe I met him in a group of about fifty graduates at Petoskey. I asked him if he remembered the meeting, and he said no. However he did remember being in Petoskey for some type of graduation. I also advised him that I am a Fire Instructor and I had undoubtedly spoken to him over

This Charlevoix Odyssey of the Mind (OM) team took first place at the State of Michigan competition and now will be going to the World Competition June 2 at the University of Maryland. Team members are: (from left) Amanda Simpson, Taylor Fisher, Jonathan Campbell, Tony Williams, Adam Shepherd, Tiffany Fisher and Lisa Kerner. They are holding their prize winning replica of the Mackinac Bridge and their World OM flags.

OM team qualifies for nationals

The Charlevoix Elementary Odyssey of the Mind (OM) team will compete in the World OM Finals at the University of Maryland June 2 through June 8. They will be competing in the Banner/Float division. They are the only Northern Michigan team to qualify for the World Finals.

The team qualified at the State OM Finals at Central Michigan University by placing first out of 22 teams, most of them High School teams, with their balsa wood replica of the Mackinac Bridge, lit up with battery-powered lights against the Northern Michigan skies at night. Only first place teams from Michigan go to the World Finals.

They must now build their Mackinac Bridge to scale at about 6 feet by 12 feet for competition, complete with lights. They must also build the "Mighty Mac" in sections for transport to Maryland, where they will then reconstruct it for competition. The team must also make creative costumes to represent all the long term OM problems in the Odyssey of the Mind events this year, and a 4 foot by 12 foot banner with a "We Love Michigan" theme to lead the Michigan teams in the parade.

The team is trying to raise funds for this trip. They will host a rummage sale May 8 and will continue fund raising for the next month. Anyone wishing to support these creative young students by helping to finance their trip to Maryland can contact Toni Fisher, their coach, at Charlevoix Middle School, 547-3206. Home phone is 347-2299.

the phone at some point of time over the last 15 years, but he stated that he did not remember me.

"Mr. Fred Mueller: I have met him on two previous occasions. Both of the times were in regard to arson investigations in Bear Creek Township. Mr. Mueller came up as an insurance company investigator and investigated the fires. My total time of contact with him was approximately one hour. On the first occasion, I escorted him out to the burnt building and left him there. He later called me on the radio and I went out and spent approximately 15 minutes with him to discuss the arson. We met again several years ago at another arson investigation. I went out to see how his investigation was doing, and spent approximately ten minutes with him dis-

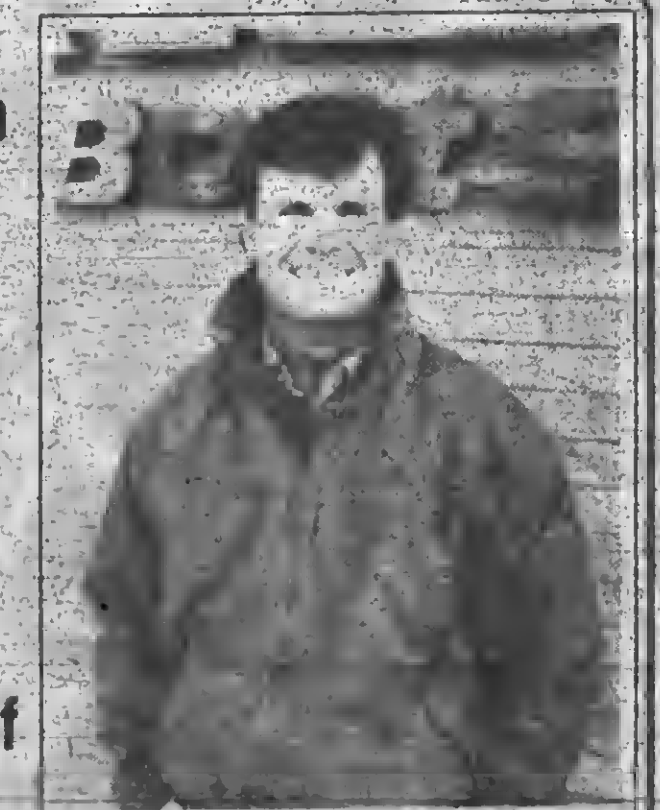

"Mr. Mueller is the Chief of Grand Traverse County Rural Fire Department. My daughter, Michelle Parker, is a member of the Grand Traverse County Metro Fire Department in East Bay Township. These are two separate fire departments. My daughter works for Chief Hanna out of the Metro Department. I believe she knows who Mr. Mueller is and vice versa, but she has no business nor private relationship with him due to the separate fire departments. And due to her married name, I don't know if he is aware that she is my daughter. "Both fire chiefs in Grand Traverse County work out of the same fire station, and if my daughter had any reason to go down to the main fire headquarters, she could run into Mr. Mueller."

The weather was brisk Saturday morning, but approximately 60 walkers still turned out for Charlevoix's annual March of Dimes WalkAmerica event.

Walkers began their journey at Alexander's of Charlevoix, walked out to North Point, then back into town, past the hospital out Lakeshore Drive, and then back through town to the same place they'd started. The walkers raised more than $7,000.

Hospital honors seven volunteers

Seven Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild members were given special recognition in celebration of National Volunteer Week. Each was recognized for important service to the hospital and its patients.

Bill and Mae Bridge, of East Jordan, were recognized for their many years of service in various capacities. Bill is now an Information Desk volunteer and served on the switchboard for many years. Mae sees to it that tray favors are placed on each patient tray for every holiday and season. She makes most of the favors and Bill often helps her.

Jean Giffin and Mary Margaret Geiken, both of Charlevoix, were honored for their many years of providing help to patients and nursing staff during their floor duty functions.

Joanna Gunn, Charlevoix, is known for the caps she knits for each baby born at Charlevoix Area Hospital. She also heads the Chaplain Service and sees to it that each patient is visited by a volunteer during their stay.

Shirley Koerber and Jo Cannan, both of Charlevoix and chairmen of the Showcase Gift Shop, have made it a successful fund raiser for scholarships and the hospital's capital needs.

Kathy Boss, vice president of professional services, presented certificates of appreciation Tuesday, April 20, at a tea. She said, "We want to thank all our wonderful volunteers for everything they do all year long. Each one of you is extremely valuable to the hospital." Last year volunteers donated more than 6,000 hours of service to the hospital. This hospital administration says is equal to nearly four full-time employees or an estimated $50,000 in payroll and benefits. The Guild is currently fulfilling a $25,000 pledge to the hospital's building campaign.

Taking the wrong train to the Taj Mahal

(Editor's note: The following story is third and final segment in a series of stories by Ralph McRae concerning a trip he took to Japan and India. McRae, a former mayor and city council member who continues to be active in a number of civic endeavors, is a regular contributor to the Courier.)

By Ralph McRae

To purchase my train ticket to Agra, India, I had gone to a special office to get a seat in a first class train. Later at the hotel, I was told there were two kinds of first class trains and I had been given the wrong ticket. Back at the train station a porter with one of my bags in each hand and another on his head led me up and down several sets of stairs to a place where I hoped to exchange my tickets. But it proved to be impossible. A dozen or more trains would be leaving in the next few minutes and the place was crowded with moving people going to many destinations.

I continued following several feet behind the tall porter who had my bag perched on his head. Eventually I found my assigned car. There, an overly-friendly man helped me with my baggage. In addition to the overly-friendly man, there were two other people in the compartment. I was very happy to hear that the overly-friendly man would be getting off the train soon at his hometown. His hometown had a population more than 150,000 people, but had fewer phones than Charlevoix. I was very relieved when he left the compartment.

One of the two remaining passengers was an electrical engineer going to a new job in New Delhi. These two men had no baggage. They were wearing all of the clothes they possessed.

The train I was on was considered a first class passenger train simply because it had individual compartments instead of rows of seats. It was not a fast train, not air conditioned and it stopped every 30 minutes or less. The compartment's open window, which I could not close, had bars over the opening to keep people out. It would be a very slow, but interesting journey.

At every stop local townspeople could be seen at the raised station platforms. Many of them had come to fill various containers with water that was available at the station. Further up the tracks, vendors were

Dr. Robert Bruce Armstrong

Dr. Robert Bruce Armstrong II, 91, formerly of Charlevoix died Wednesday, April 7 in Gratiot Hospital in Alma, Michigan. Funeral services were Monday, April 12 in Second Congregational Church in Rockford, Illinois, with Rev. Dean Dalrymple officiating. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery, Rockford. A memorial service will take place in Alma, Sunday, May 2 at 2 p.m. in the First Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Armstrong was born Dec. 24, 1901 in Charlevoix to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bruce and Maude Stüder.

Armstrong. He grew up in Charlevoix and graduated from Charlevoix High School. Later he graduated from Alma College with a Bachelor of Science degree in 1926. He later received his medical degree from the University of Chicago Medical School. He served his residency in St. Mary Hospital, did post graduate work at Vanderbilt University in Tennessee and University of Lausanne, Switzerland.

Mr. Armstrong practiced medicine with his father in 1936-37. He moved to Rockford, Illinois in 1937 and practiced medicine there until retirement in 1980. Mr. Armstrong also served as an armed forces medical officer from 1942-1946 during World War II.

Mr. Armstrong married Hannah Pauline Spencer in Alma, June 30, 1937. She preceded him in death.

Survivors include: a son, Robert B. (Erma) Armstrong III of Dallas, Texas; two daughters, Helen Armstrong of Washington, Connecticut and Nancy (Bill) Potter of Alma; a sister, Phila Shanahan of Charlevoix; six grandchildren; and a great-grandson.

Robert O. Pearl

Robert O. Pearl, 75, of Charlevoix, died April 21, 1993, at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

His funeral was Saturday, April 24, at the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Dale P. Ostema of the United Methodist Church officiated. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

He was born April 8, 1918, in Charlevoix, the son of James R. and Bernice May (Stephens) Pearl. He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1936.

Mr. Pearl served in the U.S. Navy Seabees from 1942-45.

On Sept. 9, 1945, he married Edythe C. Goode in New York, N.Y. She preceded him in death in October 1963.

He married Stella F. Holtzman on Sept. 26, 1970, in Charlevoix.

Mr. Pearl was a member of the American Legion Leslie T. Shapion Post No. 226, and the Charlevoix Oddfellows Lodge. He attended the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix.

Mr. Pearl worked as a draftsman/designer for Freedman Art Craft in Charlevoix for 34 years.

He was an avid golfer, and enjoyed fishing and woodworking. Survivors include his wife, Stella of Charlevoix; two daughters, Susan Bowman and her partner Bob Vance of Petoskey, and Roberta Lewis and her husband Todd of Traverse City; two sons, Robert Holtzman and his wife Lori, and Bernie Holtzman and his wife Toni, all of Charlevoix; seven grandchildren; and one brother, Howard Pearl of Seattle, Wash. He was preceded in death by a brother, Bert in 1991.

Memorial contributions may be made to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, P.O. Box 1818, Memphis, Tenn. 38101-9903. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Beatrice B. Somerville

Beatrice B. Somerville, 73, of Charlevoix, died April 23, 1993, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

There will be no service. Burial will be in Sunset Hill Cemetery, East Jordan.

She was born April 25, 1919, in Brutus, the daughter of Claude and Maud (Lothrop) Beardsley. She attended Charlevoix High School.

On Oct. 7, 1938, she married Robert Somerville in Charlevoix. He preceded her in death on Jan. 31, 1973.

She is survived by one son, Darrel and his wife Sandy of Bay Shore; one daughter, Judy Przybyski and her husband Mike of Charlevoix; one stepdaughter, Donna Beyers and her husband Doug of Pontiac; eight grandchildren; one great-grandchild; and one sister, Dorothy Bowersox of Charlevoix.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

The Charlevoix Area Hospital aid station was a popular stop during Saturday's March of Dimes WalkAmerica event.

...a tough train ride through India

at a station selling food. I took only their tea which was offered in clay mugs. Homes and small stores could also be seen close up. They were not very bright or attractive. Both men and women wore long grayish gowns. Only a few wore shoes.

It was December, but the weather was warm. Alongside the tracks was a highway going in the same direction. Occasionally a truck could be seen. There were also camels loaded down with goods, but there were no passenger automobiles. I was really seeing a civilization which was not much different than it had been 5,000 years ago. India is still living in the dark ages - and its future will be much like its past.

The doors of the compartment were kept locked, otherwise the three of us would have been submerged under a dozen or so other people. At twilight the countryside took on a bluish haze from all the little coke burning fires within the small huts. Women were preparing the evening meal.

With darkness our unheated space became much cooler. The one small light bulb barely showed the outlines of the four bunks. No covers or pillows were available. The only sensible thing to do was to pull on extra clothing, stretch out on the bunk and hope the clicking of the wheels would bring on sleep.

A couple of hours later, about 9 p.m., I had the urgent need to run quickly to the uni-sex bathroom. This occurred not just once, but several times during the course of the night. It was quite an ordeal. Using an oriental toilet requires lowering one's backside to within a few inches of the floor and is a challenge under the best of circumstances. In stationary circumstances it is not too difficult, but on a train hurtling and swaying, it is something else. I found that it required hanging onto the nearest pipe and praying out loud. Fortunately, I had with me a roll of toilet paper from Charlevoix.

On my way to the relief station I had to go around and over many people sleeping in the passageway. It was an exhausting experience, but eventually I made it through the night. I attributed the cause of my troubles to the last meal I had prior to leaving Calcutta.

After 20 hours on that train I arrived in Agra. Agra was once the capital of India. Over a period covering several thousand years the country has been invaded by the Chinese, the Arabs, Greeks, Persians, Romans and finally the British.

The main allure of Agra is the Taj Mahal, a magnificent monument to love built by Emperor Jahangir to honor his favorite wife and mother of 14 children. The mausoleum took 20,000 workers 20 years to complete. A tremendous edifice, it was built before steam engines were invented. Constructed with white marble, it is embedded with thousands of precious and semi precious gem stones. It is beautiful regardless of the time of day or direction it is viewed from. Full moon nights are especially appealing and draw large crowds.

The building is situated in a large park next to a river. It is approached through a high red stone arch. Walks divided by a long water course lead the way to the tomb. It is a tomb with one large central dome surrounded by four smaller domes with monuments at the corners. The tombs of the emperor and his wife, Mahal, are in the lower level. Visitors only see replicas of them in the upper level.

Before Taj Mahal was completed, the emperor was dethroned by his son. From the windows of his prison he could see the progress of the construction of his life's dream. He had intended to build a similar monument to himself, but in black marble.

India is quite famous for its carpets. My guide took me where hundreds of carpets were on display. After I selected a size, many different designs and patterns were rolled out for viewing. I came away with one called the Tree of Life. I added it to my baggage and it now lays in my living room as a reminder of my trip to India.

Scouts to dispose of flags

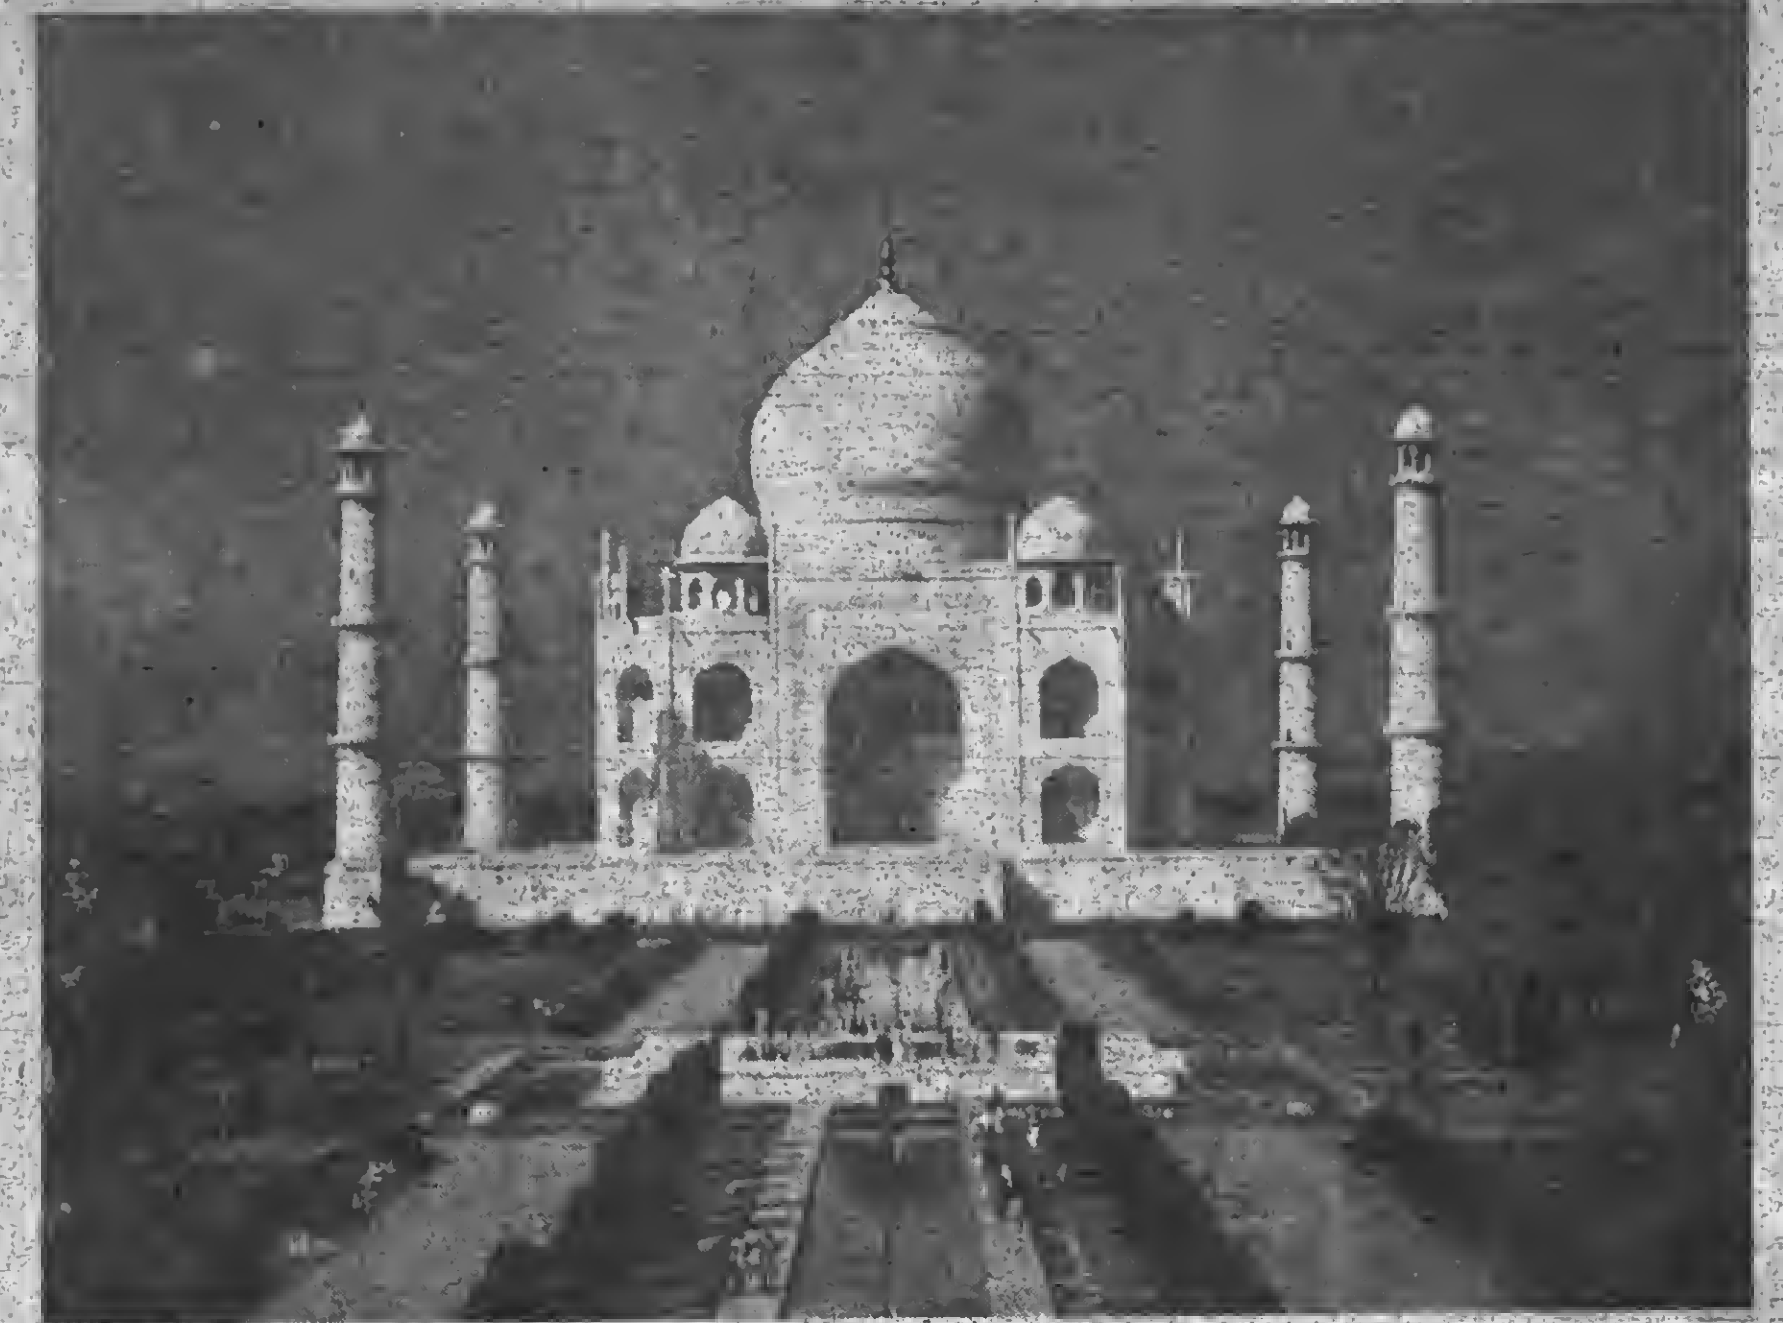

The Cub Scouts of Charlevoix, Pack 11, will be performing a ceremony for the disposition of U.S. Flags that are no longer usable for public display. The Cub Scouts are inviting the community to witness this ceremony at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, May 6 on the Elementary School grounds. If there are any businesses or individuals who have flags they need to dispose of, they are asked to contact the Cubmaster at 547-6862 to make arrangements to have the flag picked up.

Hearing clinic for veterans

Audiologist Michael W. Koskus, Ph.D., is working with Veteran's Affairs officials in four communities, offering free hearing screening tests for northwest Michigan veterans this May, including a clinic Tuesday May 4 in the Charlevoix County Building.

Dr. Koskus is celebrating national Better Speech and Hearing Month by holding the clinics. In addition to being Better Speech and Hearing Month, May is the month of Memorial Day, the audiologist said, "and I think it fitting to honor this special month and our veterans at the same time."

Charlevoix's free clinic will be 1-5 p.m. in the county building's Veteran's Affairs office on the main floor.

...city electric plant goes up in flames

trucks. Charlevoix does not have an aerial truck.

The street department garage is located on the bluff immediately above the burning building. A street department front end loader was used to knock down an garage door and part of a wall to allow access to the fire's point of origin. Once access was obtained, the fire department used the deluge gun on Engine 85 to put 1,000 gallons of water on the fire. Carver said that given the lack of ventilation in the building, the hope was that the water would turn to steam and the steam would help put out the fire throughout the building. Although the approach didn't prove to be as successful as hoped, given the initial inavailability of an aerial truck it was the best shot the department had.

A short time later the building's roof caved in. The Charlevoix City Fire Department was joined by the Charlevoix Township Fire Department and aerial trucks from Petoskey and Boyne City. The aerial trucks pumped water in from above while the city fire department put in water at the south end of the building and the township pumped water from Lake Charlevoix.

Although most of the building's interior was destroyed, the fire department efforts did keep 20 to 30 oil filled transformers from rupturing. Given the proximity of the building to Lake Charlevoix, the Coast Guard was standing by, but no contamination reached the lake.

Firemen remained on the scene until nearly 7 p.m.

City officials said that in addition to there being no injuries the city ended up being very fortunate in regard to limiting the loss of property. The building normally houses seven vehicles with a combined value of nearly a quarter million dollars. At the time the fire started, all of the vehicles happened to be out. Data files on the computer system were lost, but most of the files were backed up either at City Hall or with electrical consultant Roger Westenbroek. There was some inventory in the building, but Whitley said using inventory stored on the trucks and elsewhere is allowing the department to continue to operate at a normal level.

The electric plant fire was only one of four the city fire department responded to this past week.

While firemen were still at the electric plant they received a call to a house fire at 203 Nettleton. The East Jordan Fire Department had sent a truck to stand-by at the Charlevoix fire station during the electric plant fire and responded to the call where they were joined by Charlevoix and Petoskey firemen. The fire was in an area behind a wood stove. An ice cream truck driver passing by the home spotted the flames and alerted the occupants. Firemen were able to quickly extinguish the fire.

Friday, April 23, shortly after noon the fire department responded to a fire alarm at Pointes North hotel. The alarm had been set off by a short circuit which occurred when a bathtub overflowed.

Sunday, April 25 the fire department responded to an alarm at 200 East Dixon. Carver said the automated alarm system was apparently set off by some burnt toast.

Monday April 26 at 12:03 the fire department responded to a fire at 104 Green Street. According to the fire report a dog knocked a garbage bag up against a space heater. A fireman who arrived at the scene prior to the fire truck knocked the fire down with an extinguisher and fire hoses quickly finished up the job.

Charlevoix Township fire trucks set up shop near the north end of the electric plant. Charlevoix City trucks were positioned near the south end of the building.

Hospital constructs new boiler room

Construction on a new boiler plant building has begun at Charlevoix Area Hospital. This addition will house three boilers and electrical equipment for the old hospital building as well as the new addition.

The addition will mean the closing of the drive between the hospital near the ambulance entrance and the physicians' office building opposite the hospital. It is a 1,975 square foot building that will be attached to the present building's mechanical rooms.

This is a change in the building plans. Boilers were to be added to accommodate the new building addition, however it was decided the old boilers were showing signs of age and their replacement was imminent, so it became cost effective to replace them at this time. "The boilers are 40 years old and major repair or replacement could happen at any time," Richard Krueger, hospital president, said. "In addition, there will be some return on our investment because the new boilers will be much more efficient."

A new electrical power generator for emergency power will be in a separate area outside the boiler room.

The cost for the building and equipment exceeds $300,000 and is not included in the original hospital construction cost. This particular addition is slated for completion by October.

The construction program is moving along on schedule," Krueger says, "with a target date of the end of September." The major new addition will house a new surgical suite, kitchen, and cafeteria. Other areas are being remodeled for a new obstetrical unit that will be built to accommodate the single-room concept of childbirth. The main lobby, admitting, and waiting areas are currently undergoing reconstruction which is planned for completion early in the summer.

The construction program is being financed in part by over $1.6 million raised in a campaign in 1991. The Frey Foundation, awarded a grant of $150,000 for the project.

Work continues to progress on Charlevoix Area Hospital's building project. The hospital recently began construction of a new boiler room.

Former Charlevoix resident Roger Grunch was appointed April 6 to Maintenance Manager at Burns Clinic. Grunch will oversee maintenance and operations at all Burns Clinic offices throughout northern Michigan.

The 1967 Charlevoix High School graduate served in the United States Marines until 1971, when he returned to northern Michigan. He worked at Medusa Cement Corporation in Charlevoix before moving to Georgia, and most recently was maintenance manager for Six Flags Over Texas in Arlington, Texas.

Grunch has completed related certification programs in the areas of conditioned air, electrical contracting, plumbing, the Clean Air Act Amendment, and hazard communication program.

"I believe in the team concept: total quality and participative management," Grunch said. "I am pleased to have been accepted for the position of Maintenance Manager at Burns Clinic, and I look forward to working with the Burns Clinic team."

Grunch's goal in returning to northern Michigan is to spend more time with family members, as well as to become more involved with community activities. Many of Roger's eight brothers still live in northern Michigan.

LEGAL NOTICE 210

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

The mortgage described below is in default:

Mortgage made by Charles A. Kiteley and Carmen J. Kiteley, husband and wife, and Charles C. Kiteley and Gay M. Kiteley, husband and wife, as mortgagors, to The Federal Land Bank of Saint Paul, now known as AgriBank, FCB, as mortgagee, dated April 22, 1980, recorded with the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Michigan, on June 2, 1980, at Liber 160, pages 313-315. The amount claimed to be due on the mortgage at the date of this notice is $247,007.14. The mortgage contains a power of sale, which has become operative due to the default, and no suit or proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the debt secured by the mortgage of any part thereof.

Now, THEREFORE, take notice that the mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the property described in the mortgage at public auction on Friday, May 7, 1993, at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon, at the main door, East entrance, of the Charlevoix County Courthouse, 301 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan (that being the place where Circuit Court for Charlevoix County is held). The mortgagee will apply the sale proceeds to the debt on the mortgage, and any part thereof.

Now, THEREFORE, take notice that the mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the property described in the mortgage at public auction on Friday, May 7, 1993, at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon, at the main door, East entrance, of the Charlevoix County Courthouse, 301 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan (that being the place where Circuit Court for Charlevoix County is held). Softball team wins two more games

Charlevoix's girls' softball team went 2-1 in a weekend tournament in Grand Rapids.

In game one the Rayders beat Forest Hills Northern 11-1 in six innings.
Mary Jane Grunch got the pitching win, allowing only three hits while striking out 10 and walking two.

Melissa Cox and Liz Grunch each had a double and two singles in the game. Angela Buday had a bases-loaded triple and two singles.

In the second game Charlevoix lost to Forest Hills Central 9-0. Mary Jane Grunch took the pitching loss allowing nine hits and one walk while striking out four. Charlevoix had only three hits in the game. Two of those belonged to Cox.

In the third game Charlevoix beat South Haven 9-3. Liz Grunch was the winning pitcher striking out six while giving up four hits and five walks.

Liz Grunch also hit well in the game with two doubles, one with the bases loaded. Cox had two singles and Mary Jane Grunch had a double.

The Rayders are now 3-2 on the season.

Baseball team still looking for a win

After getting hammered in the first game 18-0, Charlevoix came back to make the second game respectable with a 10-9 loss in a double header against Kenowa Hills in Grand Rapids Saturday.

In the first game the Rayders found themselves in a deep hole early as Kenowa Hills scored 10 runs in the first inning. Charlevoix had just three hits in the game.

In the second game, Charlevoix trailed by 9-5 entering the final inning, but rallied to tie the game. Don Jess started the game for the Rayders with Brandon Webb relieving in the fourth inning and getting the loss. Offensively, David Skel had two home runs, Ed Johnson had three singles and a home run, Jess had two doubles and Jody McGlinch and Justin Gengle each had two singles.

The losses dropped the Rayders' season record to 0-4.

An ice cream truck driver spotted a fire at the Kelly home at 203 Nettleton. He alerted the occupants and the fire was put out before it could do extensive damage.

These two tykes were headed home from Michigan Beach in June, 1916. Information about this picture is a bit sketchy, but it seems that the home seen here was located at 600 Park Ave. It was possibly the home of Dick and Shelly Vance, perched on what was known as Harvey Campbell Bluff.

One-room school houses recalled

The Charlevoix Historical Society will be beginning its survey of one-room school houses this spring in an attempt to complete its records in this area of Charlevoix County History.

nities have switched to developmental learning, which is not used in Charlevoix. Developmental learning allows children in grades
K-3 to prepare for further learning in a non-graded environment. Gols-ki hoped that knowledge of developmental learning would be a consideration when selecting a principal.

The Administrative Liason Committee will interview the two candidates and make a recommendation to the board. The board will have the final vote to approve a candidate.

In other business, the board approved the purchase of two new school buses at a cost of $37,200 each. The buses are 71 passenger buses instead of 65 passenger buses currently in use.

Gunnar Lundbligen was appointed as assistant tennis coach.

The Society will be kicking off this effort at its May 4 monthly meeting, at 7:30 p.m. at the Harsha
House Museum, 103 State Street,
Charlevoix. Slides of county one-room school houses will be featured along with memories from the students that attended them. If you are a graduate of a Charlevoix County one-room school, please attend. You may be able to help complete the history of one of these treasured buildings.

During the Summer of 1993,
Harsha House Museum director,
Geoffrey Reynolds, will spend time photographing each of the county's remaining one room schoolhouses, documenting their history, inter-

Historical Society compiling information viewing current owners as well as past students.

If you have any information concerning a one-room school house in the county please contact Reynolds by phone at 547-0373 or 582-7972 during the evening. Or drop a note to Criticism directed at city manager and fire chief

By L. Scott Swanson

Charlevoix city manager Mike Wiesner and city fire chief Doug Carver received heavy criticism from approximately a dozen people at Monday evening's city council meeting. Some of those who spoke called for the council to dismiss Wiesner and either dismiss or reprimand Carver and the reinstatement of four former firemen who were dismissed from the department earlier this year.

Criticism centered on three issues: the handling of the April 22 fire at the city electric plant; a report by a panel of inquiry assembled by Mayor Dave Novotny; and the dismissal of the four former firemen.

Jerry Balch, who is manager of the Chicago Club which has several large old wooden buildings, said he was at the electric plant fire and was disappointed in the efforts of the City Fire Department. "I can honestly say I'm ashamed of the way our fire department handled that fire," Balch told the council. He added, "I just think it's time that the council takes responsibility and gets this thing straightened out."

Doug Bergmann and Barry Wood, two of the four dismissed firemen, offered specific criticism of the handling of the electric department fire. Most of the criticism centered on the use of Fire Engine '85. The truck has a 2,000 gallon per minute, two-stage pump. At the fire scene the truck was parked on Ferry Avenue and drew water from a hydrant. Bergmann and Wood maintained that the truck should have been parked on the lakeside side of the fire so that it could draw water from the lake. Wood and fireman John Frattick both noted that at one point in the fire a five inch supply hose was hooked into one of the truck's discharge connections.

When interviewed following the fire, Carver explained that upon arriving at the fire, firemen attempted to enter the building but found it filled with rolling smoke. He said that presented the potential for a back-draft explosion and required that the building be ventilated from above. Carver said the city doesn't have the necessary equipment to ventilate the roof of such a large building in that situation. Consequently he immediately called for aerial trucks from the Petoskey and

Some of Kipke's best work never made the record books

By L. Scott Swanson

Ray Kipke's 1938 Rayder basketball team went to the State Finals. In 1948 his team made it to the semi-finals where they lost in overtime to the eventual state champions. On the football field, between 1945 and 1950 Kipke's Rayders were 39-0-2. In 1974, Kipke was inducted into the Michigan High School Coaches' Hall of Fame.

Those accomplishments are all in the record book. But some of Kipke's accomplishments as a high school coach don't appear in any record books. In the mid 1930s, Lou Orlowski was a Charlevoix high school student. And like many high school boys he wanted to be on one of the athletic teams. But there was a problem.

"I just wanted to compete in sports, but my health wouldn't let me," Orlowski explains. Orlowski was asthmatic and although he tried to compete, his respiratory problems made it difficult to compete at all and much to his frustration impossible to excel.

As an underclassman, Orlowski tried to play a couple of different sports, but it just didn't work out. In his senior year, he decided to take one more shot at competitive athletics and he went out for the basketball team. This was in 1937, one year before the Rayder basketball team made a trip to the State Finals.

Given that the team was only a year away from going to the State Finals, there obviously must have been several exceptionally talented players on the team. Given Orlowski's health problems and his lack of prior playing experience due to those health problems, it was probably just as obvious that this kid wasn't going to be a star player. With that in mind, the easiest and most convenient thing for Kipke to do would have been to relegate the kid to the end of the bench, ignore him and spend all his time working with his frontline players. But that's not what happened.

"He managed some way to get me into enough games where I could earn my letter," Orlowski recalls. "I was the proudest kid in town."

Lou Orlowski, recalling his experience playing basketball for Ray Kipke in 1937.

"He managed some way to get me into enough games where I could earn my letter," Orlowski recalls. "I was the proudest kid in town."

Orlowski noted that it wasn't until a few years later, after he had graduated from high school, that he realized just what Kipke had done for him. As the years went by, the former coach and player became friends and would sit together in the bleachers at games and talk about sports.

Ray Kipke came to Charlevoix in 1928. In the 65 years between his arrival and his death this past Thursday at age 91 he became a community fixture as a coach, math teacher, manager at the Belvedere Golf Course and for the past several years just as a familiar face strolling through town.

Dean Davenport played for Kipke in 1950, Kipke's last year as a Charlevoix High School coach. Davenport later went on to become a coach and at the end of this year will retire after several years as Ferris State University Athletic Director. Davenport noted that although Kipke was an unpretentious man who would never take credit for anything, he built an athletic tradition of success at Charlevoix High School which still exists today.

OPINIONS

by EDITH GILBERT

Some of you may not have noticed the half-circles of petunias around the small trees on Bridge Street last summer. Decorative grates completed the other half of the semi-circle. This half-witted arrangement not only looked strange, but it was offensive to anyone who has an eye for design.

They say that art reflects society. It's true, this landscape arrangement is a perfect reflection of the divided society we live in today. Take our local, state and national governments. Locally more bickering than backing. In Lansing, we elect a half Democratic and half Republican legislature. In Washington, we elect a minority that is strong enough to filibuster the dramatic changes we hoped our elected president would achieve.

What is the matter with us? Why have we become such an obstructionist society?

One can't say that opposition per se is destructive. Thoughtful opposition is a point of view that has always advanced the democratic process. Granted. But are we faced with thoughtful opposition or timid indecisiveness? Are we caving in to numerous "special interests"? Are we waffling with the lobbyists instead of watch-dogging for the people? Has our two party system become so ineffective that we are falling into the trap that Abraham Lincoln warned us against — trying to please all of the people all of the time, and in so doing, pleasing no one? Why can't we give our support to the men and women we have chosen to represent us, and if they fall on their faces, then we can boot them out! Instead by creating stalemate, we end up with weak, watered down decisions instead of glorious landmark decisions. Our town suffers, our state suffers, our country suffers, our people suffer.

The young people who are denied job opportunities this summer and the heads of households who are unemployed deserve more. And as for the petunias, there's no one who delights more in this local project than I do. However, with all the foot traffic downtown in the summer, we don't need them in the half-circles under the trees next to the curb. They get trampled on and they become straggly. The grates, on the other hand, are attractive, neat, and practical as originally designed. Let's hope that at the DDA meeting this week it will be resolved that there will no longer be such a ridiculous solution of half petunias and half grating around the trees on Bridge Street. That done, we can direct our attention to the rest of the country.

A collection of accomplishments, praises and awards of Charlevoix area people.

Marine Lance Cpl. Douglas W. Benoit, son of Sandy L. Loper of Charlevoix, recently returned with the 15th Marine Expeditionary Unit, Camp Pendleton, California from a six-month deployment to the Western Pacific as part of the USS Tripoli Amphibious Ready Group.

While deployed, the 15th Marine Expeditionary Unit Participated in Operation Restore hope, the largest humanitarian relief effort ever. Benoit spent several days ashore in Somalia during the relief efforts and was among the first U.S. military units in the area.

Additionally, the MEU conducted amphibious training exercised in Kuwait and participated in Operation Southern Watch, enforcing the U.N. sanctioned "no-fly" zone in Southern Iraq.

The marine Expeditionary Unit is designed to operate and respond quickly, on short notice, to crises in distant lands. This Navy and Marine Corps "sea-air-land" team is structured to build power from the sea when required by national demands and is able to sustain support for long-term operations.

County Prosecutor's office hires victim's advocate

Five out of six Americans will be victims of crimes (including attempted crime) during their lifetimes. Victims of crime, direct and indirect, constitute a majority of the population. People feel that criminal defendants are the only ones who have rights, but victims of crime also have rights. In 1988 the citizens of Michigan adopted a Constitutional Amendment to ensure the following fundamental rights for crime victims:

The right to be treated with fairness and respect for their dignity and privacy throughout the criminal justice process.

The right to timely disposition of the case following arrest of the accused.

The right to be reasonably protected from the accused throughout the criminal justice process.

The right to notification of court proceedings.

The right to attend trial and all other court proceedings the accused has the right to attend.

The right to confer with prosecutor.

The right to make a statement to the court at sentencing.

The right to restitution.

The right to information about the conviction, sentence, imprisonment, and release of the accused.

Richard May, Charlevoix County Prosecutor, feels there is an enormous amount of work to be done with the victims of Charlevoix County to ensure them of treatment with dignity and respect; notification of court proceedings, continuances and resources, including victim compensation and counseling services. May wants consultation with victims before court procedures or actions are pursued by the prosecutor, and participation in all court proceedings if desired.

Sandy Ward

tion of court proceedings, continuances and resources, including victim compensation and counseling services. May wants consultation with victims before court procedures or actions are pursued by the prosecutor, and participation in all court proceedings if desired.

The law of victims' rights is dynamic. New right, programs, and compensation options are constantly being legislated and litigated. The Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office is presently trying to implement new programs and revise all parts of the victim's rights program.

With a Crime Victim's Rights Grant, May has hired Sandy Ward as the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Victim Advocate. Ward has the fundamental goal of trying to remedy victim neglect and frustration by affirming their value within the criminal justice system. She will perform three basic and often interrelated functions. Guide victims through the maze of the criminal trial process. Inform victims of the existence of victims' statutory rights. Assess the possibility of and enforcement of restitution.

The Victim Advocate actively asserts, promotes and expands on the victim's rights and establishes early interaction between the victim and the court. Victims want to feel that they are making a valuable contribution. Key evidence for the prosecution may rest on a victim's testimony, so the Advocate can show the victim how to be effective in their testimony. She may bolster victim confidence and morale in the courtroom.

Victims may hesitate to exercise their rights if they feel intimidated. Ward encourages victims to exercise their right to tell the court their version of the crime and how it affected their lives. Ward helps victims prepare the Victim Impact Statement which is submitted to the Judge before sentencing. This brings a conclusion to the event and allows the victim to move forward with their lives. It is Mrs. Ward's hope to prevent any unhappy incident between the time of the crime and sentencing so the victim does not get a negative assessment of the criminal justice system, and minimize the trauma to the victim.

May strongly supports victim's rights and hopes to develop a Task Force for Domestic Violence. Ward is currently gathering information for the formation of an Impact Panel in regards to drunk driving.

Pounds shed for charity

The Little DYPPERS (formerly known as the Big DYPPERS) were repeat winners of the recent "Dump Your Plump" wellness program conducted by the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District.

The Dump Your Plump program is a team-oriented fitness program. Each team member agreed to exercise 30 minutes a day, five days a week, and set a weight loss goal of up to 10 pounds. Teams earned points for each day exercised and weight lost. They earned bonus points for individuals who met their weight-loss goal and teams and individuals exercising 90 percent of the time.

Total weight loss of the group of 56 members was 350 pounds. The Little DYPPERS earned 4,830 points by losing 80 pounds and all team members exercising 100 percent.

The Ellsworth and Harbor Springs Community Food Pantries benefited by the wellness groups' losses. More than 520 pounds of food were donated to these food pantries.

The Little DYPPERS team members were Pat Carland (captain), Pauline and Joe McDermon, Cathy and Bill Silberhorn, Pat Miller, Karen Pierce, Alison Mellon and Roberta Jackson. Other teams competing were the Lean Machine, Stretch Marks, The Firm, The Dream Team, Great Ate and the Wafer Thins.

...fire department concerns voiced at council meeting

Boysen City fire departments. While waiting for those units to arrive, a street department tractor was used to knock a hole in a side wall so water could be sprayed into the building at the fire's point of origin.

Fratrik said the electric plant fire points out the need for experience in fighting fires. In addressing the council, he prefaced his remarks by saying that he has no axe to grind with anyone and was not there to "slam" anyone. "I just don't think these four firemen (Doug Bergmann, Barry Wood, Charles Bergmann, and Curt Thompson) were justly fired. The Charlevoix Fire Department needs them. Fratrik said that the new people who have been brought onto the fire department as replacements are good people, but they haven't had a lot of firefighting experience. He said he feels that experience is still the best teacher.

Fratrik said of the four dismissed firemen, "These four guys, they're not bad guys. They're good guys. They're concerned. They want this district served well."

Jim Elliott, an honorary fire department member who worked with the firemen in a fundraising drive for Engine '85, also spoke in support of the dismissed firemen. He said that following a fire at the Lex-A-Lite plant more than 10 years ago, volunteer firemen and other members of the community recognized the need for additional fire department equipment. He said a group of people approached the council at the time, but they were told city funds for equipment were limited. Elliott said the firemen then spearheaded a fundraising campaign which raised $185,000 for Engine '85 and later raised $160,000 for Engine '90. The trucks were purchased and donated to the city. "As a reward, four of them (i.e. the dismissed firemen) got their tails kicked out for some very nebulous reasons," Elliott said.

Chuck Papineau took issue with the formation of a panel of inquiry to look into the firings. Novotny assembled the committee at the direction of the City Council. The committee of three fire department or public safety chiefs from Saginaw and the Traverse City area reviewed the Charlevoix Fire Department and interviewed past and present firemen before issuing a report which said the actions of Wiesner and Carver were justified.

Papineau claimed that Novotny was not justified in assembling the panel either under the City Council's rules of procedure or Robert's Rules of Order. Papineau said he feels that everything the council did and everything about it was out of order.

"I don't know that you can do anything now, but start back at scratch," Papineau said.

Novotny noted that according to the City Council has no say as to the firing of the four firemen.

Douglas Bergmann, who is the son of Doug Bergmann and also a member of the fire department, criticized the panel of inquiry report and pointed out incongruities between it and a 1991 report on the fire department done by a consulting firm hired by Wiesner. Douglas Bergmann and former council Bob Timms both blamed the firings on previous conflicts between the four dismissed firemen and Wiesner.

Bergmann said the Hayes Township incident which triggered the firings could have been resolved either through discussion or by having defined rules and procedures in place prior to the incident.

...recall petition filed

tion to recall Felter for "His failure to communicate with, or respond to, his constituents in the Second Ward of the City of Charlevoix. His answering service is on to receive phone calls, but it is almost impossible to talk to him, face-to-face, about any issue of concern to the voters. Part of his duty as a councilperson should be to be available to the people whom he represents."

Felter, who is in the first year of his second two-year council term, was asked about the recall effort following Monday evening's council meeting and termed it "a bunch of crap." Felter said he works long hours and is single so consequently he isn't always at home, but he noted "Everybody else seems to find me. And I'm not holding office hours at my house."

Campbell said he has no personal animosity toward Felter. "I like Ted. He's a friend of mine. I just think that if you're going to be on the council, you should be more available." Campbell also said that the recall effort has nothing to do with other city issues. "I've got a lot of issues right now that I'm not happy with, but as far as Ted it's just the lack of availability."

A local election board made up of the County Clerk, County Treasurer and Probate Judge will meet May 10 to determine whether or not the wording of the petition is clear enough for voters to understand. If they determine the wording is all right, the petition will be returned to Campbell and he will have 90 days to collect a number of signatures from registered second ward voters equal to or greater than 25 percent of the votes cast in the ward during the 1990 state election. If a sufficient number of names are collected, the petitions are turned back into the County Clerk, then signatures are verified by the City Clerk and an election is scheduled. Felter would also be able to provide a rebuttal of 200 words or less to be included on the ballot. The entire process normally takes between two and four months.

Timms said the fire department problems can all be laid in Wiesner's lap. "It's his insatiable drive for total control of everything and every one he comes in contact with," Timms said.

In a phone conversation with the Courier following the meeting, Wiesner denied that any action taken in regard to the fire department was personally motivated. "I'm very comfortable in saying that any direction taken in regard to the fire department was done in a constructive manner to improve service to the public. There were certainly no vendettas against any individuals," he said.

At the end of the meeting, councilman Ted Felter suggested setting up a time to review the performance of Carver since he has now been with the city for approximately nine months. Other councilman suggested that in addition to reviewing the fire chief, they should also review the performance of police chief Dennis Halverson.

At the end of the council meeting, the council went into closed session to discuss a bid for fire and ambulance service for Hayes Township; discuss the status of contract negotiations with City employees; and review Wiesner.

BUSINESS

CB Financial Corp. reports strong first quarter earnings.

CB Financial Corporation reported 1993 first-quarter earnings of $785,000, a direct result of a one-time charge to earnings to reflect the liability for post-retirement health care benefits (due to implementation of FASB 106 accounting standards). Had the charge not been made, net income for the quarter ended March 31, 1993 would have been $1,786,000 compared with $2,042,000 for the same period in 1992.

Brian Bell, President and CEO, stated "The strength of the Corporation allowed us to put this charge behind us, rather than the alternative of writing the expense off over a twenty year period, as some corporations have chosen to do."

"First quarter earnings were influenced by higher operating costs associated with our recent acquisition of First State Bank of Charlevoix, effective January 15, 1993, and our computer conversion project. The computer conversion will help us to realize savings associated with the merger of our two banking operations in Charlevoix, as well as our new management information system, which will operate all subsidiary banks in the near future."

As of March 31, 1993, total loans increased 12.4 percent to $337,356,000 from $300,148,000 at March 31, 1992. Total deposits increased from $529,239,000 to $582,559,000, and increase of 10.1 percent over the same period last year. Total assets, also increased $73,716,000 over the same period in 1992, or a 12.4 percent increase. Total asset figures reflect the acquisition of CCSB Corporation in Charlevoix in February, 1992 and First State Bank of Charlevoix in January of this year.

Earnings per share were $.64 before the accounting change, compared with $.73 last year, or a 12.3 percent decline. Shareholders' Equity increased from $63,030,000 in 1992 to $66,883,000 in 1993, representing a 6.1 percent increase.

The quarterly cash dividend of $.29 per share payable April 20, 1993 to shareholders of record March 31, 1993 represents the 227th consecutive dividend paid by the Corporation and its predecessor, City Bank and Trust Company, N.A.

CB Financial Corporation is the parent holding company of City Bank & Trust Company, N.A. in Jackson, City Bank of St. Johns/Lansing, and Charlevoix County State Bank and First State Bank of Charlevoix both in Charlevoix, Michigan. CB Financial Corporation and its banking subsidiaries have 43 banking offices providing Commercial, Trust and Personal banking services in Northwest and Central Michigan.

Island receives wildlife refuge money

A check totaling $1,409 will be issued to the Township of St. James in Charlevoix County during the month of May by Doug Spencer, Refuge Manager, as part of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (USFWS) annual revenue-sharing program.

The program is designed to compensate local units of government for loss of tax revenue on lands owned by the U.S. Government and administered by the USFWS. The funds may be used for any governmental purpose. Funds for these payments are derived from revenue from the sale of products from these lands plus a supplemental congressional appropriation. For Fiscal Year 1992, revenues and the supplemental appropriation are sufficient to provide for a nationwide payment of $1.65 percent of the full entitlement amount. This amount represents the total payment for Fiscal Year 1992. The program is authorized by the Refuge Revenue-sharing Act of 1964, as amended in 1978. The original Act provided for payments only on lands within the National Wildlife Refuge System. The 1978 amendment provided that payments be made on all lands administered by the USFWS. Such lands in the North Central Region include National Wildlife Refuges, National Fish Hatcheries, Waterfowl Production Areas and Administrative Sites.

The check issued to the Township of St. James for $1,409 is this year's revenue-sharing payment for Michigan Islands National Wildlife Refuge (NWR), consisting of Pismire, Gull and Shoe Islands located near Beaver Island. This year marks the 50th anniversary of the establishment of the Michigan Islands NWR.

DNR asks fishermen to watch for clipped fish

Anglers fishing in Michigan's Great Lakes and connecting waters are asked to be "on the lookout" for adipose fin-clipped trout and salmon stocked by the Department of Natural Resources Fisheries Division and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in an effort to study the Great Lakes fishery.

"Anglers who cooperate in this study are helping to assess the value of the various fish-stocking efforts throughout the Great Lakes," DNR Director Roland Hammes said. "These studies will provide information that is critical to the continued maintenance of our Great Lakes fishery."

The adipose fin is the small, fleshy fin just ahead of the tail on the salmon and trout's back. Fish with clipped adipose fins have microscopic wire tags implanted in their snouts that identify the planting site of the fish, the date the fish were planted and the hatchery of origin. The tags, along with a creel survey which is being conducted on the sport fishery will give the researchers the data they need to complete its project.

Fisheries researchers are marking 1.3 million chinook salmon and 1.5 million lake trout annually with microscopic wire tags. The data gathered will be used in ongoing studies aimed at determining important information on movement, growth, survival and the contribution of natural reproduction to the sport fishery on the Great Lakes. Stocking locations and techniques, and fish rearing practices will also be evaluated by these studies.

"We are asking anglers to save the heads of trout and salmon with clipped adipose fins and get these to a DNR district or regional office so we can remove the tags," explained Myrl Keller of the DNR's Charlevoix Fisheries Station.

Anglers are asked to:

*Remove and freeze the entire head of the fish in a plastic bag (fish with ONLY adipose fins clipped).

*Include the following information on a slip of paper, written in pencil: location and date was caught (required), and length and sex of the fish (optional).

*List your name, address and phone number.

*Bring the fish head(s) and information to any DNR district or regional office or call for a list of additional drop-off sites at participating bait and tackle shops.

Cooperating anglers will be rewarded for their participation by receiving the information contained on the tags they turn in, as well as information on how the data will be incorporated into the study.

Nominating petitions due for council candidates

Nominating petitions for people wishing to be listed as city council candidates are due at 4 p.m., Tuesday, May 11 at City Hall. There are three two-year terms up for election this year. The seats are currently held by: Chert Hoffman, first ward; Butch Russell, second ward; and Bruce Livingston, third ward. Hoffman and Russell have said they are going to seek re-election. Livingston has said he does not intend to run. Former councilman Bob Timms has indicated that he will challenge Hoffman in the first ward.

To have his or her name placed on a ballot, a candidate must pick up a nominating petition either at the City or County Clerk's office and have the petition signed by not less than 24 and not more than 40 registered voters of the ward in which the candidate is seeking office. Completed petitions must be turned in by the filing deadline.

Award-winning author to speak to K-5 students

Charlevoix Elementary School is excited about its first time ever Young Author Party featuring Janet Taylor Lisle, author of the Newbery Honor Book, Afternoon of the Elves. She will be lecturing Thursday, May 6, on Afternoon of the Elves to the fourth, fifth and sixth grade classes, as well as talking with them and answering questions about this or any of her other books.

On Thursday evening, Mrs. Lisle will be guest of honor at an evening reception to be held at the Charlevoix Public Library from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. This reception will be hosted by the Charlevoix Elementary PTO. The public is invited to come and meet this talented author.

Funding for this event is furnished by the Charlevoix Elementary PTO. The students have been saving Glen's slips for her air fare and the Charlevoix Enrichment Foundation has generously purchased a copy of Afternoon of the Elves for each fourth, fifth and sixth grade student to read before Mrs. Lisle comes to our classes.

Other books by Janet Taylor Lisle are The Dancing Cats of Applesap, Sirens and Spies, The Great Dimpole Oak and The Lampfish of Twill. Her newest book, Forest, will be out in August of this year. All of her books are available in the Charlevoix Public Library.

Patty Sitzema (center) recently received the 1993 Community Citizen Award from the Barnard Grange. The award is given each year during the National Grange Week to someone who is not a Grange member, but has contributed to the betterment of the community. In selecting Sitzema for the award, the Grange noted her work as chairman of the Community Heart Start program and her efforts to get Charlevoix High School students CPR certified prior to graduation. Shown with Sitzema are Rod Stevens, Barnard Grange Master, and Sara Cummings, Barnard Grange Community Service Chairman.

Low precipitation drops lakes

During the month of March, below average precipitation and net basin supplies brought additional relief to the Great Lakes basin. Shoreline residents of Lakes St. Clair, Erie and Ontario should continue to be on the alert for high water conditions. If conditions worsen, the Corps will provide additional information in the update letters that accompany the Monthly Bulletin of Lake Levels. The 30-day outlook published by the National Weather Service projects light to moderate precipitation in the Great Lakes regions for the month of April.

The forecast, published in the Monthly Bulletin of Lake Levels for the Great Lakes, projects Lake Superior to be near its long-term average levels for the next six months while Lakes Michigan-Huron, St. Clair, Erie, and Ontario will likely remain above their long-term average levels.

A more detailed summary of Lakes Michigan-Huron water levels follows. All elevations are referenced to International Great Lakes Datum 1985.

Lakes Michigan-Huron at the end of March were at elevation 579.10 feet (176.51 meters) above the mean water level at Rimouski, Quebec, or about 19 inches (51 cm.) above Chart Datum. The March monthly mean level of 579.00 feet (176.48 meters) was about 5 inches (12 cm.) above the long-term average for March. The lakes were about 25 inches (64 cm.) below the all-time high March monthly mean level, which was recorded in 1986. The forecast shows that the April monthly mean level of Lakes Michigan-Huron will be about 4 inches (9 cm.) above what it was at Mid-March. The lakes are expected to continue their seasonal rise into July. The water level in Mid-September is expected to be about 5 inches (13 cm.) above the long-term average for that month, or about 7 inches (18 cm.) above what it was at the same time in 1992.

Tip of the Mitt seeking volunteers

Every year, the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council utilizes volunteers to carry out its various programs and to help with miscellaneous tasks around the office. Without volunteers, the organization would not be able to protect northern Michigan's valuable water resources quite as well as it does. This year, even more volunteer opportunities will be available at the Watershed Council than ever before.

"We greatly appreciate our volunteers' efforts and pride ourselves on our ability to provide a wide range of quality volunteer opportunities," states Kim Broszofski, Administrative Assistant for the Watershed Council. Some of the many opportunities for volunteers include helping with mailings, entering information into computers, doing general office work, and interviewing individuals over the telephone. In addition, the Council offers several field-related volunteer opportunities. Individuals and groups monitor lakes; adopt streams; staff displays at public events; help with Lake Expo, and take part in the annual Beach Sweep. Some people volunteer their photography skills, while others become neighborhood representatives. There are indeed many ways people can help the Watershed Council help northern lower Michigan.

The Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council is a non-profit organization which protects and promotes the wise use of water resources in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, and Emmet Counties. New volunteers are always welcome. For more information on the Watershed Council's Volunteer Program, please call 347-1181 or write P.O. Box 300, Conway, MI 49722.

Congratulations Welcome Thanks We're Behind You

On behalf of the board of directors of FMB Northwestern Bank, congratulations and welcome to Ray Killinger and the staff of the newest branch of FMB.

FMB is a community bank that strives to stay close to its customers. A survey was mailed to Charlevoix residents to find out what they wanted from their bank. Thanks to the hundreds of you who responded, your answers will help us bring you the service that makes FMB the place where people like banking better.

I am pleased to announce that for each survey returned, FMB has donated $1 toward the purchase of computer equipment for all area public and private schools. It's one of the ways FMB wants to show Charlevoix students that we're behind you!

Because supporting community needs is what FMB community banking is all about.

DNR reminds fishermen to heed rules

The Department of Natural Resources reminds anglers of important regulations governing the lake trout season, May 1 through Labor Day, for Lakes Michigan and Huron and their tributary streams.

The minimum size limit for lake trout in northern Lake Michigan, including Grand Traverse Bay, is 24 inches. For all other Great Lakes waters, the minimum size limit for lake trout remains 10 inches. While not detailed in this year's Michigan Fishing Guide, this size limit for lake trout in northern Lake Michigan has been in effect since June 1992.

Because lake trout mortalities in northern Lake Michigan have routinely exceeded the target of a 45 percent total annual mortality rate, size limits were increased to reduce the sport harvest and develop self-sustaining lake trout stocks in the area. Preliminary figures indicate the increased size limit for this area is having the desired effect.

In a further effort to stimulate lake trout populations throughout Lake Michigan, the current limit is two lake trout per day. Elsewhere in the Great Lakes, including connecting waters and inland lakes, the lake trout limit is three per day.

Reduced pressure on the lake trout stocks, combined with increased stocking efforts of lake trout and similar reductions of tribal catch should restore a highly valued sport fishery for lake trout in northern Lake Michigan waters.

Senior performing arts students have taken a vow of silence about the group's annual dinner theater, Saturday, May 15. Refusing to comment are (front from left) Kim Solomon, Maria Seaman, Paul Keehn, Nancy Dammann, (center) Dorsey Sherman, (back) Mindy Noirot, Megan Bickersieth and Amber Phillips.

High School performing arts group to present dinner theater

Remaining virtually silent, the Performing Arts students at Charlevoix High School refuse to comment or answer questions on the content of their annual dinner theater presentation 6:30 Saturday evening May 15.

"No, we will not reveal or discuss what we are going to present," one senior, who requested anonymity responded to inquiries.

Another student revealed, as deep background, that the show will include "skits, singing and dancing, and many surprises."

"I can guarantee that the performance will be outstanding, but I do not dare tell you more," this student insisted. "I'd be in big trouble with the rest of the crew and cast."

"It's going to be the best dinner theatre yet, but you will have to take that on faith," another student smiled and walked away.

Investigative reporting has uncovered that the evening will include the secret performance, a superb dinner served by the students and several surprises.

Cheryl Browe, a Performing Arts parent, assisting with the menu, reported that dinner guests will be offered a choice of prime rib or stuffed cornish game hens, potato, tossed salad, fresh baked bread, and dessert.

"No, I have no idea what the students have up their collective sleeves," Browe said. "My child won't tell me anything."

"I know the seniors have written the show, that all the performing arts students are participating. I know they have been rehearsing for several weeks, but everything else is hush, hush."

"But everyone knows the Performing Arts students put on a great show, so I'm not worried. Or should I be?" she laughed.

"I also know that tickets are going fast, so a lot of people have some clues even if I don't."

Browe said the limited number of tickets for the show are now available at the high school office (547-3222) for $13.50 per person.

The party is organized by parents of the seniors. Door prizes are contributed by area businesses. The T-shirts were designed by senior art students and are on sale at the high school office.

Rayder tennis team overpowers Northport

Northport's tennis players found themselves simply overmatched when they visited Charlevoix Thursday, April 28. Charlevoix shut Northport out 7-0 in the match and also won two exhibition games.

Rayder coach Eric Lundteigen was happy with the win, but wishes his team had a few more matches under its belt. Foul weather has forced the Rayders to cancel four matches this season and the conference and regional meets are fast approaching.

"We've got a pretty young team, but we're showing improvement," Lundteigen said.

Results of the Northport match were as follows:

#1 singles: Jeff Joy won 6-3, 6-2.

#2 singles: Chris Pair won 6-3, 6-0.

#3 singles: Tim Terry won 6-4, 3-6, 6-4.

#4 singles: Amy Freidinger won 6-2, 6-1.

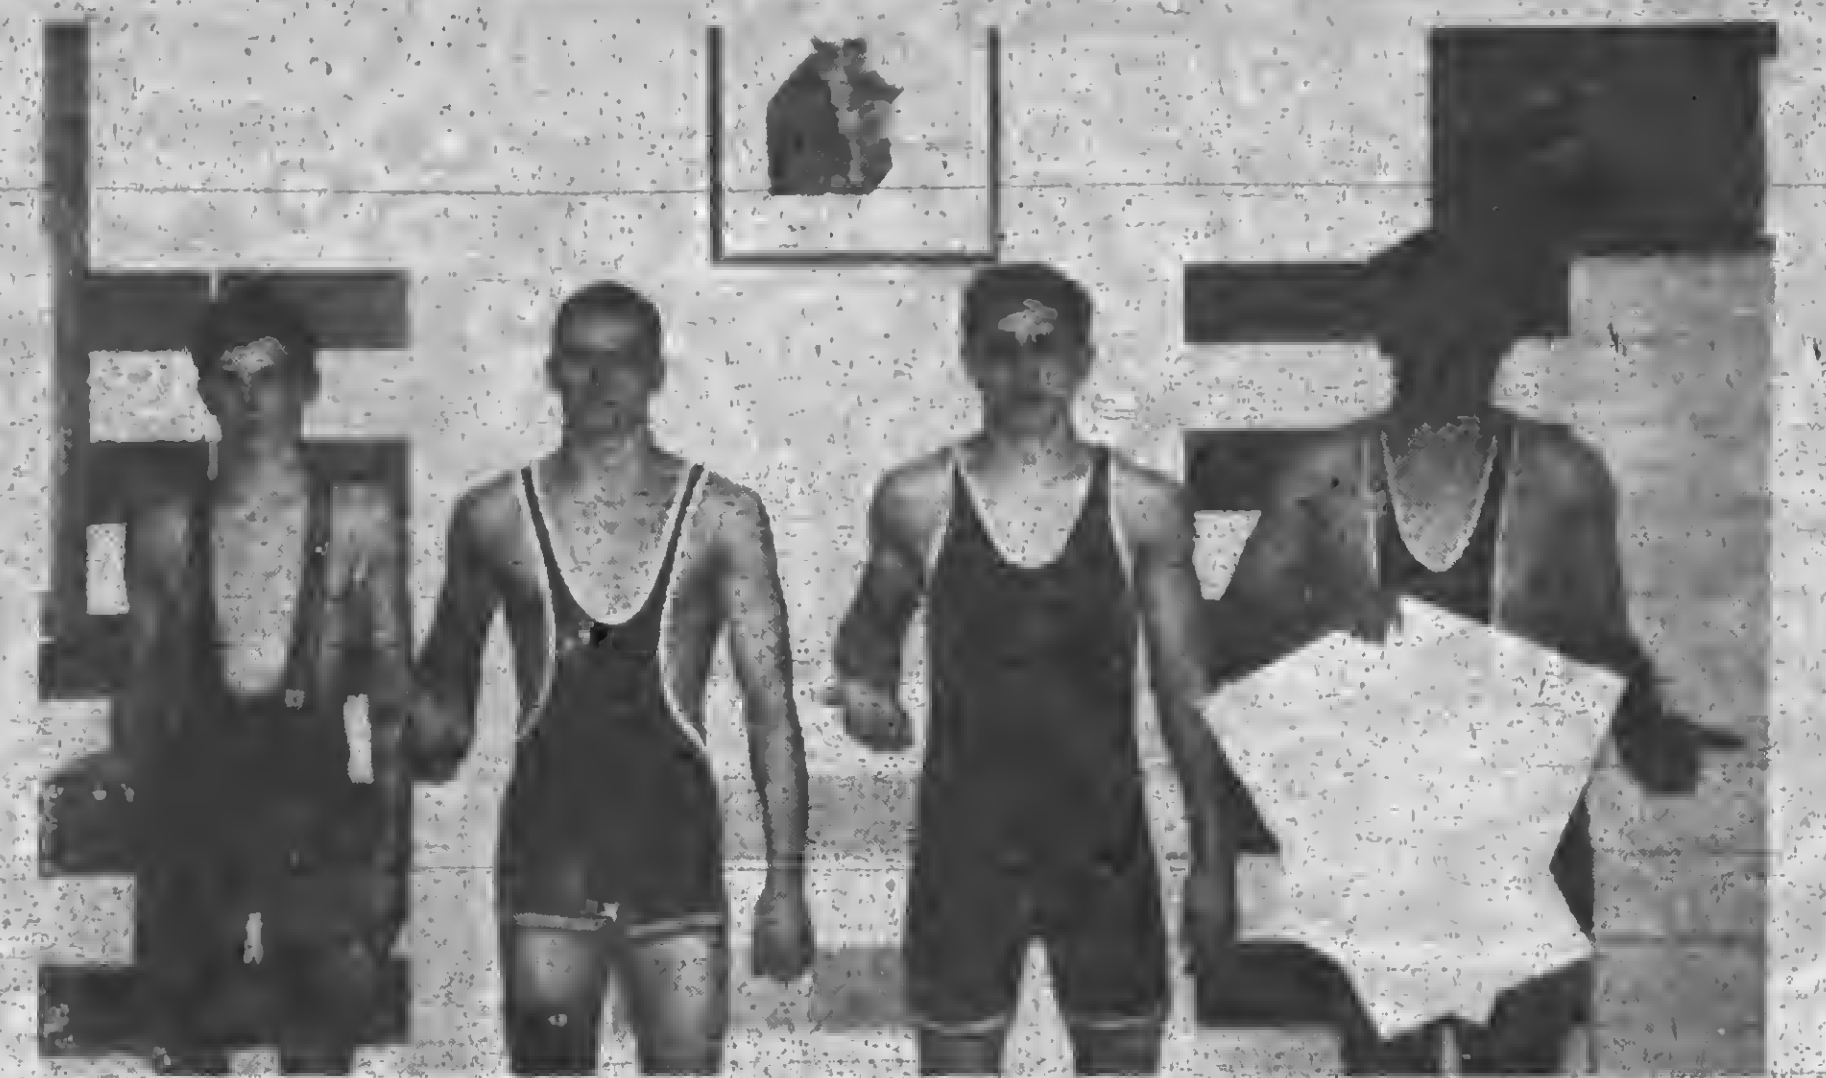

#1 doubles: Chris Matye and David Dobulis won 6-1, 6-0.

#2 doubles: Matt Dietel and Tony Krysczynski won 6-0, 6-2.

#3 doubles: Ron Zellers and Jamie Pfluecke won 6-0, 6-0.

In exhibition matches Sara Warner and Jerri Lovell won 6-1 while Traci Allison and Sara Ritt won 6-4.

The Rayder tennis team's next match will be Thursday, May 6 at Grayling, weather permitting.

A contingent of two Charlevoix and two Petoskey wrestlers traveled to a freestyle and Greco-Roman wrestling tournament in Owosso this past weekend and brought back several medals. Between 500 and 600 wrestlers from around the state competed in the tournament. Cody Johncheck (left) of Petoskey wrestling at 103 pounds placed second in both freestyle and Greco-Roman. Ernie Wynn (second from left) of Petoskey wrestled at 143 pounds in freestyle and placed second and wrestled at 154 pounds in Greco-Roman and placed third. Ron Haggard (second from right) of Charlevoix took second at 167 pounds in freestyle and second at 182 pounds in Greco-Roman. He weighs 154 pounds, but chose to move up to a higher weight class in order to go against better competition. Matt Skippergosh (right) of Charlevoix, wrestling at 209 pounds, placed first in both freestyle and Greco-Roman. It was the first time he had wrestled Greco-Roman. The team was accompanied to the meet by Phil Christ who recently started a freestyle and Greco-Roman wrestling club in Charlevoix. He noted that some of the Petoskey and Charlevoix wrestlers have been working together recently and that the cooperative effort has worked out quite well.

Softball team boosts record to 7-3

The Rayder girls' softball team beat Traverse City St. Francis 5-3 in the first game of a double header shortened by rain Monday evening.

In the opening game, Charlevoix broke a 2-2 tie in the third inning and never relinquished the lead after that. Mary Jane Grunch got the pitching win allowing only four hits while striking out four and walking one. Charlevoix had seven hits in the game led by two singles from Melissa Cox and a double by Liz Grunch.

Rain forced the suspension of the second game after five innings with Traverse City St. Francis leading 8-3.

The win in the first game improved Charlevoix's season record to 7-3 overall and 4-1 in league play.

Charlevoix's next game will be Thursday, May 6 when the Rayders host Mancelona.

Baseball team falls to 1-7 on the season

An 11-4 loss to Traverse City St. Francis Monday afternoon dropped the Rayder baseball team's season record to 1-7. Charlevoix was leading game two of the scheduled double-header 3-2 when rain forced the suspension of the game after one inning of play.

In the opening game Jodi McGlinch took the pitching loss striking out three, walking four and giving up five hits in four innings. Brandon Webb threw an inning of relief.

Charlevoix could muster just four hits in the game, two of those were singles by McGlinch.

Charlevoix's next game will be Thursday, May 6 when the Rayders host Mancelona.

Charlevoix, 100 years ago and today

A couple of months ago David Miles of Charlevoix brought a collection of photos into the Courier office. The photos had been taken in 1893 by E.E. Bowman and showed various scenes around Charlevoix. The Courier staff thought it might be interesting to take a photographic look at just how Charlevoix has changed in the past 100 years. With that in mind, Courier photographer Laurie Lounsbury went out last week and tried to replicate Bowman's 1893 photos. A comparison of the 1893 and 1993 photos appears on pages 10 and 11 of this week's Charlevoix Courier.

Tuning up for the big show

Charlevoix music and art students have been tuning up and putting the finishing touches on their songs and artwork for the Charlevoix Public Schools "Celebration of the Arts" which will take place from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday, May 13 at the K-5 school. Art students will be displaying their work throughout the building while elementary and middle school music students will be performing in the gym.

Sheriff's department arrests fugitive from Newago County

Case to be featured on TV show

By L. Scott Swanson

Not everybody passing through Charlevoix County is the type of person you'd want to welcome with open arms. In fact, some of the people traveling through Charlevoix end up being welcomed by local police officers with handcuffs and closed doors with bars.

On May 5 the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department received a phone call from a resident of Melrose Township. The caller had noticed a man and a girl and felt there was something suspicious in the way they were behaving. He took down the license plate number on the car they were driving and notified the sheriff's department.

Upon receiving the call the sheriff's department ran a check on the license plate. Sure enough, the owner of the car, 49-year-old William Lee Newville, was wanted in Newago County on a charge of first degree criminal sexual conduct. Deputies were dispatched to the motel on U.S. 131 where Newville and the girl were staying and Newville was taken into custody without incident.

The sheriff's department contacted Newago County authorities to let them know that Newville had been apprehended. As Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater describes the reaction of the Newago police, "They were just as pleased as they could be. They said 'We'll be up today.'"

As things turned out, Newago detectives weren't alone when they Magical themes run through many of Lisle's novels, woven carefully with themes of the difficulties of childhood. Her Newbery Honor book, "Afternoon of Elves," combines both of these elements. "Sometimes kids are like elves: they feel invisible to the grown-up world," Lisle said. Lisle has always been fascinated by magical concepts. "Magic always existed in the world in the form of the unknown," she told the students.

Lisle punctured some magical theories about writing books for the fifth graders, explaining that writing isn't a magical process but rather a lot of very hard work. Wide-eyed children listened in disbelief as she told them, "Writing is just as hard for me as it is for you." The bad spellers in the crowd were snellthown when Lisle confessed

Zeroing in on the task of writing fiction, Lisle told students that the basis for writing fiction lies in two words - what if? "Take a real instance in life and then apply 'what if?' to it," she said.

City residents who are looking for some shade on a long term basis may wish to contact City Hall. The City of Charlevoix has approximately 40 young shade trees that they want to plant at the streetside. City residents who would like to have trees planted alongside the street in front of their home are asked to contact City Hall by calling 547-3270. There's no charge to have the trees planted. It's simply a matter of the City having the trees and wanting to plant them where people want them to be.

Letters to the editor

Support voiced for City Manager

Editor,

To the Charlevoix City Council and the thirty-one hundred and eight other residents of the City of Charlevoix (3,116 total population).

I think it is time to end the field day the area newspapers have had this past winter, quoting views of the seven or eight negative people who have been having their say, trying to downgrade officials both elected and appointed.

I am especially upset with the way city manager Mike Wiesner has been roasted and denigrated in public. No man should have to put up with the things said about him recently and laid out for everyone to think that all Charlevoixians feel the same.

Let me tell you a little bit about Mike Wiesner's job. He was hired to run the city according to our form of charter government, which was put in effect around 1976. Prior to 1976, we had a different form of government, which gave the elected mayor a great deal of power, and a city superintendent the job of overseeing things. Ever since the new charter was put into effect, we have gone through perhaps a half a dozen city managers, because some of the folks still think we're operating under the old way. Mike has been operating according to the charter, and the city is in good financial condition. You can't fault him for that. I compare our city charter to the merger of the Boyne City-East Jordan school district, which didn't work. If people want some other way of operating, they will have to take out petitions and get a charter change. We've got a budget in excess of $9,000,000, and this is 1993, not 1933, when the late Art Bergeon was running things. When we hire a manager, he should be compensated well, and allowed to do his job, which, by the way, is exceptional. Look what has been done under his leadership. We are the envy of every town twice our size all over the state of Michigan. I happen to be in a very unique unpaid position, when I go out on the parade circuit all over the state. Many people walk over to our parade outfit, and they always look everything over, and ooh and ah about how Charlevoix can do all the things we do. Last August, I went to Ypsilanti to set up for their parade. I had two well dressed gentlemen in their early 50s come up to me and mention how lucky we were to have such a fine administrator as Mike Wiesner at the helm of our city. They mentioned all the beautiful new parks and excellent facilities we have. When I was setting up for the parade in Frankenmuth, Wally Bronner and his son-in-law came over and commented about what a beautiful town we have. There is a letter that came the Chamber of Commerce from a lady on one of our resorts, who says every time she comes to town for the summer, she sees the flowers and tears well up in her eyes. She appreciates what the city is doing to make her life more pleasant.

We have so much to be thankful for in this little town, and we need to have more positive people helping one another instead of creating the vendetta atmosphere that has been so prevalent lately.

I started to think of some of the things Mike has accomplished in the years he has been here, and some of them are as follows: The Ferry Avenue beach park has been renovated and the ball ramps and beautiful parking lot are all new. The pavilions are there to be used for class reunions, family get togethers, and enjoyment by the area people, all at no charge. The playground equipment is outstanding. He is behind the renovating of the Depot Beach park, and negotiated settlement of the property with Mr. Robert Pew. When completed, the depot beach will be another showplace area and beach for families, comparable to Ferry Ave. He applied for and received grants for the north underbridge walkway and all new walkways along the pier. He was instrumental in getting a grant to build the fisherman's bridge pier on the south side of the channel. We have a new water treatment plant, paid for by government funds and updated by government funds, which is the envy of other towns that have water problems.

We have a new ball diamond, new score booths and concessions stand, and he is in the process of applying for a $400,000 grant for upgrading the ball park area. It will provide new lighting, black top rest rooms, sprinkling systems for all three parks, with sidewalks so kids can walk safely to the ball

...City Manager supported

parks. He was instrumental in getting the FAA to put all new runways and facilities at the airport, with 90 percent federal funds. Under his guidance, a new electrical substation was built for the growing needs of Charlevoix. He has seen that every sidewalk has been repaired or replaced in the city, and all streets in the city are in the process of being repaired or replaced. Many new electrical and water infrastructure has been upgraded or replaced; also, I read recently that a grant came through to put a new sidewalk from city limit to city limit along U.S. 31.

Mike was instrumental in the DDA being formed, and all the work being done downtown. He has hired several department heads to make this the most professionally run city of its size. The complete city motor pool has been brought up to date, and we have a great variety of new trucks and mechanized equipment for use by the street and light department to provide the excellent city services we enjoy. The ski hill now has a snow groomer, storage building, snow guns, and an upgraded lodge for the winter enjoyment by our children. He extended sewer services into Charlevoix Township so the area can grow. As most city lots are used up.

He saw that the fire department and police department additions were built on at city hall. The parking lot at Michigan beach was blacktopped. Shade trees were planted extensively all over town, and as a result, Charlevoix won a tree city USA award from the National Arbor Foundation. He has applied for it again. The city golf course is being upgraded, getting ready for its centennial. I understand it is the third oldest golf course in America. During this past winter, the interior of the chapel at the cemetery has been renovated. Mike also was instrumental in getting prison crews to help with city projects.

The marina downtown has been upgraded with new docks and Mike has encouraged cruise ships to locate here. And of course, there's the new bandshell. He is in the process of getting a grant for an under-bridge walkway on the south side of the bridge that will be incorporated into the new park that will be built by the DDA down by the Beaver Island Boat Co. Under his leadership, new welcome signs grace the entrances to the city, and signs such as those for the harbor, Mt. McSaba, the golf course, etc. are being made.

Many days when Marilyn and I are watering flowers, we see Mike going to work at 5:30 in the morning. He is very dedicated to his job, and is a real fixer-upper. When you consider the size of the budget he works with and the amount of government grants he has obtained to better our town, he is vastly underpaid.

Anyone who is progressive makes mistakes. The person who does nothing causes no controversy. Mike has done more in the last eight or nine years than has been done in the last 50 years. This has been a very long and probably one of the gloomiest winters in decades. It's time to start smiling, enjoying the spring flowers, and working together to make Charlevoix really the beautiful. Let's get behind Mike, and let the silent majority spend our energy helping each other. If we all put our thoughts to creative, positive things, what a town we can have.

Thanks,
Dale Boss

Panel appointment criticized

Editor,

The May 5, 1993 issue of your paper contained an article about the May 3, 1993 City of Charlevoix Council Meeting. I spoke at that meeting and you wrote about my statements.

My participation in that Council Meeting discussion came about due to the Council's discovery in the April 19, 1993 meeting that a set of Rules of Procedure for Council actions had been written in 1978 and are still in force. When I asked the six Councilmembers sitting on the dais if they knew of the existence of the Rules before that meeting, only two raised their hand.

The Council's Rules of Procedure contain Rule 31, which states "The Rules of Parliamentary practice in the latest edition of Roberts Rules of Order shall govern in all cases in which they are not inconsistent with the Standing Rules and Orders of this Council; of the Constitution of the State of Michigan, or of the Statutes thereof. The Charter of this City, or Ordinances thereto."

The Mayor exceeded his Authority when he established a Panel of Outsiders to conduct an investigation (Mayor's description of their activity) of the dismissal of the four Volunteer Firemen. Only Roberts Rules of Order, of those mentioned above speaks of the allowable method to be used in this situation.

A COMMITTEE had to be formed. To do this the Council first has to make a MOTION to form a COMMITTEE. The Council then must decide how the COMMITTEE will be appointed; how many members it shall have and what the scope of its rules of business shall be. Once all these DETAILS are attended to, the Council then must vote on the MOTION to form the COMMITTEE. None of this was done. The Mayor took it upon himself to form a Panel. Individual Councilmembers asked him how and why he did this and received no answer.

You stated in your article that the Mayor assembled the COMMITTEE at the direction of the Council. You are not correct in this statement. The word Direction appeared in the letter of March 25 (10 days after the Council Meeting) sent by the City Clerk to the four dismissed Volunteer Firemen. In the letter she said: "As a result of a directive given by the City Council at the March 15, 1993 regular meeting, a three man panel has been formed to conduct an outside review of the internal operations of the Fire Dept."

The Official Minutes of the March 15, 1993 Council Meeting shows no mention of a Directive for FORMATION of a REVIEW PANEL. Those Minutes show the following as pertains to the Fire Dept.

Mayor asked what power the Council had to overturn the decision to SUSPEND the four Volunteers. City Attorney answered "the Council can Investigate but not overturn."

Council Member Felter SUGGESTED a fact finding group be set up. He made no MOTION to do so.

Council Member Gross, FELT, a grievance board should be set up. He made no MOTION to do so.

Without a MOTION at the March 15, 1993 Council Meeting being made and voted in nobody had an AUTHORITY to do anything at that time, and in fact no AUTHORITY exists now and will not until the Council acts according to ROBERTS RULES of ORDER as set forth in their own RULES OF PROCEDURE.

Earlier, I stated the Mayor used the term INVESTIGATION to be done by OUTSIDERS.

The City Clerk's letter of March 25 said that the interviews with the Panel would be kept in the STRICTEST CONFIDENCE. The Mayor distributed the PANEL REPORT to the MANAGER, FIRE CHIEF and COUNCIL. The Firemen got theirs at the same time as members of audience at the April 19, 1993 Council Meeting.

Everything about this situation as to the Mayor's actions in the matter were OUT OF ORDER then and remain so.

The Council has the responsibility of now determining a method of correcting the situation and do it according to the Rules.

Charles C. Papineau

(Editor's note: In conversations with the Courier, Mayor Dave Novotny explained that city council members received the panel of inquiry report at the beginning of the April 19 council meeting and that the four former firemen as well as other members of the public and the press received copies of the report at the end of the meeting. City manager Mike Wiesner received a copy of the report the day after the meeting. The report was not discussed by the council at the April 19 meeting.)

Auction to fund new stove top

Jazz Ensemble will perform at coffee house

The Jordan River Arts Council presents its final Coffee House of this season featuring the Jazz Ensemble of East Jordan High School under the direction of Tom Steggall, Band Director, 7 p.m. - 9 p.m., Friday, May 14, at the Arts Center, 301 Main St., East Jordan.

This group of talented musicians includes Julie Mickey and Lisa Goebel on alto sax, Steve Goebel and Susan Mills on tenor sax, Rick Lundy, Ryan Nocksma, Ben Banfield and Jason Gaunt on trumpet, Mike Seirocki and Chris Weidlich on trombone, Sara Blair on Piano, Niki Goebel on bass and Kristen Shank on drums.

The Jazz Ensemble recently spent a day in a jazz invitational at Interlochen Music Camp. This workshop gave the Ensemble members a chance to learn from the instructors and students of Interlochen. The work increased their understanding of their instruments as well as pieces such as "Opus One," "Blues For Bart," and "Evergreen," which are part of their repertoire.

The public is invited and refreshments will be served. Entrance is by donation.

Caregivers invited to meeting

A meeting of the Charlevoix County Caregivers Support Group will be held Saturday, May 22 at 2 p.m. at the East Jordan Family Health Center, 601 Bridge St., East Jordan.

Anyone who is responsible for the care of a sick or frail person outside the hospital setting is invited. Those who must deal with the stresses of caring for a loved one at home or in a nursing home will find the group informational and enjoyable.

The meeting is free of charge. Refreshments will be served. Call Nancy Ellison at Charlevoix Area Hospital for information. Reservations not required.

...when local cops meet visiting criminals

came to pick up Newville, they were accompanied by a camera crew from the CBS TV program 48 hours. The TV show is working on an episode about young people who end up traveling and living under the influence of adults either willingly or as kidnap victims. This particular case was one of the cases the show was looking into. The camera crew filmed Newville being turned over to Newago County authorities and the 14-year-old girl being turned over to her parents.

Lasater said the incident was sad to witness. The girl was happy to see her parents, but said to leave Newville.

Lasater said the camera crew didn't give a specific date when the program will be aired, but said that it will be sometime within the next nine months.

While this particular arrest happened to be filmed for TV and that certainly makes it uncommon, in other ways it is not so uncommon. Lasater and Charlevoix City Police Chief Dennis Halverson say it's not at all unusual for local officers to end up arresting fugitives who for one reason or another happen to be passing through either the City of Charlevoix or Charlevoix County.

Halverson notes that according to traffic counts, on an average day more than 10,000 cars pass through town on US 31. Besides the overwhelming good part that passes through, there's also a criminal element," he stated. Of that criminal element, Halverson says probably a large portion move through without causing any trouble, however there are also some who do cause problems.

While city police have only two main trunklines, US 31 and M-66 to deal with, the sheriff's department's territory covers those two highways along with M-75, M-32 and US 131.

For the sheriff's department, a typical encounter with a fugitive begins with a traffic stop or from simply spotting someone suspicious - hitchhiking or hanging around the highway. Whenever deputies make a traffic stop, they run the person's name through the state's computer system. If it turns out that there's a warrant out for the person, the information is double-checked. Then the person may or may not be arrested, depending on the warrant.

Depending on the severity of the crime and how badly the fugitive is wanted, warrants can vary. Some warrants specify that a fugitive is to be arrested within a 25 mile radius of the source of the warrant. Other warrants can call for statewide or even nationwide pick-up.

Lasater said that often times when a fugitive is told about an outstanding warrant they will say something like "That's been taken care of." However, the officer has normally double-checked that possibility even before bringing the matter up to the fugitive.

City police often come in contact with fugitives due to a report of shoplifting, panhandling, defrauding an innkeeper or not paying at a restaurant. When the person is picked up and checked out, sometimes warrants turn up.

Lasater and Halverson both noted that problems with fugitives turning up in town occur much more frequently in the summer. On days or weekends when there are big events taking place in the county, it isn't at all unusual for local law enforcement officers to pick up people who have outstanding warrants elsewhere. Lasater said that in the summertime some of the problems occur with transient migrant workers following the crops. Halverson noted that Charlevoix also seems to be on the circuit followed by traveling criminals. Last summer the city police department and Chamber of Commerce cosponsored a seminar for local business people on how to recognize and thwart bands of traveling criminals.

Lasater said the sheriff's department receives reports of suspicious people almost every week. He said that surprisingly about half of the reports pan out and lead to an arrest. He estimated that the sheriff's department ends up picking up about 50 fugitives a year either through random reports of suspicious activity or from other law enforcement departments calling and saying that they think somebody they're looking for may be in the area. The sheriff's department has received one call as a result of the TV show America's Most Wanted. Sheriff's deputies checked out the report, but as it turned out the guy reported wasn't the fugitive.

The sheriff's department appreciates reports from citizens who spot something suspicious.

"We encourage it. Definitely," Lasater said. "This one (the recent arrest) is a classic example."

Halverson and Lasater both said that the fugitives passing through Charlevoix aren't always wanted for major crimes. Lasater said that he couldn't think of any fugitives the department had picked up for homicide, but he added that fugitives wanted for theft and assaultive crimes have been picked up. Halverson added that some of the transients checked out by the police department end up not having any problems with the law. "A lot of them are just law abiding drifters," he says.

Charlevoix City Fire Chief Doug Carver (left) and Mayor Dave Novotny (center) recently exchanged honorary plaques with Richard Bridge who is active in the fire department of Somerset, Tasmania. Bridge and his wife were in Charlevoix last week visiting Chuck and Audrey Lehman whom they met while the Lehmans were on vacation in Tasmania.

Charlevoix Yacht Club looking to grow into new headquarters

(Editor's note: The following story was written for the Courier by Ralph McRae. McRae is a former mayor and city council member who continues to be active in a number of civic endeavors.)

By L. Scott Swanson

There's no doubt about it. Charlevoix is a big boating town. Its three lakes are home for everyone from eager beginners to weather-beaten seamen. Charlevoix is blessed with not only a protected harbor, but two large bodies of water. If one is a little rough, the other is usually much calmer. On the downside, those large bodies of water are connected by a channel which crosses the main road through town, requiring a bridge which frequently interrupts automobile traffic.

It is estimated that there are more than 700 boat slips within the Charlevoix city limits, all filled each summer. Many more boats are kept on trailers or cradles. The total value of the boats exceeds $30 million, a few million more than the total value of all other motor vehicles registered in the city.

For many years the Charlevoix Yacht Club had its headquarters in the old Railroad Depot, to the north of the channel connecting Round Lake Harbor and Lake Charlevoix. In recent years there has been a tremendous growth in boating facilities along the Lake Charlevoix shoreline to the south of the same channel. Irish Boat Shop and Northwest Marina have space for 450 boats ranging in length from 20 feet to 70 feet. In 1991, when a suitable building became available on Ferry Avenue within walking distance of this growing boating district, the Charlevoix Yacht Club purchased it.

At the time of the building purchase, most of the Charlevoix Yacht Club members became stockholders. Becoming a member/stockholder requires a payment of $1,000. Installment payments can be arranged and a 12-month initial membership is offered. On an annual basis, the membership fee is $175. Since the Yacht Club purchased the building, it has been improved and expanded. It is now spacious enough to accommodate 150 members, nearly double the Yacht Club's present enrollment.

The current Charlevoix Yacht Club was launched in 1970. There had been a yacht club in the community in the 1930s, but at some point it had floundered. The modern-day Charlevoix Yacht Club is presently under the direction of Commodore Judy Gordon. Other officers in the club are: Vice Commodore Andy Allen; Mark Pierce, treasurer, and Kim Rowe, secretary. In addition to the officers, there are several committees which attend to club programs and projects.

The club is divided into two fleets - power and sail, each with its own fleet captain appointed by the Commodore. Power boats are divided into two classes - those with cabins and those without sleeping quarters.

For sailors the racing schedule runs from May 5 through Oct. 6 this year. Even prior to that many of the sailors participated in a series of tune-up meetings. The racing schedule is broken into three periods: spring, summer and fall. The regular races take place on Wednesday nights, but there are other special races throughout the season.

In addition to the races, there are

Log home company celebrates tenth anniversary

Town and Country Cedar Homes, the national builder known for fine hand-crafted white cedar homes, celebrated two anniversaries, as well as the strongest first quarter in the company's history, with a gathering of founders and employees, April 18, at Boyne Mountain Ski Resort.

"This Spring, Town and Country celebrates our 10th Anniversary creating unique and outstanding cedar homes. Simultaneously we celebrate our roots in Boyne Falls Log Homes, our predecessor company, founded 47 years ago," Town and Country President Steve Biggs told a gathering of employees, staff, and regional design managers.

Headquartered in Petoskey, Town and Country's network of regional offices includes Design Offices in Traverse City and Charlevoix, southern Michigan, and the Upper Peninsula, as well across the United States.

"A lot has happened in these years," Biggs continued. "Town and Country has representatives across the country. Our houses are going up from South Carolina to Colorado, Hawaii to Korea and Japan. We've been selected by some of the country's finest architects as their building system of choice."

"But, we have never lost sight of our roots in Boyne Falls Log Homes," Biggs emphasized. At the end of World War II, Biggs related, Bernie Kondradi and Ben Organic Pooled a northern Michigan cedar swamp, 5300, and a small sawmill to start building log homes. They were joined by Julius Kowalski, a talented builder, craftsman, and woodsman.

By the 1970s, Boyne Falls Log Homes was shipping log homes around the US. A team of young go-getters, including Biggs and Bob Kinney, organized a national sales effort and sales soared.

In 1983, gambling that the hand-crafting techniques of the log home industry could be applied to construction of custom wood homes, Biggs and Kinney founded Town and Country Cedar Homes, which grew to become the parent company of Boyne Falls Log Homes.

Crucial to the success of the two companies was the patenting by Kowalski, of a post and sill wall system, applicable to building superior walls with any style wood exterior and interior finish.

Using the post and sill system, Town and Country carpenters hand-craft each home in component sections. Walls, roofs, complex timbers, custom doors, and flooring, are built to individual architectural plans. As components these are then shipped to job sites for final construction. The result is homes of unusual craftsmanship.

"Because we offer our customers something unique," Biggs told his audience, "because we work from the tree to the key, we are different. We can offer more than the standard commodity of a conventional house."

"We are also able to control the cost and quality of wood at a time when lumber prices are sky-rocketing. It is for these reasons that we have survived and put the recession behind us," Biggs stated.

"And now Town and Country has just completed the strongest first quarter in the history of the company," Biggs announced.

Biggs concluded by telling the group, "This anniversary celebration is also our regular quarterly meeting. This is the time to announce the employee of the quarter — The Employee of the First Quarter is All of Us. Happy Anniversary."

Miss Charlevoix featured in magazine

"Miss Charlevoix" in Lake Charlevoix is featured in the May edition of Michigan Living magazine.

An article, titled "Cruise Lake Charlevoix," talks about the two-hour narrated boat excursion on Lake Charlevoix, Michigan's fourth largest inland lake, as an alternative for water lovers who don't want to dive in. Cruising runs from early spring through fall and includes complementary apples, grown locally, and fresh cider to complement fall colors. No article notes.

Michigan Living, the official publication of AAA Michigan, is circulated monthly into the homes of 1.5 million members.

Names in business

Mary Ellen Rizzo, radiology technologist, at Charlevoix Area Hospital recently received mammography certification.

Rizzo received her training at Macomb Hospital Center where she worked for 10 years prior to coming to Charlevoix Hospital in 1992.

Mammography certification is received after extensive study and testing.

Rizzo is the mammography supervisor at the hospital. This designation is to satisfy state and federal regulations in order to assure continuing quality assurance in her area. The hospital's mammography program is certified by the Michigan Department of Public Health and the American College of Radiology (ACR).

Julie Ann Gray of the Emmet/Charlevoix chapter of the Michigan Association of Legal Secretaries was recently among six Michigan Legal Secretaries to become certified by the National Association of Legal Secretaries. The certification program requires knowledge and proficiency in seven different categories: Written Communication Skills and Knowledge; Ethics; Legal Secretarial Procedures; Legal Secretarial Accounting; Legal Terminology; Techniques; and Procedures; Exercise of Judgment; and Legal Secretarial Skills.

Dr. Robert C. Martin of Charlevoix was recently among more than 180 physicians from the state of Michigan who were honored by the Michigan State Medical Society for providing more than 50 years of service to the medical profession.

The Michigan State Medical Society is a statewide professional association of 11,500 medical doctors and is affiliated with the American Medical Association.

Senior citizens plan progressive lunch

The Senior Centers of Charlevoix County will be celebrating the 50th Anniversary of the Senior Center movement in America during Senior Center Week, May 9 to 15.

A "Progressive Lunch" will be held May 12 starting in Charlevoix at 10:30 a.m. for Hors d'oeuvres and games. Miss LaBlanc's "Lost Cords" from the elementary school will entertain with music.

After this, the seniors will climb aboard the Commission On Aging Trolley, stopping at East Jordan's Center for a sumptuous lunch of roast pork or baked chicken. After more entertainment, the group will travel to Boyne City for desserts. Here, door prizes will be distributed.

Each center will display projects worked on at their centers. The East Jordan Center is famous for the fine quilting they do throughout the year. The Charlevoix Center has offered several classes in art, some in crafts, chair caning and oral history. Finished products will be on display including the beginnings of a history of local schools by the oral history class.

The Charlevoix Center has T-shirts and sweatshirts on sale which commemorate the occasion. The cost, $10 for T-shirts ... $15 for sweatshirts ... caps are $5.

#3 doubles - Ron Zellers and Jamie Pluecke won 6-0, 6-1.

In exhibition doubles play Sarah Ritt and Sarah Warner won 6-3.

Wrestlers fare well at state meet

Four Charlevoix wrestlers traveled to Kentwood this past weekend to compete in the U.S. Wrestling Association Freestyle and Greco-Roman State Wrestling Meet.

Matt Skippergosh was Charlevoix's top finisher, placing second in the 209 pound Greco-Roman weight class. Skippergosh wrestled five times, winning four times on pins and losing on points to last year's national champion.

Dan Harris also wrestled at 209 pounds and placed fourth in Greco-Roman. Harris was wrestling in his first meet. Phil Christ, who is coaching the freestyle and Greco-Roman wrestling club, said Harris came out about a week and a half ago and has been training hard and progressing rapidly.

Jason Mativa placed fifth in the 167 pound Greco-Roman weight class. Mativa wrestled seven times and went 5-2 on the day.

Ron Haggard also wrestled in the 167 pound weight class. Although he wrestled well, he failed to place in the top five.

There were approximately 1,000 wrestlers competing at the meet in front of crowds of 8,000 to 10,000 people. Among the people attending the tournament were two Olympians and a couple of world champions.

Christ said that other wrestling coaches from across the state were impressed by the performance of the Charlevoix wrestlers. Following the meet, the Charlevoix squad was invited to attend a series of Central Michigan University training camps. Christ is hoping to take the wrestlers to the camps and also to the Great Lakes wrestling meet at Purdue University later this month. The Charlevoix Matt Club, under the direction of Greg Bryan has been helping the freestyle and Greco-Roman club with travel expenses, but in order for the club to attend upcoming camps and meets, they are going to have to raise approximately $300 to cover lodging costs. Anyone interested in helping with fundraising may contact the club by calling 547-5816.

STATE OF MICHIGAN IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

CAROLYN J. DAWSON, ROBERT C. NEWKIRK, and ALAN W. NEWKIRK, Plaintiffs,

File: C93-229-16-CH

JENNIE L. COPP, ROBERT M. SONTAG and DIANE M. SONTAG, husband and wife;
JEFFREY H. JENSEN and KATHY RAYE SUWINSKI JENSEN, husband and wife; and RAYMOND H. SUWINSKI and CLAIRE M. SUWINSKI, husband and wife, and all heirs, successors, assigns and executors of the within named defendants, and any other parties claiming interest. Defendants.

Scott T. Beatty (P24202)
Attorney for Plaintiffs
101 W. Hurbit
Charlevoix, MI 49720
(616) 547-4059

ORDER TO ANSWER

At a session of said Court, held in the courthouse for said Circuit, on this 3rd day of May, 1993, PRESID- ING: The Honorable Richard M. Pajtas

On 04/29/93, an action was filed by the above named Plaintiffs, against the above named Defendants, in the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, to quiet title to real property situated in the Township of Eveline, County of Charlevoix, Michigan, and more specifically identified as follows:

In the Township of Eveline, County of Charlevoix, Michigan: Commencing at a 1-inch iron pipe at the south quarter corner of Section 33, T33N, R6W; thence along the South line of said section South 89 degrees 49'10" West 2630.36 feet to a 3/4 inch pipe at the Southwest corner of said section; thence along the West line of said section North 00 degrees 18'24" West 2747.87 feet; thence South 58 degrees 38'40" East 552.72 feet (recorded as South 58 degrees 50' East 548.9 feet); thence South 53 degrees 35'00" East (recorded South 53 degrees 34' East) 196.30 feet to a 1/2 inch iron at the Northwest corner of the Alan W. Newkirk, Carolyn J. Dawson, and Robert C. Newkirk property as described in Liber 326, Page 554; Charlevoix County records, being the POINT OF BEGINNING of this description, thence North 16 degrees 19'06" East 75.41 feet to the shore of Lake Charlevoix; thence along said shore South 49 degrees 51'30" East 22.81 feet; thence continuing along said shore South 54 degrees 19'00" East 23.90 feet; thence leaving said shore South 12 degrees 04'28" West 76.96 feet to a 1/2 inch iron at the Northeasterly corner of said Newkirk property; thence North 53 degrees 35'00" West (recorded as North 53 degrees 34' West) 100.00 feet to the point of beginning, being a part of Government Lot 1 of Section 33, T33N, R6W. The above described parcel includes all land to the water's edge of Lake Charlevoix North-easterly of the courses described as being along said shore.

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Defendants JENNIE L. COPP, ROBERT M. SONTAG, and DIANE M. SONTAG, as above named, and any heirs, successors, assigns, or others claiming thereunder, and any other parties claiming interest, shall answer or take such other action as may be permitted by law on or before June 29, 1993. Failure to comply with this order will result in a judgment by default against Defendants for the relief demanded in the complaint.

PLEASE NOTE that a hearing will be held on: June 28, 1993 at 2:15 p.m. in the Circuit Courtroom of the Charlevoix County Building in Charlevoix, Michigan, in connection with this matter.

Not that shaking hands with the Governor was going to completely make the pain go away, but what could it hurt? Kevin Whitley of Charlevoix received a vaccination shot at the District 3 Health Department from Suzette Daly RN and then received a handshake from Michigan Governor, John Engler. Engler was visiting Charlevoix County for the Republican Lincoln Day Dinner. He stopped in at the health department in honor of Michigan Preschool Immunization Week.

cruises and many other special events. One big annual event for the club is Venetian Weekend and the Venetian Boat Parade. Upcoming social events include the Annual Commodore's Ball, June 26, Vegas Night, August 28, the End of the Summer Party and Awards Presentation. Gloria Barnes is the club's current social organizer and she's currently working with Charlevoix clothing shops to put together a splashy Spring into Summer fashion show.

On May 28 there will be a get acquainted and hospitality evening. The evening will offer an introduction for people who are interested in becoming yacht club members. The membership campaign, under the leadership of Tom Barnes, will continue throughout the summer. It is not necessary to own a boat to join the yacht club. The Charlevoix Yacht Club has a casual atmosphere and a private bar. Until May 28 the club will be open each Wednesday and Friday from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m. for people to stop in and check out the club. After May 28, the club will be open to members each Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m. and on Saturdays from 11 a.m. to midnight. A new feature this summer will be Sunday morning pancake breakfasts.

Industrial arts students to compete in regional competition

Friday, May 14, people in Northern Michigan will have an opportunity to view a tremendous display of student talent when Manclona High School hosts the 1993 Regional Industrial Arts Competition. Students in grades 7 - 12 from 17 counties in the northern part of the lower peninsula will be entering shop projects and drawings completed this year in their Industrial Arts, Technology, and Vocational Education classes in competition for ribbons and certificates, and a chance to compete at the state level the following week at Grand Rapids.

Students compete by grade levels in many classifications of architectural and mechanical drawing, electrical, graphic arts, machine shop, plastics, woodwork, wrought metals, etc. Winners of first through fourth place in each classification qualify for the state competition held in conjunction with the 65th annual convention of the Michigan Industrial & Technology Education Society.

The Regional Fair is open to the public from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m., Friday, May 14, at the Manclona High School Gym. There is no charge for this program, and everyone is encouraged to attend.

Recall petition wording approved

Wording on a petition to recall second ward city councilman Ted Felter was approved by the County election board Monday. The petition was submitted by second ward resident Gabé Campbell on April 27.

Following approval of the petition wording, the petition will be returned to Campbell who will then have 90 days to collect approximately 100 signatures from second ward voters.

The petition seeks to recall Felter for "His failure to communicate with, or respond to, his constituents in the Second Ward of the City of Charlevoix. His answering service is on to receive phone calls, but it is almost impossible to talk to him, face-to-face, about any issue of concern to the voters. Part of his duty as a councilperson should be to be available to the people whom he represents."

Felter has termed the recall effort "a bunch of crap." He concedes that his work frequently requires that he work long hours, often out of town. He also said that since he is single he is often away from his home in the evening. But he says he feels he has done a good job as a city council member since taking office in 1991.

Campbell said he wasn't surprised by the election board's approval of the petition wording. "I thought they would," he said. "That's a reasonable request that if a person is going to be a public servant that they be available."

Campbell said he doesn't feel it will take long to gather the necessary signatures. "There's been a lot of people asking, 'Where's your petition?'" I don't think it'll take too long. I was hoping that we could get it done in a week or two."

Annual Field Day scheduled May 14

Students from the trainable mentally impaired, severely impaired and preschool programs operated by the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District and clients from Antrim-Kalkaska Industries, Bergmann Center and Gaylord Opportunity Center will be participating in the Twelfth Annual Charlevoix Invitational Field Day, Friday May 14 at the Charlevoix High School track and field. The event is cosponsored by the Knights of Columbus, Masons and Odd Fellows of Charlevoix. Participants compete in events such as broomball, ring toss, 50 yard dash and walk, wheelchair races, softball throw, running kickball, standing long jump and team relay races. Following the competition there is a dinner and dance with entertainment by the Tag-Alongs.

School proposes 12 percent local tax increase

Millage decrease more than offset by property value increases and new construction

By Laurie Lounsbury

In simple terms of dollars and cents, the Charlevoix Board of Education will be asking voters to approve a 12 percent tax increase worth an additional $880,665.64 if the state of Michigan's Proposal A fails. The Board of Education has prepared two millage ballot propositions, one in the event of proposal A passing, and one in the event of its failure.

The passing or failing of Proposal A will make very little difference to the current economic status of the Charlevoix School District, but it will effect school funding in the future. "If (Proposal A) will give us some stability on funding," said board member Scott Beatty.

Superintendent Dr. Roberta Jackson agreed with Beatty, adding, "If it doesn't pass, the alternatives could be much worse for us."

School Business Manager Rich Kelly presented the board with two possible ballot proposals for the June 14 election. If Proposal A fails, the school district will ask for 16.55 voted operational mills. This is a slight reduction in mills compared to 1992's 17.05 voted operational mills. However, if Proposal A fails, the new tax assessment increases will remain in place, giving the school a much larger tax base for the millage. The school district tax base will be $327,046,745 after subtracting the portion of the tax base earmarked for the City's Downtown Development Authority (DDA). That compares to last year's tax base of $277,281,168. A voted millage of 16.55, added to the allocated millage of 8.2419, will net the schools a total of $8,108,110, which is $880,665 higher than last year's $7,227,444 of revenue. This equates to a 12 percent local tax revenue increase over last year's school revenue.

If proposal A passes, the school district will be allocated 18 mills and will ask for 7.75 in voted millage for a total of 25.75 mills. Proposal A would roll back this year's property tax assessment increases to some degree and cap future increases at five percent or the rate of inflation, whichever is less. It will also increase the state's sales tax from four to six percent.

In other business, the board approved the appointment of Richard Swenor as the new elementary school principal. Swenor has served as the Assistant Principal and Athletic Director at the Charlevoix High School since 1985. He will replace Vane Smith, who is retiring at the end of the present school year.

Explanation of property tax terms

Market Value - The dollar value a home would theoretically sell for.

Assessed Value (or SEV) - Fifty percent (i.e. one-half) of market value.

A mill - $1 for every $1,000 of assessed value.

Calculating your property taxes - Number of mills x assessed value = property tax bill. For example, the owner of a $40,000 home paying 25 mills in school taxes would be paying (.025 x $20,000) or $500 per year in school property taxes.

Changes in the prom since 1968

Women's gloves are a thing of the past

By Laurie Lounsbury

Twenty-five years ago, young Charlevoixans danced the night away at their prom with the theme, "Some Enchanted Evening." This year, Charlevoix prom-goers will be dancing to the very same theme with a french twist to it - "Une Soiree Enchantee." As the French say, the more things change, the more they remain the same.

Here's a closer look at how the gala event has evolved over 25 years, with input from couples who attended the 1968 prom and a couple who will attend this year's prom.

Prom Dresses

Twenty-five years ago, prom dresses were purely pastels. Arlene Supernaw Blissett and Connie Smith Doan can attest to that. They both attended the '68 prom with their high school sweethearts Terry Blissett and Ralph Doan, who later became their husbands. Kris Lieberman Schaperkottler also attended the 1968 prom, and clearly remembers the dress codes of yesteryear. Dresses were always long, mostly demure and definitely worn with the appropriate length gloves. "If the dress was sleeveless, you wore elbow length gloves. If the dress had sleeves, then you wore short gloves," Schaperkottler said.

Today's dresses come in a bold array of hues, with basic black topping the list. Short, tight, flirty dresses were prom favorites over the last few years, but this year heralds a return to the full length gown. While the length of this year's dress may closely resemble the prom dresses of 1968, little else does. Thigh high slits and slinky bodices mark today's dresses, along with an abundance of decolletage, which was unheard of in 1968. Then and today, a grave concern was showing up in the same dress as one of your friends. The 1968 solution - make your own dress. Amy Freidinger, who will be attending this year's prom had the 1993 solution - go shopping in Saginaw.

Beauty Preparations

The perfect hairdo has always been the goal of women attending the prom. In 1968, a popular everyday hairdo was the flip. Since the prom called for something extra special, the girls raced to the beauty parlor to have exotic, piled high hairdos crafted on the top of their heads. Bee hives and french twists were the most sought after prom-dos. Both Schaperkottler and Blissett remember what happened to the sky-high, lacquered hairdos. "I hated it," Blissett said of her hairdo. "I came home and dipped my head in the sink and that was that." Schaperkottler remembers making hairdo test runs before the prom. "A week in advance we'd make a trial run to the beauty shop. Then we ran home to wash it out," Schaperkottler said. Doan went with her basic flip. "It was the flip that flopped before the evening was over," she said.

Freidinger won't have time for the luxury of a trial run on a hairdo. She'll be playing in a tennis tournament the day of the prom, returning home with just a hair's breadth of time to do her do. Freidinger is planning to have her long, blonde hair pulled up into a french twist, reminiscent of hairdos 25 years ago. Hopefully her french twist won't meet an untimely fate in the bathroom sink.

Manicures weren't a consideration for the prom 25 years ago, perhaps because nails were hidden under white-gloved hands. Women to-

Prom attire, hair styles and prom preparations have changed in the 25 years that have elapsed since the 1968 Charlevoix High School prom which was attended by Terry and Arlene (Supernaw) Blissett.

Bloodmobile to visit May 20

Charlevoix spring Bloodmobile visit will be Thursday, May 20 from 1 p.m. to 6:45 p.m. at the Leslie Shapton American Legion Hall. Members of the Legion donate their facility for this purpose.

The blood drive committee is hoping that at least 100 pints of blood will be donated. The goal of 100 was missed by only one pint in January.

A successful blood drive is made possible by the help of many people. Marilyn Izor handles publicity. Andi Mathews schedules volunteers for the day and members of Beta Sigma Phi staff the canteen during the day. They are coordinated by Alison Joseph. Esther Carey recruits the registered nurses needed to supplement the Red Cross staff. Nancy Fowler is responsible for callers and keeps the master schedule. Candy Smith and Diane Wojan, with help from Vital Options' exercisers, provide fresh fruit for the canteen.

Ralph McRae from the Charlevoix Lions Club recruits the men to unload and re-load the Bloodmobile van. He uses members from the Lions Club when possible.

First State Bank provides coffee and Oleson's Food Stores provide juice for the canteen. When enough homemade cookies are not donated, Oleson's also supplies cookies. It requires over 20 dozen homemade cookies per drive.

It is safe to donate blood every 56 days. Our area has many 4-season donors... people giving four times a year. Anyone 17 years of age, weighing at least 110 pounds and in good health is eligible to give blood. It only takes about an hour.

You may call Nancy Fowler at 547-9314 for additional information or if you care to bake and donate cookies.

day favor bold manicures, complete with little designs etched strategically on nails.

Having a tan for the 1968 prom was out of the question unless Charlevoix experienced an unseasonably warm spring or if a person was fortunate enough to have just returned from a sunny spring vacation. Tans are de rigueur with today's skin-exposing dresses. Girls scurry in droves to the tanning parlors, starting well in advance of the date in order to achieve the perfect, artificially induced tan.

Mens' Wear

Young men today are infinitely more debonaire than their 1968 counterparts. In '68, men wore sport coats and slacks. Today, the guys rent tuxes. The really savvy guys get cummerbunds to match their date's dress. Jason Frabis, who will be escorting Freidinger, didn't have to exert himself to match Freidinger. "She's wearing black, so I got a black cummerbund," he said.

Wheels

Not much has changed here, except the year and model of the car. A freshly washed and waxed car is a must. When Freidinger's mom attended the prom, her date borrowed his dad's 1965 Buick Skylark. Frabis will borrow the Freidinger's Buick Park Avenue. Doan and her then sweetheart Ralph didn't fare as well. "He flipped a coin with his brother for the good car and he lost. We went in the old Falcon station wagon," Doan said.

Apres Prom Activities

In 1968, prom goes usually went to a late night breakfast given by someone's thoughtful parents. After that, the party was over, with a 2 a.m. curfew strictly obeyed, at least according to the women of that generation. Freidinger, a freshman, has a post-prom curfew to return home, but will go back out with Frabis to a 3 a.m. breakfast at Nanney's. Both Freidinger and Frabis gazed with wide-eyed innocence in response to questions about all night parties and drinking. It was Freidinger's mother who provided the information that some couples will be renting hotel rooms for all night parties.

Photo Opportunities

This tradition must date back to the first cave prom, when couples visited their relative's caves and had their pictures etched on cave stone walls. Prom goes will get all dolled up and make the rounds of visits to their relatives' homes to have an avalanche of pictures taken. "We had pictures taken for hours on end," Blissitt recalls.

"They still do that."

Location

Up to 1968, proms were held in the middle school gym. Parents could hang over the balcony railing and observe the festivities. In '68, the prom moved to the Belvedere Casino, and it's been on the move ever since. This year the prom will be held at Birchwood Farms in Harbor Springs.

Dinner

Freidinger and Frabis will be dining at the chic Andante in Petoskey. The hot spot in 1968 was the Chimney Corner. Chimney Corner is now La Senorita.

Cost

Even with the extra frills today, the cost of the prom has risen more or less in keeping with inflation.

EDITH

New bridge railing is not good

by EDITH GILBERT

"I thought it was a temporary railing while the Bridge was being repaired," said Jeannine Wallace at the DDA meeting (Downtown Development Authority).

"It's not safe," added Dr. Jeff Porter.

"It's not child proof," Dale Boss explained to me later over the phone. When a private citizen builds a deck over 24 inches off the ground, the state requires one to erect a non-climbable railing, a minimum of 36 inches total height and vertical spindles no more than 4 and 1/2 inches between, so that no little child can get stuck.

The new railing on the west side of the Bridge is more than climbable. It's a tempting step ladder for young folks to scramble up on and for toddlers to fall through into the channel.

Boss claims the State of Michigan is violating one of its' own safety laws and he may well have a point.

I asked Tom Coleman, district engineer in Cadillac, for the State Highway Department, "Why was the graceful old railing removed and replaced by the unattractive see-through guard rail?"

"He told me the bridge repair project was a joint effort, 80 percent funded by the Federal Government and 20 percent by the State, and that the new railing conforms to the federal crash proof regulations and meets current safety standards for vehicles.

It's O.K. to have standards for vehicles. But what about safety standards for men, women, children and puppies on a sidewalk that is now 6 inches narrower, and that bears higher than average foot traffic all summer?

A asked Coleman who has the decision making authority regarding the railings on the Bridge. He gave me that name of his boss, the Director of Transportation in Lansing for the Department of Transportation, Mr. Patrick Nowak. This nice gentleman promptly returned my call. I explained that the Charlevoix Bridge is the focal point for visitors and residents alike. It's the first place every summer that a parent or grand-parent takes the little tots to spend hours watching the bridge go up and down. It's a rite of passage when a youngster is permitted to go downtown across the bridge alone. It's a place people are supposed to walk their bikes across. Young mothers enjoy pointing out the Beaver Island as it plows through the channel to their toddlers in strollers. It's where young lovers take pictures of each other with the lighthouse in the background. It's the spot where senior citizens reminisce together while watching the sun go down.

The Bridge is the crown jewel for the beautification of downtown. It not only needs to be safe, but ought to fit in with the entire scheme of what is now being accomplished by the DDA. New brick-trimmed sidewalks have already been installed. New lights are going up. Attractive kiosks to guide visitors are in the works. Window boxes for planting flowers will be offered to downtown shops. Our buzzing downtown is the envy of most communities, thanks to the vision of earlier residents who developed East Park.

In addition to the new guard rail, you may have noticed two large rectangular, metal containers placed near the signal that goes up and down. The location of the future signals will be closer to the bridge than they are now. I trust the old signal stands will be removed.

Nowak has 500 on-going projects in the State of Michigan, and his job is not easy. Drunken drivers are suing the State when they go off the road and hit a tree, he tells me. Then the State is blamed because the tree is too close to the road!

Still, before this fall when the Michigan Highway Department installs a railing on the east side of the bridge, we need to know that both east and west railings are safe for people, children and pets as well as vehicles. They should be as attractive as the ones that were replaced. And they need to match each other, which the railings along the channel don't do. (One one side there are four bars and on the other side there are only three bars.)

Nowak promised to get back to me. This is a bridge I want to cross before I come to it!

EDITH GILBERT

This is the old-style bridge railing on the east side of the bridge. The railing on the west side has been replaced by a new three-rail horizontal apparatus which is drawing complaints regarding safety and aesthetics.

Sixth grade students (from left) Liza Gorkiewicz, Kadie Bogart, Jessica Core and Jamie Gowell recently won the state Future Problem Solving competition. If they are able to raise sufficient funds, they will travel to the International Competition June 10-13 at the University of Wisconsin in Madison, Wisconsin.

Sixth graders win state problem-solving competition

(Editor's note: The following story was written for the Courier by Ralph McRae. McRae is a former city mayor and councilman who continues to be involved in a number of civic endeavors.)

By Ralph McRae

Jamie Gowell, Jessica Corey, Kadie Bogart and Liza Gorkiewicz are Charlevoix Middle School students who recently distinguished themselves and the school by taking top honors among 57 state teams in the Future Problem Solving competition. The big shining trophy they brought home to Charlevoix is as tall as they are. Winning the state competition qualified the team to compete in the International Future Problem Solving competition June 10-13 at the University of Wisconsin in Madison, Wisconsin.

Between now and the International competition, the four young ladies will be working with middle school teachers Tom Sothard and Anne Shindorf, training and studying to improve their problem solving skills. In Future Problem Solving competitions, teams of junior high students are given a problem and within a short period of time must develop not only a proposed solution, but also reasons supporting their proposed solution.

In order to compete in the International competition the team must raise $2,000 to cover travel costs. Financial assistance from individuals, service clubs and businesses would be appreciated. The team is also collecting sales slips from Glen's. People wanting to contribute to the fundraising effort may contact Sheila Bogart at 547-4858.

To get a better perspective of the four girls involved in the competition, all four of them were interviewed. Each of the four has a distinctly different character from the others, but that seems to work well for this particular competition.

Kadie Bogart celebrated her 12th birthday the day after the interview. She is a sixth grade student and active not only in Future Problem Solvers, but in a variety of other things. Her favorite sport is cross country running. She is also in the sixth grade band and has taken piano lessons. She limits herself to two hours of TV per day and thinks there is too much violence on TV. She also tries to eat plenty of vegetables and fruit and bypass junk foods. When she is older, she would like to become a pediatrician. She has her own pet, a young dalmation dog.

Liza Gorkiewicz is 11 and said winning the Future Problem Solving competition has given her a lot of confidence. Future Problem Solving is the type of activity she enjoys because she likes looking for information. Gorkiewicz also watches only a limited amount of TV. She enjoys cross country running and bicycling. Gorkiewicz is interested in archeology, but in terms of a career feels it would be more practical to become a computer expert. She has several pets including Priscilla, a Siamese cat, another cat named Pumpkins, two Guinea pigs and a few fish.

(To be continued next week.)

Letters to the editor

Saddened by atmosphere of criticism

Editor,

I'm sitting here in Gaylord, Mich., having left Charlevoix in 1989 for employment, and I'm so saddened by the attitude of my friends and acquaintances in Charlevoix, re: elected officials, and various management persons, Mike Wiesner, Doug Carver, the volunteer fireman, etc. What has happened to the town that was so co-operative and pleasant to live in? I just finished Dale Boss' letter in the Courier on May 12, and I do so agree with him. Week after week, I read of all the accusations, citing incidents, and petty personality differences, all the way from City Manager to local special interest groups, and it breaks my heart. Wake up you people of Charlevoix. You have one of the safest, cleanest, progressive towns in Michigan. Start doing helpful things; positive things to keep it that way. Say something nice about the town and the facilities that make it that way. You have something very special in Charlevoix, that Dale Boss and Marilyn can see every time they take their wonderful "Petunia Truck" on its trips. Please stop the petty fighting, smile and get on with caring for your town and all the good things that you can do!

Sincerely,

Joan M. Hoffman

P.S. I'll be there again for the Petunia's, Miss ya!

Manager praise overdue

Editor,

Hurrah for Dale Boss and his supportive letter of our City Manager, Mike Wiesner! Dale expressed the overdue thanks and recognition of Mr. Wiesner's un-flagging contributions to our city that many of us feel and appreciated, but haven't taken the time to verbalize. It's time someone did, and I personally thank Dale Boss.

Sincerely,

Cheryl Georgi

Shop students bring home several awards from regional industrial arts competition

At the Regional Industrial Arts Competition at Mancelona High School Friday, May 14, several Charlevoix Middle School students won awards for projects completed in their "shop" classes this year. Students in grades 7-12 from a 17-county area competed in the Region 14-15 Craftsman's Fair, hoping to win regional awards and a chance to compete at the State level in Grand Rapids on May 20-22.

Students from Charlevoix Middle School won a total of 57 ribbons. Winning first through fourth places, making them eligible for State competition with 16 projects were:

4th place: James Sweet, Jr. - Pulley Lamp; James Sweet, Jr. - Walnut and Cherry Bowl; Ross Omland - Cherry Wall Clock; Bill Parton - Copper Tooled Picture (Beagle).

Grant Meggison - Hot Dog Roasting Fork.

Other winners from Charlevoix Middle School included:

5th place: Marc Jacobs - Michigan Wall Clock; Roger Pittman - Walnut and Oak Turned Candle Holder; Chris Dominic - Hot Dog Fork.

6th place: Josh Koontz - Michigan Wall Clock; Nate Martin - Turned Wooden Bowl; Ann Marie Terryberry - Hot Dog Fork; Randy Yuzba - Pulley Lamp.

Honorable Mention: Alex Anderson - "Rayder" Shelf; Reggie Burks - "Rayder" Shelf; Katy Conlan - "Rayder" Shelf; Steve Felter - "Rayder" Shelf; Matt Mikulski - "Rayder" Shelf; Allen Sliger - "Rayder" Shelf; Meghan McFarlin - Mini Basketball Game; Grant Meggison - Mini Basketball Game; Kevin Meier - Pulley Lamp; Bill Parton - Pulley Lamp; Kari Boss -

Drawing of a Rocket; Leah Dulaney - Drawing of a Rocket. Also winning Honorable Mention Ribbons for their Hot Dog Forks were: Alex Anderson, Ryan Borths, Nathan Chamberlain, Katy Conlan, Ryan Coon, Leah Dulaney, Steve Felter, Josh Hable, John Heise, Liz Hess, Becky Hosler, Jodie Marley, Matt Mikulski, Melissa Milbrandt, Adam Morris, Ryan Mordick, Bill Niswander, Susan Ramsey, Chris Romig, Carl Schoenheit, and Rhonda Williams.

Jacobs and Sommerfeld each received a perfect score on their Turned Wooden Bowls from one of the judges. Jacobs received one more point in the totals to win the first place ribbon, with Sommerfeld getting the second. The 16 State qualifiers will be taken to the finals by the students' teacher, James Jinks, who hopes to bring back several awards for the students again this year.

Richardson to celebrate her 90th birthday

Vida Black Richardson will be celebrating her 90th birthday on Sunday, May 23, 1993. She would like her friends and family to share this occasion at an "open house" starting at 2 p.m. at her home, 307 May Street in Charlevoix. No gifts please!

Richardson was born in Marion Township 90 years ago and has always lived in the area with the exception of several years wintering in Florida with her husband Cecil Richardson who she married in 1958.

She still enjoys maintaining her home, flowers, garden, driving her car, riding her three-wheel bicycle and watching television. Vida is also active in the Charlevoix Christian Science Church.

"Public comments" remains an active council agenda item

By L. Scott Swanson

As has been the norm in recent months, the "Public Comments" section of the City Council meeting did not pass quietly at the Monday, May 17 meeting. Again, controversy centering around issues related to the City Fire Department was one of the main topics.

Polle VerWys said she had been told that some people around town are claiming she is part of a "lynch mob." She said she is not part of any such thing and objects to people saying she is.

Billie Smith repeated a question to Mayor Dave Novotny regarding his appointment of a three-person panel of inquiry which reviewed actions of City Fire Chief Doug Carver regarding the dismissal of four volunteer firemen. Smith and others have complained about Novotny's appointment of the panel. The core of those complaints has been that Novotny acted with only a general consensus of council through discussion rather than following a council motion and a vote.

During Monday evening's meeting, Novotny replied to Smith's charges: "We went through this last week. It's a difference of opinion I guess."

Media coverage of the fire department issue by both the Charlevoix Courier and Petoskey News-Review was alternately praised and criticized.

Bill Supernaw criticized a Courier story in the May 5 issue, claiming the story was biased because it did not include comments by full-time fireman Lyle Gennett, who said he supports actions taken by Fire Chief Doug Carver. Supernaw said he would have liked to read into the council record an editorial which appeared in the May 14 Petoskey News-Review, but couldn't because he didn't have his glasses with him. The editorial spoke in support of Carver and City Manager Mike Wiesner and said editorial board members were tired of hearing complaints about Charlevoix problems.

Following Supernaw's comments, Louise Thompson objected to Supernaw's criticism of the Courier's news coverage and said she felt it had been fair in covering all sides of the story. Bob Timms joined Thompson in speaking in support of the Courier's coverage. He criticized the News-Review's coverage of the issue.

Supernaw also spoke in regard to a recall drive initiated by Gabe Campbell and others second ward constituents which seeks to oust second ward councilman Ted Felter. (See related story elsewhere in the Courier.) Supernaw referred to a Monday, May 17 News-Review story which he said indicates a change in what recall leaders are stating as the motives behind the recall effort. He said he feels those motives, disenchantment with high taxes and city administrative decisions, are not widely shared within the community.

Campbell, who spoke directly after Supernaw at the meeting and in a phone conversation with the Courier following the meeting, said the motives behind the recall effort have not changed. He said the factor which initiated the recall effort was, and is, Felter's lack of availability to constituents. That there are additional issues which Campbell and others are not happy about is something they have acknowledged all along.

(Editor's note: Given my belief that my purpose in attending public meetings is to report, rather than make, news I am hesitant to offer any response to Mr. Supernaw's allegations of biased reporting in the Courier. However, in the interest of the Courier's readers and the integrity of the publication, I suppose

I am compelled to offer some response. That response is as follows:

"I adamantly support the right of Mr. Supernaw, or anyone else, to express an opinion at a public meeting. I firmly believe that it is in the best interest of a society for its members to be entitled to express their opinions. That those opinions may not be in harmony with my perception of a situation is of little concern given the realization that while people are entitled to express their opinions as they deem fit, other people who hear, or are the subject of, those opinions are entitled to evaluate them and give them either as much, or as little, weight as they deem fit."

"In regard to charges of biased reporting, I could offer a number of facts contradicting those allegations, but I will bring only one point to light. Rather than including Lyle Gennett's May 3 council meeting comments which simply said he supported Fire Chief Doug Carver's actions, I phoned both Carver and City Manager Mike Wiesner the morning following the May 3 council meeting. My thinking was that since they were the ones whose actions were being criticized, they would be the ones best suited to respond to the criticism. Their responses were included in the May 5 Courier story."

Mrs. Winnie L. Alder, 88, of Gaylord, died May 11, 1993, at McReynolds Hall in Gaylord.

Her funeral was Friday, May 14, at St. Mary's Cathedral in Gaylord. Burial will be in Ferndale Cemetery, Riverview.

She was born Dec. 17, 1904, in Quanah, Texas. Mrs. Alder had been a resident of Gaylord for the past few years.

She is survived by her children: Rosemary Corradi of Charlevoix; Mildred Mack of Naples, Fla.; Bobbie Jean Davis of Fort Wayne, Ind.; Kaye Ball of Charlevoix; Phyllis Korn of Boyne City; Marjorie Ely of Gaylord; and Gordon Alder of Southfield; 33 grandchildren; 29 great-grandchildren; and two great-great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her husband, Robert.

Memorial contributions may be made to McReynolds Hall through the Nelson Funeral Home, 135 N. Center, Gaylord, Mich. 49735.

John L. Essenberg

John L. Essenberg, 77, of Atwood, died May 12, 1993, at his home.

His funeral was Saturday, May 15, at Belltower Reformed Church with the Rev. James Heneveld officiating. Burial will be in Atwood Cemetery.

He was born June 13, 1915, in Banks Township, the son of Gerri and Jennie (Klooster) Essenberg.

Mr. Essenberg served with the U.S. Army in the European Theater during World War II.

On Aug. 7, 1943, he married Edna Boss at Fort Knox, Ky. The couple made their home near Atwood. Mrs. Essenberg died in 1982. Mr. Essenberg owned and operated the Atwood Feed Mill from 1935-63. He did independent trucking and owned and operated John Essenberg Orchards, producing cherries, apples and peaches. For 15 years, he raised Christmas trees.

Mr. Essenberg was a member of Belltower Reformed Church and the Antrim County Farm Bureau.

Survivors include, five sons, Lester and his wife Cheryl of Ellsworth; Mark and his wife Sheila of Ellsworth; Steve and Scott of Atwood; and Todd and his wife Tammy of Charlevoix; two daughters, Carla Trulson-Essenberg and her husband Dave Trulson of Issaquah, Wash.; and Monna Essenberg of Grand Rapids; nine grandchildren; one brother, Melvin of Ellsworth; five sisters, Louise Holler of Bacliff, Texas; Mrs. Harold (Rose) Cheney of Arcadia; Geraldine Pryor of Prescott, Ariz.; Mrs. Verne (Anne) Elliott of Traverse City; and Mrs. Stanley (Harriet) VanRcken of Birmingham; and many nieces and nephews.

Memorial contributions may be made to Belltower Reformed Church. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Hastings Funeral Home in Ellsworth.

Harold G Knott

Harold G. Knott, 68, of Charlevoix and formerly of Grand Rapids, died May 16, 1993, at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

Funeral will be 1 p.m. Wednesday, May 19, at the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix. The Rev. Larry Grooters will officiate and burial will take place in Maple Lawn Cemetery, Boyne City.

He was born Feb. 22, 1925, in Grand Rapids, the son of John and Martha (Stap) Knott. He grew up in Grand Rapids and graduated from Davis Tech High in 1943.

Mr. Knott served in the U.S. Navy during World War II for three years. After his return from the war, he married Alice Fletcher on Oct. 10, 1946, in Grand Rapids.

Mr. Knott worked for Singer Business Machines and then served again in the U.S. Navy during the Korean conflict. He then went back to Singer where he remained for 30 years as service manager.

Mr. Knott then worked for Kooi Industrial Plant for 12 years and retired in 1988.

He and his wife moved to Charlevoix in December 1991.

Mr. Knott was a member of the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix and he enjoyed photography, tropical fish and was an avid sportsman.

Survivors include his wife, Alice of Charlevoix; two sons, Jack and his wife Vicki of East Lansing; and William and his wife Colleen of Boyne City; two daughters, Suzanne Feenstra and her husband Robert of Grand Rapids; and Karen Rykce of Grand Rapids; 11 grandchildren; three brothers, the Rev. Edward Knott of Grand Rapids, and Robert and Kenneth Knott, both of Holland; and his mother-in-law, Alice Frieswyk. He was preceded in death by his parents.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Community Reformed Church Building Fund. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Stackus Funeral Home in Boyne City.

New assistant prosecutor joins Charlevoix County office

Last year, Mary Beth Kur was one of more than two dozen assistant prosecutors in Genesee County where there were 52 murders in 1992. Kur recently took over as the new, and only, assistant prosecutor in Charlevoix County, where there probably haven't been 52 murders in the past 100 years.

Kur said she liked the excitement of Genesee County where she was in court nearly every day, but she is also finding certain aspects of working in Charlevoix County appealing.

"Here in this office, you get a lot of opportunities to work closely with victims," she noted. "I put a pretty high emphasis on what the victim's feelings are in cases where you have a victim."

Kur said when victims come in contact with the criminal justice system, she likes to see them made

Mary Beth Kur to feel whole again to the extent that is possible.

Kur joined the Charlevoix prosecutor's office April 19 and spent a two-week transition period working with former assistant prosecutor Karen Neumeyer. Kur graduated from Flint Central high school in 1981 and completed her undergraduate work at the University of Michigan and received her law degree from the University of Detroit. Her parents have vacationed in Good Hart, north of Harbor Springs, for several years and northern Michigan is not unfamiliar to her.

Kur has a husband Stephen and three children. They hope to make their home in northern Michigan on a long term basis.

As Charlevoix's assistant prosecutor, Kur will be doing a lot of District Court work in addition to working on misdemeanor jury trials, preliminary exams for felonies Former Grey Gables owner Pete Pace (left) has turned the reins of the popular Charlevoix restaurant over to new owner, Jack Strand.

Grey Gables under new ownership

By Laurie Lounsbury

The Grey Gables has endured for years as the Grand Old Lady of dining and entertainment in Charlevoix. And while grand old ladies maintain their same, charming personalities, they do go through changes with the passing of time. The Grey Gables is undergoing such a change, as it changes hands from former owner Pete Pace to its new owner, Jack Strand.

Strand is the owner of Skyline Erectors, a company that builds steel structures in northern Michigan. Strand said that he's always been interested in owning a restaurant, and the Grey Gables was a logical choice. "I've known the Grey Gables for years - it's been a favorite of mine," he said.

Strand will leave the business of restaurant management to trained professionals, reserving the role of investor for himself. "The only involvement I'll have is that I'm going to learn the business," Strand said. Patty Abbey will be the new manager. "Abbey was a part owner and manager of a restaurant in the state of Washington for ten years before returning to Michigan. She's been employed at Nanny's most recently. Abbey is originally from Michigan, and her parents are now Charlevoix residents.

Strand is also pleased to have Victor Countryman heading up the kitchen as chef. Countryman is the former chef at Stonecliff on Mackinaw Island.

and specializes in fine dining.

"The menu and the staff have been completely changed," Strand said. He plans to keep the Grey Gables open seven days a week, with lunch service beginning in the near future. Catering service, along with private parties and banquet service, will continue to be provided. The Grey Gables will also offer a new early bird menu, offering lighter fare at a lower price.

The piano bar will remain the same, although a new entertainer will be taking up residence on the seat behind it. David Chown will be the house entertainer. Chown has fine-tuned his musical skills on cruise ships and at the Grand Hotel for the last three summers. "It's always been a piano place, and we want to keep it that way," Strand said.

Strand said that he plans to keep the business open all year, with brief closings in November and April for cleaning. "I can't emphasize enough that we want the local people here," Strand said.

Big Rock employees break blood drive record

Employees at Big Rock Point recently equaled a site blood donation record established earlier in 1993. The Wolverine Region of the American Red Cross Blood Services collected 68 pints of blood in a drive at the plant Tuesday, May 4.

Nuclear Performance Specialist and Blood Drive Coordinator George Petitjean says that the drive has become an event employees at the plant look forward to and rally around. "My fellow employees recognize the importance of giving blood, especially now when both local and nation-wide donations have been decreasing," Petitjean says. The drive attracts universal participation and cooperation. "Union, non-union, retirees, spouses of employees, it doesn't matter, virtually everyone participates, either by giving blood, contributing their time, or by bringing in food."

Big Rock Point established the site record of 68 pints of blood on January 12 of this year. In the past 10 months, four drives at the plant have yielded 256 pints. The next drive at the plant is scheduled for Oct. 19, 1993.

Softball team wraps up share of 1993 conference title

Charlevoix took two games from East Jordan Monday to lock up at least a share of this year's Lake Michigan Division softball league title. They Rayders beat the Red Devils 13-2 and 10-5 to improve their season record to 13-4 and their league record to 10-2.

Mary Jane Grunch was the winning pitcher in game one. She threw a complete game, giving up merely three hits while walking six and striking out four. Don Parshcall took the pitching loss for East Jordan.

Offensively, Liz Grunch had three hits, including a double for Charlevoix. Amy Spang and Aprilie Pischner each had two hits. Amy Mickey had two hits for East Jordan.

Baseball team beaten twice

The Charlevoix baseball team's snakebit season of one-run losses continued Monday at East Jordan. The Rayders lost the first of two games 1-0 and the second game 7-6.

In the opening game, Charlevoix's Don Jess and East Jordan's Scott Chanda squared off in a pitching duel. Jess allowed five hits, struck out six and walked one. Chanda put K's on 13 Rayder hitters while allowing four hits and walking two.

For East Jordan, pitcher Ken Teeple allowed eight hits while striking out nine and walking two. Losing pitcher Jody McGlinch gave up five hits while striking out seven and walking four.

David Skeel had two of Charlevoix's four hits. The scoring picked up in the second game. East Jordan scored the winning run in the fifth inning on a wild pitch.

Skeel and catcher Ed Johnson each had a double and a single to lead the Rayder hitters. Charlevoix's next game will be Thursday at Central Lake.

Wrestlers compete in Junior State meet

Three Charlevoix freestyle and Greco-Roman wrestlers competed in the Junior State meet in Owosso this past Saturday. The three belong to the Charlevoix Freestyle and Greco-Roman wrestling club which is coached by Phil Christ. Jason Mativa had the best finish among the Charlevoix wrestlers. He went 5-2 on the day, placing fifth in the Greco-Roman 154-pound division. In his opening match Mativa drew the high school wrestling Class A state champion. Christ said that when other coaches saw who Mativa had drawn they told Christ that his wrestler was in for a tough match. Christ said he just shrugged his shoulders and said that's what the Charlevoix wrestlers were there for, to wrestle against good competition so they can get better.

Mativa, a sophomore, apparently has gotten better fast. He pinned the guy. David Morales also finished the day with a 5-2 record and placed seventh in freestyle. Morales was down 9-0, (which is one point away from disqualification) early in his first match and came back to beat his opponent 24-9. Ron Haggard also wrestled at Owosso, but went 0-2. He lost to the national champion in his first match and a top state wrestler in his second match. This weekend the Charlevoix wrestling club will be going to the Great Lakes Open meet at Purdue University. On the way home, they will stop in Mount Pleasant to participate in a state Olympic Training Camp. The training camp is by invitation only.

The trip is being made possible by contributions from Haggard Plumbing and Heating, Mativa Roofing and the Charlevoix Mut Club.

Brandon Webb took the ball over the right field fence last week against Boyne City. Despite Webb's homerun, the Rayders ended up losing the game 5-4.

Charlevoix third baseman Liz Coen puts the tag on a Boyne City runner during the second of two games Charlevoix played against Boyne City last week. Charlevoix won both games.

Charlevoix to host boat show

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and WMBN Radio will cosponsor a boat show Saturday, May 22 and Sunday, May 23 in Charlevoix's East Park and at the Municipal Marina. Show hours will be from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday and from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday. Between 15 and 20 exhibitors will have a variety of new boats on display both on land and in the water. There will be both power and sail boats. In addition to the boat show, members of the U.S. Coast Guard will be offering boating safety instruction. There is no admission fee to attend the event.

Liz Grunch has been in a hitting frenzy this week. However, she got under this ball just a bit and popped it up to an infielder.

Melissa Cox, standing on the wrong side of home plate the way some hitters do, raps a line drive last week in a game against Boyne City. The Rayders swept both games.

belvedere golf club
Dave Poquette - PGA Professional
The Club was founded in 1925 with the course opening for play in 1927. Golf course architecture was simpler in the 20's when our course was built with 150 men and 5 teams of horses. Like Augusta National, the Scottish resort courses and other golf courses of the era, The Belvedere offers challenging 3 and 4 pars, with 5 pars that reward aggressive play with birdie and eagle opportunities.
The Belvedere Golf Club is now OPEN for play

Recall organizers collect more than 100 signatures

A group of second ward constituents seeking to recall second ward councilman Ted Felter have collected more than enough voter signatures to have the issue brought to an election.

Gabe Campbell, who originally filed the recall petition April 27 and had the wording approved by the County election board May 10, said that 110 signatures were needed and as of Monday afternoon 116 signatures had been collected. Campbell said additional signatures will be collected and the petitions will probably be ready to be turned back into the County Clerk's office by the end of this week or early next week.

Campbell said four people worked on collecting the signatures. "I think we worked at it about three days," he noted.

Campbell said he's satisfied with the progress of the recall effort. "There are a lot of people. It's not just eight or nine people who are upset."

The reason listed on the petition for the recall is Felter's lack of availability to second ward constituents to discuss problems. Campbell said there are other issues that he and other people are upset about, but the recall drive was initiated to lack of availability.

While conceding that he works long hours and is a single man and not always at home, Felter has said he feels he is doing a good job as a councilman and has been willing to discuss concerns with second ward voters.

Law suit filed against City

Former city fireman Curtis Thompson has filed a lawsuit against the City of Charlevoix in order to obtain a copy of his personnel record. Thompson was one of four firemen whose employment with the department was terminated earlier this year following an incident at a Hayes Township fire scene.

Thompson filed the suit in Charlevoix Circuit Court May 13. He is being represented in the case by J. David Kerr, an attorney from Mount Pleasant. Neither Kerr nor city attorney James Young were available for comment on the suit Tuesday morning.

In a phone conversation with the Courier Tuesday morning, Thompson said that since the filing of the suit Kerr and Young have been talking and Thompson has received some of the information he requested.

In a press release issued on the day he filed the suit, Thompson said he earlier had requested a copy of his personnel record from the City so that he might correct any errors it contained. He said that initially the City had only given him one sheet of paper which was a record of a single training exercise he and other firemen participated in.

"Before I can correct the record, I have to see it," Thompson said in the press release.

Operation Petunia continues to flourish

By L. Scott Swanson

In many ways, Operation Petunia is like a military operation. MacArthur works on organizing the campaign. Majors and captains march their troops. Heavy equipment begins to roll and within an hour ground is taken and the mission is accomplished.

But then, there are also differences. In classic military strategy, you attack at dawn. In Operation Petunia, you water at dawn. The attack, a.k.a. the planting begins at seventeen hundred hours. That's 5 p.m., civilian time. To be precise, Operation Petunia will begin at 5 p.m., Thursday, May 24.

Of course there are also other differences between Operation Petunia and the military. Has there ever been a controversy over gay people planting petunias? No. Emphatically, no! And what about women serving on the front lines? Again, no problem.

Granted, there was a bit of a stir earlier this year about base closings. This year, there will be no petunia planting at the bases of trees in the downtown business district. Last year, half of the grate at the base of each tree was removed so that petunias could be planted on the street side of the trees. But after looking that situation over for a year, members of the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) concluded that that half-metal, half-flower arrangement really wasn't such a "grate idea." This year the entire metal grate will be left in place and each tree will once again have its full metal jacket.

For the most part, Charlevoix's 12th Annual Operation Petunia will be much the same as the eleventh. Planting will begin at 5 p.m. and wrap up by 6 p.m. when the Petunia picnic in East park will officially begin.

Prior to coming down to the picnic, planters should have their tickets validated by their petunia block captain. Most of the block captains are the same ones as last year although there have been a few promotions. Two longtime petunia block captains, Frank Zednicek on the north side and Rita McAvoy on the south side, have been promoted to petunia majors. New block captains this year include Gene Drost and Harry Golski on the north side and Steve Czerkes, Paul Kechn, Jodi Alward, Karla on the north side and Steve Czarkes, Paul Keehn, Jodi Alward, Karla Kirkland and Bill Sherman on the south side. All block captains will be wearing bright orange vests.

In addition to the personnel changes, there have also been a few tactical changes from past Operation Petunias. Keep Charlevoix Beautiful (KCB), the Operation Petunia equivalent of Central Command, has decided to issue name tags to all petunia planters this year. The idea is that Operation Petunia is a community event and an ideal place for people to meet new people and make new friends. The purpose of the tags is to attach friendly names to the friendly faces.

Another change this year involves the Petunia Picnic. Responding to the ever-increasing hunger for further beautification of our fair community, the Petunia Picnic is blossoming from a one-hot-dog-per-planter event to a two-hot-dog-per-planter event. As they have for the past several years, members of the Charlevoix Rotary Club will be roasting hot dogs. At last Thursday's Rotary meeting, Operation Petunia organizer Bruce MacArthur explained to Rotarians the expanded hot dog demand which they will face. In light of this, Rotarians have spent the past several days getting mentally prepared to do some power roasting.

Once again this year the petunias will be cared for throughout the summer by prison crews from Camp Pellston. KCB will be hiring a supervisor to work with the crews. In order to fund the supervisor and future petunia planting, KCB is auctioning off a boat (See related story on page 3.) The successful bidder will be announced during the Petunia Picnic.

KCB to auction boat to raise money for petunias

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful (KCB) has an added attraction planned for the picnic that follows Petunia planting this year - a 1974 Glastron Cabin Cruiser will be auctioned off to raise funds for the organization.

An anonymous Charlevoix person recently donated the yacht to the organization. It is on display in Slip #30 at the city marina. The boat, a Model V254 Caribbean, has a flying bridge, dual controls, power trim tabs and two Ford 165 hp V8 engines with Volvo Penta drives.

KCB President Bruce MacArthur said it has approximately 300 hours on it and is in excellent shape. Bill Bellinger of Bellinger Marine has agreed to commission the boat and prepare it mechanically.

The auction is scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday May 27, at the Petunia Picnic in East Park. Auctioneer will be Mike McElroy, owner of the Crow's Nest in Cross Village who is known for his sharp wit and entertaining style.

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful's Board of Directors have decided to postpone planning this year's Petunia Party and Pool Auction until they know how much income the boat auction and an upcoming fund-raising letter generates.

At a recent meeting the group decided to put off the decision because of "the press of other business, such as the petunia planting and picnic next week," MacArthur explained.

KCB members will soon receive a newsletter and survey asking them to send in their opinion regarding the annual Petunia Party and Pool Auction. They will also be asked to send in contributions, which can be applied toward their party ticket if one takes place. Last year tickets were $100 per couple.

The Petunia Party and Pool Auction has been the primary fund-raiser for Keep Charlevoix Beautiful for the past seven years, and in recent years has featured the Northwood Orchestra.

For the past four years the event also had an auction to raise funds to the Charlevoix Friends of the Pool. This year, if the event takes place, the pool supporters have decided to emphasize a "silch" auction.

The final decision will be made at the KCB annual meeting, June 19, after the response to the upcoming boat auction, newsletter, survey and solicitation has been received.

These Charlevoix Middle School students have been collecting cans, babysitting and doing other odd jobs to raise money for a trip to the Odyssey of the Mind National Finals next week in College Park, Maryland. The students have raised $4,000 and need to raise another $1200. The students are (from left) Tiffany Fisher, Lisa Kerner, Tony Williams, Jonathon Campbell, Amanda Simpson and Taylor Fisher.

Sturgeon Bay visitors provided an opportunity to look at ourselves

A Monday morning discussion with a group of Sturgeon Bay, Wisconsin business people proved to be an interesting exercise. The Sturgeon Bay group was in Charlevoix looking for insight into Charlevoix's success in retaining and expanding resort and tourism business. (See related story on page 12.)

While the purpose of the discussion was to offer information to the Sturgeon Bay group, the discussion also offered an interesting opportunity to the nine Charlevoix people who were there to answer questions. The discussion centered around looking back at things which have been done in the past to improve the community. But as that discussion took place, the temptation to look ahead in your mind at things which can be done in the future to improve the community proved irresistible.

The format of the discussion and the make-up of the panel from Charlevoix also proved interesting. Most of the nine member panel have had one-on-one chats about various community plans or sat in on formal board meetings concerning community plans. But in those discussions there's always a lot of common knowledge and things which are taken for granted. It's also too easy to get off on whatever happens to be the hot issue of the moment and discuss that to death, rather than taking a broader, long-range view of matters. In Monday morning's discussion, you had a larger group of Charlevoix people in a casual atmosphere and facing questions from a group of outsiders who came to the table with no baggage of community background knowledge. It prompted you to look at things from a little different perspective than normal.

And looking at things from a different perspective occasionally can be very healthy. In regard to Monday morning's meeting that different perspective offered a greater appreciation for the insight shown by some past community leaders. It also indicated that some of the things Charlevoix people often take for granted, such as an attractive municipal marina, park system and active downtown business district, shouldn't be taken for granted. They are the result of decades of conscientious and concerted effort. Maintaining and improving these things and keeping the community moving forward rather than sliding backwards or stagnating will require continued effort.

Letters to the editor

Water tower graffiti offensive

Editor,

I too am appalled by the ugly bridge railing. However, I'm writing about something much uglier! I'm referring to the Satanic symbols that are painted on the old water tower. Last August while looking through some binoculars, I discovered the markings and immediately called the city manager's office. I was told the problem would be taken care of. About six weeks later, I called again. I also informed one of our local ministers, hoping the ministerial association might take some action, especially since the tower is within four blocks of at least three Christian churches. To date, however, the markings are still there. Since April and May are traditionally the clean-up, fix-up, paint-up time around town, I am hoping something will be done to remove this offensive graffiti from such a familiar and highly visible landmark.

Sincerely,
Mary Pair

Students preparing for trip to Wisconsin

(Editor's note: The accompanying story was written for the Courier by Ralph McRae. McRae is a former mayor and city councilmember who continues to remain active in a number of civic endeavors.)

By Ralph McRae

Last week's story introduced a group of sixth grade girls who recently won a state Future Problem Solving contest and who are now preparing for the world contest which will take place June 10-13 in Madison, Wisconsin. The four girls in the group are Jamie Gowell, Jessica Corey, Kadie Bogart and Liza Gorkiewicz.

Last week's story focused on the daily lives of Bogart and Gorkiewicz. This week's story concerns the lives and opinions of Gowell and Corey.

Corey is pleased with her progress in Charlevoix Middle School and has enjoyed participating in the problem solving program. She said the team's success in the competition has been motivational and increased her self-confidence. Corey is health conscious and watches what she eats. Her favorite sports are cross country running and softball. She's not into hard rock music, but is in band and plays the cornet. Corey would like to eventually become a teacher or an interior designer. She's looking forward to going to Madison and following the trip to Madison hopes to go to the giant shopping mall in Minneapolis.

As for Gowell, this is her first year in the public school system. Prior to that she was a student at St. Mary's school. She said she feels her work in Future Problem Solvers has helped make her a better student. Gowell's father, Roger, is quite health conscious thus her eating habits are monitored to make sure they are healthy. Her mother is a teacher and helps her with her studying. Much of Gowell's spare time is taken up by babysitting for friends or family. She charges $2 an hour. Gowell is interested in several sports. Being a tall girl, basketball is naturally an attractive sport for her, but she also enjoys softball and skiing. As for music, she plays a clarinet in the school band. In regard to a career, Gowell is considering something in the legal or medical fields or perhaps working as a fashion designer.

In order to attend the problem solving competition in Madison, the team is in the process of raising $2,000 to cover expenses. Anyone wishing to help out may contact Sheila Bogart at 547-4858.

These young ladies were among the Charlevoix High School Symphonic and Concert Band members who recently traveled to Toronto for the FIESTAVIVAL national music festival.

Band enjoys Toronto trip

On May 6, two years of fund raising and anticipation became a reality as the Charlevoix High School Symphonic and concert bands boarded two chartered buses for the FIESTAVIVAL, a national music festival held in Toronto.

The music festival included high school bands, jazz bands and choral groups from across the United States and Canada. Both the ninth grade concert band and the High School Symphonic Bands were critiqued and rated by three professional musicians. The Concert Band received a II (Excellent) rating, and the Symphonic Band received a I (Superior) rating. The Symphonic Band also received a I (Superior) rating. The Symphonic Band also received a trophy for the best concert performance of the festival.

The weekend also included some Toronto and Niagara Falls sightseeing plus attendance at the performance of "The Phantom of the Opera" at the Panlages Theatre in Toronto. For many of the students this was their first experience attending a live performance of a major theatre production.

As the thrilled yet exhausted musicians returned to Charlevoix, band director Terry Isenbarger has high praises for the level of maturity and enthusiasm exhibited by his students. Both he and the 12 band booster parents who acted as chaperones unanimously agreed that the trip was well worth the time and effort which made it possible.

Author to sign books

Kelly Ferjutz, of Cleveland Heights, Ohio, will appear at Island Book Store on Tuesday, June 15, from 2 to 4 p.m., and the Charlevoix Book Shop on Wednesday, June 16, from 12 to 2 p.m., to sign copies of her new book SECRET SHORES. The book, which is a May release from Berkley Publishing, is a historical romance set on Mackinac Island and Lake Huron during 1861 and 1862.

SECRET SHORES is the third in a series of independently-written historical romance novels about the Great Lakes issued by Berkley. The previous books were TWILIGHT MIST and TEMPEST WATERS, featuring Lakes Michigan and Superior, respectively. The final two books in the series are SUMMER STORM (Lake Erie) and LOVER'S COVE (Lake Ontario), and are to be released in August and October, 1993.

The people were all for change last fall,
And I'm all for it, too--
So long as I don't have to change at all.

Pool group to reapply for grant

Supporters of a pool in Charlevoix will reapply for $350,000 from the Kresge Foundation.

The Friends of the Pool Executive Board, reacting to the Kresge Foundation's recent denial of a grant request, voted to reapply for the funds. Applicants must wait 12 months from any earlier application. This means the Friends of the Pool can reapply in November. Results of this grant application will be known in March, 1994.

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Youth Foundation, which has been receiving pool funds in recent years, decided to make use of the many advantages of a community foundation and transfer the money they have from pledges, approximately $150,000, to the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

Friends of the Pool supported this move as the funds remain designated for a Charlevoix area pool, and can be used for one as soon as the pool becomes a reality.

In the meantime the funds are managed professionally and the perpetuity of the pool project is enhanced.

"The pool endowment fund is a designated fund," foundation executive director Robert Tambellini pointed out. "Money was put in it for a specific purpose and remains there for that purpose until the donors and the foundation trustees agree otherwise."

To date $50,000 has been transferred from the Kiwanis fund to the community foundation, and this week another $75,000 is to be transferred.

To achieve maximum tax credit, donations for the pool and checks fulfilling pledges should be made out and sent to the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, MI 49727.

Pool supporters are awaiting a decision by the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful (KCB) board of directors before deciding whether to have an auction in conjunction with the annual dinner party that KCB annually sponsors.

Anyone with questions about the KCB or Friends of the Pool activities, or who is interested in working with either organization, should contact Bruce MacArthur at 547-6960.

obituaries

Homer Nasson

Homer Nasson, 81, of Athens, Michigan died Friday, May 14, 1993 at the Hill-Top Manor in Battle Creek after a lengthy illness. He was born on July 20, 1911 in Charlevoix County to Peter and Anna (Murphy) Nasson. He attended East Jordan High School and Michigan State Agricultural College. He farmed in the East Jordan area until 1960, when he moved to Clearwater, Florida where he worked for 31 years as a Standard Oil distributor. He moved to Athens in 1991. He was chairman of the board for the East Jordan Co-op for a number of years. He was a member of the East Jordan Farm Bureau and was on the Board of Review. He was also a member of the Presbyterian Church in East Jordan. Mr. Nasson married Anne F. Razem on Feb. 14, 1938 in Cleveland, Ohio. He is survived by his wife of 55 years. Also surviving are a daughter, Adele F. Alverson and son-in-law, Lynwood "Woody" Alverson of Athens; two grandchildren, Michael and Kathy Alverson of Athens and Duane Alverson of Merrillville, Indiana and two great-grandchildren, Amanda Alverson and Nathan Alverson of Athens.

Funeral services were held Sunday, May 16, 1993 with the Rev. John Dosh officiating at the Spencer Funeral Home in Athens. Burial was at Burr Oak Cemetery, Athens.

Roy Bennett

Roy Gordon Bennett, 95, of Englewood, Fla., died May 20, 1993. Mr. Bennett was born April 14, 1898, to Ezra Bennett and Effie Louise (Bigger) Bennett in Grant Township, Grand Traverse County, Michigan.

He was married to Elsie (Nicksen) Bennett on June 4, 1920. Elsie preceded him in death on October 14, 1992. Survivors include two sons; Robert Bennett of Englewood, Fla. and William Bennett of Downer, Calif.; six grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren.

Mr. Bennett was a Superintendent of Schools for more than 40 years. He retired in 1963 as Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools. He was a veteran of World War I, and past District L Governor of Kiwanis, and an active member of the Methodist Church.

There will be no local services. Interment will be at Grant Township Cemetery in Grand Traverse County at a future date.

Alice E. Macdonald

Alice E. Macdonald, 86, of Charlevoix, died May 18, 1993, at Penfold Adult Foster Care Home in Charlevoix.

Her funeral was Friday, May 21, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. James D. Green of the Bible Baptist Church of Charlevoix officiated. Burial will be in Lakeview Cemetery, Quincy, Mich.

She was born June 21, 1906, in Detroit, the daughter of Arthur E. and Carlotta E. (Dean) Walter.

She lived in Detroit for 19 years and graduated from Cass Tech Business School in 1923. She worked for the Bank of Detroit and Exide Battery of Detroit from 1923-25.

In 1925, she moved to Fenton where she lived until 1940 when she moved to Flint. She resided in Flint from 1940-90.

She worked for the Buick Motor Division Retail Store from 1945 until her retirement in 1968. She had also worked for the U.S. Selective Service in Flint from 1940-45.

In 1950, she married William Macdonald in Flint. He preceded her in death in December 1986.

Mrs. Macdonald was a member of the Bible Baptist Church of Charlevoix.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

If you have time, you might want to stop by the city dock about 11 a.m. this Friday morning. If you do, you will have a chance to witness a ceremony that traces its heritage back more than 200 years. The Coast Guard Cutter ACACIA gets a new commanding officer in this ceremony. With its crew in dress uniforms and ranking officers from the district present, you will hear the captain's duties recounted and a reminder of the responsibility he is taking on.

Commander Thacker will probably do a little reminiscing over his tour. He will offer his thanks to the crew. Then he and Lieutenant Commander Corporan will stand face to face as their orders are read. The traditional closing of the ceremony is when the new captain says, "Sir, I relieve you," and the old captain responds, "Sir, I stand relieved."

Even though the whole thing will only last about twenty minutes, there is much more to it than that. For the new captain inherits not only the ship but also the responsibility for the 55 crew and their families too. It is more than just a position of responsibility. It is very much a position of trust.

That carries over to you and me in more ways than one. Think of our own families and the responsibility we have to look out for them. Think of our jobs and the people we look to for guidance as well as the people who look to us. Think of the very personal and important responsibility God has given you as His child.

One of the functions of our Coast Guard friends and neighbors is search and rescue. One of the functions of every Christian is also search and rescue. If we encounter a soul in crisis, we have been given the responsibility to help them in whatever way we can. As comfortable as it is for the crew and families to have the ship tied up in port, that's not their job. Their job is going where the needs are. As comfortable as it is for you and I to confine our faith-related activities to our homeport church, that's not our job.

The Bible is very clear that we are commissioned to go into all the world. We are to do everything we can to offer the peace, hope and love of the gospel of Christ to everyone we meet and especially to those in need. We have not been relieved of our duties as yet. The day we are relieved is that day when we reach our final destination, Heaven. The Coast Guard was never meant to be the only ones who follow the motto "Always Ready." Every believer is meant to be "Always Ready" too. Blessings to the new ACACIA captain and blessings to you too.

(Rev. Bruce Hamilton is pastor of the Charlevoix Community Church of God. Beacons of Blessings is provided to the Courier by Hamilton and other members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.)

School sees possibility of State funding decrease

By Laurie Lounsbury
If Proposal A passes, the state of Michigan will legally pass certain financial obligations on to the local school districts. If Proposal A fails, those same financial obligations may fall to the local school districts by default, according to school business manager Rich Kelly.

Kelly recently explained that if Proposal A passes, the local school district will be required to pay the employer's share of social security and the state's share of the retirement fund for school employees. Last year, Charlevoix paid a portion of the social security, amounting to $100,000. Proposal A would require Charlevoix to pay $400,000, $300,000 more than the school district paid last year. The state paid all of last year's retirement fund obligation, which would cost Charlevoix $353,000 next year if Proposal A passes.

If Proposal A fails, Kelly built an additional $653,000 into the budget just in case Charlevoix has to pick the social security and retirement tabs. "We believe the state is not going to have the revenue to reimburse us for the social security and retirement payments," Kelly said. "There have been plenty of hints that they (the state) are going to turn it over to the school," he added. "Without a crystal ball, it is difficult to project the budgetary needs for the Charlevoix School District. If Proposal A fails, the additional $653,000 of revenue that the schools will ask for in voted millage may not be necessary. "We didn't want to have something not happen in Lansing and have to go back to the voters for more money," Kelly said.

The proposed 16.55 voted millage would bring an additional $880,665 to the school district if Proposal A fails. $653,000 is budgeted for social security and retirement funding. $32,500 is budgeted for an additional teacher at the high school.

Police and school consider establishing school liaison officer

By Laurie Lounsbury

It's less tempting to commit a crime when you've become good friends with a cop during your school days. This is one theory behind having a liaison police officer in the schools. Police Chief Dennis Halverson and high school principal Dave Smith proposed the idea of a school liaison officer to the school board May 17.

Halverson explained the advantages of having a police officer in the schools one day a week. The officer can provide education to the students, prevent certain misdemeanors by getting to know the kids, and help the administrators by providing law enforcement in school if needed.

"This is proactive instead of reactive," Halverson explained. "It's a way to interact with the students in the community that is positive instead of negative."

Halverson worked as a school liaison officer in the Traverse City schools and said that the program was very successful. The primary objective is to educate kids on the law and prevent drug and alcohol abuse.

Halverson assured the board that the officer would not be patrolling the hallways in mirrored, aviator sunglasses and a gunbelt. The officer would be dressed casually, although he would be armed. At the elementary school level, the officer would be dressed in full uniform. "Those kids would be disappointed if we weren't in uniform," Halverson said.

The cost of the school liaison officer would be $5,000 annually. Halverson proposed splitting the cost between the City and the school.

Hospital receives CPR training center award

Charlevoix Area Hospital, as this area's CPR Community Training Center, was selected as a winner of the Community Training Center of the Year Award by the American Heart Association of Michigan.

The award was given because of the work of Linda Sheppard, R.N., who developed the hospital's program which now includes a satellite training center in Bellaire. She conducts the CPR training sessions throughout Charlevoix and Antrim counties and has designed an educational brochure.

The hospital was chosen from 32 applicants and is among six winners. There are more than 200 community training centers in Michigan. The award will be presented to Sheppard in Novi on May 21. In addition to the honor the hospital will receive a training manikin to be used in the training sessions.

Shop students bring home several State awards

Tony Doan receives blue ribbon

At the state finals of the Industrial Arts Competition held at Grand Rapids May 20-22, Tony Doan, an eighth grade student from Charlevoix, won the top prize blue ribbon by beating out all competition among seventh and eighth graders. Doan had qualified for the state event by winning a first place at the Regional level on his copper tooled picture of hockey players. Judges were impressed with the fine details and craftsmanship. Down showed on a very well done project.

Marc Jacobs also received one of the top state awards with the third place ribbon on his copper tooled picture of a bear. Doan and Jacobs each received a plaque in addition to their ribbons and certificates. Also winning state awards for copper tooled pictures were Bill Paron, eighth place on his beagle, and Randy Yuzba, the ninth place on tooled flowers. This gave Charlevoix Middle School four of the nine top places in the state.

Other Charlevoix students winning State awards were: Bob Sommerfeld, sixth place on a turned wooden bowl. Honorable mention awards were received by: Tony Doan - Ringmaster Bowl and Hockey skate clock; Marc Jacobs - Turned wooden bowl; Mike Knit-Hot dog fork; Meghan McFarlin Hot dog fork; Grant Meggison Hot Dog fork; Ross Omland Cherry Wall Clock; Roger Pittman Hot Dog fork; Bob Sommerfeld Mahogany Michigan Clock; James Sweet - Pulley Lamp and Ringmaster Bowl.

Competition was very good in most categories of the State program, and James Jinsky, teacher of each of the above students, said he is very proud of their accomplishments.

Deciding what to do about an ugly bridge railing

By Laurie Lounsbury

The new railing on Charlevoix's drawbridge is taking on the characteristics of a mutant fibrous growth, now engulfed in orange plastic snowfencing. The snowfence was put up by city workers at the request of Michigan's Department of Transportation (MDOT). "It was an immediate response to concerns of citizens about the safety of the railing," said MDOT's District Engineer, Tom Coleman.

According to Coleman, in late June two intermediate rails will be installed on the railing, each about one and a half inches in diameter and squarish in shape. The first rail will be placed horizontally between the cement sidewalk and the lowest railing, and the second will be installed midway between the lower and middle railing. The space between the middle and the top railing will be left open, with the assumption that the top open space is high enough to be safe.

In addition to safety concerns, the railing has drawn criticism over its aesthetic inadequacies. Coleman was apologetic about the new railing's lack of visual appeal. "We're required to bring the railing up to current standards, and we're limited on a moveable bridge as to what can be used," Coleman said. He explained that railings on the bascule drawbridge must be light, because any weight added to the top of the bridge requires additional counterweight.

Coleman said he's willing to come to Charlevoix to discuss the unattractive railing with the concerned citizens. "I'm willing to come up and take my punishment," Coleman said. He plans to visit Charlevoix sometime during the first week of June.

Sturgeon Bay group looks to benefit from Charlevoix's tourism and resort experience

By L. Scott Swanson

A group of 13 people from Sturgeon Bay, Wisconsin, visited Charlevoix Monday morning to obtain insight into Charlevoix's success in retaining and expanding its resort and tourism industry.

The group was part of the Sturgeon Bay Business Development and Retention Association. Monday, they visited Charlevoix, Petoskey and Harbor Springs. Their visit to Charlevoix was coordinated by Downtown Development Coordinator Rod Benson.

Monday morning from 9:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. the group questioned a panel of Charlevoix people Benson had assembled for them. The panel consisted of former Chamber of Commerce President Bob Kern, Downtown Development Association (DDA) Chairman Hugh Mason, DDA member Jeanine Wallace, developer Dick Georgi, Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Jacqueline Merta, Benson, former Chamber of Commerce President Dan Barron, City Manager Mike Wiesner and Charlevoix Courier Editor L. Scott Swanson.

Sturgeon Bay is located in Door County, Wisconsin about halfway up Wisconsin's Lake Michigan coastline. Like Charlevoix, Sturgeon Bay is a community split by a body of water. The community has a traditional industrial base with much of the industry centered around boat building. In recent years, the boat building industry in Sturgeon Bay has diminished. While tourism and resort business certainly isn't new to Sturgeon Bay, it is limited and the community is hoping to expand it to take up some of the slack caused by the decrease in manufacturing.

Monday morning's discussion was wide-ranging. Among the subjects covered were: Charlevoix's waterfront development projects, both in terms of parks and condominiums; the use of tax increment financing to fund DDA projects such as Hoffmann Park and Ferry Avenue Beach improvements; the value of boating to Charlevoix's retail community; the continued development of Charlevoix's retail community; and continuing efforts to expand Charlevoix's industrial manufacturing employment base.

Members of the Sturgeon Bay group indicated that their community has a large waterfront area, but that in comparison to Charlevoix's it is less developed both in terms of commercial and public park development and is not really something which draws people to the community. Charlevoix panel members explained that in Charlevoix the natural advantages of a protected harbor in combination with the vision of past community leaders provided the foundation of a municipal marina and park system. In recent years, the community focus has been on continued enhancement and effective utilization of that system.

Charlevoix panel members also described the shift from overnight motel rooms to condominium rental units. At one time several years ago, there were approximately 2,000 overnight motel type rental spaces in Charlevoix. Now, there are approximately 500. The difference is made up by more condominium-hotel spaces.

The Charlevoix panel also noted the success of Charlevoix's downtown business district in maintaining extended evening hours during the summer months. Wallace noted that there are some instances in the summer where 10 p.m. is a busier time in the business district than 10 a.m.

Panel members also described local efforts to both attract new manufacturers and retain ones which are already here. Kern, who has been one of the most active members of the community in that effort, explained that attracting new industry takes a lot of time and that among the things which draw new plants are a strong work force and natural attractions such as boating, fishing and skiing. He noted that the industrial development committee actively works with existing businesses to find out what their problems are and determine ways to make the community a more conducive place to conduct business.

Following the discussion the Sturgeon Bay people took a brief tour of Charlevoix before leaving for Petoskey and Harbor Springs.

Arts Center plans annual home tour

Six beautiful homes and one exquisite doll house await the 1993 Crooked Tree Arts Council Annual House Tour, held this year on Walloon Lake. This year's House Tour features log homes in an area on the west shore of Walloon Lake and other houses which are contemporary in design with interesting architectural features such as multi-levels and the extensive use of glass. Some of the homes include hand-laid stone fireplaces, complementary furnishings, works of art, antiques, landscaping and views of lovely Walloon Lake.

A buffet luncheon will be served at the Walloon Lake Country Club from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. Luncheon tickets are $10 each and must be purchased at the McCune Arts Center no later than June 21.

Weather permitting, float boat excursions between some of the homes and the Club House will be available.

This annual fund raiser for the Crooked Tree Arts Council and the Virginia McCune Arts Center will take place between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday, June 28. House tour tickets are $14 each and are available at the following locations: in Petoskey at the Virginia McCune Arts Center, in Boyne City at Lake Street Video and Music, in Charlevoix at the Applebee and in Harbor Springs at the Tin Soldier.

For more information or to order your tickets using Visa or MasterCard, call the McCune Arts Center at 347-4337.
